McPHERSON COLLEGE BULLDOGS WIN GAME FROM FRIENDS UNIVERSITY WITH SCORE OF 28-27

Quakers Are Ahead Until Last Thirty Seconds of Play When Wiggins Makes Long Basket Giving McPherson One Point Margin

SCORE IS 17-11 AT HALF

In Last Half McPherson Makes up for Inaccurate Shots with Close Guarding

The McPherson College Bulldog basketball team met the Friends Quakers on the latter's court at Wichita last Friday night in a game that will prove to be one of the most thrilling games of the season. In the last thirty seconds of play a basket was made making the score 28-27 for McPherson.

Both teams started slowly with Friends taking a 9-5 lead. Time was called by the Bulldogs, but as soon as play again started the Quakers quickly scored four baskets on some weird shots, to increase their lead 17-5. At this point the Quaker coach made a disastrous move by substituting four players. This move gave the Bulldogs an opportunity to reduce the lead to 17-11, by half time.

The game was especially exciting in the last half. The Bulldogs finding it very difficult to hit the basket although many shots were taken, made up for this by close guarding and hard fighting to retain the ball from Friends.

As the game neared its close, the Quakers continued to hold a six point lead, at this stage of the game McPherson rallied—Wiggins shot a one handed basket from the side and was fouled while shooting. He missed his free throw, but Pauls obtained possession of the ball, and flipped it back into the basket. Friends added a free throw to increase their lead to three, but Pauls made another basket to cut Friends lead to a single point.

Less than a minute remained to play, as Wiggins obtained possession of the ball, and dribbled up to the center of the floor where he hesitated a moment, then arched a long shot into the basket to give the Bulldogs a well-earned victory.

No player stood out in the teams' victory. The team experienced difficulty in hitting the basket, but their determination to win carried them through.

DR. SCHWALM RETURNS FROM ATLANTIC CITY

Attends Several Meetings of Church Conference—Noted Speakers Present

Prof. V. F. Schwalm resumed class Monday after a week's absence in Atlantic City, New Jersey, where he took part in several important church conferences.

Dr. Schwalm arrived at Atlantic City on Monday, January 9, with Dean Hall, who accompanied him from Manchester College. He attended the Council of Church Boards meeting on Monday. On Tuesday at an individual board meeting Dr. Robert L. Kelley made a partial report of his conference. Dr. Schwalm took part Wednesday in the meeting of the Liberal Arts College movement, an attempt to revive interest in the privately endowed liberal arts college. The largest attended meeting was that of the Association of American Colleges, composed of presidents and deans of various colleges.

At the meetings were addresses, reports, and discussion of college problems. The addresses dealt with all phases of teaching and school work.

Prominent speakers present were Mary E. Woolley, Robert E. Speer, Carlton H. J. Hayes, and Paul Douglas.

En route Dr. Schwalm visited his mother in Indiana. Also he had a conference with the secretary of the North Central Association of Colleges at Chicago.

COYOTES TO BE FIRST CONFERENCE OPPONENT

Bulldogs to Play Kansas Wesleyan at Salina Friday Night

BOTH TEAMS' AVERAGE EVEN

McPherson Lacks Experience of Wesleyanites But Has More Lettermen

On Friday night, January 21, the McPherson College Bulldogs will make their conference debut, when they engage the Kansas Wesleyan Coyotes at Salina. This game will also be Kansas Wesleyan's first conference game. There is no means of comparing the two teams in the games they have thus far played. Kansas Wesleyan will have played three games, playing the Fort Hayes Teachers tonight, while McPherson has played two games. McPherson's average for the first two games is 50%, having defeated Friends U. and dropping a game to St. Benedict's. Wesleyan also has a percentage of 50% having lost to Hastings and won from Kearney.

McPherson has five lettermen back while Wesleyan has four, but this advantage is changed by the fact that all four of Wesleyan's lettermen were in the starting lineup in most of the games last year. Included among their lettermen are Dyck, Suran, and Lobdell, forwards; and Mortimer, guard. With four veterans in the lineup the Wesleyan aggregation will offer some stiff opposition.

Coach Binford will have only one man to put on the floor that has had more than one year's experience. Rock, captain, is playing his fourth year for McPherson, while the rest of the squad have had not more than one year's experience in college basketball. The size of the players this year is rather small, but they have plenty of fight as was shown in the last half of the Friends game.

The team has failed to click consistently as yet, which is nothing serious in view of the fact that they have only played two games. Some of the men are playing in unfamiliar positions, and it requires time to become accustomed to their present positions. Considering this fact and that of the lack of experience in college competition of the players, there is a good reason for the Bulldog's lack of smoothness thus far in the season.

The team shows good possibilities, but it will require a little time for it to develop into an efficient basketball machine. However, with plenty of fight and speed, the basketball team will make a good account of itself in the conference race. Last year Kansas Wesleyan finished one place below that of McPherson in the conference standing.

MISSIONARY PLAY IS GIVEN BY MRS. WAGONER

The Y. W. C. A. program this morning was in charge of Mrs. Wagoner. A missionary play taken from life was given illustrating the great need of missionaries on the foreign field.

This part of the missionary was played by Mrs. Wagoner, Helen Holway took the part of the blind old native Indian woman who sought one who could tell her the "rest of the story of the Lamb". Elizabeth and Jo Wagoner gave a vocal duet in native Indian costume.

The Wagoners have spent many years as missionaries in India.

SEND OUT NEWS BULLETIN

Industrial Arts Department Distributes Paper

Saturday the Industrial Arts Department of the college sent out a news bulletin to all the graduates of this department that are now teaching in this field. It is called the McPherson College Industrial Arts News Letter. This little newspaper has been mimeographed and contains news of the college, as well as the various subscribers.

Ronald Vetter did the typing and all the students of the department helped collect material.

DATES FOR ORATORICAL CONTESTS SCHEDULED

Cash Prizes to Be Given to Various Winners

Wednesday, Feb. 22 has been set as the date for the local Anti-Tobacco Oratorical Contest. Orations are limited to 1800 words on any phase of the anti-tobacco problem. Not more than 250 words may be quoted. There must be at least three local contestants. The winner of the local contest will represent McPherson College in the state contest at Bethel College on March 10. Three state prizes of $25, $25, and $15 have been offered.

The local Peace Oratorical Contest will be held in the College Chapel on Sunday evening, March 12. Peace orations are limited to fifteen minutes in delivery. There must be at least three local contestants. The winner will represent the college in the State Peace Oratorical Contest at McPherson on April 12. The state prizes have been $50 and $40.

Candidates for either of these contests should report at once in Room D, and secure an appointment for discussion and criticism of the oration. The training in writing and speaking, the substantial cash prizes, and the forensic reputation of the school should be adequate incentives to bring out a large group of candidates in both contests.

Those who wish to take part in the contest should hand in their names immediately to Prof. Maurice A. Hess, the debate coach, in Room D.

STEINER TO LECTURE ON LYCEUM COURSE

Noted Author and Teacher To Appear on Next Number

The fourth number on the lyceum course will be given Friday evening, January 20, at the Congregational Church. This will be a lecture by the well-known author, teacher, and lecturer, Dr. Edward A. Steiner. His subject will be "The Making of a New World."

Dr. Steiner is the best lecturer that has been here for about five years. He was brought here outside of the regular lyceum course. He is spoken of as a "great man with a great message". He is well-known on American platforms, attracting great audiences.

Dean R. E. Mohler recommends very highly this number of the lyceum course.

HERSHEY SPEAKS IN CHAPEL

Tells Story of Lost Children Drawing People Together

Dr. J. Willard Hershey was the chapel speaker on Monday.

He told a story of two children who were lost in the woods on a mountainside. Five thousand people joined in the hunt and tried to aid the family. The whole community was thus drawn closer together.

Dr. Hershey concluded that although it was a tragic happening some good came of it because the people were brought to a cooperative spirit.

NEW COURSES OFFERED

To Have No Vacation Between Semesters This Year

Examinations for the first semester will begin, Monday, January 23, lasting three days until the end of the semester on January 25. The quizzes will be given from eight in the morning until five thirty, two hours being allotted for each one.

It is planned that the second semester registration will be completed by the end of this week before the examinations begin.

This year there will be no vacation between semesters, the second term starting Thursday, January 26, immediately following examinations.

It is suggested that the registrar and faculty might sometime in the near future deem it advisable to adopt a plan similar to the one being used at Southwestern College this semester. They are holding examinations in the mornings only, giving ample time to instructors and students for preparing for the next ordeal—most to the student.

Several new or interesting courses are being offered next semester which ought to be of interest to a number of students. Among them are Home Mechanics under the direction of Prof. S. M. Dell; Roman private life, under Prof. Maurice A. Hess; home economics for men and child welfare, under Miss Helen Mellath, and playground management and games under Coach Melvin J. Binford.

W. A. A. GIVES ATHLETIC OPPORTUNITY FOR GIRLS

Although there is very little intercollegiate athletic competition for girls in McPherson College, the Women's Athletic Association makes it possible for every girl who has her physical welfare at heart to participate in almost any form of sport she desires.

The W. A. A. is organized in such a manner as to create and maintain interest in sports as well as to present the necessity of physical exercise to girls attending classes. In the sports, soccer, basketball, volley ball, tennis, and track, there is competition as well as profit in points used for the attainment of awards. Points are granted for participation in games with additional points for being on the winning team and for making the varsity. More points may be gained by following certain health rules laid down by the organization. One point is granted for every mile walked providing the hike extends over a distance of five miles. As an added attraction the W. A. A. gives a banquet every spring to which members are privileged to invite their boy friends.

The W. A. A. affords an opportunity for every girl who wishes to develop the physical phase of her life while in school as well as the intellectual. It behooves each of them to consider strongly the advantages of such a program.—Submitted.

DON'T WORRY ABOUT YOUR TITLE

Putting a Packard name plate over the radiator of a Ford does not make a Packard out of it. It will still continue to perform in the same characteristic manner in which a Ford usually performs. It will not take on any Packard qualities.

We heard a man, who was about to get a new job, worry a whole lot the other day about what his title was going to be.

It occurred to us at the time that he was about to make his own title, and that it wasn't up to him to begin to worry about it before he started to work.

If he was in the Packard class he wouldn't be long in getting recognized. If he showed Ford performance he would soon be classified properly by his fellow workers.

A man classifies himself almost as soon as he goes to work in an organization.

There are a lot of people who want to have their title fixed first. They are a trifle timid about the demonstration they are about to make. They are not confident enough in their work to permit it to determine their classification.

There are places for Packards and places for Fords. Both perform efficiently in their places. You can't make a Ford run like a Packard nor a Packard act like a Ford by changing the name plates.

We have known lots of men who wanted Packard titles for doing Ford work. But it never pans out. A man's work determines his title.—Submitted.

COMPETING WITH OURSELVES

It is hard enough to compete with the other fellow. But the hardest job any man has is to compete with himself. There is no mystery about competing with others. They beat you, or you beat them, and that's all there is to it. Everybody sees the results. But a man may be thoroughly outdone by himself without recognizing the cause.

There are several danger signals which we may all watch, however; and they will guide us.

First, we should beware of being dilatory. Putting things off is one of the sure indications that our feet are on the brink of the "slippery slope." It is easy to deceive ourselves. We say we are "waiting for the proper inspiration." Or we allow ourselves to think we are "too busy" to attend to this or that—meanwhile sorting out all the easy things to do and sidetracking the jobs that are hard or distasteful.

Inspiration comes from action. It is the result of making up one's mind to take the plunge. Resolve, for instance, that you are going to call today on the hardest prospect you know; see for yourself if that won't start your wits to working; or pick out the hardest job on the schedule, for today's program—and go at it. Then note how mountains of difficulties fade away.

Some men never have "inspiration" and never do big things—not because they lack the ability, but because they can't make up their minds to act.

Another danger signal is losing interest in one's work. This is a red flag that denotes calamity ahead. No one ever yet lost interest in a job at which he really worked up to the limit of his capacity—unless he happened to be a misfit. And the misfits are very few compared with those who grow stale through indolence. Don't ask yourself if you are a misfit. Ask, rather, "Am I doing my work to the limit of my ability?"

It is when we quit working our job and it begins to work us that we get bored. We don't get something for nothing in this world—least of all do we get happiness out of our daily tasks without paying the price of good hard work.

Another danger is the banter after changes. It is the old, old story of pastures that always look greener on the other side of the fence. Some do well as long as their work has newness and novelty. But about the time they have gained experience and are prepared to make their efforts count they get the "wanderlust." They make good apprentices but not master-craftsmen.

A prosperous business never ceases to grow and make room for those who demonstrate their merit. It is only when the man himself ceases to grow that he finds his opportunities limited, and feels the urge to make other fields.—J. Ogden Armour.

Some men expect the position they hold to make them big; others expect to make whatever position they hold, big.

We can't save time. The best we can do is to improve it as it passes.

Sometimes the best inspiration is born of desperation.

QUIPS AND QUIBBLES

A bunch of the boys who went to the game Friday spent some time at an ice-skating rink afterwards. However, Orval Eddy restrained himself from skating for fear he might break the ice. Lloyd Larsen refrained for fear he might break—other things.

The other day Millicent Nyquist found out that Willard Brammel and Warner Nettleton are not the same people. Maybe she couldn't tell them apart because they both sing.

'Stunny' Prof. 'Oran used simply to haunt the dormitories. But since a certain day in December he has been sticking closely to home, and—?

Just to prove that people always have a desire aroused for anything they know they can't get or have the basketball players have been known to purchase candy bars immediately after meals.

Several of the boys seem to be spending a lot of time studying for what they believe to be a quiz in campusology. Funny that girls are the best tutors.

Appendicitis is catching. Absolutely proved: Here we have had no appendectomies performed on any of our students for months—and then the local hospital got two of our choice pupils at once.

Prof. Blair advocates college as a matchmaking place. Maybe that is the reason he always lets his students sit where they please—in order to follow their own inclinations.

'Tuffy' Wine blithely admits that he once burnt his forehead trying to steam his hair. We wondered where he got those "curly" locks.

Some pretty good chapels last week, don't you think? My! My! Two plays—mind you, more than one. And then a speech on technocracy! Too bad it can't last.

Have you ever heard of the Mayflower? Do you know what it was? (Not a specie of flora.) When Dr. Bright asked what the Pilgrim ship was, Elrae Carlson didn't know—or wasn't listening.

We were wondering if you had ever heard of a few unusual words or expressions such as the following: depression, technocracy, prohibition, intramural, examinations, lack of height, and "I'm swamped with work." Somehow they have a familiar sound.

Talk about quick exchange artists. Esther Brown started dressing in her Cheerette costume when the supper bell started ringing and was dressed by the time it stopped. And boys' clothes at that.

Although we might have guessed it, We never thought she'd have expressed it.

The above fight into higher literary art was caused by the following incident: One day when Lois Edwards was admiring the products of the woodwork students she sighed and let out some startling information. "How I wish I were a Carpenter."

Surely, they must not serve enough meat in the dormitory. When Ruth Tice flung her arm in Lois Fry's face at basketball practice, Lois promptly took a bite of the flesh. Ruth carried the print of her molar for a while. Camphallic, eh?

One girl insists that the reason that Reinecker couldn't jump for the ball at the St. Benedict's game was that the referee was standing on his toes.

MISSIONARIES TELL OF CONDITIONS IN CHINA

Crumpackers Supported Partly by World Service Group

Mrs. M. W. Emmert, Dean of Women, received during the Christmas vacation, a very interesting letter from Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Crumpacker, missionaries to China. Mr. and Mrs. Crumpacker are alumni of McPherson College, and the College, through the financial plan sponsored by the World Service Group, is lending its hearty support to their work; a major part of the World Service Group expenditures is given in their support. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crumpacker are the parents of Frank Crumpacker, Jr., with whom most of the students are acquainted. The Crumpackers write of the interesting conditions amid which they work. Of the war menace, they write: "For nearly two years this section has been quartering literally thousands of soldiers. In some places the population has been nearly doubled. These soldiers like to live in good places so it is no wonder that nearly all the larger temples and nearly all of the government school buildings and many residences are occupied by them. We are glad to say, that even tho' the soldiers are counted by the thousands they are well behaved and pay for what they buy from the merchants and vendors and often help to keep the place cleaned up."

The mission in which the Crumpackers work was organized and began work in 1910. According to their letter, "We now have four organized churches with a membership of 1398. But this is just a beginning. Our territory has more than a million three hundred thousand people in it. Not quite one Christian to every thousand folks. At the end of 1931 our Christian schools had 706 boys and girls enrolled. About sixty Chinese and thirty foreign workers give their time to nurturing the Christians, teaching, and evangelizing the Non-Christians. Each worker is responsible for more than fifteen thousand people. This is not a small job."

All the benefits of the mission station cannot be told in the number of Chinese Christians. Mr. Crumpacker points out that, during the last 25 years, the missions have been instrumental in bringing about better general living conditions, better schools, more equality of men and women; the standard of living is higher in nearly all elements. Mr. Crumpacker refers to these improvements as "the by-products of Christianity."

SENIOR CLASS HOLDS IMPORTANT MEETINGS
Doty Explains Insurance Plan to Increase Endowment
An unusually large number of seniors were on hand for the class meeting held Friday morning, January 13, in Prof. J. A. Blair's classroom.

Mr. Leroy Doty, '25, of Hutchinson, who is a representative of the McPherson College Alumni Association, explained the bequest insurance plan for maintaining and increasing the endowment of the school, as a possible class memorial. Members of the class discussed the suggestion and final action will be taken at some future date.

Delbert Kelly announced that seniors should begin immediately to have their pictures taken for the 1934 Quadrangle.

STUDENT SUFFERS GREAT MANY HALLUCINATIONS AS HE PREPARES TO STUDY FOR THE EXAMINATIONS

10:15 and All is quiet! I tell you, now, I hate to be a window snooper, but to get my dope on this "Burning of the Midnight Oil", I have endured and seen very much. Seven hours did I rake and page through my brain volumes but to find it useless. Then, I received a great fear—fear of public cursing and scorn—especially from my readers and editor. I decided it useless to ever attempt such a thing. So I took it upon myself to end it all, as well as myself, and I ventured over to the beloved chemistry laboratory. Here I spied Bottle No. 313—"Make-ye-Invisible Chloric Acid." The directions said to take 17 swallows and eat 5 cakes of yeast. This I did, and soon I found myself going through the agony of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde—and I found that my feet would not stay on the ground floor.

The next minute I found myself outside the girl's dormitory and floating from one window to the next. Then I entered into the building thru the open window of Esther Pote's room. I bumped into Zella Oxley and I screamed. I guess she wondered what happened to her because she looked white as a sheet and of course who wouldn't when someone that you couldn't see had hit you. I went on down the hall and saw the whole bunch of feminine flock studying. I realized that much college fuel was being used up on this night because the girls were using the motto "Burning the midnight oil". I could not stand to see such a dull place, so I flew out of Merle Fisher's window.

Then I circled the boys' dormitory from the outside. I heard the 11 o'clock clock strike. Then I mustered up enough nerve to enter the boys' rooms by going into Walter Weddle's window. My tour of the place inside was much the same as in the women's abode. Yes, I really drew the conclusions that the boys were burning the nightly fuel. I couldn't stand to see Fred Nice and Raymond Tace, or what have you, going through such pains, especially such caretaking pains. I exited through Willard Brammel's room and found my head ached miserably. What to do about it? I was a long way from home and I just couldn't turn out the light and go to sleep. I ventured on down the Hill avenue and LO and BEHOLD the professors lights were still burning. Yes, every one of them were hard at their night's task.—EXAMS, of course.

When I came to Doc. Harney's place I saw both him and John laboring industriously. I decided to take a peep at the questions—When I felt somebody pinching me. Wow, how that hurt. To my surprise, I found my father awaking me from a long dreary nap over my history book which I had so soon forgotten after venturing into my glorious dream. I found the time to be 11:15 and gee!—Was I burning My midnight oil? Yes, I then set to work and say why couldn't my dream have lasted until I'd seen those test questions?—Oh, well, I'll see them soon enough at the next exam period.

LIBRARY ACQUIRES NEW PIECES OF FURNITURE

The library office is the proud possessor of two new pieces of furniture. The are depression furniture, for they cost nothing but time and energy, but they are none the less ingenious, acceptable, and usable.

One is a book shelf, that invaluable accessory of every library. The other is a desk, though at first glance it appears to be a sewing machine. It should look like a sewing machine, however, for it used to be one. The machine has been removed, and the frame converted into a desk. It boasts a special flat drawer for pencils and pens; its other drawers are the usual size. The desk is especially convenient, for it can easily be rolled to wherever the librarian wants it, when she wants it there.

STUDENTS SPEAK IN CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Second Meeting of "Character of Christ" is Held

The College Christian Endeavor presented the second program on "The Character of Jesus", last Sunday evening. Warner Nettleton led the group in congregational songs at the opening of the service. Delvis Bradshaw led the devotional service. "The Chivalry of Jesus" was the subject of a paper given by Lois Fry. She said that Christ, true to the medieval concept of a knight, was always helping the needy, the sick, the women and sinners, in a chivalrous manner. Milton Early spoke on "The Joyfulness of Jesus." Early stressed the human characteristics of Jesus. Christ tried to teach the art of living a happy life.

A mixed quartet composed of Edith Bechtelheimer, Merle Fisher, Milton Early, and Merland Edwards, sang a special music number. The third talk, "The Candor of Jesus", was given by Edith Bechtelheimer. She said one reason Christ was loved so much was because of his open heart. Christ admitted his limitations and spoke frankly always. "The Generosity of Jesus," was the subject of Galen Ogden's talk. Ogden said one's giving is conditioned by his love. Christ brought all men to a common level. Ogden emphasized that, before we can share in Christ's generous giving, we must be ready and willing to receive.

LIVING PICTURES ARE GIVEN IN ASSEMBLY

Appropriate Music Accompanies Moving Portrayals

Living portrayals of the two songs "Old Black Joe" and "Jerusalem, O Jerusalem" comprised the chapel program of last Friday.

Hope Nickel took the part of Old Black Joe in the first picture. The musical background of the presentation was furnished by the college mixed quartet. The participants in the second picture, who wore the garb of angels, were Agnes Bean, Lois Edwards, and Marjorie Shank. Appropriate pantomimic actions were gracefully executed to the staging of "Jerusalem, O Jerusalem" by Warner Nettleton.

The program was sponsored by the Y. W. C. A.

DEAN MOHLER SPEAKS IN Y. M. C. A. MEETING

Discusses Crises Which Young People Will Meet

Dean R. E. Mohler spoke in the Y. M. C. A. meeting Tuesday, on "Education for Crises." Mohler said "Crises are certain to come and education should prepare us for them."

Dean Mohler mentioned and discussed four types of crises which young people are likely to have to meet. The first crisis, leisure, is a problem because most of us have educated ourselves for work instead of idleness. Mohler suggested several things that would facilitate adjustment to leisure: interest in music, reading, art, and an avocation.

"Unemployment" was the second crisis discussed by Dean Mohler. He suggested that we should broaden out and not narrow ourselves down to one job. We should learn to be happy without spending. Mohler next spoke of the crisis of sorrow. He said education should provide for an adjustment to this crisis, which can enrich our lives if we have sufficient reserve. The last crisis Dean Mohler spoke of was that of temptation. The speaker said the dangerous age is not 15 but 50, because of the added temptations and responsibilities that come with age. Education should build up reserves that will help us to withstand temptations.

Ward Williams gave a short introduction to Dean Mohler's talk. Archie Lindholm opened the meeting, and Liburn Gottmann closed it.

DONALD DRESHER HAS APPENDICITIS OPERATION

Donald Drescher, a senior here at McPherson College, was taken to the local county hospital Sunday for an appendicitis operation. Friends and relatives report that he is now getting along nicely.

TOWN GIRL COMPLAINS OF MULISH LIMOUSINE

Resorts to Tears, Cursing, and Exhortations to No Avail

If there is anything that gets my goat, arouses my ire, draws tears of afternoon rage and fury to my eyes, and makes me generally unhappy for the rest of the day it is to stand on the starter until the battery has completely discharged itself only to find that I have been unable to get even the faintest of chugs out of the in-lards of that dern machine.

There is only one thing more maddening: that is to find that some harmless, fun-loving college student has turned the gas feed in such a way that the poor critter was brutally choked to death. When such a tragedy as this occurs I am very apt to do one of two things. Either sit and vent my rage in a good bawl or strike out and walk the blocks and blocks and blocks homeward.

Then there is this thing of getting up on mornings when the temperature is so low the thermometer won't register it, and trying to get to an eight o'clock class before it is dismissed. One look at that car's cold and stony countenance proves that such a feat can never be accomplished, and my heart sinks to the depth of despair. Do I give up? No! I hop in, stand on the button awhile, and one time in a million (which means once in my young life time) it starts—in time. I haven't any doubt that back in the dark ages when that car was new it did once in a while start off without any undue coaxing. That, however, was in its youth and it has long since dropped the habit. In this case again there are only two alternatives: either prevail upon some kind hearted male to stir the thing into a warmer mood or call a taxi. Since the taxi method costs money and the other does not, I usually find the male.

There is one other little point that gets me down and that is flat tires. I know of nothing more profoundly annoying than to find that some insignificant little nail has been so thoroughly indiscreet as to get in my path.

This little ditty is meant primarily for those teachers who have a certain number of hard looks every year for those students who drive to school and arrive late for eight o'clock classes. By the way, have I told you I drive a Ford?

INSTIGATE NEW PHASE OF ENDOWMENT PLAN

A new phase of the endowment plan for McPherson College has been instigated and promoted by its alumni. It is now possible for the donor to help in the endowment plan without depleting his own resources. This plan which has been passed by the Board of Trustees was presented to the college students by Le Roy Doty of Hutchinson.

Friends and alumni of the college have been buying these policies, which benefit the college at the rate of ten dollars a year, accumulative. The policy matures when the individual is sixty-five years of age or in event of death.

Definite progress is being made in the sale of these insurance policies and indications are that the endowment fund will benefit to a great extent by them.

McPHERSON COLLEGE BULLDOGS ARE DEFEATED BY ST. BENEDICT'S COLLEGE IN OPENING GAME

Bulldogs Start Out Splendidly and Lead 9-5 at Half Time—Ravens Come Back Strong in Second Half and Win Easily

DEFENSIVE PLAY FEATURES

McPherson, Substitute Haven Center, Is Leading Scorer of Game

In a game that started splendidly but ended tragically, McPherson College lost to St. Benedict's 12 to 26 last Wednesday night. Entering their first game of the year against a team that was playing its fourth game, the Bulldogs were unable to match the endurance of the invaders and as a result, after holding a 9 to 5 advantage at half time, cracked in the final period and Ravens pulled away to a safe lead and were never headed.

Playing a steady, deliberate offensive with a tight defense the Bulldogs were the superior team for the first twenty minutes. Repligle opened the scoring with a gift shot and a few minutes later scored from the field with a beautiful shot from the side. St. Benedict's drew a foul and made good the shot. Shortly after, Reinecker dropped in a long one making the score 5 to 1. Rock dribbled in for a set-up and the Bulldogs had a 7 to 1 advantage. St. Benedict's made good another gift shot and Wiggins and Johnston entered the game. Again St. Benedict's was fouled and another score was chalked up for the Ravens from the free throw line. After some neat pass work St. Benedict's worked the ball in for a close shot and scored their first field basket of the game. Johnston retained lead with one from the side and the half ended with McPherson leading 9 to 5, having a decided advantage in passing and floor work while holding the visitors to a minimum number of shots.

It was in the second half that the greater endurance of the visiting team began to get results. The count was soon knotted and the Ravens had taken a comfortable lead before the Bulldogs again scored. The lack of height which has been a cause for much worry this season was very much in evidence throughout the entire period. Not being able to control the tip, the Bulldogs were forced to the defensive and they lacked the drive to fight for the ball.

Wiggins and Johnston, just recovering from the flu were far from their best form while Rock is still handicapped by a leg injury. Yoder was the only man to go the entire route, Pauls being eliminated on personal. Reinecker and Repligle, both starting the game, played a hard game while they were in.

If the team can get in the condition to go forty minutes as they did the first twenty of this game they were bound to turn in victories before the season is very far underway.

DRIPPINGS from THE DOPE BUCKET

The old Bulldog rally came to life in the Friends game and after spotting the Quakers 12 points the Bulldogs pulled the game out of the fire and won by a point. The ability to "come back" characterizes championship teams.

Several members of the squad said that Eddy made a good cheering section all by himself. Prof. Voran could also be heard once in awhile. Anyone that says that the support from those few rooters on the sidelines didn't help to keep the fight of the team up is e—y.

A close race in the Kansas Conference is quite likely this year. Baker was a point better than Ottawa before their own crowd, which is worth a lot in a basketball game. Other teams of the conference have not played conference games yet but have shown decided improvement with each game played.

Four years ago the Kansas Wesleyan game at Salina decided the championship for the Bulldogs, with about a hundred students from M. C.

there to "yell" them on. This year the opening conference game is with Wesleyan at Salina and a rousing send-off from the students will no doubt do a lot to bring home a victory.

This department is not making any predictions exactly, but watch the Bulldogs from now on!

Captain Rock is proving to be a very capable leader of the 1933 Bulldog basketball team. His ball rustling and never-give-up attitude is going to mean lots in the games ahead. Rock is playing his fourth and last year as a Bulldog basketballer. Pauls, a letterman from last year found his one hand hook shot beginning to work in the game with Friends Friday night. "Tauton" is a good scorer and a ball hand.

Chet Johnston is recovering from a series of boils that have been bothering him and is showing up well in games. He is very fast and has a good basket eye. Yoder has a good record on defense from his guard position. In the St. Benedict's game he held the flashy Merwick to six points and his man was held to one point in the Friends game.

Reinecker has been putting lots of fight in the Bulldog defense and has contributed to the scoring with some nice long shots. He has lots of drive and has been using it to advantage. Repligle is proving to be a valuable man to the Bulldog team both on offense and defense. He handles the ball well and works in well with the Binford system of offense.

Wiggins has fully recovered from the flu and turned in a great game against Friends Friday night. His long shots have been connecting rather regularly and his defensive work has been good. Stoner, letterman from last year is fitting in well with Binford's new system of play and will probably see action in a number of games.

Two games of basketball have been played in W. A. A. this season. A great deal of enthusiasm has been displayed and it is expected that it will increase as the games go on. On January 10 the Dixy Dames won from the Red Jackets 8-6, and on January 12 the Snowstormers beat the Red Jackets 6-4.

The captains of the teams are as follows: Elizabeth Bowman, captain of Red Jackets; Edith Richards, of the Snowstormers; and Lola Hawkins, of the Dixy Dames.

The Girl: "So you've seen Daddy, darling? Did he behave like a lamb?"
Sutor (grimly): "Absolutely. Every time I spoke he said, 'Bah'."

A CAPELLA TO GIVE EXTENSIVE PROGRAMS

A rehearsal a day is the present program of the A Cappella choir. Twice a week they have part practice; the other three hours are full rehearsals. The choir is going to the Monitor church on January 22, to take part in the morning program. On February 5, when the college broadcasts from Ahleue, the group is to sing again. The choir is also planning an evening's program to be given in either the first or second week of February.

COLLEGE FACULTY PUTS OUT NEW PUBLICATION

"McPherson College Teacher" Is Issued for Betterment

The McPherson College Teacher, a publication of the McPherson College faculty, has recently made its appearance. It is issued at irregular intervals from the office of Dean Repligle, and has as its purpose the ultimate betterment of the college program.

As the faculty felt that in any group of teachers there is a need for some medium of information, indirect supervision or guidance, and a forum for the elaboration of aims and ideals of their profession this bulletin was formulated. Matters of information, selected materials of mutual concern, improved or experimental techniques, methods for the improvement of the educative process all will receive consideration through the pages of the new publication. Every member of the faculty is urged to contribute that which he has or shall discover which is of value to him and which he feels may be of concern and help to the rest of the staff. No attempt is made to make the bulletin formal, highly organized, or wholly departmentalized.

PEP PLAY GIVEN IN THE REGULAR CHAPEL

Numbers Introduced by Blackboard—Hess and Lehman Speak

Wednesday, January 11, the regular chapel period was devoted to a pep program in commemoration of the Bulldog - St. Benedict's game. A clever play, entitled "Henry and Matilda at the Basketball Game", was presented.

The main characters were Henry, Lloyd Larsen; Matilda, Una Ring; and the main college student, Guy Hayes. A group of college students included Zelta Mae Oxley, Esther Pote, Fred Nace, Esther Brown, Orval Eddy, Willard Brammell, Newell Wine, and Price Brubaker. Russell Carpenter, dressed in a Bulldog warm-up suit, acted as sign bearer introducing the yells, songs, and various speakers, on a blackboard.
