McPHERSON TAKES DEFEAT FROM ST. BENEDICT, 12 TO 0

St. Benedict Plays Some Near Aerial Football—Scores Touchdown.

St. Benedict kicked off to McPherson College, a superior skirmish team, but scored a touchdown on the Bulldogs through a couple of good passes and a fumble that brought the 6 point lead. The Benedictines seemed to have no luck through the line as they carried the ball for a loss time after time.

McPherson held the lead to a brilliant showing in the second quarter when they carried the pig skin for three first downs, and a skirmish gain of 41 yards against one first down, a gain of 33 yards and a loss of 8 yards by St. Benedict's.

Third Quarter Sluggish. Though the entire game was sluggish the third seemed to be the slowest of the entire game. The Catholics were especially sluggish in carrying the ball through the line. They were taken time and again for a loss, when Bulldogs went through the line.

Catholics Score Again. The last quarter was St. Benedict's best quarter as it showed some well organized passing. In this period McPherson ends were sucked in on end runs for good gain and a pass from McDonald to Furet resulted in the last touchdown of the game, making the score 12 to 0.

Gotschalk was the individualistic star of the game. Good work was done by McDonald and Furet of the Benedictine gridsters and Nonken on the McPherson team did some nice work.

Summary: skirmish, McPherson 158 yards gain, loss 10 yards; St. Benedict's, 122 yards gain, 33 yards loss; passes, McPherson completed 3, attempted 8, yards gained, 28; St. Benedict's attempted 4, completed 2, yards gained 43; punts, McPherson 7 for 264 yards, St. Benedict's 312 yards.

MASS MEETING

A mass meeting to arouse pep and enthusiasm for the game with St. Benedict's was held in the chapel Thursday morning.

The program consisted of a stunt, yells, songs and several numbers by the college band.

The stunt opened with a group of students on the platform yelling in an indifferent, haphazard fashion.

Harold "Berries" Crist, as a doctor entered upon the scene and sprayed the group with his latest chemical discovery "pep." With the application of this chemical the group miraculously livened and the yelling became spontaneous and "peppy."

After singing the college song, announcement was made of the night-shirt parade and the meeting was

DORM RULE MADE
As a result of a mass meeting of all men rooming in the dormitory, Friday noon, a rule was made that musical instruments may be played only in the afternoon, and not in the morning during study hours, and after study hours in the evening. This includes portables.

If the art work in each 1929 Quadrangle were purchased individually, the cost would amount to six hundred cold hard dollars.

Student loyalty alone demands the support of the 1929 Quadrangle.

SOCIETY

Miss Madelyn Gray entertained the Tri-Mu class of the Methodist church at a Friendship party in her home on South Main Friday evening.

The rooms were decorated suggestively of the season. The entertainment of the evening consisted of a number of games in which everyone took part. The refreshments were in keeping with Halloween and consisted of pumpkin pie with whipped cream, coffee and mints.

A number of college students were among the guests and everyone reported having spent an enjoyable evening.

Dean and Mrs. R. E. Mohler entertained at a six o'clock dinner last Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Katherine Wagener of Los Angeles, California. Miss Wagener is an aunt of Dean Mohler.

The invited guests were Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Haruly and Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Yoder.

The feminine members of the faculty treated themselves to a six o'clock dinner at the Town Tavern last Thursday evening. Those present were Mrs. Anna Tate, Miss Jessie Brown, Miss Margaret Hockethorst, Miss Mildred Lamb, Miss Marietta Byerly, and Miss Clara Colline. All reported having a lovely time.

Saturday evening at seven thirty o'clock at the E. L. Crumpacker home southwest of McPherson, a number of guests arrived to hear the disclosure of a secret.

After they had assembled, a short musical prelude was played on a portable victrola. Games and contests of an appropriate nature furnished amusement for the evening.

At a late hour the guests were then ushered into the dining-room where one long table was set for the evening refreshments.

When everyone had been served Miss Iva Crumpacker read a poem entitled "Cupid Swallowed", and then passed out envelopes, the contents of which stated that the favors, which were orange roses, contained a secret. The secret was found to be the date of the marriage, November 10, of Miss Pearl Crumpacker to Chester Murrey. Both of these young people are former students of McPherson College.

The guest of honor displayed the contents of her hope chest to the other guests who were the Misses Irene Gibson, Mable Stolmer, Olive Weaver, Violet Bruuk, Velma Wine, Edith Murrey, Viola Garrelts, Alberta Yoder, Harriet Hopkins, and Iva Crumpacker. Regrets were received from the Misses Nina Stull and Mary McPherson.

Friday night after the big parade Myreta Hammann escorted in a very

A slumberless slumber party ensued. It has been reported that the girls had pop corn, apples, music, pleasant dreams, a lovely breakfast, and "lots of fun."

DO YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

You pick up the daily paper, you glance through it, your eyes happen to fall upon a joke. You read it, then you laugh. You may laugh at the humor in it, or you may laugh at the silliness or the impossibility of it. Such things really happen. It may be that some clever humorist may have thought of it, or it may be true to life.

Have you stopped to think how weak-minded, or ignorant, or whatever you care to call it, some people are? Some people do not have the slightest idea of the geographical state of our own nation. Some Easterners still think that buffalo and Indians run loose out here on our peaceful Kansas prairies. Those people evidently do not read. For instance:

One or two years ago an eastern tourist stopped in a small Kansas town and was asking about the roads and such, when he happened to ask what state he was in. The native told him he was in Kansas. Oh, the tourist thought he was in Arizona. Such things really happen and this was one of them.

In the Mesa Verde National Park in southwestern Colorado a guide is keeping a book to write down all sensible and silly questions tourists ask him. Now the Mesa Verde National Park is of ancient Indian ruins, in other words, "cliff dwellers". The government has now restored the ruins to their natural state as much as possible. One day a group of tourists were waiting for others to join them when a supposed to be highly cultured and refined "eastern woman" turned to the guide and said: "Now just what time of day do those Indians come out of their caves?"

The guide turned and said to her in a laughing way: "Madam, they came out about four thousand years ago and haven't returned yet."

And yet these ruins were deserted probably a thousand or so years before Columbus first touched land on this hemisphere. Now that's just like a woman, isn't it?

CHAPEL ECHOES

If college students are to accept the challenge to save civilization, they must know and appreciate its problems. Professor Hess pointed out some of these problems Wednesday. Among them are: Relations with China, spread of the cigarette in China, and the attitude of our government toward the power industry.

Geographical and other conditions bring European students into contact with world problems. As a consequence they are probably more interested in them than American students. Where there is no vision the people perish.
