Thank You!

Editor Expresses Gratitude To Reporters, Other Helpers By Beverly Judge

Looking back upon this semester's experiences as editor-in chief, I must express my gratitude to all who have contributed to these fifteen issues.

First on my list are all of the reporters-who were so faithful in handing in stories-and the professors and students who added opinions and ideas to our editorial page.

Also, our managing editor, Muriel Gibson, and campus editor, Weyland Beeghly, have done terrific jobs in their supporting roles. Good luck to you as you take over new duties next year.

Mrs. Homer Brunk, SPECTATOR adviser, has been a willing helper in all times of need.

The workers at the McPherson Sentinel deserve a great deal of thanks for their cooperation in printing the paper each week.

To all of these and many others, I extend my warmest thanks. I will remember this semester as one which has challenged and inspired me. I will also remember that this experience has taught me that we do not always accomplish all that we would want to.

To Muriel, next semester's editor-in-chief, I would offer a small bit of advice. Never be satisfied to only duplicate that which has been done previously So many exciting avenues can be opened to those who make the most of their creative power, imagination, and courage.

Pondering With The President

Why Go To College? By D. W. Bittinger

A church related college recently compiled re-sponses from its seniors as to why they had gone to college. The results were as follows: 41 per cent to become teachers, 25 per cent to enter business, 23 per cent for no specific vocational goal, 6 per cent for graduate work, and 5 per cent to prepare for the ministry. the ministry.

At McPherson College the statistics would pro-bably vary from these. More than 41 per cent would go into teaching; prohably less than 25 per cent would go into business; more than 6 per cent would go into graduate school; and only a small percentage would be underided would be undecided.

The figure for the ministry probably would be low also at McPherson unless one were to add to the ministry, foreign missions, Brethren service, and general Christian full-time service of a social welfare nature. If this were done the percentage would be more comparable to the other vocations. They would all wave from earlier class to sanior class. all vary from senior class to senior class.
