Mrs. Brunk Likes People, Also Enjoys Homemaking

"I like people!" replied Mrs. Homer Brunk, associate Professor of English and journalism at Macollege, when asked what she liked best about teaching.

Keeping house, learning new things, reading, and flowers are few of the many things Mrs. Brunk likes besides teaching English.

One of her biggest projects during the last few summers has been her canning and freezing project. She canned 400 jars of food last summer.

She enjoys having college students into her home and serving them food which has been raised in her own garden.

A Green Thumb

Beautiful indoor plants make Mrs. Brunk's home look like a green house. People who see her thriving garden and indoor plants marvel at her "green thumb."

Mrs. Brunk thinks one of the biggest surprises Macollege students have had in a long time was her marriage in 1955.

Mr. and Mrs. Brunk reside at 1711 Kansas Avenue. Their home was built by Dr. Raymond Flory and Prof. Merlin Frantz in the summer of 1955. Mr. and Mrs. Brunk are Macollege alumni.

People Hate English!

"English has the worst reputation of any subject in the curriculum. People usually consider the English teacher to be anything but human," commented Mrs. Brunk.

When asked what she liked best about teaching English, she replied, "Helping people express themselves and interpret other people's ideas."

She went on to explain, "People often have wonderful ideas but cannot express themselves so others can understand them."

Mrs. Brunk enjoys helping students do free-lance writing. One of her pet courses is Creative Writing. She also teaches education courses as well as English courses.

AAUW President

Besides teaching English at Mac, Mrs. Brunk is president of the McPherson branch of the American Association of University Women. She belongs to several professional English organizations and is a life member of the National Education Association.

Mrs. Brunk taught in the Windom and Hillsboro High Schools.

One of the most interesting experiences she had while teaching in high school was sitting on a snake which some students put on her chair for a prank.

Macollege's Associate Professor of English and Journalism, Mrs. Homer Brunk, also enjoys homemaking.

Students Launch Second Rocket

A successful rocket was launched on the Larry Peel farm April 4 by Vilas Likhite, junior, Elgin, Ill., and Kenneth Tompkins, freshman, Fruita, Colo.

The rocket reached a height of 3,500 feet and landed 650 feet away. The trail of the rocket indicated that it followed its path perfectly.

Powdered zinc and sulphur were used as fuel.

A launching device was used to start the three-foot object on an 85-degree course. The rocket was three-fourths inch in diameter and weighed one pound and fourteen ounces empty.

Three symmetrically arranged fins four inches wide at the widest point and eight inches long were located three inches above the base of the tail.

Vilas indicated that further tests will be made to confirm the height attained by the rocket even though he considers the previous figure fairly accurate.

About ten hours were required to complete the rocket and the fuel mixture.

KHEA Elects Siek Secretary

Miss Mildred Siek, head of the Macollege Home Economics Department, was elected secretary for a two-year term of the Kansas Home Economics Association at its recent 32nd annual convention in Topeka.

Miss Kathryn Burkholder, a junior from Preston, Minn., was elected secretary of the Kansas Home Economics College Clubs section of the same meeting. She is president-elect of the Macollege Home Ec Club.

Three Students Debate In Nebraska Tournament

Joan Walters, Shirley Groth and Richard Ferris participated in the Province of the Plains Pi Kappa Delta debate tournament, April 11-12, at Omaha, Neb.

Joan and Shirley won four of their six rounds of debate to receive an excellent rating. Washburn University placed first with a 6-0 record, and Emporia State was second with a 5-1 record. Omaha University also had a 4-2 record.

In the ladies' oratory division, Joan received a superior rating.

Dick entered in oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and discussion, but did not place in the top three brackets.

Williams, Williams

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Williams, Jr., Hardin, Mo., announce the engagement of their daughter, Shirley Ann, to Lewis Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Roesch, Quinter, Kas.

Shirley is a junior majoring in education and psychology. Lewis is a freshman.

Wedding plans are indefinite.

Brallier, Duncan

Mr. and Mrs. Evan Brallier, Curlew, Iowa, announce the engagement of their daughter, Janice Marie, to Howard Duncan, son of Rev. and Mrs. Edward Duncan, Haxtun, Colo.

Janice is a freshman at Macollege and Howard is a junior majoring in chemistry.

A June wedding is being planned.

Negley Edits This Issue

JoAnn Negley, sophomore from Durham, Kas., edited this week's issue of the Spectator.

She is the managing editor of the Spectator this semester and will be editor-in-chief next semester. This is her practice paper while Sherland Ng, editor-in-chief this semester, takes a vacation from her duties.

JoAnn, a home economics major, is active in MCA, CBYF, Home Ec Club, and intramurals.

Pondering With The President . . .

Brethren—Nathan Leopold

By Dr. D. W. BITTINGER

More than 30 years ago, Nathan Leopold and another young university student, both sons of wealthy families in Chicago, killed a young boy by the name of Bobby Franks.

They did not know then why they did it, other than that they wanted to see how a person reacted when he was being killed. Their "thrill crime" occupied the newspaper headlines for many days, and these two young men were marked as notorious criminals.

Since then, Nathan Leopold has remained in prison for more than 30 years. His companion was killed in a prison fight.

While in prison, Nathan offered himself at various times for "guinea pig" experiments in order to advance medical science. He became prison librarian. He pursued his education until he could read and speak more than 20 languages. His I.Q. is reputed to be above 160.

In recent years, he had asked for parole. He believed that he had been rehabilitated and wished to serve his fellowmen in some significant way.

In order that he be paroled, some organization needed to offer itself as willing to furnish opportunity for him to serve a paroled sentence.

The Brethren Service Commission, believing in the redeemability of people and believing that Nathan Leopold deserved a chance to fulfill his desire to serve his fellowmen, offered this opportunity.

Amid considerable fanfare and publicity, Nathan Leopold was released from the prison at Stateville, Illinois, and transported to Puerto Rico, where he now serves in the Castaner Brethren Service Project.

Rabbi Rosenblum, the rabbi of Temple Israel in New York City, preached a sermon on the sabbath following Leopold's release. The following is quoted from the New York Times of Sunday, March 16, 1958.

"Willingness of the Church of the Brethren to provide a medical technician's job in Puerto Rico for Nathan Leopold, a paroled 'thrill murderer,' was hailed by the Rev. Dr. William F. Rosenblum as an example of religion in action 'more acceptable to God than religion in the printed page of a prayer book.'

"In his sermon at Temple Israel, 210 West Ninety-First Street, the rabbi said that the 200,000 member Protestant body neither demanded Leopold's conversion nor that he 'recite their prayers,' but only that he 'practice with them their kindness toward the sick who need help.'

"I do not know how small this religious group is," Dr. Rosenblum declared, 'and I am sure its members do not possess any imposing edifices in which to say their prayers but, in all sincerity, I look upon them as truly great priests of God, as dedicated as any of those who minister in the grandiose cathedrals, churches and temples of our great cities.'

"Justice has taken nearly all of the years of Leopold's life.

Students Accept Teaching Posts

More Macollege students have accepted teaching positions for the coming year. Ronald Anderson will be teaching commercial subjects and will coach at Emmett, Kas.

Marion Johnson has accepted a coaching position and will teach industrial arts in Culver, Kas. Wayne Price will be teaching auto mechanics and mathematics at the Zook School near Larned, Kas.

Don Holderread will teach science and driver's education at Lamar, Colo.

he said. 'It is good that mercy should give him now the few years that remain.

"Some vengeful 'disciples' of religion might find their blood pressure rising, but I feel certain that in extending the hand of kindness to Leopold, the Brethren Church is putting into practice the true law of God our Father.'
