were painted by Prof. Kenneth Kinzie of the Macollege Art Department. The figures are made of plywood and anchored to the floor of the bandshell.

The standard figure averages eight feet in height. The comgroup consists of fourteen figures making up the nativity scene. The figures were cut out by the boys of the Industrial Arts Department after being sketched by Prof. Kinzie.

Work for the nativity scene began a month and a half ago.

In painting the figures Prof. Kinzie experimented with Duco, a new kind of paint. Duco is a lacquer similar to that which is sprayed on cars. It is weather proof and fast drying. The fig-ures are weather proof on the painted side.

Fike Writes To Mac Family

Juanita Fike, Macollege's exchange student to Germany, has written another letter to the Macollege family. It may be read in Dr. D. W. Bittinger's office.

On Nov. 25 she enrolled at the academy at Wuppertal-Barmen. This academy has a direct exchange program every year with Bethel College in Newton. The en-

Juanita finds one main difference in the work there and in the work in McPherson. She writes. There is seldom an assignment given, and it's difficult to know
