Besides local leadership, several well-trained guests will be active and resource leaderships at the Recreational Workshop. Widely trained in the field of crafts, Mrs. Dorothy Ikenberry of Wichita, Kansas, will lead the group in leather tooling and textile painting. Mrs. Ikenberry first started her work in crafts, when after two operations, she was advised by her doctor to engage in some type of self-rehabilitation work. She became so successful that he sent others to her. Now she holds classes in her home five days a week beside lecturing in other towns. She is experienced with leather, metal, finger painting, textile painting, woodcarving, and plastics. Tomorrow night, Mrs. Ikenberry will speak to the group on crafts in rehabilitation. Mr. Bob Tully, athletic director at Bethel College, will lead the shellcraft activity. In the discussion groups, he will lead Community Recreation. Mr. Tully is well trained with recreation of all types, especially philosophy of recreation. He will be game leader for the group attending the workshop. Mr. Don Snider, Youth Director of the Church of the Brethren from Elgin, Illinois, is well qualified to lead the promotion of recreational leadership. He will be in charge of a discussion on folk games. Prof. Don Frederick, professor of voice at McPherson College, will lead a group discussion on music. Other leaders who have charge of various classes and discussions are: S. M. Dell, who will also assist Mrs. Ikenberry with leather craft and metal tooling; party games and glass etching; Dick Wareham, individual sports; Hazel Heisey, card weaving; William Dell, needle craft; Vera Hoffman, block printing. Rev. James Elrod will lead the worship periods and teach woodcarving. The Recreational Council, which is in charge of the three day workshop, hopes that as many as sixty people take advantage of the opportunity to become better leaders by attending the workshop.

Trustees Approve New Professors, Student Court

At the annual Board of Trustees meeting held February 22-23, most of the action was unanimously approved. Next fall Prof. James M. Berkebile will return to McPherson College after a two year's leave of absence from the chemistry department. He has been completing work on his Ph. D. degree at Ohio State University.

John K. (Jack) Kough will be employed for full time work in the department of Sociology and Human Relations, and Public Relations beginning July 1, 1950. A former football star of the college, Kough is finishing his Doctor's Degree except for completion of his thesis, and has recently had a very unusual experience for study and travel in the Orient.

To promote in every reasonable way possible a broader and stronger athletic program and competitive sports at McPherson College is an aim of the Board of Trustees. It has received several applications for the position of Coach and Athletic Director for McPherson College.

The decision to proceed immediately with plans to construct an annex to the present College library and complete needed repairs and alterations on the library was made by the Board.

A new experiment will be tried next year when the Student Court will go in effect upon approval by the Board of Trustees.

Dr. D. W. Bittinger, president-elect of McPherson College, and Mrs. Bittinger, were in McPherson for the meeting. Important considerations such as faculty, budget, promotional campaigns, and the future welfare of the college were considered during Dr. Bittinger's attendance with the Trustee body.

All but four of the 24 members of the McPherson College Board of Trustees were present for the two-day session.

M Club Sponsors Box Social

The night of March eleventh has been chosen by the "M" Club for their box supper in the college gym. The social is planned on the lines of an old-time box social.

The girls on campus are being asked to put up boxes for the event. The wives of the married members are also putting up boxes for sale. The boxes will be wrapped, and the name of the contributor will be placed inside the box. There will be no name on the outer wrapping of the box, so theoretically, the bidder will not know whose box he is getting. The club will provide the containers for the convenience of the girls putting up boxes.

The auction principle will be used in selling the boxes, with the highest bidder receiving it. Seventy-five cents has been proposed as a minimum for starting bids.

The evening will be climaxed by a program presented by the "M" Club members and outside talent. The purpose of the evening is to raise money for the purchase of "M" Club blankets for eligible lettermen and for the purchase of sweaters for the new lettermen.

Those who are interested in participating in the box social are urged to see Lyle Goering or Robert Odle, co-chairman for the social.

Adel F. Throckmorton, state superintendent of public instruction, will deliver the morning address before the whole group. Also he will participate on a panel with the deans of the colleges to discuss the address.

The main part of the program consists of discussion groups led by faculty members from the various colleges. These groups will discuss problems concerning specific departments found in colleges, such as administration, teacher administration, and the sciences.

Those in charge of special discussion groups from McPherson College will be Clyde Forney, Mrs. J. F. Siffer, Miss Edna Neher, Prof. S. M. Dell, and Prof. Joseph Shelby.

A complete program of the day's events will appear in next week's Spectator.

Students Present Variety Of Talent In Fine Arts Revue Monday, Mar. 6

A Fine Arts Revue in five parts will be presented by the Music Department at 8 Monday evening, March 6, in the College Chapel under the direction of Professor Roland Plasterer. All participants are regularly enrolled students of the college and will present a wide variety of talent.

The first part of the program consists of an organ solo, "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor," Bach, played by James Staats. Ten Tableaux on Man will be presented in part three by Rena Marah, Gordon Stutzman and Max Shank, duo pianists, will present the "Mardi Gras," by Groffe, in part four.

Part number five consists of three excerpts from the opera "Faust," by Gounod; 1. Valentine's "Farewell"; 2. Marguerite's "Jewel Song"; and, 3. The "Final Trio."

Faust, having been tured into the astral orbit of Mephistopheles, readily became a tool for further evil conquests. The destruction of Marguerite's religious faith and soul then was the chief interest of Mephistopheles. Faust tried several times to win the affections of Marguerite and finally succeeded by presenting her with a beau-

Lenten Meditation

Burton Metzler

When a track man refuses a piece of cake he does so not in order to observe an old custom or perform a bit of ceremony but to be in good condition for the next meet. When a mother stays up at night to care for her sick child she does so not merely for the sake of denying herself but in order to help the child. Likewise Jesus denied himself of many things which other men enjoyed, such as a home and family, ease and comfort, security, and even life itself. He always disciplined himself and constantly kept in his kind of training because He had such important work to do. How could He rest at home when His sheep was lost on the mountain? How could He spend His time on amassing a fortune for Himself when other people were perishing? And how could He dissipate His powers in comfort and ease when God's work was lagging? Strict discipline and self denial therefore grew out of the high purpose and inner compulsions of His life. These disciplines became river banks which channeled His energies and directed them toward useful ends. After all, who wants an undisciplined life which, lacking restraining banks, becomes a stagnant swamp instead of a life-giving river?

Campus Or Zoo?

I felt as if I were visiting a zoo, when the other day I strolled across Macollege campus and happened to notice the litter on the lawn. Peanut hulls on the steps of one building, candy bar wrappers and ice cream cartons—it looked as if the monkeys had been playing.

But I don't know of any monkeys around here, so I decided that the mess must have been created by humans with help from the wind.

Then I began to wonder about what the trustees and high school students thought last week when they saw how "tidy" we college students are.

Perhaps you do not notice how messy our campus looks. I know that it was that way a long time before my eyes were finally opened.

There are several suggestions for keeping the lawn neat that would neither take time nor be fatiguing. Surely it would not take extra avoidpoups to carry that candy wrapper to the nearest waste basket instead of dropping it enroute.

Then there is always the possibility of putting a scrap of paper in your pocket until you can dispose of it in the proper place.

Check that impulse to throw test papers to the four winds. If anyone were interested in seeing your grade he would ask you rather than chasing a paper across the lawn.

Radio Dramatists Receive Trial By Fire; Discover Difficulties In Production

Last Friday afternoon as the radio speech class got their trial by fire, they found out things are much different out in the crowded closet KNEX uses for a studio than they are on the stage of the SAR.

All of the group had crowded into the room and after 10 frantic minutes Prof. Roy McAuley had agreed with the staff on the mood music. First accident after taking to the air was the reading of too much introduction to the first play "The Black Cat."

During this play a wall was to fall. The cast shoved a few small pieces of wood off a piano bench onto the floor. After an awful crash of one second's duration, the play went on. Bob Fries, of the station staff, confused as to the reason for the floor shaking dashed out the back door to see if the back porch was still there—it was.

During "The Tell-Tale Heart" the cast was kept jumping as they attempted to simulate the sound of a beating heart. This was done by gently rapping on a speech book. At another point a church bell was to strike the hour of 4 a. m. All the cast could find to use was the famous cowbell here on the campus. The clangs came out so loud that it almost caused the radio waves to be broken.

Throughout the whole production instructions were whispered back and forth that the mikes picked up. The control room operator was kept jumping to keep up with the mood music bridges. After the program ended he wiped his brow and gave a big sigh of relief.

After the cast had finished their program, they picked up all their sound effects props, then they helped Prof. McAuley give on all the hair he had pulled out during the show.

The class received compliments on their program, but promise to try to do a little better the next time. They will continue on their production of radio dramas.

New Books Give History, Techniqu Of Art Methods

Art and Life in America by Oliver Larkin was written primarily for students of American civilization who wish to know what part visual-plastic arts have played in American society.

The book is an introductory survey of the history of architecture, sculpture, painting, and some of the so-called minor arts in the United States. Many illustrations of the works of art discussed increase the value of the book.

Masterpieces of Sculpture from the National Gallery of Art makes available for the first time a liberal selection of the treasures of sculpture in one of the world's great art galleries. The 112 pages of illustrations include the work of some of the greatest sculptors of the last 750 years.

Modern Methods and Materials of Etching by Harry Sternberg gives step-by-step working explanations illustrated by photographs and diagrams. The author avoids technical language and gives helpful advice on purchasing materials and on matting prints for exhibition.

The Art of the French Book traces the history of French book production from the ninth century manuscripts to the present day books.

Brief chapters on the significance and artistic achievement of each period are followed by numerous illustrations in black-and-white and full color of the most famous examples of written and printed books throughout the centuries.

Religious Art from the Twelfth to the Eighteenth Century by Emile Male is a guide to the understanding of the masterpieces of religious architecture, sculpture, and painting. It traces the development and the changes of religious art and iconography and gives a key to the religious content and thought expressed.

Origins and sources of inspiration are demonstrated by this French art historian and author. Brief scenes and figures in the great cathedrals are explained.

Animal Anatomy and Psychology for the Artist and Layman by Charles R. Knight presents answers to the difficult problem of drawing animals realistically. The book contains 123 illustrations of animals in various physical poses and psychological expressions.

Hosteling Provides Fun and Fellowship

American students who want to travel this summer have the opportunity of going on a variety of low-cost hosteling trips in the United States and abroad.

Hosteling— inexpensive hiking or cycling along established routes with overnight stays in hostels maintained by local councils of interested citizens—has long been a popular mode of travel for young people abroad, and is attracting many followers in this country.

Many of the trips planned by the local councils in the United States will cost as little as $1.25 a day.

Hostel accommodations are located in barns and farm buildings, in cabins and private homes, and are supervised by resident houseparents. Each hostel provides separate sleeping quarters and washrooms for men and women, a common kitchen where hostellers may cook their meals and, in most cases, recreational facilities.

John D. Rockefeller, 3rd, president of American Youth Hostels, believes that in addition to its recreational value, hosteling is a factor in fostering international understanding. In a recent statement, he said, "Hosteling provides unique and sound opportunities for normal, friendly relations between the peoples of different nations. It affords practical experience in the important business of getting along with people of differing backgrounds and points of view."

"Already twenty-six nations have youth hostel organizations. Over a period of years the many thousands of young people returning each year from visits to other countries will make a basic contribution to international friendship and understanding."

Details are available on inquiry at AYH National Headquarters, 6 East 39th Street, New York 16, N. Y.

Or decorators may obtain from this book a general artistic knowledge of how to draw lifelike animals.

Knight is a master of the art of animal portraiture. His paintings have been reproduced in scientific magazines.

Your Child Is an Artist by Zaidenberg shows with more than 100 illustrations how you can help your child develop his artistic talent.

Foul Play Suspected In Campus Drowning

An unidentified body was found buried in the mud in a ditch on the Bridgewater campus during a recent dreary and rainy week.

The body was found, face up, arms outstretched and heavy with mud and water, in the deep ditch between the College Street Church and North Hall last Wednesday morning at about 11:30 by Mr. John T. Fike, Superintendent of Building and Grounds. With the aid of Mr. Ira Miller, the body was dragged out of the mire. The skin was torn in several places and appeared to have been lifeless for several hours, according to Mr. Fike.

The fragile form was laid on the bank, and when it was certain that there was no identification-or money-on his person, he was abandoned by the men.

It is believed by countless weary students that the drowning was suicidal—the result of extreme worry, neurosis and blue book blues. The unofficial police hypothesis, however, suggests foul play on the part of the owner of this little 12 inch black and brown Teddy Bear who is now lifeless on the bank of the ditch.

Captured Leopard Dies

Oklahoma City was the scene of excitement last week when a leopard jumped from an 18-foot pit to freedom. A group of children witnessed the spectacle.

For 61 hours hundreds of people searched for the animal as he roamed the country side, tired and hungry. Finally he returned to his pen looking for his mate and food.

Drugged meat had been placed in the pen. This doped the animal enough to make his capture easier.

However, the hunt proved too much for the leopard who died soon after his capture from a collapsed lung brought on by exertion and depression. The animal had scar tissue from pneumonia contracted in the India jungles.

Modern Short Stories edited by Emma Dabbs contains 22 short stories. A short biographical sketch is given for each author and a study guide is given for each story.

Contemporary Literature edited by Russell Blankenship and others was published before World War II. The volume contains more than 200 examples of contemporary literature of various types—fiction, drama, essay, and verse.

A History of American Poetry, 1900-1940 by Horace Gregory and Marya Zaturenska is an attempt to give a critical survey of American poetry of the 20th century. The authors have included biographies with their criticisms and interpretations of the works of the poets.

One-Act Plays of Luigi Pirandello and Plays of the Italian Theatre are two recent additions to the McPherson College drama collection.

Fifteen Greek Plays contains plays in translation from Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, and Aristophanes. A selection is also given from Aristotle's "Poetics."

How To Revise Your Own Poems and How To Revise Your Own Stories by Anne Hamilton are two small handbooks for amateur writers of verse and short stories. Both books grew out of author's experiences as a writer, critic, and teacher of creative writing.

Recent additions and replacements of older books in the field of literature are:
The Complete Sherlock Holmes by A. Conan Doyle.

The Master of Ballantrae and The Black Arrow by Robert Louis Stevenson.

Essays by Francis Bacon.
Six Plays by George Kaufman and Moss Hart—"Merrily We Roll Along," "The American Way," "Once in a Lifetime," "The Man Who Came To Dinner," "George Washington Slept Here," "You Can't Take It With You."

The Good Earth by Pearl Buck, The Virginian by Owen Wister, Latin-American Trade and Economics by Paul V. Horn and Hubert E. Rice shows the importance of the Latin-American area in world trade today.

The United States now exports more products to Latin America than it did to the entire world in 1938. The U. S. today supplies nearly two-thirds of Latin America's imports and takes two-fifths of that area's exports.

The volume consists of five main sections dealing with the general background of Latin-American trade, current trade practices of Latin-American nations, factors bearing upon trade expansion, and the practical side of importing and exporting.

The Minister's Job by Albert W. Palmer describes the work of the minister of today.

Since the ministry is an old profession about which there are many misconceptions, the author states that "to reveal the realities of this great calling, root out prejudices, and clear the road for a new generation of Christian leaders is the purpose of this book."

Water Color Painting by Adolf Dehn is more than a concise informative book on the "Ins and outs" of water color painting. The book contains numerous illustrations of some of the authors most successful recent paintings.

Selections of water colors by other well-known Americans are included to form an interesting comparison of styles and techniques.

An Introduction to Color by Ralph M. Evans presents the effects of the properties of colored light, the properties of vision, and the action of the mind in interpreting color. To achieve his broad coverage, the author divides his discussion into three sections—physics, psychophysics, and psychology.

Rural Artists of Wisconsin by John R. Barton was planned by John Stewart Curry before his death in 1946. The more than 80 oil paintings, water colors, drawings, and carvings illustrated in this book do not pretend to be "great art"; but they are the creative expressions of ordinary farm people.

Thirty people who live on the farms and in the rural communities of Wisconsin are presented in this book. Their work has been exhibited at the Rural Art Exhibit at the University of Wisconsin.

You'll probably agree that a professor who comes three minutes early to class is extremely unusual—in fact, he's in class by himself.

I found an ice cold maiden,
And tried to thaw her out.

Deforch Wins Fourth Consecutive Cage Title

For the fourth consecutive year Deforch Motor Company won the intramural basketball championship as they yesterday afternoon downed the Bowery Boys 45-39 in the finals of the post season tournament.

Deforch had previously won the 1950 league season with a spotless 11 game record.

As it was the fourth successive championship for Deforch, it was the third runner-up spot for John Kleiber's team. The Bowery Boys lost the playoff last season to the champs by a 42-23 count, and—playing under the name of "Wildcats" in 1945—also lost to Deforch 39-27.

After taking the lead at five minutes with Phil Hoover's set putting them in from 6-4, Deforch was never headed. They led at halftime 19-14.

The Bowery Boys made a grand comeback shortly after intermission. Trailing 26-18, they hit seven consecutive points—two buckets by Lawrence Lowrey and a fielder and foul shot by Bill Hicks—to come within a point of tying.

John Ward and Hicks traded goals to make the count 28-27 but from there Kleiber's outfit folded. The defending champions threw in 13 points while holding the Bowery Boys scoreless until Hicks threw in one at 16:30.

By then the score was 41-29, and the Bowery Boys had tied their own hangman's knot by missing six consecutive free throws. Big Herb Brunns also fouled out with six minutes remaining to erase the Bowery Boys height advantage.

At that they made a noble attempt and did make the final eight points of the game.

Inaccuracy at the foul line dearly cost the runners-up. They hit only seven of 21 attempts from the foul line as Les Brunner, a tremendous competitor for the Bowery Boys after his addition the second semester, missed seven out of eight.

Bill Hicks was high point man of the game with 14 points while Brunner and Lowrey collected nine. Salty Tillman and Charlie Petefish took honors for the champions with 12 and 11 respectively.

Ward

John Ward finished out his four year intramural career with a winner. He played on the original Deforch champs in '46 and has been with them since.

The league's two top teams moved into the finals of the intramural basketball tournament Tuesday afternoon as Deforch shook off a determined assault by the Characters 58-44, and the Bowery Boys roared from behind in the second half to stop the Preying Eight 53-46.

In the opener Dick Wareham's Characters scared the defending champions and had only a five point deficit at halftime, but Charles Petefish and Salty Tillman teamed for 23 points in the final 20 minutes to insure Deforch's fourth consecutive defense of their title.

Colyn Is Senior Athlete Of Week

Our senior athlete for this week is John Colyn. John is married, and the father of a year old daughter. John is an Industrial Arts major, and plans to teach and coach after graduation this spring.

Colyn is a native of Lenox, Iowa. He attended high school at Lenox, where he received eight letters, three in football, three in baseball, and two in basketball.

Shortly after graduation from high school, John was drafted into the air corps. While in the service John competed in several track meets, taking a number of firsts. John also played quite a bit of basketball while serving in Africa. While stationed at Dakar, Africa, he was chosen on a team to represent Dakar in a Mediterranean area tour last fall.

After his discharge, John enrolled at Northwest Missouri Teachers College at Marysville, Missouri. John and his wife Alice, came to McPherson in January of 1948.

Since being at McPherson College John has lettered two years in baseball, and once in football, and will be working for his third letter in baseball this spring.

He had a bit of bad luck last fall, as his ankle was broken in the first quarter of the first football game. This has kept him sidelined through the football and basketball seasons, but he hopes to be able to use it by baseball time.

John is currently representing the M Club on the college athletic committee.

"Can't afford it."
"But father, what am I going to do without a riding habit?"
"Get the walking habit."

Baseball Drills To Start Next Week

Baseball coach Dick Wareham started diamond workouts for battery candidates in the physical education building Wednesday afternoon with infield and outfield prospects slated to report next Wednesday if conditions permit outside practice.

Wareham is encouraging any prospects to report immediately. The club is undertaking a more ambitious schedule than in any previous year with 19 games tentatively booked.

The probable opener will be at Sterling April 3 against the Sterling College Warriors with a road game with Friends University set for the following day.

The 1949 outfit won six and lost five, the only winning record compiled by a McPherson College athletic aggregation in three years. The team hit .312 as a unit but three top performers have been lost—the great clutch performer and captain, Duane Ramsey; his hard-hitting brother, Elvin, and the veteran leftfielder, Dean Ward.

The club particularly is in demand of pitchers, their weakest department last year.

Bulldogs Lose Final Game To Bethel

The Bethel College Graymarcs jumped off to a 9-0 lead and maintained a ten point lead throughout most of the game to defeat the McPherson College Bulldogs here Tuesday night.

The Bulldogs had their poorest night of the season, as they converted on only 15.6 percent of their tries from the field. Bad passing plagued the Bulldogs all night, as they were unable to work the ball through the Bethel defense for close shots at the basket.

The Loganbill brothers were a thorn in the Bulldogs side all evening, as they scored 29 points between them, Lanoy getting 17, and Varden counting for 12. Captain Lyle Goering led the Bulldog scoring with 10.

Three members of the Bulldog roundball team played their last game Tuesday night. They are Glenn Pyle, Robert Odle, and Lyle Goering.

The Kansas Wesleyan Coyotes finished the conference grid with a perfect record by taking the Ottawa Braves 62-46 last Friday night, and the Baker Wildcats 54-51 Tuesday.

In his three years at Ottawa, Coach Wally Forsberg's Braves were unable to finish the season without a loss, as they shared the title with Wesleyan two of those years. So Forsberg transferred to K. W. U., and guided the Coyotes to a perfect loop record and an undisputed title.

Baker's western swing, where they lost to Bethany and Bethel, and their loss to Wesleyan Tuesday night, dropped them from third to fourth place.

Bethany downed the luckless C. of E. Presbles to move into third in the standings. Bethel strengthened her hold on fifth place with wins over Baker and McPherson, while Ottawa in losing to Kansas Wesleyan still holds on to second place.

The champion KWU Coyotes will meet the CIC champions, Ft. Hays, at Emporia March 7, 8, and 9, in a best out of three series, for the right to go to the NAIB tourney in Kansas City. These two clubs have split two games this year, each winning on its home floor. On a neutral floor they should be a pretty good match, with Ft. Hays possibly having a slight edge.
