

Donald Frederick Writes Stanza For State Song

Professor Donald Frederick, of the McPherson College Music Department, won fifty dollars last Tuesday in Wichita for one of the two best parodies written for the new Kansas state song, "Home On The Range."

Mrs. Helen McEntire, of Wichita, was the other winner of the KIDC parody contest and also won fifty. The two winning parodies were selected out of over 600 entries that were sent in to the contest headquarters.

Prof. Donald Frederick

Professor Frederick's winning parody is "It's the range then for me. As it always will be, for I love every valley and plain. Though I journey away I'll return soon to stay, in the plains of my homeland again."

Professor Frederick joined the McPherson College staff September, 1946, as an instructor of voice. In 1947 he was appointed to the position of Assistant Professor of Voice.

Professor Frederick received training at Manchester College, Bethany Biblical Seminary, Ohio State University, Northwestern University, and at the Sherwood Music School.

Religious Book Week Is From October 24-31

Beginning October 24 and lasting until October 31 the Religious Book Week will have its sixth annual observance. Religious Book Week is sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The college library will have a display of books and posters. Book marks will be given away during the week.

Religious Book Week is a project designed to encourage laymen to read books of spiritual value, and includes books in the fields of biography, history, fiction, and poetry. It was first organized on a national scale back in 1943 and has had yearly observances since that time.

The National Conference of Christians and Jews have sent materials to the various leading newspapers of the country and have encouraged librarians, schools, colleges, clubs, and societies to co-operate.

One-Act Plays Coming

At the last meeting of the McPherson College Players, it was decided that three one-act plays would be given November 17, 18, and 19. The student directors were decided upon. They are Harry Knapp, Helen Stover, and Ann Oberst. The plays are to be chosen by Miss Sherry and the three directors.

Many things were discussed, but perhaps one of the most important decisions made was that of having a social for the Players. The date has not been set yet, but plans are under way.

Next Sunday afternoon, October 24, at 2 o'clock the student body of McPherson College will go back to nature in an event which is called an All-School Nature Hike.

The event is being planned by the social committee and the WAA Outing Club.

At 2 o'clock the persons who are interested in going on the hike are asked to meet in front of Sharp Hall. From there the hike will proceed to Black Canyon via automobile.

At Black Canyon Dr. R. E. Mohler will lead the hike, telling the group about the different natural phenomena which are encountered.

Next week's Spectator will carry further details of the Hallow'e'en Hayride.

Bittinger Discusses Race Relation With Students

A week ago last Friday evening a group of students interested in race relation as they pertain to McPherson, met in the Student Union Room to discuss a program of education and direction on this vital issue.

Demond Bittinger, editor of the Gospel Messenger, presented the group with a challenge in the form of good sound advice. Dr. Bittinger was an unexpected guest but according to students present he enhanced the evening's discussion.

It has been announced that there will be more meetings of this type in the very near future. Students of the college are asked to watch the social bulletin board for further announcements of these meetings.

A Few Floats Survived; Arnold Hall Wins First

In spite of the cold north wind that came razing over McPherson last Saturday, a few floats survived the parade.

One of the most spectacular of these floats was the float entered by Arnold Hall, which took first prize. This float was spectacular because it carried the football team and "Miss Donna Ford and 'Miss Billie' Daggett.

Second prize went to the sophomore class who had Wesleyan in the dog house. The Barkerettes received the third prize for their red and white float with some of the girls and Harry Knapp in action.

Noteworthy Alumni Come To Homecoming Event

Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Frantz from Carleton, Nebraska, were present for the Homecoming Festivities. Merlin is a son of Earl W. Frantz, the director of public relations at McPherson College. He graduated in 1943 and is now teaching in the Board of Trustees of McPherson College. He and his wife spent a year in Italy.

Also from Carleton, Nebraska, were Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Rothrock. Mr. Rothrock is the superintendent of schools there.

Students May Ride To Bethel Game

The social committee of the college would again like to call to the attention of the student body that they have a chance to attend the McPherson-Bethel football game next Saturday afternoon, October 24.

An investigation by the committee revealed that it would be possible to charter a bus or buses to the game. A vote taken in one of the recent pep assemblies indicated that there was a considerable number of persons who desired to attend this game.

The round trip fare to the Bethel game next Saturday will be $3.00, which only one-half the commercial price.

Next week from Monday to Wednesday a list will be posted on the proper bulletin board on which students may sign their names as desiring to attend the Bethel game.

Rev. Paul M. Robinson

As for the previous services, Professor Donald Frederick has arranged a service of sacred music for the remaining programs of the week.

Students who wish to counsel with Rev. Robinson may do so this afternoon in the pastor's study at the church from 3:30 to 5:00 p. m.

Queen's Dinner Attended By Over 100 Persons

Last Friday night, October 15, over one hundred students, faculty, and interested friends gathered in the college church basement to honor the Homecoming Queen, Bonnie Alexander, at a banquet given for her and her two attendants, Leona Richards and Doris Blocker.

The banquet was sponsored by the Student Council in cooperation with the Social Committee. Alumni and members of the Women's Council had decorated the church basement in regal splendor.

Donald S. Keim, master of ceremonies called upon various people to perform. Max McAuley sang, Rowena Neher played the marimba, and Miss Sherry gave a talk about Queen Bonnie's kingdom and subjects.

The preparation of the meal was under the direction of Mrs. Halsey. The waitresses, who were faculty members or faculty members' wives, were directed by Miss Stek.

After the banquet a large number of students gathered north of Falmestock Hall for the bonfire and pep rally which has been a tradition before every Homecoming football game for a number of years.

Olde Grey Mairsey Doats No More

Yes, perhaps the old mare is a bit haggard and time-worn, but we don't care because we have 1948 Fords.

McPherson College, also, has suffered a few changes since its birth back in the 18 hundreds.

Here are some rules and regulations which have been lifted verbatim from a McPherson College catalog of 1899-1891.

Students should bring with them, besides text-books, a Bible or Testament, Brethren's Hymn-book or Gospel Hymns, towels, a blanket or two, and should have their garments marked with full name.

All students are required to be present at chapel exercises and all students desiring to attend Sunday school and one church service each Lord's Day, at the college chapel or at some other place where their parents may direct.

Students are required to go to their rooms at the ringing of the study-bell, and observe order so as not to disturb others in study.

Students must extinguish their lights promptly at 10 o'clock p. m. unless excused by the person in charge of their hall.

No lady or gentleman will be allowed to trespass on the territory of the opposite sex, except by special permission of the President.

Students desiring to leave the grounds or to visit other students, must obtain permission from the person in charge of their hall.

Ladies and gentlemen will not ride, walk, or play together except by special arrangement with the President.

Students will be held responsible for misconduct in their rooms and damage done to school property.

No student rooming in the dormitory shall be absent after ten o'clock p. m. unless by permission of the President.

Students desiring to visit or go to the city, must obtain permission from the President, except on Saturday afternoons between the hours of one and five o'clock, when general liberty to leave the city and return is granted.

Visitors desiring to call upon students in the building must apply to the President.

Football's Dirty Linen Shows Itself

Seventy-five years ago this autumn, a group of Cornell University students asked their famous president, Andrew Dickson White, if they might be excused from classes to journey from Ithaca, New York, to Cleveland, Ohio, to play football against a team from the University of Michigan. After due deliberation, President White replied, "I will not permit thirty men to travel four hundred miles merely to agitate a bag of wind."

Present-day football enthusiasts often quote President White's famous remark, but they do so with the superiority of amused tolerance expecting, and usually getting, the belly laugh they feel his decision merits. A few more thoughtful citizens, however, are sometimes assailed by the suspicion that perhaps President White came far closer to putting a just value on college football than have his critics.

Certainly President White, were he alive today, would be appalled by the testimony of Mary Stuhldreher—wife of the University of Wisconsin's Athletic director and head football coach—which appeared on page 22 of the Oct. 23rd issue of Saturday Evening Post. Mrs. Stuhldreher—who writes more penetratingly than even she may realize—has documented the current status of college football with almost alarming clarity. The picture she paints is not pretty. Gone are the heroic overtones that once marked amateur athletics. In their place, in her account, is the stark factual record of what happens to a coach and his family when the coach has the effort to produce a losing team.

Taken by itself, the Stuhldreher story might be passed off as an amusing account of the tribulations of a football coach. But it cannot be so interpreted. Rather, it is still another manifestation of the moral paralysis which has made college football at most institutions a frankly professional enterprise. How else can one explain such facts as these?

For more than ten years every literate American has known that college football stars, despite purity codes and pious protestations to the contrary, are paid for their services either by the college itself or by alumni groups. Almost without exception, institutions that deny the charge are either woefully ignorant, painfully sanctimonious or non-participants in big-time football.

For more than twenty years, at least fifty college football factories have been far more deeply involved in staging commercial entertainment than most Broadway promoters. Apparently these colleges see nothing paradoxical about asserting their simon-purity, while at the same time they frankly commercialize their "amateurs" by selling radio and television rights, advertising, maintaining press agents and otherwise stimulating the "gate"—just like other carnival hustlers.

For almost as long, college officials have tacitly admitted that football coaches are hired—not to "build character" but to win football games. Losing coaches, no matter how good their personal reputations or how potent their benevolent influence on their players, have been fired at the conclusion of "disastrous seasons," while winning coaches—of whatever background, breeding or personal standing—have been wined, dined and sought after.

In the last few years a good many coaches have demonstrated that they understand this cynical philosophy. They have learned to ignore their contracts with the institutions they serve whenever a better offer comes along. A contract between a coach and a university, it seems, is binding only on the university; the coach often assumes he can break it at will.

The "loyal alumni," of course, have long been party to the professionalization of college football. They were among the first to realize that a social stigma is cast on everyone associated with a losing eleven, and they have supported their conviction both orally and financially. Now, apparently, even the students have been infected by the same virus. As Mrs. Stuhldreher so eloquently illustrates, today's crop of undergraduates are willing "to die for dear old Rutgers" only during winning seasons. Football is no longer a game in their eyes, but a yardstick by which their school is judged.

Perhaps these symptoms of moral delinquency are unimportant. Perhaps college officials, pointing to attendance figures, are right in believing that "the public likes football the way it is." Perhaps it is too late to re-examine the circumstances that led to the building of million-dollar stadia, to the coining for players, to the paying of bigger salaries to football coaches than to professors of physics, to bowl games, souvenir hawkers, gambling syndicates, and to the exaggeration of the importance of football triumphs to higher education.

Maybe so. But from where we sit, it appears that college football has grown far too big for its britches. No one believes that we can turn the clock back to the days of Andrew Dickson White, but it does seem odd that the very institutions that are supposed to instruct our young—to teach them integrity of thought—should lend their names and their resources to the kind of chicanery that seems to go with the Saturday-afternoon agitation of a bag of wind.

Student Directory

McPherson College is a relatively small school, but it is not so diminutive that each student knows every other person. Moreover, students cannot remember the addresses of everyone else in the student body.

For these reasons, the Spectator will publish, for your convenience, a McPherson College student directory. This data will be printed in several successive issues of the paper. If students and subscribers will have these issues, they will have accumulated for their own use a complete student directory.

For this week we will give you the names of the junior class.

Students Give Opinions of MC

The time has come for this sheet to carry a few ideas of fellow Mac students on just what should be done to improve life at McPherson College. Your rambling reporter has chosen this as the topic for the question of the week, and has interviewed a few of the students to see just what can be done to make McPherson College a more desirable place to pursue their higher learning.

Of course, in any poll of this sort you are likely to run across a few ideas which are highly questionable as to the actual good they would do for MC. Several of these suggestions were received this time, too. It seems as if everybody wants escalators in Harnly, more blackouts, padded fire escapes, knobs on the outside of the fire escape doors. We even found one lonely soul who wants supervised necking in the S. U. R. These ideas might be passed on to our Student Council, but I doubt whether they will take prompt action on any of them.

Now to the more constructive phase of our little poll. We found the new freshman from Kansas City, Dorothy Little, relaxing in the S. U. R. one afternoon and asked her for suggestions. Her answer was rather a unique one. Dorothy seems to think that college life would be improved if they would exchange boys and girls dorms for awhile, and let the girls enjoy Fahnstock.

Next we saw Marx Jones. He would like to see the student council sponsor school dances. He has tried to add that to the student council but regular ballroom dancing. This idea seemed to make a hit, for several students nearby put their ok on it, too, and seemed enthusiastic about the whole thing.

Another freshman, Miriam Keim, would like very much to see the student council take action on the lawn situation at MC. She thinks the lawns look like pasture. Maybe this is a sound suggestion, and MC students could help this by picking up all junk, to keep the lawn looking better.

Word got around that this poll was being conducted, and Wilbur Beattie came up and wanted to put his two cents' worth in, too. He says his car is about to fall apart, and he'd appreciate it if the driveways could be repaired a bit. He also reminded us that when winter comes the driveways always seem to deteriorate all the more, and he hates to think just what they will be like next spring.

Rowena Neher didn't even have to stop to think when we asked her opinion. She emphatically stated that college life for her would be improved 100 percent if they could have skating in the gymnasium.

Bill Saul and Gene Reinecker both wanted to see more cooperation between the college and the athletic department and also between the town and the athletic department.

Maybe this will give you a general idea of what MC students want in their college life, and who knows what effect this may have on bringing about some improvements. Anyway, we're enrolled for the next eight months here, and for better or worse we stay, and the biggest improvement we can make, individually, is a cherry smile for our fellow students whenever we see them. This will improve MC 100 percent.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Norlin of Blackwell, Oklahoma, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Anita, to Mr. Willard Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hopkins of McPherson, Kansas.

Michigan Takes Over

Michigan's unbeaten, untied Wolverines took over first place rank in college football in the Weekly Associated Press Poll of the nation's sports writers.

North Carolina dropped to third place behind Notre Dame after a not too impressive conquest of North Carolina State 14-0.

Michigan added to its reputation after smothering Northwestern 28-0 which was supposed to have been a real test of power.

California drew support from the west coast by taking over fourth place with a 42-0 victory over Oregon State.

Army, one of the unbeaten four of the east, held on to fifth place.

Georgia Tech gained more support by being polled sixth.

Pennsylvania nosed Penn State out of seventh while Missouri ranked ninth with Northwestern completing the top ten despite its loss to Michigan.

Work Begins On Chicago Live Stock Exposition

Work has begun on the 49th edition of the International Live Stock Exposition, the nation's leading agricultural event, and early reports indicate that the 1948 show should attract larger classes than in any previous International in the nearly 50 years of its history.

The Exposition, which transforms Chicago into a great focal point of the continent's live stock industry, drawing nearly half a million people from the 48 states, all Canadian provinces and foreign countries, is scheduled for November 27 through December 4 in the huge International Amphitheatre of the Chicago Stock Yards.

Expect Larger Showings

Livestock shows throughout the continent were generally larger this year, W. E. Ogilvie, manager of the show, announces, and this is a good barometer of what may be anticipated at the Chicago exposition. The management predicts entries this year will exceed the 12,500 head of animals exhibited last year.

Prizes Increased

Premiums for the show have been increased this year, as breed associations have volunteered more money for International classes, and the prize total of the show will exceed the usual $100,000 for the competitions of four breeds of beef cattle, 11 breeds of sheep, nine of swine and five of draft horses.

Homecoming Is Over (Sigh)

A week ago today, McPherson College students were not so calm, and collected as they are today, for at that time the student body was busy preparing for homecoming.

The homecoming began Friday morning with chapel, presented for the students by the alumni of the college.

Next on the agenda was the Queen's Pep banquet, M. C. ed by Don Keim. The program included the campus entertainers Max McAuley, Rowena Neher, and Miss Sherry.

Saturday's events started with the parade in the morning, which was rather disrupted by a windy day. Next came the football game which was cold and windy. Before the kickoff, Queen Bonnie was crowned and installed with her court.

During the half, the band and Barkerettes surprised and pleased everyone with their formations and marching ability.

Saturday night was the alumni dinner. The dinner was M. C. ed by Royal Yoder of Conway, Kansas, and included Gene Crabb, Rolland Plasterer, and a group of short entertaining speeches by various alumni and faculty. After a weekend of activities and work the would-be decorators decided that one thing which McPherson had at homecoming and which very few other schools have was wind.

Jim Hoover drove a car of McPherson students, Beryl McCann, Elinor Stue, Nelda Baldwin, Mary Snyder, and Lorene Marshall, to central and eastern Iowa a few weeks ago.

B. M. On C. Big Man On Campus

Dynamic, dashing, and awfully pretty—we introduce our student council treasurer, C. LeRoy Doty, junior at McPherson College.

Born in Wichita on February 4, 1929, LeRoy soon moved to California, where he attended school, graduating from John Marshall High School last summer. McPherson called before LeRoy's high school days were completely over; and lacking but a few units for graduation, LeRoy came to college. It was just this summer that he finally got around to graduation from high school.

While in high school, LeRoy was active on the student council and in debate and was a member of the honor society.

In college he is student council treasurer, president of the College Players, and campus editor of the Spectator. He was a member of the varsity debate squad last year.

After college, will come more college, as LeRoy wants to train for either religious education or politics.

He tells us that his major is history and sociology, his favorite subject being history.

His favorite profs are Metzler and Flory, and his pastime is outdoor sports.

His main interest is "Bobbie" who is scheduled to become the "Mrs." next spring.

A camera club is to be formed on campus. Professor Kolland F. Plasterer has announced. The members of this club will consist of those students who have had dark room experience or who are interested in it.

Dark room facilities will be arranged for and announced later. A call meeting for the club will be announced in assembly Monday, October 25.

Any person who is interested in photography may sign his name on the slip on the miscellaneous bulletin board at once.

Bulldogs Leave For Ottawa Game Time 8 P. M.

Today at noon the McPherson College Bulldogs leave for "Indiana territory" when they go to Ottawa to meet the Kansas Conference defending Champion Braves at 8 o'clock tonight.

Last week the Braves were beaten by Evansville College of Illinois, 18-6. While they have had trouble with non-conference foes, Ottawa has two conference victories. The first was a run-away over Bethel 42-13 while they had trouble with Kansas Wesleyan in beating them 6-0.

The Canines have yet to win a game this season as they have lost three straight conference games and one non-conference game.

The Bulldogs will stay overnight in Ottawa to return Saturday morning.

Injuries have still been prevailing on the squad this week. Several players are nursing bad legs. Guards C. C. Tillman and Don Stevens will see limited action tonight; there are several players with mangled fingers and noses.

Seeing considerable action for the Bulldogs tonight will be Wilson, Wolf, and Stull at ends; Webb, West and Flory at tackles; Pritchett, Heckethorn and Tillman at guards; Reed and Anderson at center; and filling the backfield are Delay, Carpenter, Arnold, Fisher, Batson, and John Colyn, who has been shifted from guard.

Coyotes Wipe Up Grid With MC Bulldogs

Last Saturday afternoon the Kansas Wesleyan Coyotes wiped up the gridiron with the McPherson College Bulldogs to the tune of 46-2. This was the third conference loss for the Canines and the first conference win for the Coyotes.

W. Smith scored two of his team's seven touchdowns, both in the first half. Manely also scored twice for the visitors. Jilka, Keeling, and Howe were other scorers while Kellogg kicked 3 extra points after touchdowns.

McPherson's safety came early in the fourth period. The Dogs had punted deep into the Wesleyan territory, and Wesleyan took over on their own 15-yard line where they were penalized for illegal use of the hands. This penalty put the ball on their own 1-yard line. Here they punted from behind their goal line into the strong wind, and the ball came back over the goal line and out of the end zone where Elvin Wolf fell on it for the two points.

Conference Race Is Hot

It appears as though a 3-way race for the Kansas Conference football crown is shaping up between Ottawa, Bethany and College of Emporia, although two of the undefeated teams meet this weekend.

College of Emporia and Bethany meet at Emporia tonight to determine who will stay undefeated.

Ottawa is entertaining winless McPherson at Ottawa tonight also in an already predicted outcome.

Baker and Bethel will play at Newton Saturday afternoon while Kansas Wesleyan will remain idle. C. of E. skinned past Baker 6-3 while Bethany whipped Bethel 25-0 for its third straight victory.

Ottawa was beaten by a non-conference foe 18-6, Evansville, Ill.

Defeat isn't bitter if you don't swallow it.

SPORT SHORTS

Sometimes time writes a curious finish to a sports story. This tale of two pals, but a handful of years ago, took the sports trail in search of fame and glory in such a story. Frank Sinkwich and George Poschner were pals. As kids in high school at Youngstown, Ohio, they played together on the football team. Frank Sinkwich was the more spectacular of the two. He was a dazzling, flashy halfback star who could run, kick, weave his elusive way through the tightest opening for sensational touchdowns. And he could throw a forward pass like a baseball player. Whenever Frankie fired a pass it was always a sure bet that his pal and teammate, George Poschner, would pop up to catch it, for George was a good, reliable end.

Frankie created such a wide reputation in high school as a star football player that talent scouts from all over the country came to try to convince the youngster to enroll at their respective universities. Finally Frankie was prevailed upon by the representatives of the University of Georgia to give him all on the gridiron for the Bulldogs. But Frank Sinkwich refused to go south unless his pal, George Poschner, also was given a scholarship. And, although the Georgia scout didn't consider Poschner much of a prospect, he finally yielded to Sinkwich's request rather than lose a potential star.

Frank Sinkwich and George Poschner became roommates and teammates at Georgia. Inseparable pals, they began their march up football's glory road. But it was Frankie who hogged the headlines. He became one of America's greatest and most publicized football stars.

George Poschner was not envious of his buddy's reputation. In game after game, Sinkwich would throw those long passes in the clutch and his pal, Poschner, would catch 'em. The two Ohio Yankees turned the Cotton Belt grid circuit upside down. Always, though it was George Poschner who tackled all over the field and caught the passes his buddy threw, it was Frank Sinkwich who grabbed all the headlines. The headlines never mentioned it, but it was Poschner who helped make Sinkwich the great star he became.

So it was all through the football days of the two buddies. But time has a habit of passing in a hurry and swallowing up the sports heroes of yesterday. There was a long absence. And then, one day, the newspapers carried two separate items about the two buddies. One read:

Quarterback Frank Sinkwich, ex-Georgia All-American and high-priced professional star, has been awarded the "Carr" Trophy," given annually to the most valuable professional player in the National Football League.

The other item read: George Poschner, former star end of Georgia, has been invalidated home from the Western front in Germany—with both legs amputated because of wounds.

Frank Sinkwich and George Poschner, two pals and football buddies of yesterday and today, fate surely plays strange tricks on the human race!

McPherson "B's" - 0 Wesleyan "B's" - 0
