ATHLETES FETED IN EVENING BANQUET

Athletic Board Gives Program for Football and Basketball Men

GEORGE GARDNER SPEAKS

Student Representatives Give Talks; Many Bulldog Fans Are Present

Last evening the College athletic board sponsored a banquet for the football and basketball squads. Members of the two squads and their lady friends were guests at the banquet and several supporters of the College from down town were also present. The banquet was held on the roof garden of the Hotel Hawley.

Jack Oelrich, popular McPherson sports fan, was toastmaster. He was introduced by Dean R. E. Mohler, who gave the convocation. Since Superintendent Gowans of the Hutchinson city schools, was unable to attend, a number of brief but interesting speeches were given by various students, professors, and business men of the town. In all of the talks was shown the spirit of loyalty and enthusiasm which exists within the realms of these speakers. George Gardner, former athletic director at McPherson College, and at present coach of the Reno Creamery basketball team of Hutchinson, first gave a few well-wishing words. Guy Hayes, represented the football squad; Harold Binford, the basketball men; and Leonard Wiggins, the M Club. Other speakers included Coach Melvin J. Binford; Assistant Coach Lester E. "Bud" Selves, Dean F. A. Replogle, LeRoy Doty, Dale Strickler, Jack Hamburg and Glen Shaw.

In conclusion toastmaster Jack Oelrich asked Neva Root to lead the girls in a few yells for the Bulldog athletes.

LARGE NUMBER STUDENTS ATTEND UNION MEETINGS

McPherson College was represented by 61 students at the Congregational church, Thursday, March 1, which was "College Night" of the union evangelistic meetings now in progress.

This group of students included members of the A Cappella choir, who sang two numbers during the program. The selections presented by the choir were "Sleepers Wake, A Voice Is Sounding," by J. S. Bach, and "Salvation Is Created," by N. Lindsay Norden.

Students of the College are also especially invited to attend the service tonight.

CLOTHING CLASS LEARNS NEWEST SPRING STYLES

Easter outfits are the center of discussion and work in the advanced girl's clothing class. Careful consideration has been given to the colors and styles best suited to the various girls of the class and work has been started on the clothing itself. Suits, silk dresses, and coats are being made in the newest spring styles and will make their appearances April 1.

Not only are the girls making their dresses and suits, but they are selecting the proper accessories to go along with them in order to make a smart outfit. Estimates as to the cost of each outfit are made so that each girl may know just how much her clothes cost her and how much she saves by her own efforts.

MUSIC ORGANIZATIONS BUSY

Local voice organizations have been quite active during the past week. Sunday evening the A Cappella choir gave an hour program. It also gave two special numbers at the union revival meetings at the Congregational church Thursday.

The Varsity male quartet gave five programs at Hutchinson Sunday and after a hurried trip home, assisted the A Cappella choir in its program. The quartet gave special numbers at the Rotary club Tuesday evening. It is to sing at the Christian church Sunday morning.

Booster Banquet Plans Arranged

Chancellor Guy Cutshall Will Not Speak at Annual Affair

Busy days are in store for McPherson College professors for the next two weeks, in preparation for the Annual Booster Banquet, which is sponsored by the City of McPherson.

For some time College officials have been working on plans to wipe out a deficit which has been hanging over the college since the depression. The banquet will end this campaign.

The local Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the drive to raise $10,000. Tuesday evening Dr. V. F. Schwalm and Dean F. A. Replogle appeared before the organization in behalf of the drive.

Chosen as one of the main speakers for this year's program is Chancellor

Financial Drive of College Will End With Banquet on March 23

Before he assumed his present high position of Chancellor of the University of Kansas in 1920, Dr. Lindley was president of the University of Idaho, after having a brilliant career in the field of actual university instruction at Clark University and at his alma mater as professor of philosophy. He has been awarded honorary degrees from his alma mater and from the University of Iowa, and is the author of many volumes, and is a member of the outstanding educational organizations of the United States.

Chancellor Guy Cutshall of Nebraska Wesleyan University, formerly scheduled to speak, is unable to be here. Many other speakers from surrounding territory will be here.

LINGENFELTER RECITAL SCHEDULED FOR MAR. 16

Colorful Costume Recital in the Form of Musical Playlet Is Featured

The Junior piano pupils of Miss Fern Lingenfelter, instructor in piano at McPherson College, will be presented in a colorful costume recital on Friday, March 16 in the College chapel. The recital, which will take the form of a musical playlet, is to feature interpretation of the music and dancing of various nationalities.

Mrs. Carl Berger has assisted Miss Lingenfelter in working out the dances for the playlet, and the public school music class at McPherson College has assisted in teaching group songs to the children.

The scene for the playlet is laid in grandmother's sitting room, where things are being made ready for the celebration of the twins' birthday. The twins, of course, have received a grand piano for their birthday, and as a fitting recognition of their present they have invited their friends to come and play on it. Each guest that comes to the party is gowning in a costume representing some country, or nationality, and the music, song, or dance in which he takes part is characteristic of the country he represents. The program is open to the public without charge.

Those who will take part in the recital are: Kathleen McFall, Kathleen Roberts, Jean and Joan Cotterell, Lois and Walter Lobrentz, Anita and Julia Alice Mullins, Max and Maxine Lingenfelter, Mary E. Rape, Mareta Montgomery, Alice Mary and Johnny Walter, Dorothy Mae Tillman, Caroline Peterson, Rota Hamburg, Joan Entriken, Mildred, Ann and Frances Allison, Betty and Arlene Saylor, Don Ferguson, Jimmy Ferguson, Madelyn Carlson, Anne Janet Allison, Junior Rolander, Rosemary Pattison, Mary Jo Holzemer, Julia Lee Angevine, Helen Louise West, Carolee Uhrhoub, Roger Frazer, Warren Minear, Glennys Doll, Emma Sheehan.

PRACTICAL JOKE REVEALS BLINDNESS OF STUDENTS

Akron, O. (CNS)—Three professors and 150 students literally sinned their lives away one day recently when at Akron University they succumbed to the luring sales talks of petition circulators.

It seems the students circulating the petitions were attempting to determine just how many careless individuals could be induced to affix their names to a document which they had not read. They found out—and so did the 150 students and three professors... found out they had formally and unequivocally agreed to commit mass suicide by decapitation on a certain date not far off.

INSTALLATION SERVICES FOR Y ORGANIZATIONS

In the Y. M. elections Paul Booz was chosen president, Paul Heckman was elected vice-president, David Duncanson was made secretary, and Harry Frantz treasurer.

The Results of the Y. W. elections follow: Velma Keller, president; Margaret Oliver, vice-president; Bernice Drescher, secretary; Elizabeth Wagoner, treasurer; and Mildred Dahlinger, music chairman.

Velma Keller has also had previous experience in Y. W. work. This year she was elected vice president and was active in Y. W. work her other two years in school.

The new cabinet will begin its duties next week.

NININGER IN "BELIEVE IT OR NOT" FEATURE

Prof. H. H. Nininger, former McPherson College professor and now with the Colorado Museum at Denver, gained a little more publicity Saturday in a "Believe It Or Not" feature by Robert L. Ripley.

In his explanation Ripley said: "What is probably the strangest of professions is that of trading in 'fallen stars.'" Believe it or not, Prof. H. H. Nininger of Denver makes his living just that way, supplying museums throughout the world with meteorites. Professor Nininger usually obtains these stones from the sky by purchasing them from farmers and others who chance to find them. Those retained in his Denver museum constitute one of the world's finest collections.

Professor Nininger started his meteorite collecting as a hobby while a professor at McPherson college. From here he made exploration trips into Mexico in search of giant meteorites, and whenever hearing of a meteor fall in any part of the country he would dash off in search of the fallen stone. He is widely known in McPherson and is a prominent Kansas scientist.

TAILS BRING TALES OF ANNUAL LIBRARY PARTY

All pigs have tails, but a few pigs seen on the campus the first of this week also had a tale.

The owners of these pigs, in this case, the Library staff, sent one pig to each of the following individuals: CWA workers employed in the library, faculty members of the library committee, scholarship students helping in the library, and all members of the Library Science and Library Methods classes for both semesters of this year.

The pigs were of zircon construction paper, and carried their tale on their backs in white ink. The tale was of the annual library party which is to be held the evening of March 17, in the College Library.

LOWE CHOSEN NEW HEAD OF WORLD SERVICE GROUP

Leonard Lowe, sophomore, was chosen to head the World Service Group for the coming year at the organization's annual election last Tuesday evening.

Other cabinet officers are: Wanda Hoover, vice president; Van Hunt, secretary; and Fern Early, treasurer.

The Basketball Tournament

"Do you want to buy a duck?" Yes, I guess not. No one, however, would refuse a ticket to Kansas City next week now that the Bulldogs have entered the national basketball tournament.

It took our faculty a full day to decide whether or not our team should go. After all the conferences and discussion were over, they gave us the verdict we all wished to hear. The Bulldogs shall go!

The basketball team has undoubtedly earned this honor this season. They have played the best of ball and tied for first place in the Kansas Conference. How far they will go in the tournament, no one can tell. Basketball is a sport in which "dope" means very little, and very little "dope" is available in a tournament of this kind. We are confident of this that whoever the Bulldogs draw, they will give a good account of themselves.

There are a number of points decidedly favorable to the teams going to the tournament.

Going to the tournament is a very economical method of advertising. Advertising not only our basketball team and McPherson College, but also the city of McPherson.

That the College cannot afford to send the team because of the present financial condition is not a point for argument, in that the trip will be financed by other means and will not in any way further the expenses of the College.

Because the Bulldogs will go to the national basketball tournament should be an incentive for high school students and other eligible college students to attend McPherson College as a winning team is always a drawing card.—E. W.

A Kindly Spirit

Leon Marino, former student of McPherson College, now at Baltimore, Maryland, showed a bit of commendable thoughtfulness when he called his mother by telephone to wish her a happy birthday on Wednesday, February 27.

It would be difficult to determine carefully on an economic basis whether it was worth what it cost—for who can measure kindness by cash—but no one would doubt the wisdom of this kindly spirit on the part of this far away son to his mother.

The Scientist

Who will say how much modern civilization owes to the scientist? The man who is content to spend long hours in a laboratory or workshop in the man who makes possible much of the progress of the world. What would we do without the automobile, the radio, the electric light or any one of a host of modern conveniences which have been developed by scientific men? How far could civilization advance without the developments in medical science which have made it possible for man to conquer disease and live in health? And finally, who will say how much has been and will be contributed to modern society by the social scientists—psychologists, economists, students of political science, etc.? Certainly we can afford to take off our hats to the scientist.

Consider what it takes to make a scientist. Patience, thoroughness, and extreme carefulness are only a few of the qualities he must have. Watch a man working on a new invention, a biology student putting together the remains of a prehistoric animal or a psychologist with a knotty problem. It is easy to see that the real scientist has no easy job. But the rewards are great for the one who has the ability and sticks to his task.

Education in Luxury

Surrounded by luxuries and comforts, which in many cases are enjoyed only by the wealthy, large numbers of college students, according to the editor of the Yale Daily News, dwell in marble halls for several years and then suffer something of a shock when they are finally pushed into the cold, cruel world with an A. B. in one hand and a superiority complex in the other. Says he:

"Those who will be forced later to live in surroundings that in no way compare with what Yale offers will feel discontent and discontenture when they leave Yale's sheltering walled walls. Not only in physical equipment but in every department of Yale life the way is paved for the ease of the undergraduate. Opportunities lie waiting in any direction for his indolent, languid, attention."

"As one surveys the Yale scene, one is inclined to deplore the doubtful benefits of too luxurious quarters in a university dedicated to scholarly pursuits. Material advantages may possibly lead to intellectual decadence."

All this has been remarked by observers of the social side of American college life for many years. Perhaps the solution is not readily apparent, but it would not seem feasible to raze our college buildings and substitute for them classrooms under trees or other classic surroundings. The solution more likely will be found in the methods we develop in the future for the selection of college students, it being conceded that we must abandon past theories of "higher" education for the masses.

Campus Opinion

"Drinking lots of water" has been pronounced essential in maintaining good health. But, sad to say, there has not been a drinking fountain in the Ad Building during this school term. Those students who make the Y. W. and Y. M. rooms their headquarters, have found it necessary to go to the dormitories or to the Science Building to get a drink. Often this is done on account of disagreeable weather. Many who work in the Ad Building would also be greatly benefited by a drinking fountain as well as the student body in general. This change is necessary to maintain health, save time, and for convenience.—J. G.

The question of dancing seems to be quite prominent among the current problems of this school. The difficulty apparently, is not whether the students shall or shall not dance but whether dances will be approved of and sponsored by the college. Whether a student will dance or not is a personal question and is probably already decided by each one individually, but in considering sponsored dances, one has to remember the type of college this is and the position taken by many of its supporters. The Brethren church has taken a definite stand against dancing and to have its college sponsor dances would be very much against its principles. This school has been having a struggle for existence and it would be difficult to go on without the complete moral and financial support of all the church members. Therefore it is very evident that it would be unwise to do anything along that line now that would arouse the disgust of the supporters of the college.—V. W.

Campus Chaff

Oh-h-h! I had the terriblest dream last night! I dreamed it was nearly impossible—did I say dream—to get my initiation paid; therefore Prof. Fries was driving to our house three times a day to take-it out in board. Dear, dear! It was so hard on the digestion. But what a grand and glorious feeling when I awoke.

And so the boys get to go to Kansas City. Wouldn't we love to tuck ourselves in a small corner and go along? But how lovely it is that they will go. Tuesday morning while the faculty was secluded in a room to vote, the very air outside was tense with feeling. When a few of the students got together to yell, the rest of the school gathered to see what it was about. I guess they let the faculty know what they wanted. Those halls have probably not rung with such yelling for a long time.

It surely was a dramatic moment when the door, to which all eyes had been turned for twenty minutes, opened. Everyone looked questioningly and expectantly at each member as he filed out. But such blank faces! And none would tell what had happened.

Some enterprising students climbed the stairs to peep through the transom. They thought that the remaining professors looked like a financial committee; so maybe the vote had carried.

It had!!!

We had never thought about it before, but now that it has been called to our attention we can see that Bob Rowman could easily double for the movie star, George Raft.

If we set up a big enough howl we may get a drinking fountain by next year. But we do wish we could have one before the outside fountain is turned on. If the regional conference speakers can complain, how about us who see no good old aqua from 8:00 in the morning until 5:30 p. m. at night? The health department should see about it!

In one of Replegle's classes the other day, the students were trying to decide where mercury comes from. Someone said it was mined. Another bright student said that it came from thermometers. Rep asked how this pupil could consider himself ready to graduate.

With all these columnists about, one has to get up early in the morning to be original!

Last night at the athletic banquet we found that the athletes are really versatile. Not only are they skilled in sports but they can make exceptional speeches.

Breakfast was served in the best of style by the men's home economics class last Tuesday. This constituted the first laboratory work by the class.

The ability to distinguish between various fibers in materials is being acquired by the beginning class in clothing. Methods by which the various cloths are made are being studied also and the spinning wheels in the museum offer interesting investigation for the members of the class.

Dr. Marlin Carlson, '28, has been reappointed McPherson County Doctor.

JITTERINGS OF THOUGHT

I'm having a horrid time trying to write and think. . . I hope Rep thinks I'm taking notes on his lecture . . . and I know he thinks I'm looking pensive. . . I always do. . . Either that way or blank. . . Everyone is abuzz about the big banquet. . . You hear in the halls, in the classroom and every place. . . "Did you know Tony was taking Betty?" . . . "Mike has got a date with Keedy?" . . . Et cetera. . . Et cetera. . . and a good old et cetera. . . as the music profs used to say. . . Evidently some of the faculty think our boys wouldn't fit into the atmosphere and profit from the environment of the city. . . so are not so reluctant about the squad's going to K. C. . . The men's home economics class

Initiate Required to Wear Fantastic Dress; Banquet on Friday

The Women's Athletic Association initiated eight new members last Monday. During the day the girls were required to appear on the campus in fantastic garb. Leone Shirk appeared as an old grandma with a cane. Phyllis Barngrover and Margaret Young were outlandishly attired as Pa and Ma Hoehandle. Viola Holderread and Bernadine Ohmart were garbed as two little boys, Pete and Repete. Mary Eisenble, Fern Early, and Irene Bales were dressed as three little girls, Kate, Dupli-kate and Compli-kate. The initiates were asked to have peanuts for all of the old members. They did, but some sacks contained such foreign substances as pepper and Epsom salts.

The chastisement of the new members was continued at Harnly Hall in the evening. Each initiate was taken by an old member, blindfolded, led to the fourth floor, and then out of the building and over to the Y. W. room by intricate pathways. Here the new members furnished entertainment for the old, and light refreshments were served.

The new girls will become full-fledged members after the W. A. A. banquet Friday night and after the pledge is taken at the next meeting.

Getting Acquainted With Your Campus

To Prof. S. B. Fahnestock, one of the first professors of McPherson College, is due the thanks for obtaining for the college its Carnegie Library. Prof. Fahnestock was very alive and active in raising funds and gifts for the college, and he wrote to Mr. Carnegie, asking for a library to be given to the school. Mr. Carnegie offered to match any amount of money raised elsewhere for a library; so Prof. Fahnestock proceeded to raise $15,000, to which $15,000 was accordingly added by the philanthropist. The building was constructed in 1905. Thus McPherson owns one of the few personally given libraries in the country, and it is said that this is the only single city in the U. S. which has two Carnegie Libraries.

Professor Fahnestock further wrote to the various governments of Europe, asking for help for the library. As a direct result, the various pictures now hanging on the walls of

U-pun my word—
Here another column is due, and I haven't thought about it at all this week. I feel very punny today, as you'll probably notice if you have sufficient patience to read this column clear thru.

It's really too bad that Prof. Hess doesn't go on the radio. He could have such an appropriate theme-song. You know—"Oh, I heard, yes I heard, oh it wasn't told to me, I only 'card." (Say it out loud and you'll get it).

You know that joke about the fellow who asked his friend who that lady was that he saw him with the night before, and the friend replied that it was no lady, that it was his wife? Well the other day I asked Floyd Harris who that lady was that I saw him eating with, and he said, "That was no lady, that was my knife."

Of all the despicable practices which are sufficient cause for homicides, the worst is that of eating crackers in bed when someone else has to sleep with you. I am told that Betty Lou has this pernicious habit, and to make it worse, she eats the crackers on one side of the bed and then moves over to the other side to sleep. Some times I wonder how some roommates manage to live together for the long period of one semester.

Don't rush, ladies, don't rush. One at a time. There's only nine, and first come, first served. You have probably guessed that I mean the nine accomplished young men cooks who are going to make admirable husbands some day. Already they can cook anything you want—providing your wants don't go any farther than cocoa, bacon and toast.

If you want a good laugh, you should come up to the men's home ec class some Tuesday and watch these brave young men embarking on the sea of culinary. They look quite comical in their white aprons and caps, endeavoring to learn the fine art of handling a skillet and tea pot.

At last we've solved the mystery of the Emporia game. The Presbyterians have a cute little baby for a mascot, as you probably noticed. It is their belief that they will win if the baby stays awake, but that they will lose if it goes to sleep. Well, the baby went to sleep during the last half of the game here, and that's why they lost. (So they say, at least).

If you want the very latest dope on the romances of M. C., just drop around to the football-basketball banquet. You'll be surprised at some of the results. I'll wager that you'd never guess who some of the couples are going to be.

And by the way, men. It's time to mind your P's and Q's, for the W. A. A. banquet is slated shortly. If you aspire to escort your lady friends to said function, don't forget that she has the privilege to ask for the date this time, and you'll have to toe the mark to make it.

STUDENT HAS DEVELOPED HOBBY OF DYEING TOWELS

It seems that many a man has his own endearing hobby. Often times that hobby changes, however, as one passes through different ages and stages in his life. Van Nortwick, evidently, has just passed through one of those stages and found himself a new hobby in the art of dyeing towels.

To the expense of his roommates, Archie has a weakness for the color red, at least he has been "seeing red" when he removes his towels from the washing machine.

"Van" has a new job this semester. Since he has moved from the "dorm" he has been washing the towels at the gym. Out of the bigness of his heart he suggested to his "wives", otherwise known as his bachelor roommates, that he would wash their towels.

When the day came for Archie to make good his promise, he gathered up all of his "wives" towels and put them in the washing machine. In one

"Every old dog likes to remember his puppy days." Yes and there is going to be lots of them to remember, judging by the couples seen around McPherson College.

Gail is getting things mixed up. On the way home from Emporia, she got to calling our beloved editor Slat, and then she said that she kicked a Staats out of her cradle the first time she heard a certain joke. Then she got Weaver mixed up and called him "Old Man Wiver."

By the way, I asked Gail if she didn't want to be co-editor of this pain-in-the-neck, and she said, "Well, I'm already a coed, all you need is an "itor."

I guess that's all folks. See you next week.

corner of the wash room he happened to see a red basket ball jersey which he thought should be washed, so he tossed the jersey in with the towels.

The result was that the towels, which had gone into the machine white, came out a passionate red. Fortunately for "Van" has a very peaceful and homeloving bunch of wives and all of them promised not to sue him for divorce.

Not being content to have some of the towels red and the others white in his abode, Archie got the remaining white towels the next wash day and a few red ones and put them in the machine together. The final result was that the towels now are all very near the same color—red, or at least, shades of red.

BULLDOGS WILL ENTER TEAM IN A. A. U. TOURNEY

McPherson Basketeers Will Enter Classic National Meet

Definite announcement was made late yesterday afternoon that the College would send the Bulldog basketeers, co-champions of the Kansas Conference, to the National A. A. U. basketball tournament to be held at Kansas City next week.

Some time ago Coach Melvin Binford received an invitation from J. A. Reilly, who is at the head of the big meet, and Mr. Reilly urged Coach Binford to enter the national tourney.

This is the classic event of basketball for amateur teams and is held annually at Kansas City. This year it seems that a larger entry list than usual will be in the tournament. Officials of the tournament are of the opinion that about 60 teams will be entered. Back in 1929 is the last time that a McPherson College team entered in the tournament. That team went to the quarter finals where they lost to the Wichita Henry's.

Coach Binford will continue practices for his Bulldog cagers until they leave for the big tournament. Entry blanks have been mailed to the tournament officials which officially enters the following men from McPherson College: Harold Binford, Lee Marquis Haun, Chester Johnston, Harold Johnston, Anton Meyer, Walter Pauls, John Schul, Leonard Wiggins and Wilbur Yoder. At the present time it is not known just when the squad will leave for Kansas City. Drawings will be made for the tournament within the next few days and then an announcement can be made as to when the Bulldogs will leave.

SPRING TRACK SEASON STARTED THIS WEEK

Several Lettermen from Last Year Report for Early Spring Practice

An official call has been given by Coach Melvin J. Binford for all track men to report for practice. The first official workout was given the men last night.

During the first week the practice periods will consist mainly of calisthenics and some running to get the men in condition. Many of the men who are out for track have not been out for athletics for some time and it will take considerable pre-season work to condition the men.

Prospects for the spring sport are just fair due to the fact that some of the outstanding men of last year's team were graduated.

A few lettermen are now working out in preparation for a hard season. Custer whose major event is the high jump, but who competes in pole vault and broad jump is back in school this year.

Wiggins, a point gatherer in high jump, pole vault, and javelin will be out for track when basketball season is completed. Chet Johnson, a hurdler will also be out for track as soon as his basketball duties end. Pauls will probably be out to compete in the weight events.

Van Nortwick, middle distance runner, has been working out for track for some time and should be in excellent shape when the season opens. Distance men who have lettered are Pote and Fasnacht. Hayes earned his letter last year in the short dashes.

Of the new men Haun has probably the most outstanding record. He has pole vaulted nearly 12 feet and is also a dash man and broad jumper. Meyer is a discuss thrower and will probably also compete in the shot put. Schurr has a good record in high school as a broad jumper and will also be out for the dashes. Dannenberg, another new man, will compete in the dashes.

Besides these men there are several others who have been on the Bulldog squad or have competed in high school and will be out for the team. Besides the Kansas Conference meet which will be held at Ottawa, the Bulldogs will compete in several dual meets with neighboring colleges.

SPORT LIGHTS

By Paul A. Lackie

McPherson College has made the finest record in a number of years in basketball this season, with eight Conference wins and but two setbacks!

Coach Binford has, with the aid of "Bud" Selves in football, produced two of the strongest teams which M. C. has ever entered in the Kansas Conference!

On the gridiron, the Bulldogs took second place, having but one defeat, that administered by Ottawa University. Ottawa had a strong and more experienced team than the Canines. However, next year the M. C. crew should show even Ottawa a strong race for first place!

In basketball the Canines have continuously pressed the C. of E. quintet for honors, ending up with a tie for the Conference lead.

Had it not been for a rather disastrous encounter with Kansas Wesleyan, the Bulldogs would have been sole leaders!

On the all-Conference team selected by Gene Kemper, Gazette sports writer of Emporia, Harold Johnston of the McPherson team holds down a guard position. This is a distinctive honor for Harold, who has played great ball this season!

Sharing places with Harold as a guard is Schrey, of Baker. At forward berths, are Barb and Barker, from C. of E. and Ottawa, respectively. Thafch, of Emporia, holds down the pivot position as Captain.

Chet Johnson of the Canines is found in fourth place in total scoring in the Conference with 76 points in ten games, an average of 7.6 points per game. This is a nice record, also!

Barker, forward on the Ottawa team heads the scoring list with 113

Lizard and Snail Arrive on Bananas From S. America

A small brown tree lizard and a striped snail were stowaways on a banana stalk from South America recently. They were brought to the biology department by students and are now on exhibition there.

points in ten games, for a medium of 11.3 points in each contest.

Now the Bulldogs have been invited to enter the National Tournament in Kansas City to begin Sunday evening on the Convention Hall floor of that city.

This high rating and honor is one which is extended to only the select teams which have made enviable records, and the Bulldogs and Coach Binford are to be congratulated on their invitation.

Globe is entering the Refiners of McPherson in the tournament, making the first time that two McPherson teams have been invited to participate!

The Story of Jones

The sales manager, obviously upset, dashed into the President's office.

"It's Jones, our salesman, the sales manager explained. "Used most insulting language. Told me to fry my face, and said you could go and chase yourself."

"He did, did he?" said the President. "We'll fire him without ceremony. Let's see; he's been with us five months. What business has he done?"

"Five hundred dollars the first month," said the sales manager, reading from a book, "four thousand dollars the next month, fifteen thousand and dollars the next, forty thousand dollars the next."

"H'm!" murmured the President. "I often think I ought to take a little more exercise, and I dare say the caretaker will lend you a frying-pan."

WHOM NOT CORRECTLY USED

Los Angeles, (CNS)—Dr. H. H. Ayres, professor of English at Columbia University, has confirmed the opinion of Noah Webster, expressed a century ago, that the pronoun "whom" would not be a permanent part of the English language.

Here to study rare books at the famous Huntington Library, Dr. Ayres said that time has proved Webster to be right, since few persons pretend to use "whom" correctly and a large number of the English-speaking people do not even recognize it.
