Politics Class Spends Week Touring Washington, D. C.

By Carl Harris
Seeing such top national figures as President Eisenhower, Vice-President Nixon, Secretary of State Dulles, and former President Harry S. Truman in action was just one of the many experiences of the American Politics Class, which spent the week of April 14-19 in Washington, D. C., studying the workings of our national government.

Twenty-nine were in the group which traveled to Washington, including the sponsor, Prof. Raymond L. Flory, professor of history and political science. The trip was part of a three-hour course in American politics, and one hour of the credit comes from the trip.

The group left Macollege by chartered Greyhound bus at 8 a.m. Saturday, April 12, and arrived in Washington, D. C., Sunday night. From Monday till Thursday noon the group was in Washington studying the various phases of the national government, interviewing top officials, and seeing the sights of the city.

Hears Truman Speak.
Monday morning the class discovered that former President Harry S. Truman was testifying in an open hearing before the House Banking and Currency committee. The class felt quite fortunate to hear Mr. Truman give his speech in which he recommended measures to combat the current business recession.

Monday afternoon some of the group went sightseeing in the city and to George Washington's home at Mount Vernon. Ten of the fellows went to Griffith Stadium to see President Eisenhower throw out the first ball to officially open the 1958 major league baseball season. They saw a good game with Washington defeating the Boston Red Sox 5-2.

Interview With Benson
Tuesday morning the class had an hour interview with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson. Secretary Benson explained his policy of flexible price support and the reasoning behind it and answered questions of the class concerning agriculture.

The class saw the opening of the Senate session at noon Tuesday, with Vice-President Richard Nixon presiding.

Tuesday afternoon they had an hour interview with Senator Hubert Humphrey, a Democrat from Minnesota, in which he explained some of the daily routine and personal service work which congressmen do.

Thursday morning some of the class attended a Joint committee hearing on Atomic Energy and heard Secretary of State John Foster Dulles testify for a bill to allow exchange of nuclear information with other countries.

Attend Committee Hearings
Members of the class attended many different committee hearings during the week. They discovered that most of the real work of Congress is done in these committees.

One of the most interesting committees was the McClellan special investigating committee which was investigating corruption in a Teamsters Union. These hearings were rather highly publicized. The class had the experience of seeing several union bosses and members refuse to answer most of the questions put to them, pleading the fifth amendment.

Visits Philadelphia, New York

went on to New York, where it spent all day Friday.

Members of the class took in many different activities Friday, including the Dave Garroway television show, a movie and stage show at the Radio City Music Hall, a ferry trip to Staten Island past the Statue of Liberty.

Three of the group attended a matinee performance of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra with Leonard Bernstein conducting and Arthur Rubinstein as the solo pianist.

Entertained in New York
Friday night some of the class attended Broadway plays, and others went to Madison Square Garden to see the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus.

The class arrived back on Macampus Sunday afternoon, April 20.

On the whole they had developed a healthy respect for the men who run the national government and the way they carry on the immense responsibilities placed upon them.

'Science, Math Are Easier To Explain' Says Bowman

"I like math and science and I like to work out problems," says Macollege's learned professor of math and science, Joseph L. Bowman. He adds, "It's also easier to teach; you have a better understanding of what you're talking about."

"The reason I like to teach folks so well is because I think folks like to learn," explained Professor Bowman, as he discussed his teaching career.

Prof. Joseph L. Bowman is this year completing his 32nd year of teaching at Macollege. In addition to teaching at Macollege, he has taught at LaVerne College, Juniata College, and Ripon College.

But Prof. Bowman's interests are not by any means limited to math and science. Prof. Bowman is very much interested in other fields as well.

One of these other fields is travel. He and his wife have been all over the United States and have visited Canada and Mexico. They have visited almost every state and almost every national park.

"We like to see things," commented Prof. Bowman. "Along the way we like to study biological life and geological formations."

Prof. Bowman is a farm boy from Quinter. In fact he was the first Quinter student to come to Macollege for schooling. When he first came to Macollege, he attended the academy which was then held in conjunction with the college program.

He continued his study at Macollege and received his B.A. in 1918. From here, Prof. Bowman went to the University of Chicago for his M.S. degree. Since then, he has done graduate work in a number of other colleges and universities.

It was while attending the University of Chicago that Prof. Bowman met a young lady who was going to art school in Chicago. She was Elva Burr from North Manchester, Indiana. In 1924, they were married.

The Bowmans have two daughters. One is Mrs. Jo Ann Masterson, and the other is Mrs. Donna Burkholder of McPherson. Altogether the Bowmans have five grandchildren.

"He's a wonderful person to live with," was Mrs. Bowman's comment about her husband.

Three Attend Tourney in Hutch

Prof. Guy Hayes, Joan Walters, and Shirley Groth attended the National Junior College Debate Tournament April 19 at Hutchinson.

Prof. Hayes helped judge events during the three-day tourney which began April 17 at noon.

Hutchinson Junior College was the winner of the Sweepstakes Award Plaque. They won first in men's debate, oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and tied for first in impromptu speaking.

On the whole they had developed a healthy respect for the men who run the national government and the way they carry on the immense responsibilities placed upon them.

Pondering With The President . . .

A College On Wheels

By Dr. D. W. BITTINGER

Throughout the year, but particularly during the month of April, McPherson College seems to become indeed a "college on wheels."

Many teachers and students wish to take field trips so that actual contacts can be made with people and places which have been studied and discussed.

Perhaps the longest of these tours connected with actual class work is the one to Washington, D. C. Other tours go to Chicago, Kansas City, Wichita, Hutchinson, and many areas nearby.

Do these disruptions of normal class scheduling actually pay off?

I have been asking this question of students and faculty members for a number of years. The opinions vary, but the consensus seems to be that they do and that the things learned "on wheels" will be remembered throughout the years much better than those which are only discussed and studied in class.

It is obvious, of course, that when a group of 30 or 40 goes on tour, not only the immediate class in which they normally meet is disrupted, but all the classes in which they would be meeting during this period are somewhat upset by these absences.

Quite frequently, this, places additional burdens upon the faculty members, since they must provide make-up work, examine this work, evaluate it, and so on.

I have been pleased that McPherson College has been willing to make adjustments in these matters and that the students who comprise the college seem to be sufficiently adaptable that they can make these specialized excursions and still keep up with their normal work.

Those who are not keeping up with their normal work probably should not go on extended field tours, for this may cause them to fall even further behind in their day-by-day work.

The process of education is one about which we are learning a lot, but which is not yet completely understood.

How do we become educated? Adaptability is one of the characteristics which the educated man should have acquired. Operating a "college on wheels" and being a part of it teaches some of this adaptability.

In addition to the things which we learn from the field trips, therefore, we also learn something about adaptability. This is in the right direction.

Quartet To Present Sunday Church Services

McPherson College's Ladies' Quartet will present the morning services at the Lone Star Church near Lawrence, Kas., Sunday, April 27, and at the Cherokee Hills Church at Overland Park, May 4.

George Keim will accompany the quartet this Sunday. An alumni basket dinner will be followed by an afternoon meeting.

In the evening this same group will present a program at the Appanoose Church near Overbrook, Kas.

Prof. Merlin Frantz will accompany the group to the Cherokee Hills Church.

They will also present that evening service at the Washington Creek Church near Overbrook.

Phil Bradley Accepts Summer Pastorate

Phil Bradley, Macollege senior, has accepted a summer pastorate at the Des Moines Valley Church of the Brethren, Elkhart, Iowa. He will begin on June 3 replacing Rev. Dale Ferris.

Phil will enter Bethany Biblical Seminary in Chicago in September. For the past two years he has been pastor at the Verdigris Church of the Brethren at Madison Kas.

MCA Sponsors Movie Thursday

"Children of the A-Bomb" is the title of a movie to be presented by MCA. It will be shown for the regular mass meeting of MCA Thursday, May 1, at 6:45 p.m. in the chapel.

The film is a production of Kindai Eiga Kyodia in Tokyo, Japan, and was shown as a feature film throughout Japan during 1952-3.

Although it has been exhibited in France, it has not previously been shown in this country or in England, because the producer feared that someone might regard it as critical of those countries.

On this the film reviewer of the famous "Manchester Guardian" commented:

"Heaven knows, there is nothing in the least anti-American about it. It is simply the most moving human document I know (apart from Hersey's "Hiroshima" book) against atomic war such as — quite regardless of whether the bombs are made in the United States, in the USSR, in Germany, Japan, or anywhere else.

"If I were the world's dictator, I would make this film a compulsory piece of education and moral rearmament for the whole human race."

Our Movement Of Truth To Be Sunday Sermon

"Our Moment of Truth" will be the sermon topic for Sunday, April 27, in the Church of the Brethren.

The Sunday evening service will be a movie, "Voyage to Rome."

Chaff Reunites . . .

The Tale Of A Trip

By Faus, Foley, and Harris

Even the best of friends must part, and so it was last week when the members of CHAFF were separated and suffered through a whole week without each other.

But a brighter day has dawned. CHAFF has enjoyed a riotous reunion. This great reunion took place at the McPherson Grand Central Union Bus Depot where Faus and Foley met Harris as he returned from a week in Washington with the American Politics Class sponsored by Prof. Raymond L. Flory.

The conversation ran like this:

Faus and Foley: (running up to bus) "Harris!"

Harris: (climbing out of baggage compartment of bus) "Faus and Foley!"

Flory: (stepping wearily from bus) "Thank goodness that's over. I can hardly wait to get back to my stool."

CHAFF: (clasping hands and kneeling in direction of nearest gutter) "We pledge allegiance to the CHAFF of McPherson College and to the plagiarism by which it survives, one corporation, indivisible, despised and rejected by all."

Faus & Foley: (pulling Harris from gutter) "Well, Harris, what was the main thing you learned from your American Politics trip?"

Harris: (still leaning over gutter) "When you take a long bus trip, sit close to an open window."

Faus and Foley: (jauntily picking up Harris's suitcase and depositing it in gutter) "Did you meet any of the big "Washington Wheels?"

Harris: (Swimming after suitcase) Boy, I'll say I did. Walking through the Pentagon I saw a certain buck private wearing blue swede shoes carrying a guitar and singing to the generals, "You ain't nothing but hound dogs."

Faus and Foley: (struck with awe) "You mean you actually saw the number one person in the nation, Pelvis Pretzle?"

Harris: (Cheerfully drying suitcase on Foley's shirt) "Not only that, I joined the immense lobby working for his immediate release from the army so that he can be sent abroad to demoralize the enemy."

(Faus: (Carefully guarding his shirt) Well, what was the most impressive sight you saw in Washington? Was it the capitol, or the Washington Monument, or the Supreme Court Building?"

Harris: "Well, I'd say it was seeing all those girls that work as government stenographers get off work everyday at 5 o'clock."

Foley: (Eyes lighting up) "When does the next trip to Washington start?"

Flory: (Looking very alarmed) "Not as long as you are in school."

Foley: (Wringing out shirt) "What was the most startling experience you had in Washington?"

Harris: (Climbing into Faus's car) "Well, I was walking along the street one day in front of this big white colonial mansion when suddenly the door opened. I saw a bunch of tough looking men hustling a friendly looking old bald-headed man out of the door.

They put him and a bag of golf clubs into a long sleek black car and drove away. There were big policemen standing all around, but they didn't even do a thing about it."

Faus: (dragging Harris from car and cleaning seat covers with Foley's shirt) "To think that hoodlums can operate in broad daylight like that right in our capital city."

Harris: (Clobbering Faus over head with suitcase) "Yes, something should be done to prevent such violent crimes."

Foley: (Restraining Harris, binding his hands and feet with soaked shirt, and backing car over him) "Yes, when will people learn that peace and brotherhood are the only way?"
