Racial Segregation Exists In Northern Areas, Too

By Beverly Judge

We have traditionally restricted our thinking on the segregation problem to those geographic areas south of us. However, an area of the country—far from the deep South—has headaches with segregation which we do not always hear about.

The State Department makes special arrangements to rent apartments in Washington, D. C., for Negro foreign diplomats visiting our country.

Segregation problems as found in Washington, D. C., and many other northern parts of the country do not necessarily deal with laws, but with attitudes which may or may not be conscious.

We like to think that our feelings about other races have no implications on the situation as a whole, but we are involved, too.

Whether we like it or not, the present segregation problem will be erased—if not by the white population, then it will be done by Negroes who will not forever allow themselves to be considered second class citizens.

Atomic Explosion Policy Is Controversial, Ridiculous

By Peter van den Doel

The policy regarding experimental atomic explosions is one of the most controversial and also one of the most ridiculous aspects in the international politics of the atomic nations.

It is a threat by both the Western powers and the Communistic bloc, interrupted by occasional periods in which no experiments take place—provided that the other power also dismisses its planned experiments.

The other power, however, usually does not observe this, and the result of all of this is an undeniable inconsistency in foreign politics and a bad influence on the people's morals.

A world without an atomic bomb does not mean a world without war; also a conventional type of weapon can destroy, only a larger amount of it is needed.

Compromise
Compromise proved to be a good—and the only—weapon in our history that could settle a peace, and again it is the only one we can use.

A conquering of the U. S. S. R., as it was possible immediately after World War II, is not possible any more.

Bureaucratic nationalism draws a dividing line between two nations, so heavy that the chance for a compromise is not there. In 1938-39 nationalism made Germany great, but it also caused the war.

Nationalism
Nationalism did the same in 1913, and it was also an exaggerated nationalistic attitude that brought, in the last century, the French Army to nearly any country border in Western Europe.

At the beginning, we absorb a nationalistic spirit through newspapers, magazines and other media which are often inclined to talk from just one side of the controversy.

As is frequently the rule when this nationalistic pride stays within certain limits there is no problem, but when it surpasses this limit we get the same attitude as in Germany in 1939: "Deutschland uber alles!"

The only possible way to achieve "humility in nationalism" is to be critical and not to approach a current problem in foreign politics from just one side.

Pondering With The President

Congratulations To New Macollege Student Officers

By D. W. Bittinger

You have been selected by your peers to fulfill important responsibilities. They selected you because they thought you could fulfill these responsibilities and because they believe that you will.

You deserve congratulations because of your abilities and because these abilities have been recognized.

A college is what its students and faculty make it. No college anywhere is without blemishes and flaws. No person is without these. But a college or a person can be rated as "better than average" if the person or the college is alert enough to recognize at least some of the flaws and is willing to set about to improve them.

That is what students and teachers are for. That is the basis of progress and growth. You who are student leaders are called upon to lead in helping all of us advance.

So, congratulations to you! May the challenges to real progress and growth stimulate and inspire you!

Return July 7

Participants in the tour are encouraged to learn some of the French language. They will return to New York July 7.

His family moved to Omaha, Neb., last summer.

While in high school Larry was a member of the band and chorus and was director of both. He won four superior ratings in trombone at state contests.

At Macollege Larry is a member of the Trombone Quartet and several band organizations.

Beauty Contest Causes Concern To Mac Student

Dear Editor,

The announcing of a beauty contest on Macampus connected with the Miss America Contest has caused me to do a bit of wondering on paper.

I am sure that this campus has its share of pulchritude, and I can appreciate beauty wherever it is found. (Even though Mrs. Blickenstaff might not agree with this claim without reservations.)

But I have to wonder if a contest that is designed to use these womanly charms to promote the sale of weazy greazy motor oil or whilry curly home permanents, or what have you, is the highest challenge that can be placed before these lovely creatures.

How is beauty to be determined? In my past, I have received instruction in choosing the best from a group of choice animals. I still have in my possession a few ribbons won by cattle of my raising and showing.

Desirable Characteristics

I can recall the desirable characteristics—a straight top line, a mild, gentle eye, proper color, no black muzzle, etc.

But what constitutes a beautiful woman? Is beauty determined by a set of mathematical figures? Can beauty be measured by a tape measure encircling the human body at strategic places?

If we must try to determine the individual that is most generously endowed with those characteristics which we call beauty, is it not debasing those charms to use them for commercial promotion?

It would seem to me that an institution of the calibre of Macollege should be able to place a higher challenge than that before the beauties of our college.

Commercial Interests

The commercial interests have learned that many people will follow where a pretty girl leads.

I wish that the charming young ladies of our campus would be challenged to lead those of us not so favorably endowed to higher levels of social understanding, for instance, rather than trying to fit a measuring hoop in order to sell more motor oil and floor tile.

Alumnus Replies To Comments On Flag Respect

Dear Editor,

I read with interest Mr. Kiester's letter to the editor in THE SPECTATOR for March 23.

We are happy that McPherson College has again provided an attractive spot for display of the United States flag, since the College was without a flag from April 1959 to October 1961 during the construction of the new buildings and the Sharp Memorial Area.

Mr. Kiester's letter implied deliberate disrespect for the flag, but I question whether some of his observations are correct.

Perhaps more respect is being shown for the flag today at McPherson College than was shown when flying the flag was an initiation duty of the freshmen.

Negligent freshmen often "forgot" their assignment so often that Student Council was concerned about the lack of respect for the flag. Finally Student Council hired a student janitor to be in charge of the flag.

Now Buildings and Grounds employees care for the flag.

I disagree with Mr. Kiester that not flying the flag on weekends shows a lack of respect since neither public schools nor the United States Post Offices fly the flag on days which are not working days.

I also disagree with Mr. Kiester's implication that the flag is always flown in bad weather and is flown at night. I was on the campus frequently in January when the weather was excellent where a pretty girl leads.

Graduates Urge Students To Consider Social Work

"More Maccollege students should become graduate social workers." Two Maccollege graduates made this statement while visiting friends and faculty members on Maccollege campus March 22.

Miss Arlene Merkey, '56, and Miss Kathy McLeod, '53, who are completing their master's of social work degrees at the Denver University Graduate School of Social Work in June, were on campus during their spring vacation.

Miss Merkey and Miss McLeod said that McPherson College graduates have a completeness in development of personality, character, and intellect which is not found among students in most universities.

"McPherson College provides more than academic learning," said Miss McLeod. She came to McPherson College as a junior after taking her first two years elsewhere.

Both women stated that Maccollege students are more adapted to working with situations called

Received Grant
Miss Merkey received a grant last year from the Kansas Children's Service League. Similar grants and aids are in abundance for those seriously interested.

After spending three years in BVS in Europe, Miss Merkey returned to Maccollege for the spring of 1959-60 to do more work.

Upon graduation, Miss McLeod will become a consultant for public assistance and juvenile court. "The work is exhausting but rewarding," said the women as they left.

Approximately $20,000 was given in cash and pledged during the recent drive. During the 11-month period prior to the drive, about $42,000 was given by individuals and local business establishments through the development, diamond jubilee, and general funds.

About 710 persons were served at the banquet Saturday evening followed by the drive program.

Dale Renberger, president of the McPherson Chamber of Commerce, was the master of ceremonies for the program.

The buffet meal which was prepared by the Slater Food Service was served in the cafeteria at the Student Union and punch was served prior to the meal in the basement.

iremely bad, and the flag was not up.

In fact, I remember that the flag was not put up just the day before Mr. Kiestler's letter appeared. A hard rain was falling that Thursday morning.

The rule, "The flag should not be displayed when the weather is inclement," has various interpretations. At the McPherson Post Office the flag is not taken down during drizzle or rain unless the storm is severe, and a special storm flag like those used at Army posts during stormy weather is used on windy days.

All of us know that Kansas weather is a problem for Buildings and Grounds. Since many mornings are cloudy but the weather clears before noon, a custodian has to decide whether or not to put the flag up. The rule being used is that once the flag goes up in the morning it is not taken down until evening unless there is a disaster.

Mr. Kiestler did not say that he ever saw the flag up at night although he implied such. Buildings and Grounds employees say that, through an error, the flag was left up the first night it was flown in October but since then it has not been up after sunset. Evidently Mr. Kiestler, a new student on McPherson College campus this semester, has heard a magnified version of that error.

Further evidence that more respect is shown the flag now is that I have not seen a frayed flag flown from the relocated flagpole. A few years ago when former students were in charge, the flag was frequently flown in a tattered condition.

I appreciate Mr. Kiestler's concern for the flag. If the freshmen had been as concerned as he when some of us alumni were in college, Student Council would have had fewer worries.

Peace Corps In Chile

Volunteers Will Assist In Development Programs

Peace Corps volunteers to Chile will assist in programs of community development and rural education. They will help promote interest in educational radio programs and teach young campesinos to carry on community development work.

Even though forty per cent of the country's population is engaged in agriculture, they contribute only about 17 per cent to Chile's gross national product. A major problem is the small amount of cultivatable land.

Approximately 45 volunteers, both men and women, are needed for the rehabilitation project in Chile where they will work in areas where people were hardest hit by the 1960 earthquakes, tidal waves and floods.

Volunteers must be college graduates with a variety of skills and general knowledge of agronomy, animal husbandry, carpentry, first aid, teaching, maintenance of farm equipment, public health, and techniques of mass communications.

There will be a four-month training period: two in this country and two in Chile. In the States, training will be taken at the University of Notre Dame in Indiana. Training will cover skills and ways of teaching these skills to Chileans.

Also, there will be courses on

Chilean geography, history, Spanish, American history, international relations, physical conditioning, and adjustment to another culture.

At the Institute of Rural Education Training Center, Lo Vasquez, Chile, they will receive five weeks of training in community development. Five other weeks will be spent in on-the-job field training.
