Two Campus Houses Have Open House This Weekend

Arnold Hall is holding its open house tomorrow evening, Oct. 4 from 7:30 to 9.

Open House at the College Courts, which is located northeast of the College campus, will be held Sunday afternoon, Oct. 5 from 2 until 4.

Refreshment arrangements for open house at Arnold are being left up to the individual rooms, as was decided at a dorm meeting Tues. Sept. 30.

Each floor of the dormitory will have its own theme.

Those on the parlor decoration committee are Adalu Carpenter, Jean Walker, Lera Kesler, and Betty Jean Baerg.

Open House at the College Courts is being left mostly up to the individuals. Refreshments are not definite, but it was decided that there would be some difficulty in preparing house refreshments. No definite plans have been made, according to Dean Neher, Pres.

"Jimmie" Joins Maccollege Family

Takashi "Jimmie" Ohse, the little Japanese boy on McPherson College campus, is another of our foreign students that came to America to study.

"Jimmie" got his American name from the American soldiers that he worked with in Japan.

"Jimmie" has set out for a general education course, because he feels he doesn't know English well enough to pick a major to work toward. Also, he believes that the speech class in which he is enrolled can help him in mastering our language.

Passage to the United States and schooling at McPherson College was arranged for Jimmie by Marlin C. Miller, an ex-army officer who served in Korea and Japan. "Jimmie" had been looking for an opportunity like this and was eager to start school in America. He arrived here in July and is staying with Miller, now, of course, out of the service.

Tokyo is Jimmie's home town where he graduated from high school. For the last three years he has been working on an army camp near Tokyo.

Jimmie feels that his studies should be given all his time so he hasn't joined any of the extra-curricular activities here on campus. Jimmie likes McPherson College very well and wants to learn all that is possible in the time he will be here with us. When asked how long that would be, he shrugged his shoulders and spread his hands in a typically American manner and answered, "Cannot say for sure."

Whether it be one year or four years, we're sure that Jimmie will always remember his stay at McPherson College as a pleasant and educational experience.

Players Club Meets Tuesday

Officers of the club are: Bryce Miller, president; LaVon Widgren, vice president; Margaret Yost, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Yoda Yoder, faculty sponsor.

Mrs. Yoder states that anyone can join the club and will be welcome at the next meeting.

Memory Chapel Devotions Held Three Times A Week

The annual Memory Chapel programs began this week under the sponsorship of SCA. The fifteen-minute devotional periods are held in Memory Chapel at the Church of the Brethren at 6:45 every Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings.

The committee responsible for the programs includes Esther Ikenberry, Leon Albert, Virginia Holderread, and Norman Long.

The committee has planned their weekly programs in sets of three in order to give them more unity. Some of the themes they hope to use are: Creation of the World, of Man and of the Church; Faith, Love and Hope; Past, Present and Future.

Students Teach; Prof. Watches

In "Methods of Teaching in High School," the professor becomes a student and the students become teachers.

At every class session one student teaches for thirty minutes and then the class discusses his teaching techniques for twenty minutes. The student teacher chooses a subject from his own major field and tells the class the role they are supposed to play. The role varies from Home Economics (boys in the class try to behave as girls would) to a stiff course in Physics.

The only assignments given are those given by student teachers. No exams will be given in the course. Grades will be based upon teaching, discussion, and attendance. The supervisor of the class is Prof. Jack Kough.

Alaskan Lecturer Comes Here Oct. 10

Edgar C. Raine will present an Alaskan travelogue in natural colors in the College Chapel at 8 p. m. Friday, Oct. 10.

Mr. Raine has had much actual contact with the Alaskan people. For ten years he was a representative of the United States Treasury Department and visited every town and village in Alaska and many villages in Siberia, once a year.

The topic of his lecture is "The Land of the Midnight Sun" which he illustrates with 150 colored views. The lecturer is being sponsored by the College Social Committee. An offering will be taken to defray expenses.

Joining the ranks of Maccollege couples are Anneliese Koch and Eugen Lupri from Germany. Anneliese came to America last winter to start her college education. Unpurported, Eugen followed her this summer with two doubts in mind—to study agriculture to help rebuild his own country and to be with his girl.

Jarvis Company Of Salina Gains Building Contract

Bidding for the construction of McPherson College's new girls dormitory was closed with the contracts for the job making the total sum to be spent on this building, $259,240.00.

The new dormitory will be built on the lot east of the Church of the Brethren, just off the campus proper. The building will face the east.

Zeller Hears Truman Speak

Rev. Harry K. Zeller Jr., pastor of the college church, attended a Conference of Citizenship in Washington, D. C. last week. Featured speakers of the Conference were, Harry S. Truman, President of the United States, Attorney General, Frank McGrannery, and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. Other members of our church who attended were W. Harold Row, and Dr. Paul H. Bowman.

Following President Truman's speech, the United States District Court, under the gavel of Judge Letts, convened. Fifty-two foreign-born immigrants from twenty-one countries were naturalized into American Citizenship.

Rev. Zeller said the whole ceremony was very impressive. The Conference on Citizenship was sponsored by the National Education Association. It dealt, especially, with the problems relating to foreign born citizens.

During his stay at the Statler Hotel in Washington, Rev. Zeller visited Dwight Horner in the State Department. Mr. Horner is a former member of this church and a McPherson College graduate.

German Couple Are Together Here

Among the foreign students who are furthering their education at McPherson College are Anneliese Koch and Eugen Lupri. This couple has come, although separately, to America from Germany to study in this country.

Anneliese, a Praulen beauty who speaks fluent English, came to McPherson College from Hochem Main, Germany, in time for the second semester of last year. And now, proving that things have a way of working out for the best, Eugen is here with her at McPherson.

Eugen's interest lies in Agriculture. Before coming here from his home in Duesseldorf, Germany, he attended an agriculture college in that country for two years. Now he is continuing his studies in this line here.

A general education course is the object of Anneliese's studies. She has a teaching job in mind when she returns to her homeland. While Anneliese was born and raised in Germany she is no stranger to this country. She spent ten and one-half months in Galveston, Kansas, as an exchange high school student. During this time she learned much about American people and their customs but she wants to learn more.

Both young people like America and McPherson College very well. They would like to be able to stay but both feel that they are needed more at home.

Anneliese and Eugen are both members of UNESCO here on the campus and want to join other student activities soon.

They have given their desire for more education just by coming all the way from Germany and since they are both good students they are sure to make the most of this opportunity to study at McPherson College.

Murray Wins Plane Trip To W. Virginia

An airplane trip to Jackson's Mill, West Virginia, is the award given to Eula Mae Murray, one of the four winners in the Promotional Activity of 4-H.

Early in the spring, Eula Mae had prepared a talk for Promotional Activity which she gave at county and regional 4-H Club Days. She won first prize at both events. She was then invited to the 4-H Round-Up at Manhattan, Kans. held in May, at which she again gave her talk. At this conference the 4-H members received help with their staff and were asked to give them as many times as possible to promote 4-H work during the summer.

Eula Mae spoke to five civic groups during June, July, and August. She then made a promotional notebook recording her summer activity, which she sent in to Manhattan where the winners were chosen.

She will attend the Rural Life Youth Conference, Oct. 2-5. Leaving Hutchinson by train at 1 a. m. Oct. 1, she will join the rest of the group in Kansas City. They left Kansas City by TWA flight No. 408 and will return Monday morning Oct. 6.

The Sears-Roebuck Foundation provides this trip including lodging, transportation, and conference fees. Others selected to receive the award were: Elaine Lunt, Pratt County; Gary Nellan, Coffey County; and Jack Brink, Cheyenne County.

Revised Version Of Holy Bible Is Published

Bible Week has had special significance this year. Making it especially significant has been the release of the Revised Standard Version of the Holy Bible. The issuing of the Bible comes on the 500th anniversary of the Gutenberg Bible—the first book ever printed from movable type.

In 385 Jerome, a Latin scholar who lived in Bethlehem, produced the Vulgate Bible; translated the Hebrew and "old Latin" into Latin of his day; for 1,600 years the fountain, Ruleton, a member of the state committee on 4-H camping and the Kansas Committee on 4-H Club work.

The winners will be accompanied by Mr. Raymond Port, of the State 4-H office, and Mrs. H. E. Errington, Ruleton, a member of the state committee on 4-H camping and the Kansas Committee on 4-H Club work.

His base bid was $223,500.00 but was brought down to $210,900.00 by a decision of the college board to do without three items in the actual construction that were proposed in the previous plans.

The plumbing and heating contract was given to Carlson Plumbing and Heating Company, McPherson. Carlson's bid was $35,500.00. The electrical contract went to the Brown Electric Company, Wichita. $12,840.00 was his bid.

Construction is to start as soon as possible. No completion date has been set although it is hoped that the new dorm will be completed by Sept. 1, 1953.

The construction company stated they would not move onto location until the steel is available for immediate use. The priority for the steel has been given to McPherson College but it is not as yet available.

Attention! Pre-Med Students

All pre-medical students who wish to take the entrance examination on November 2, 1952, must make application on or before Oct. 20.

All seniors this year who plan to attend medical school in the fall of 1953 should plan to take the examination.

Critically Speaking

College students are taught to be critical; critical of what they read, see and hear and sometimes just plain critical. Somewhere along that line of learning, most of us have failed to be impressed or have forgotten that before criticism can be of any value it must be constructive.

Speakers who appear before college students say we are their most difficult audience. College students who appear in Chapel programs before the rest of us say they would rather appear before almost any other assembly. Now, this doesn't mean our Chapel audiences are more critical than other college groups. It simply means students of our own group know we are critical; and if they are going to be criticized, they would rather have someone they don't know do it.

Many college towns have also gained the reputation of being unfriendly and snobbish. College students are fortunate enough not to have to work for a living, they represent the most intelligent young people of America, they are the future leaders of the world; or so we are told often enough! No wonder we get a little huffy.

I think McPherson College and the city of McPherson hold themselves above this category of unfriendliness and snobbishness. We call ourselves the "friendly college" and the "friendliest city in Kansas," and I think these are more than mere slogans.

Another place where criticism is prevalent and probably most biting is in the college dormitories. Since we live so close together and learn to know each other so well, it comes almost natural for us to talk about each other. At ten sessions and bull sessions, the fat we're chewing just isn't juicy enough unless it is ninety percent gossip.

These traps set for and by college students are hard to escape. But it is much easier to step over a trap after we have seen it lying in the grass.—L. M.

Sargent's Speech Shows Contrast Between Joy, Horror

Peggy Sargent gave a speech in Chapel Wednesday, Oct. 1, which showed vivid contrast between the fun she had in meeting and learning to know people of other countries and the horror and sadness she felt in seeing the bombed cities and miles of white crosses which mark the burial lots of American men killed in war.

She emphasized the importance of international relief work, work camps, and the need for peace.

Sailing from New York on the S. S. Neille, she learned to know many of the different types of people who make up the world. She enjoyed square dancing, movies, sunbathing and visiting on the boat.

On June 19, she landed in France, visited in Paris, went on to Holland and then to Kassel, Germany, where she joined a work camp. The job of the work camp was to build a community house for a few of the people of Germany who had no homes.

The people were hospitable to her, and she said she felt guilty eating their eggs, when she knew the families would have only one egg during a two-week period.

She visited the W. W. Peters in Austria. Bob Ziegler in Geneva, had a picnic along the Blue Danube ("which isn't blue at all, but an icky green"), went for a gondola ride in Vienna, and swam in Lake Geneva in Switzerland.

She closed the service by having everyone repeat the Lord's Prayer in his own language.

Thinking With The President

Adlai or Ike

Within a short time you will be asked to vote, some morning at the College Chapel, concerning your preference for the next President of the United States.

The vote which you cast should be more intelligently cast than the average vote which will be cast in November. The reason why this is so is that you are college students and the average educational level across the entire United States is several years less than a college level. Accordingly, you should have thought more deeply into the issues involved and should make your selection more intelligently.

At the present moment the campaign seems to be conducted on a basis which, not only does not reach college level but does not reach the average level of intelligence which we claim for our entire country. If our average achievement in America is a sophomore in high school then the campaign is running two or three years below that.

The major candidates have been trying to keep the campaign on a higher level. They started off well. The general populace, however, began to pull at them, insisting that they should "Fight." By fighting, the populace seem to mean that they should lambast each other and dip into the mud-pots rather than to talk on real issues. The candidates eventually gave way to these demands and it centers now around who received the biggest income, how did he pay his taxes, are there any places in his career where he made a mistake?

This seeking for opportunities to throw mud is in reality sidetracking us from the real issues of the campaign. Some of the questions we should ask ourselves as we vote are these:

1. What does Ike and what does Adlai believe about Civil Rights?
 2. What does Ike and what does Adlai believe about Military Conscription for the youth of America? Does either of them wish to have an ROTC in every college of the land and will they suppress free education to bring this about?
 3. What does each of them believe about the right of the laboring man as over against the right of capital and management?
 4. What do they think about Korea?
 5. How do they stand on world cooperation in the United Nations apart from military force?
 6. What about taxes and what shall the taxes be used for?
- There are some questions we should ask ourselves in this time of mud-slinging.

Whither Bound, Christians?

By J. Eneuwemba Obi

Every one, without doubt, accepts the ethics and morals incorporated in that Light of the world, the Eye-opener, the Truth, nay, the scheme of things that goes by the name of Christianity. Everyone talks of it and commends it with highfaluting phrases. Most people have adopted it as a way of life and have always given or at least tried to give the impression that they are on the right path, in every direction as far as the practice of this blessing on mankind is concerned, but the question at this age is "Whither bound, Christianity?"

Could it mean that the theory of climax even as applied to a literary piece of writing is applicable in this case and that, consequently, Christianity, having got up as far as the present age is now declining? Or is it still on the march towards the climax, what follows, a decline or a "journey's end" being left to time to decide? To the layman, it all sounds interesting, and his every thought on the first hearing the Word is mainly directed to this new find, this wonder. The same layman, after being in the fold, quietly observes and perhaps meditates on the keynote of this great religion. He wonders if the light really illuminates the minds of the people or if they just refuse to walk in its path. He searches for the opened eyes of the people and perhaps finds just a few, and a majority of half-closed and completely closed ones. He gropes for the Truth but "bah!" it is not there, it must have been removed or else veiled not by any material aid, but by the very spirit with which it is kept, unlike that with which it is received.

Nothing is ever perfect, we say, but there is no reason why one should not strive to be perfect in any undertaking. Such a measure clearly serves to keep one on the guard as far as shortcomings are concerned. Could it all be due to ignorance? It is almost unbelievable, at this age at least.

Let us for a moment take one or two specific cases. As such a consideration, not only throws light on the whole issue, but serves to make us sit right, examine ourselves, and think.

A boy is travelling a long distance by bus. He gets to a bus depot and hungry as he is, finds his way into a cafe or perhaps a coffee shop. All eyes turn on him as if he is a criminal. He senses this and observes the unwelcome expressions on the faces of all present. Perhaps he is refused service, or at most gets the barest service. Perhaps still, he gets the normal service, but those eyes on him, those expressions on the people's faces, could they be forgotten? This happens to him, not once, not twice, not even in one or two towns, but in many more, and is thus forced by such circumstances to resolve not to go into any cafe again till he gets to his destination no matter how huge his may be. What is the crime? Another boy is given an appointment for a job that has been advertised, but as soon as his would-be employer sees him, "I am sorry," he says. "If I give you this job, I will lose my customers." Who are the customers? Are they not members of the community who in turn are members of the Christian fold, people who are supposed to lead that exemplary life set by Christ? Why should there be any fear of the loss of customers when they themselves have had their eyes opened and cherish among other Christian principles the teachings on forgiveness, on love, and help, and on the doctrine of "live and let live"?

What again is the crime of this second boy? The crime of these two boys is that the Lord made them dark-skinned. Yea, the Lord who, of course, is the central figure of Christianity. There are a host of shortcomings on the part of mankind. Men are poor creatures who get entangled day in and day out in all forms of sin, but when such as infringement of the Truth, an order from on high, persists and is even encouraged directly or otherwise, then may we ask, "Whither bound?"

It will surely be a great pace forward if we examine ourselves and decide to open our eyes, if we stand right and move only in the path of the Light, and if we meditate on these things in no small measure and put the Truth where it should be, at the "journey's end," for then, we shall have succeeded in giving the only fitting answer to that disturbing question "Whither bound, Christianity?"

Every Tuesday night promptly at 7 and ending at 8 o'clock, new reactions and experiments are shown which pertain to the more practical side of life. Last Tuesday they took up "Color in Chemistry." Quite a crowd was there. It's open to anyone.

Fourth floor Arnold gals are getting their heads together to get on the ball for open house. They have a lot of plans and new ideas.

Library Receives Gifts Of Books

The first list for this year was dated Sept. 23. It contained 41 titles, 19 of which were gifts to the library.

Television Works Like This by Jeanne Bendick is a juvenile book which many college students will find interesting because of the simplified illustrated explanation of TV broadcasting and receiving.

Other recent juvenile science books are Today's Science and You by Lynn Poole, Animal Babies by Margaret Bauer, and A Pet Book For Boys and Girls by Alfred Morgan.

During election year the new reference book, Who's Who in United States Politics and American Political Almanac, will prove to be a handy directory of prominent members in the minority parties as well as in the main parties.

This encyclopedia-sized volume gives 10,000 biographies, rosters of each state administration and legislature and of some city governments, historical facts about elections and political parties such as convention balloting and party platforms.

More books were added in the social science and literature divisions than in all the other groups this time. A gift of some contemporary fiction made that group larger than usual, Miss Virginia Harris, librarian, stated.

I. A. Richards's Principles of Literary Criticism and Marcel Raymond's study From Baudelaire To Surrealism, are two of the important additions in the 800's.

200 Miles Up by Gordon Vath is a book of science which tells about recent developments in the use of rockets, balloons, and airborne instruments in exploring the frontiers of space.

The author, who is an aeronautical engineer in the Office of Naval Research, has illustrated the book with 62 photographs and charts. He gives one explanation for many of the "flying saucer" stories.

Of interest to both students of biology and the average person is a new book on genetics, Understanding Heredity by Goldschmidt.

The Biology of Mental Defect by Lionel Penrose, which is the work of an English scientist, is a technical study of human abnormalities.

Of Societies And Men by Caryl Haskins deals with social evolution and human social organization. The author is a scientist whose researches lie in the fields of biophysics, biochemistry, and genetics.

In this book, he seeks to trace significant trends in the formation, the growth, and the duration of societies.

Carters Speak About India

Clyde and Eleanor Carter, returned missionaries from India, spoke to the student body during Monday Chapel, Sept. 29, using the topic "Why India Beckons Us."

The Carters gave a challenge to the students asking them to look over their own abilities to see if they might be able to go into Christian service on some mission field.

Mrs. Carter was wearing a native "Sari" gown and sandal-like "Champals" on her feet.

Mr. Carter graduated from Lawrence College in '43 and then received his degree in Bethany Biblical Seminary where he met his wife. The Carters have two children, Elvin, almost six, and David, just turned three.

Graduating from Bethany in '46, the Carters went to the mission station at Bulsar, India, where Mrs. Carter served as a Nurse's Aid and leader in women's work; and Mr. Carter became Supervisor of Schools, also making short trips doing evangelistic work.

The Carters stopped here on their way from California to Elgin, Ill. They will return to the mission field in November, starting another six-year term of service.

McPherson Defeats Concordia Teachers

McPherson College stretched its winning streak over a period of two years to five games last Friday night by defeating Concordia Teachers College 46 to 0. For the Teachers' the defeat was especially bitter as this was their first loss on the home turf in over four years.

The Bulldogs scored in every period of the game and were down knocking on Concordia's door for another marker when the game ended. McPherson showed superiority in all phases of the statistics and what really pleased the McPherson followers was the opening period when Eddie Ball turned in another night of allowing the opponents practically nothing either on the ground or through the air. Concordia gained a net of only 24 yards rushing and were unable to complete any of the seven passes which they attempted. The closest Concordia ever got to pay dirt was McPherson's 30 yard line.

The Bulldogs scored early in the opening period when Eddie Ball broke away on a 39-yard end sweep to cross the double stripe and hit pay dirt. Dwight McSpadden kicked the goal for the extra point. This ended the scoring in the first period.

A sustained drive down the field at the beginning of the second period placed the Bulldogs on the one-yard line. From here Gene Smith plunged through the middle of the line for the second touchdown. McSpadden again converted.

A short time later in the same period Gene Smith completed a pass to Bob Bechtel for a 30 yard gain to Concordia's 12 yard marker. Wayne Blickenstaff then passed to McSpadden who went over standing up to tally 6 points. The try for the conversion was short.

Just before the half ended McPherson talked again. This time it was Eddie Ball who with the help of several key blocks, went 56 yards to rack up his second touchdown of the evening. The try for the conversion again failed and McPherson left the field at half-time leading 27-0.

After the traditional halftime activities, McSpadden put McPherson in scoring position with a 15-yard run and a 16 yard pass from Wayne Blickenstaff. This put McPherson on the three-yard line. John Robinson advanced it to the six-inch marker, and on the next play a pass from Blickenstaff to Bechtel was good for another score. The try for the extra point again failed.

Gene Smith scored his second touchdown of the night also in the third period. From 35-yards out, he went roaring through a mass of Concordia players and crossed the double stripe standing up. The extra point attempt failed.

In the final period McPherson inaugurated a 60-yard touchdown drive that culminated with a six-yard plunge over tackle by Bob Bean for the final score of the evening. A pass from McSpadden to Ed Frantz was good for the extra point.

What A Life The Cat Leads!

Cats! Cats! Did you ever see so many cats? Macampus is being invaded by these furry creatures, and by the looks of things, they seem to be getting plenty of abuse from the student body.

It seems that a few of the "Fanny" boys sent one poor, little kitten out of the window of 4th floor Harnly. Of course, they tied a silk scarf around it to serve as a parachute. After that fate, the cat is still alive, however.

Did you ever try to count all those cats? If you did, it is found that no sooner have you completed a count, that another stray will come along that wasn't included.

These creatures are still living, but it's a wonder! Does anyone know how they are fed? Another question—How did they get here in the first place?

Before long, you can be sure that our biology class will be chasing one down to see what makes it tick.

Well, such is that fate of a cat on Macampus! Aren't you glad that you're not one of them?

Chivalry Is Killed By Coke Machine

Chivalry is dead—killed by the machine age. An unidentified student was observed putting the same dime over and over again in the coke machine in the basement of Anderson Hall on Kansas State College campus. This student gallantly stepped aside to allow two K-State coeds to get cokes.

As the last girl picked up her coke, the empty sign on the machine flashed.

Last seen, this "gallant" student was going off down the hall muttering to himself.

The Cracked Crystal Ball

By The Seer
Starting the third week of football predictions my season's record stands at 32 right, 11 wrong and 5 ties for a percentage of .770. The unusual thing about last week's games were the large number of games that ended in ties.

Oklahoma and Notre Dame, two teams that in pre-season polls had received strong consideration for national honors, were lucky to come out of their respective games with ties.

The AP poll for this week shows Michigan State retaining their ranking as the number one team of the nation. Close on their heels are Maryland and K. U. both with two victories under their belts.

One of the outstanding games for this week, from a sentimentalist's point of view is the game between Princeton and Rutgers. These two teams started it all about 100 years ago.

A game that could decide the Big Seven Conference title this weekend is being played at Lawrence. This is the game between C. U. and K. U.

As long as I am predicting various things, I might as well predict the World Series as I see it. The Yankees will win in six games. The Dodgers on paper almost match the Yankees man for man except for the pitching staff where the Yankees have an advantage.

The main difference, though, is the spirit that the Yankees get on "big" games. They just do not lose them. Well, here goes on another set of football games and the probable (?) winners of each.

Bulldogs Play First Home Game Tonight

Tonight at 8 o'clock the referee's whistle will blow and the curtain will ring up on McPherson College's first home game of the 1952 season. A capacity crowd is expected to turn out to watch McPherson and Baker tangle in a league contest.

Joe Pate Writes From Korea

Joe Pate, graduate of 1951, is now a corporal in Uncle Sam's army and is stationed north of Seoul, Korea, with an infantry division.

Mrs. Pate, the former Mary Elizabeth Ball, ex '33, and son are living with her parents in rural McPherson.

"I often think of the good days that I spent at McPherson College. It isn't until a person is away from a while that he realizes his benefits from it. Not only can one gain knowledge there but make many acquaintances that will not be forgotten.

"As I was sitting here in our bunker, I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know I am still thinking of 'Good Old Mac.' I have a little over three months yet to complete my stay over here in Korea. I will be one happy and thankful person when my rotation papers come in to the company.

"I read in the papers that it is very dry at home this year. Right now, it is raining fairly hard and it does pretty often over here.

"The weather is also getting cool. Winter might come early this year. I hope it waits until late so I can miss some of it. With luck I might get out of here a little after the 15th of December or January 1st.

"I hope the football squad has a successful season. I'll be yelling my share from over here. I would love to be out there in my favorite position."

For anyone who might wish to write to Joe, his address is: Corp. Joseph E. Pate, Jr., U. S. 55150609, Company G 17 RC, APO 7, Care Postmaster, San Francisco, California.

McPherson, fresh from two victories in the past two weeks, is expected to field about the same offensive starting unit as in the two previous games. This is Bechtel and Peel at ends, Powell and Keim at tackles, Bersuch and Delay, at guards, and Richardson over the ball.

In the backfield will be Blickenstaff at Quarterback, McSpadden and Smith at the two halves and Ball at fullback. This is essentially the same team that has scored 79 points in the first two games.

McPherson has gained 710 yards on the ground to their opponents 62. They also show a marked superiority in yards gained through the air. McPherson has a total of 133 yards passing and the opponents have only 17.

Baker is expected to put a team on the field tonight that will be light and exceedingly fast. The line will average about 175 pounds and the backfield will go at about 165.

In the line for Baker will be Braun and Lewis at ends, Gutschmittner and Mendoza at tackles, G. Shore and Noll at guards, and in the middle is Johnson. Mendoza at 200 pounds is the heaviest of these.

The four backs are Eddy, Mai, Perry, and Tucker. All of these backs can really move so the Bulldogs defensive unit should receive quite a test tonight.

Baker has yet to win a game, however last week they tied defending champions, College of Emporia, 6 to 6. This was a hard fought battle that Baker would have won if it had not contracted the dreaded disease of Fumbleitis. Four times they penetrated inside the 20 yard line only to see their scoring threat fizzle out with another fumble.

Last year McPherson defeated Baker 20-6 at Baldwin. It rained all during the game and consequently the field was one big quagmire. McPherson's all time record with Baker is four wins, four ties and 18 losses.
