DeCoursey Receives Grant From Chemical Society

Dr. Wesley DeCoursey, professor of chemistry at McPherson College, has received a second research grant from the Petroleum Research Fund of the American Chemical Society.

This grant, for the year 1962-63, is for the encouragement of undergraduate research. Dr. DeCoursey has had a previous grant since June, 1961.

During the present semester Karl Buskirk, senior from McPherson, and Kathryn Krehmeyer, junior from Haxton, Colo., have been working on the research with Dr. DeCoursey. The research is concerned with the reduction of cyano complexes of manganese, chromium, and molybdenum.

Undergraduates Work
Under the terms of the grant one or more undergraduates work on research during the school year and are paid $25 per month. In the summer Dr. DeCoursey is paid for his time spent on research, and the students are paid $1 per hour.

The two grants, totaling $8,625, pay for chemicals and equipment.

MACOLLEGE WILL OFFER the Aerospace Education Workshop from June 11-22 this year. Dr. Dayton Rothrock, associate professor of education, will be one of the administrators of the workshop. This bulletin board on the second floor of Mohler Hall denotes several of the important aspects of the workshop.

Summer School Includes An Aerospace Workshop

A new course is being introduced into Macollege's summer school curriculum for the 1962 session. An Aerospace Education Workshop will be held from June 11-22 under the administration of Dr. Dayton G. Rothrock associate professor of education, and Dr. Merlin Frantz, professor of education and psychology.

This course is designed to bring teachers out of the "automobile age" into the age of airplanes and missiles. It will enable them to keep up with their space-conscious students. The many teachers who have never been up in an airplane before will be able to converse on equal terms with their students.

Hagggett

Hiram Hagggett, a representative of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Washington, D. C., heads the list of outside leaders who will help in presenting the workshop.

In addition, Adel Throckmorton, state superintendent of education, will speak on aerospace education in public schools; and C. O. Wright, from the Kansas State Teachers Association, will give a talk on model airplaning.

Other speakers include Marshall Benedict from the Regional Public Relations Office of the Federal Aviation Agency in Kansas City and representatives from Cessna, Beechcraft, and the Civil Air Patrol.

Field Trip

The highlight of the course will be an all-day field trip by airplane to Will Rogers Field in Oklahoma City and a tour of the FAA center there. Another field trip planned is a trip to the Wichita Municipal Airport and a tour of the Cessna Aircraft Plant.

Recent films, including those of Colonel Glenn's flight, will be shown. In addition, it is planned that the National Spacemobile exhibit will be available during the workshop.

Enrollment is limited to 22; students should pre-enroll with Dr. Rothrock. Only the first 22 who enroll will be admitted. The course is particularly recommended for education majors, but others may enroll if interested.

In Chapel Next Week

Chapel will be held on Wednesday at 9:35 instead of Tuesday next week. Nine-thirty five classes on Wednesday will be held at 9:35 Tuesday in place of chapel.

Wednesday—Colin Jackson from Great Britain will be the guest speaker in Chapel. Mr. Jackson has appeared before Macollege students a number of times in past years. He will speak on international affairs.

Friday—Dr. D. W. Bittinger, president of McPherson will speak.

Pre-enrollment Begins; Mac Offers New Courses

McPherson College pre-enrollment for first semester of next year began this week and will continue until May 18.

Courses being offered for the first time next semester include Elementary Spanish and Golf and Bowling. Golf and Bowling will be taught by Miss Doris Coppock, associate professor and director of physical education for women, and by Donald Widrig, assistant coach and instructor in physical education.

TV Course

Tennis and Bowling also will be taught by Miss Coppock. The American Economy, a television course, is a new course being offered next semester. It is offered through the Learning Resources Institute.

History of Social Thought, usually offered alternate years, will be offered again first semester of next year. Kenneth Bechtel, professor of sociology and language, teaches the course.

who teaches the class, will be taking a sabbatical leave next year.

Pre-enrollment

To begin pre-enrollment, students are requested to pick up a schedule and a pre-enrollment card in the Registrar's Office before seeing their counselor.

After students have worked out their schedules with their counselors, the cards may be left with their counselor to be turned in to the Registrar's Office later. At the time of pre-enrollment, students who are interested in teaching are asked to fill out a teacher education course interest card to aid both the Education Department and the counselors in helping students to become prepared for teaching.

All students who have any interest in teaching, whether they are freshmen or sophomores, are asked to indicate that they are interested in teaching as soon as they know.

Press Influence Noticeable In Classroom

Dear Editor,
Are we influenced these days by the flooding of the press and news media with the name of the President and his family?
An incident during a recent class session on Macampus might lead one to believe so.
While discussing paralysis, a Macollege professor inadvertently called the Sister Kenny treatment in physical therapy the "Sister Kennedy" treatment.
Or is this the term applied to the treatment India recently received???

Spring Causes Interference With Studies

Job Hunting

Since summer is near, there is job hunting yet to be done; or for some there are very special ceremonial plans to be made.

These and other pressing matters make us all walk in a sort of dense maze, not to mention the effects of "Spring Fever." This disease has already begun to take its toll and will have us all victimized by the week preceding finals.

This disease affects each of its victims differently, but its symptoms usually culminate in a diversion of interest from the academic to various other pursuits.

Last Few Weeks

Here's hoping we will not let these last few weeks slip by any less meaningful or less fulfilling than they could be; that we will give ourselves to the vocation of scholarship and learning the essential things well; that we won't come to think of our work as boring, burdensome, and unproductive.

May we be strengthened to be faithful to our service as students.

Wolfe Will Be Heifer Project Representative

Claude Wolfe, director of athletics and head basketball and baseball coach of Manchester College, North Manchester, Ind., has been selected as Field Liaison Representative for Heifer Project's Peace Corps unit in Bolivia.

Classes Display Projects April 1-8 In Friendship Hall

By Darlene Blickenstaff

Students from the McPherson High School and College Extension art classes offer us a chance to enjoy some exceptionally good beginning art.

Friendship Hall, during this week—April 1-8, will display their work, all which was done under the supervision of Mrs. Rosella Ogg. The exhibition displays a variety of media including charcoal, pencil and ink drawings, and watercolor and oil paintings.

The students explore the formal elements or ingredients of art as they learn to represent; that is, form, line, texture, and color are emphasized so that a basic instinct for design principles is naturally instilled while the object is being drawn.

The result of this very apt teaching is that the students display an exceptionally mature concept of the nature of art. It is especially refreshing to see subject matter used in an expressive way rather than to become merely a demonstration of skill.

Non-objective Form

At the same time it is a fine thing to see honest and successful attempts to express through the use of non-objective form without the result being only surface texture and color.

It is obvious that these students whose various individual bent are fostered and encouraged are forming a very solid basis for future success in art.

Pondering With The President

How Many Like This?

By D. W. Bittinger

Recently, I placed my name, with others, on a suggestion to President Kennedy that he seek to discover and to implement ways whereby the hungry in China might be fed.

Some of this could come from our surplus wheat supplies. Possible ways of doing it are through the UN, by direct sale—since the Chinese are eager to purchase—or by gift.

Somewhat to my surprise this blew up a bit of a storm.

Some have said, or written, that if we would have let the Russians starve following World War I we would not now face any problem. Some see no way we can feed a people with whose government we do not agree, even though the starving people within it may also disagree with it.

Some see no moral responsibility whatever concerning hunger or suffering as long as it is not one's own immediate family.

These are strange notions in an adult world!

Maccollege Will Celebrate Library Week April 8-14

Maccollege library will celebrate National Library Week April 8-14 with displays and literature. The theme this year is "Read—And Watch Your World Grow!"

National Library week was originated in 1959 and is sponsored by the National Book Committee, Inc., in cooperation with the American Library Association, composed of 29,000 librarians and trustees of libraries all over the United States.

It was begun to focus public attention on reading as a source of personal fulfillment, on the importance of reading in our national life, and on the libraries which, if used fully and supported properly, can make reading materials accessible to everybody.

In the five years since its inauguration, National Library Week has resulted in increased circulation of materials, greater financial support, and more legislation to speed library development. In addition, it has inspired many people to begin their own libraries.

However, in spite of the encouraging results, much remains to be accomplished. Twenty-five million people have no library service, while many more have only worthless service.

Two-thirds of our elementary schools—the level where talent can most easily be fostered and reading and study habits formed—have no libraries. Our high school and college libraries are often inadequate now and must face a seven million increase in students.

THINKING ABOUT LIFE INSURANCE?

A message to students from Leonard M. Lowe
McPherson Life Insurance Underwriter

Graduating seniors, married or engaged couples and other mature minded college students purchase millions of dollars of life insurance every year. Such students face two main problems.

First, what company shall I buy from? Second, what life underwriter shall I entrust with my purchase?

The first problem can be dismissed quickly since most life insurance companies are sound and well-managed. Federal and state statutes guarantee this in the interests of the public.

The second problem is far more critical, since life underwriters vary widely in their qualifications. Among other characteristics, the well qualified underwriter should possess the following:

Thorough training. He should be well trained not only in the technical aspects of life insurance, but also in economics, especially family economics and other related fields. The well-trained man knows what type and how much of the right policy to recommend to you.

Experience. It is especially true in life insurance, that nothing can take the place of experience. The man who has been in the business for a number of years has likely served persons with problems just like yours and is qualified to help you solve them. His experience qualifies him as an expert in financial counseling.

Integrity. You may own your life insurance for a lifetime. You cannot afford to buy from an underwriter whose reputation for honesty is not above reproach. The best life underwriters put the interests of their clients ahead of making a sale. To him, a license to sell life insurance is not only a means of making a living, it is an instrument of public trust.

Permanency. Life insurance contracts often need to be changed. When a person marries, moves, changes jobs, becomes a parent, retires etc., a friend in need is the life insurance man who sold you your policy. If he is still on the job and has the above qualifications, he will be more than glad to help you bring your policy up to date.

Most life insurance underwriters strive to meet the above qualifications. If you have been thinking about life insurance, plan to talk with a qualified underwriter soon.
