

Groundbreaking Draws Big Crowd To Macampus

Approximately 400 people attended the groundbreaking service for the new administration, auditorium and classroom building to be erected on McPherson College campus.

The building will be built in front of the present Sharp Hall. It will be named for two long-time teachers of the college.

Miss Jessie M. Brown, professor emerita of piano, is the person for whom the auditorium will be named.

The administration - classroom building will be called Mohler Hall in honor of Robert E. Mohler, former science professor and present curator of the college museum.

In the service last Saturday, five brief comments were made. Paul Sargent spoke for the Board of Trustees; Andrew Bremyer, the mayor of the city; Clare Miller, director of city solicitation; Irvin Wagner, president of Regional Youth — all of McPherson; and Carl Harris, president of the student body, from Jennings, La.

Ernest Wall, McPherson, a member of the college's Trustee Board for 33 years, was the first to turn the shovel. He was followed by Mr. Bremyer, Mr. Miller, Mr. Harris, and Mr. Wagner.

Dr. Burton Metzler, professor of philosophy and religion at the college, turned the shovel for Dr. D. W. Bittinger, president of the college. This was to represent the Religious Life of the campus.

The Brass Quintet of the college presented the music for the service.

Trustees Make Changes

Twenty-two trustees met here last weekend during the Regional Youth Conference for their annual meeting.

Mohler-Brown Hall Groundbreaking for the new Mohler Hall and Brown Auditorium was one of the main tasks of the group.

Bids were held on the building on Saturday afternoon. Hahner, Foreman, and Calc, Great Bend, was low bidder on the general contract. Kirkpatrick Plumbing Co., Newton, bid low on heating and plumbing, and Dyson Electric Co., Hutchinson on the electrical contract.

The trustees are seeking to raise more money for the building since the bids were higher than expected. Dr. D. W. Bittinger, president, said, "We will need to secure more money for building or greatly modify the building. And we hope we will not need to eliminate any of the building extras."

Future Plans

In addition to voting the go ahead with the new hall, trustees discussed other college buildings and projects. Some of these are:

1. Parking will need to be arranged to take the place of Circle Drive.

2. Plans for other buildings such as a student union - cafeteria, a new girls' dorm addition and a married students' apartment building are in the future.

Faculty salaries were also raised by the trustees.

After considerable discussion and prayer, the trustees passed a motion allowing folk and social dancing to be sponsored by the college.

Booster Banquet Features Oriental Guest Speaker

The Male Quintet will furnish the music. Linn Peterson will give a report of the city contacts and Dr. Bittinger will give a thank you from the college.

The address at the 29th Booster Banquet will be given by Dr. No Yong Park. His topic is "A Slight-View of Oriental Life and Culture."

Those who have contributed to the college receive tickets which enable them to come to the banquet being sponsored by the city and the college. Students who have contributed to the Sharp Hall Development Fund will receive letters which will admit them.

The Call to Witness program continued this week with student visitation and the call to responsibility of the church members. Six teams visited the members to call on their responsibility to witness.

Pondering With The President

To Break Ground

By Dr. D. W. Bittinger

It was a thrill for the large audience which was present, and for those who participated, to break ground for new buildings on Macampus last Saturday.

But with it there were mingled emotions and memories for some. One who was older said, "This is all of McPherson that I remember. Everything else is gone".

This is true only in a physical sense. Everything good that has been McPherson through the years should still be alive and growing. It should always be here as well as at the thousands of other places where McPherson College is and has gone.

For Macollege is not buildings or campus; it never should be allowed to become only that. McPherson College is people and the everlasting influences they exert!

Old Sharp has served well. Her services cannot be dispensed with yet, even though her floors are weary. So old Sharp will likely need to stand and serve for a while longer as a campus building until other buildings for student and faculty uses can replace her. This may take a while.

Regardless of her future as a building, the spirit of old Sharp should be that which makes us "break new ground" in all the areas of life and in many areas of the world.

Cheating Is Approved By Student Bodies

This editorial from WESLEYAN PHAROS, West Virginia Wesleyan College, typifies many current articles in the college press on cheating:

Finals are over, but stories of cheating aren't. Cheating has become commonplace among college students, probably the result of an over-all breakdown of the old moral codes.

A survey report in a recent issue of "School and Society" magazine showed that 57 per cent of the students questioned had cheated at some point in their college careers and that 75 per cent of the seniors had done so.

Cheating is not only widespread but is not condemned by the student body. Responses showed that only 12 per cent were willing to inform on a student that had cheated, and that 22 per cent were willing to entrust the class treasury to a person known to have cheated on an examination.

The article concluded, "Students are parts of a system in which the attainment of knowledge has become secondary to the completion of a prescribed course which our culture demands.

"Examinations are part of the process. One passes or one does not depending on his ability to beat the testing system.

"The system becomes a kind of game in which the professor has certain techniques and devices and the student has counter-moves. Cheating has been used as one of these." Those who hit home runs in January, however, may strike out next May.

As the result of a study which has been made as to the demands on card catalogs and the adequacy with which the catalogs are meeting the demands, the library staff has been working to improve the catalog for Macollege students.

The study indicated that the catalogs tested were successful in the majority of cases. The exceptions were due to the incorrect or incomplete bibliographical data with which the student had approached the catalog.

Study Reports
The report from the study stated that: (a) the quality of instruction in bibliographical citation should be improved in secondary schools and colleges. Also: (b) instructors should be warned against exclusive oral or

Mac Exchange Student Will Attend German School

McPherson College's exchange student for next year will participate in a direct institution exchange program between McPherson College and Goettingen, Germany.

April 3 has been set as the deadline for applications. Any interested student may turn in his application to Prof. Paul Sollenberger, Prof. Dale Brown, or the President's office.

German Exchange

This exchange program came into effect when Dr. D. W. Bittinger and the Goettingen school made a written agreement in Germany this summer.

The German government will pay for the American student's tuition, room, and board while Macollege will support the German exchange student who will come to McPherson from Goettingen.

The only expense the exchange student will have is his transportation to and from Goettingen. But he may save enough from the government grant to travel while in Europe.

McPherson Exchange

While abroad, Mac's exchange will live in the school's dormitory. He may go to Germany anytime in the summer. It is hoped that he will do some Brethren volunteer work before his school starts in October if possible.

The American students will become a member of the German exchange's family while abroad. It is expected that the German student will become a part of the Macollege exchange's family.

Better Program

According to Dr. Bittinger, this is a better program than previously had. The college is also working towards a freer and easier transfer of credits.

The MCA will be supporting the German student who comes to Mac. A committee of five composed of students and faculty members has been chosen by the MCA cabinet to select the Macollege exchange student.

Lois Fager is now at Goettingen as Mac's exchange student.

Les Says...

Top notch Kansas high school teams are meeting this week in tournaments which should prove to be thrillers. Saturday night will see four high school champions crowned from the four classes of high school play.

This writer has laid his head on the chopping block by predicting the outcome of each of the four tournaments. The preliminary tournaments to date have showed a number of upsets so these predictions may prove to be all wet.

Class AA

In the Class AA tournament at Wichita two top teams will meet. I pick Wyandotte to play Newton in the final game with last year's champs to take the title back to Kansas City with them.

Class A

A new champ will be crowned at the close of the Class A tourney in Hutchinson. Last year's champ, Scott City lost out in the elimination tournament and will not get a chance to defend.

This writer sees Russell pitted against Goodland Saturday night at Hutch in the final Class A game. Goodland should take this one although Russell has had better tournament teams.

Class B

In the Class B tourney at Emporia, I pick last year's title holder, Natoma, over Minneapolis. Both of these teams have perfect season records. Natoma has a record of 23-0 and Minneapolis has 24-0.

Class BB

In the Class BB tournament at Dodge City we will see another new champion crowned. Last year's BB title holder, Rolla, also lost out in the elimination meets.

For the final Class BB game I pick Prescott (24-0) to play against Ada (20-4), the team that surprised us in the tournament at Galva. Prescott will take this one unless Ada has more surprises stored up.

The final tournament games, as well as all of the games, should prove to be exciting thrillers. Upsets are all too frequent at tournament time and the final outcome is anybody's guess. You have just read mine.

The win Saturday night gave the McPherson American Legion team a birth in the national AAU tournament at Denver.

Macollege cager Ed Delk and U. S. Grant were both named to the all-tournament team. Grant has played in all 14 AAU tournaments held in Wichita with his Legion team.

Wednesday night the Legion team held a practice session at the college gym. Also to help get in shape for the national tournament at Denver, the Legion has tried to schedule a game here for this weekend.

Harris Reports Book Loans

As part of the annual report, Virginia Harris, librarian of the Macollege Library, gives to the trustees, the circulation records showing the number of books, periodicals, and pamphlets loaned from the library.

Listed below are the numbers of pieces of literature loaned for home use, from the reserve shelves, and to faculty members in the last two years and the first two months of this year:

	1956-	1957-	Oct.-
Use	57	58	Nov. '58
Home	11,975	13,329	3,656
Reserve books	5,261	4,277	1,192
Faculty	1,037	791	206

The number of reserve books used in a year depends largely on which classes are in session that year. Some classes held every other year require more books to be placed on reserve than classes held every year.

History Classes Experiment With New Teaching Method

Two sections of U. S. History are being used this semester for an experiment on a new technique for teaching a larger number of students without increasing the number of faculty.

The technique being used by the History Department, according to Dr. Raymond Flory, professor of history, is one in which the students attend only one class a week for a briefing session and also for the regular tests.

Two Classes

The experiment on this type of teaching is being conducted with two classes so that one class can be used as a control. The control class will attend classes regularly throughout the whole semester.

The second class attended classes regularly the first six weeks of the semester just as the control class did. The second six weeks period the second class is only attending class for one meeting each week.

The one meeting each week that the class has with the professor is a briefing session in which he will point out the main points of emphasis which they should study on their own.

Tests

Every two weeks, both classes will take the same test over the same material. The tests will show up any difference between the two classes and will demonstrate whether or not the new technique will work efficiently.

Student assistants are set up with regular office hours for counseling. Any students of the experiment group which have any questions or problems can see the assistants at their scheduled hours.

Idea From NEA

Dr. Flory got the idea for this experiment from a conference which he attended in March of '58. The theme of the conference was Current Issues in Higher Education and was held by the Association for Higher Education of the NEA.

At this conference one of the study groups which Flory attended was on new techniques and developments for teaching larger numbers of students without increasing the number of faculty.

Reports were given to the group from several institutions for higher learning which have tried either the plan like we are trying or a similar one.

Some of the colleges and universities which reported were the University of Kentucky, Los Angeles State College, Smith College, and the University of Colorado.

With printing as a hobby, Harley Stump, assistant professor of English, enjoys the weekly task of printing his church bulletins. His press is located in the basement of his home. (Spectator Photo)

4-P Professor Likes Poetry, Preaching, Printing

Poet, printer, professor, preacher describe the interests and activities of Prof. Harley Stump. Professor Stump is the chairman of the English Department at Macollege.

His hobby of printing grew out of his work as a preacher and a weekly printing job on his printing press of his church bulletins. He commented that he did printing for his own enjoyment, with one exception "I don't print greenbacks."

Poetry

"I wrote my first poem because I had an intense feeling about something," Prof Stump described his first feeling as a place in ruins which he saw while herding sheep when he was about 18.

In his poem he expressed what all the rock foundations could say about a life which had once been there if they could only talk. A number of his poems he has written for special services and memorial services while in his ministry. One marriage ceremony he performed he had written in blank verse at the request of the bride.

Prof. Stump estimated that he has written about 200 poems. He has submitted very few of them for publication. Of the ten or so which he has submitted, he has had more published than rejected.

"They're not good enough!" was his reason for not submitting more poems for publication. He said his poems are not written because he is a writer.

He feels that some of his students have written better poetry than he will ever be able to do. He is more interested in the angle of teaching and helping his students write poetry.

When he has more leisure, he hopes to write more poetry. Also he said he would like to do more writing of short stories. He has written one but as yet has not submitted it for publication.

Preacher

He was a preacher full-time before he came to Macollege in the fall of 1957 and now fills a pulpit on Sundays at the Pleasant View Church, Darlow.

Before coming to McPherson, he had been an ordained minister for 24 years. During this time he held pastorates at Waka, Texas; Washita Church, Cordell, Okla.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; and Empire, Calif.

Professor

Prior to coming to Macollege, Prof. Stump had taught on both the elementary and high school levels. While he was at Bethany Biblical Seminary, he taught English there.

During the summers he is working on his doctorate from the University of Oklahoma.

His wife, Jeanette, is a senior at Macollege and will graduate at the end of the summer session. One son, Earl, is a sophomore at LaVerne College, LaVerne, Calif., and another son, Nelson, is a senior at McPherson High School.

Chemistry Prof Chosen By Indiana Institute

Dr. Wesley DeCoursey, professor of chemistry, has been accepted by the National Science Foundation Summer Institute, June 15 - July 10, at Bloomington, Ind.

Dr. DeCoursey applied to two institutes and was accepted by both. He chose the Indiana institute because it will provide a course of study which he needs. The other institute was at Fort Lewis A & M College in Colorado.

The morning sessions will be devoted to co-ordinated lectures on recent developments and trends in analytical inorganic, organic, and physical chemistry.

In the afternoons, Dr. DeCoursey will have a choice of participating in group discussions, working with modern research instruments, or participating in research.

Professor Harvey Diehl of Iowa State College, who was a member of Dr. DeCoursey's Doctoral Committee at Iowa State, will be one of the lecturers at the Institute.

The DeCoursey family will visit in the Earl Grove home in Iowa while Dr. DeCoursey attends the Institute. The Groves are parents of Mrs. DeCoursey.
