Book Fair Will Be Held At Mac April 30-May 2

A "Paperbound Book Fair" will be held on Macollege campus April 30 to May 2. Paperback books will be brought to the campus and displayed for purchase in the west reading room of the library basement.

The Fair will be open 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. in order to give students an opportunity to browse through the selection at their own leisure.

The Book Fair is an attempt to make the students aware of significant books and to encourage students to start personal libraries.

Volunteers

Student volunteers are needed to work at the Fair. Those interested in helping may contact Eleanor Draper, senior from Eldora, Iowa.

"Over the span of his schooling, the average college graduate invests perhaps 8,000 individual study hours with books, few of which he ever owns! More often than not he is discouraged from owning them," stated William Emerson Hinckley, chief librarian at Santa Barbara (Calif.) Public Library in a recent magazine article.

Paperbound books are rapidly modifying this pattern by offering great assorted works at a price suitable for the average student.

Improved Quality

Improved quality of content, paper, and binding make these books more valuable. "Because of such improvements, over three hundred million of these powerful

Build Your Own Library Through Paperback Books

By Beverly Judge

Paperback books have risen in the estimation of the reading public from a cheap form of entertainment to an opportunity to build an inexpensive high quality library.

This change has come as a result in the immense improvement of the subject matter within the covers.

Most of the greatest books of the world are now available in a paperback form. Quality of paper and construction is now more comparable to that of hard-bound copies.

Later this month at the Book Fair, Macollege students will have an opportunity to purchase some of the better paperback books in print today.

Many of the books can be purchased for 35 cents. The most expensive book will be priced under three dollars.

It would be expedient for us to take advantage of the Book Fair—forefeit a few soft drinks, if necessary—and invest in our personal libraries.

Physical Sciences Exclude Important Social Aspects

By Weyland Beeghly

In the past decade there has been an increasing amount of emphasis exerted upon the physical and exact sciences. Soviet space successes of the late fifties greatly intensified this emphasis since we as a nation have no desire for second place.

I believe that it is desirable for us to put increasing stress on these sciences, for the rewards are obvious. But, are we stressing physical sciences to the exclusion of the social sciences? Unfortunately I believe this is the case.

Seven Tips

A newspaper near my home town recently printed seven tips for parents whose children still attend school. One of the suggestions indicated that it would be good to develop in your child an interest in the physical sciences since we live in a science-centered world.

After all, here is where the money, prestige, and future lie, according to many of our guidance counselors.

Another situation which points up the back-seat the social sciences have taken is the fact that in many of our high schools the social sciences are taught by teachers whose interests are centered on the gridiron or basketball court. I've had some coaches who I consider very-good social science teachers but they are in the minority.

"Split Personality"

Several years ago I saw an editorial cartoon that made a deep impression on my mind. It was captioned "Split Personality." A man was depicted divided at the waist. The upper half was equipped with all the paraphernalia necessary for space travel and he held aloft a sign, "The Physical Sciences."

Huge, ape-like legs and a crude club in the setting of the Stone Age made up the bottom half of the body appropriately entitled.

Staff To Publish Practice Issue

Next issue of The SPECTATOR, May 4, will be a practice issue for next semester's Editor-in-Chief, Muriel Gibson, sophomore from Keota, Iowa; and Managing Editor, Weyland Beeghly, freshman from Pierson, Iowa.

Muriel's duties for the next issue will be to make the dummy, write editorials, determine the size of headlines for each article and decide the policy of the paper.

On Thursday afternoon, Muriel and SPECT adviser, Mrs. Homer Brunk will visit the McPherson Sentinel office to set up the paper and proofread it.

Weyland will write headlines, copyread stories, and type up the slug sheet. He will continue to assign articles to reporters as campus editor for the practice issue.

A new campus editor is to be chosen soon by the Board of Publications from Macollege student applicants.

Stumps To Serve Dinner

Professor and Mrs. Harley Stump will serve a dinner to senior English majors and English Department faculty April 28 in the Student Union.

Dates, husbands, and-or wives of the students and faculty of the English department are also invited to the dinner.

In Friendship Hall

Japanese Prints Displayed

By Darlene Blickenstaff
Instruction In Art

We are again privileged to have an excellent collection of Japanese prints displayed in Friendship Hall—all of which are for sale at a very nominal price.

The prints are reproductions of original wood block prints which date from the 16th to the 19th centuries. Famous names such as Hiroshige, Utamaro, and Harunobu are represented in the collection.

Cutting Design

Woodblock prints are made by cutting a design into a wooden surface. The raised surface which remains is inked, then pressed on to the paper. A different block is used for each color.

With this small amount of information one can immediately appreciate the extreme amount of skill involved in the woodcuts, let alone the beauty of the artistic conception.

Simple Forms

Underlying the sensitivity to good design is the love of simple forms derived from nature—a quality inherent in all of Japanese art. The desire is never to repeat surface detail, but rather is that of capturing the essence of each form treating it with a refined, restrained, and simple manner.

The real world is transmitted into a recognizable, yet basically abstract one in which nature is concentrated into its essential form.

Friendship Hall Displays Handbuilt Clock Frames

Hand-built clock frames which are being displayed in Friendship Hall were designed and made by students of the Advanced Woodwork and Design class, in an attempt to put good design into natural practice.

Each of the nine clocks, made of korina, walnut, or mahogany wood, represents unique design and skilled workmanship.

Students who built clock are Gale Burkholder, Charles Coleman, Don Elliott, Galen Huffman, Ralph Rindt, Royce Roesch, Dick Roller, Gerold Stewart, and Duane Strickler.

Pondering With The President

A Modern Lighthouse

By D. W. Bittinger

The plane I was on last week circled high above the darkened and wandering streets of a mountain city as if seeking for a place to land. There were lights far below, but they seemed to point a myriad of directions. At some major intersections they made a colorful splash of darting reds and greens; this seemed like modern art in neon movement.

But in the midst of all of this and above it there stood a clear light, white and unflashing. It was a lighted cross on a tall church spire. I watched it as we circled round it and pointed ourselves toward the parallel strips of light which marked the landing field.

This light did not blink.

It shone as a modern lighthouse midst other lights that seemed to come and go.

It made me think of Easter. Since that first Easter many nations have risen and fallen. Great historic figures have ridden across our horizons and disappeared. But the light of the deep meanings of Easter have not flickered.

Forgiveness, love, service, sacrifice, and the immortality of this Way and of those who will follow the Master of this Way should be our beacon light. This is changeless.

Silence Opponents

Almost fifty years ago, we were preparing for war. Do you see any progress? Instead of talking over our problems, we try to decide on the best way to silence those who disagree with us. When are we going to start spending some real effort in human relations so that we'll be around to enjoy the rewards of physical science? Yes, here is the area where our major thrust needs to be made.
