man from West Salem, Ohio.

Construction Progresses On Buildings

"As of April 7, the Student Union is 28 per cent completed, and the dorm is 24 per cent finished," announced Norman Mann, inspector for Mann and Company, architects for the new buildings.

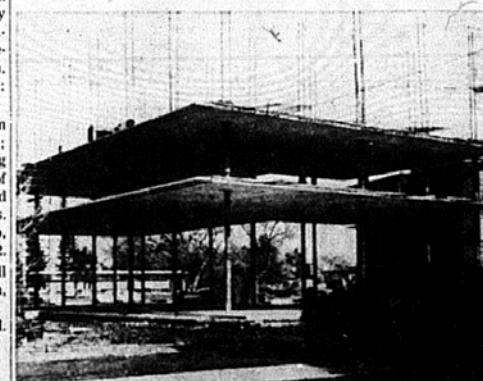

The contractors hope to have the buildings finished by Sept. 15, but they will have until Oct. 10 before having to pay $50 a day to the college for not fulfilling the contract. On the Student Union there will be a new type of roof, unique to the other buildings on campus. This type of roof, called barrel-vault, uses less material and spans a greater distance.

Strength for the roof is derived from concrete and reinforced steel. Concrete has high compression value while the steel has high tension value.

These two principal items are going to be used in the whole building. The combination of these items will get the strength of the building. "The steel does most of the work, but the concrete holds it together," Mr. Mann stated.

"We have paid particular attention to this building, and the playful form we gave it will appeal to the students," added Mr. Mann.

Although the form work for the roof costs more, the beauty and cost of material will compensate the cost.

Mental Health Week

Students Should Recognize Need For Psychiatric Care

By Marilyn Rhinehart

Do college students need psychiatric aid? This question is apropos as Mental Health Week approaches, and is indeed worth being taken seriously.

In recent studies it was discovered that emotional disturbances arising from the pressures of campus life are a major menace to the mental health of today's college youth. Academic difficulties, noisy dormitories, and increased social pressures take their toll.

One doctor reports that treatment need not interrupt school work. Most students undergoing treatment continue their studies and 80 of the 311 students treated last year required only one visit with a psychiatrist.

However, the difficulty lies in the fact that many of us do not realize how dangerously close to mental illness we and those about us may be.

If we wish to benefit ourselves as well as those about us, it is important that we become familiar with the fundamentals of mental hygiene for successful living and to recognize the danger signs. It is valuable also to have a working knowledge of "emotional first aid", so that we can help others to lead happier, healthier lives.

Are Booze Or Tranquilizers Necessary For Survival?

"Can't Survive Without Booze or Tranquilizers" was the headline of a newspaper article which I had the misfortune of reading recently.

In the article a British physician, Dr. B. G. Lucas, says that he is convinced that man must have alcohol or tranquilizers to survive in today's jet age.

A prominent specialist as an anaesthetist, Dr. Lucas maintains the use of drugs to be necessary for "man's continued existence in our so-called civilized world."

He goes on to say that civilization has produced many drunkards but few teetotalers who were geniuses, with Einstein and Schweitzer as the rare exceptions.

I admit, Dr. Lucas, from the quantities of ads that say, "The beer refreshing." "Relax with a Falsgraff", or "Suffering from tension", etc., you might conclude that man does find such things necessary for health and happiness.

However, I shudder to think that we are destined to become a "frugged and drugged" civilization in order to survive. And mere survival is all it would be, for who could be really living under such conditions?

No, Dr. Lucas, I can not accept your conclusions because I think you forgot about a force much more powerful than alcohol and drugs combined—the force that has been responsible for survival of man since the beginning of time.

Read and heed Spec ads.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

One In Ten Suffers From Mental Illness

At least 17,000 American, or 1 in every 10, are suffering from a mental or emotional disorder. This is one fact to keep in mind as Mental Health Week, April 23-29, starts Sunday.

The National Association for Mental Health says that mental health has to do with everybody's everyday life. It deals specifically with three things: How you feel about yourself, how you feel about other people, and how you are able to meet the demands of life.

The line that divides the mentally healthy from the unhealthy is a thin one and no one has all the traits of good mental health all of the time.

Some of the facts that people must face today about mental health point to the conclusion that much has yet to be done for the care and cure of the mentally ill.

Half the cases a physician sees are tied up with a mental or emotional disorder and nearly half of all hospital beds in America are required for the mentally ill.

Compared to the $25 per day spent on a patient in a general hospital, an average of $3.75 a day per patient is spent by state mental hospitals. Over a billion dollars a year in tax funds is spent for the care of the mentally ill, and less than 3 per cent of that amount is used for research into causes, treatment, and prevention.

Three-fourths of the state hospitals are greatly overcrowded and many have waiting lists. The average state hospital has half the doctors needed, one-third the number of social workers needed, one-fourth the psychologists required, and one-fifth enough nurses.

With the adequate care and treatment provided, 7 out of 10 patients could leave mental hospitals greatly improved or completely recovered.

Through more research and greater developments brought about by more public awareness and support, progress can be made in the business of keeping people mentally healthy and curing the unhealthy.

Pondering With The President

Will U. S. A. Be Part Of The Emerging World?

By D. W. Bittinger

As progress moves from one historic era to another, the players on the world stage change. Nations rise, glitter in the spotlight for awhile, then collapse altogether or are moved into the wings.

The Colonial era placed European nations and their controlled satellites on the stage center of the world for a long time. The U.S.A. never rightly belonged in the "colonizing" group since she was an early rebel colony. But the U.S.A. was gradually pushed into the center of the stage as a leader among the colonial powers.

Colonialism is fading rapidly now. The new nations under the term "Neutral Nations" are moving into the center of world attention and control.

The United States is beginning to take note of this shift. We are trying to decide whether to live in the past or in the future. Even some of our "minor" decisions in this category may be our most major ones.

Keep an eye on the U.N. Adlai Stevenson's position, and his decisions here may now be more significant than if he had actually gotten into the White House.

Former Student Dies

Physical Education
Some new courses will be offered by the physical education department.

In order to allow the college to offer swimming on the same basis as other physical education courses and to permit greater improvement of skill in one semester, swimming classes will meet twice per week. Due to the limited facilities of the YMCA, separate boys' and girls' classes will be held.

This increase in class hours will be handled with present staff and by using students who have their Water Safety Instructor rating for the Red Cross. The student would meet with the class each session, and a faculty person would meet with each class once a week in a supervisory capacity.

Kinesiology
Another new course to be offered in this department, Kinesiology, as it is known in physical education, orthopedics and physical medicine, is the science of human motion.

The unique contribution of kinesiology is that it selects from sciences such as anatomy, physiology and physics those principles which are pertinent to human motion and systematizes their application.

The body, being a living machine, is subject to the laws both of living matter and of mechanics. Thus, the analysis of human motion, is based upon anatomic, physiologic and mechanical principles.

Kinesiology will be given an upper level number; Physiology and Anatomy will be a recommended pre-requisite.

This course will be alternated every other year with School Health.

Since there has been no demand for two semesters of Methods, this will be changed to a one semester offering, entitled, "Methods of Teaching Individual and Team Sports." The second semester time and number will be retained.

Golf and Bowling
A possible addition for fall 1962 is Golf and Bowling. This co-educational course will be taught by Don Widrig, assistant coach and instructor in physical education, and Miss Doris Coppock, associate professor and director of physical education for women. Extra fees will include the use of the bowling alley.

Tennis and Bowling, which is not open to those taking Volleyball and Tennis or Golf and Bowling, is a fall 1962 addition to relieve the full class of tennis.

Gymnastics and tumbling, a one hour men's course, will meet twice a week and will be taught by Don Widrig. This course includes instruction in tumbling and apparatus work including the horizontal bars, parallel bars, trampoline, and horse and rope.

A pre-requisite of one hour of general physical education is recommended for this course which will be offered in the spring of 1962-63 at 8:40 Tuesday and Thursday.
