No. 22

Mac Ratifies Election Plan

McPherson College Student Body passed by an approximate 70 per cent majority last Tuesday an amendment which will greatly affect the structure of the Student Council.

To the student, this action will have several implications. First, he will now be represented in two ways on the council: (1) by his two class representatives elected by their respective classes, and (2) by eight representativesat-large who can be any member of the student body and who is elected by the student body as a whole.

This new system will eliminate the continuity of membership and will make each candidate actively campaign for his Council seat. The size of the Council will be enlarged from the present 17 to 22 members.

No specifications as to the num ber of seats which could be held by one class or one sex is made, thus encouraging active campaigning.

The goal of such an arrangement is a Council of maximum capacity who will represent a greater number of the student

The recently passed amendment will go effect this year and will change the election procedure of the rest of the Council

This procedure is contained in the Student-Council By-laws and will be set up at the next Coun-

Blickenstaff Wins Acclaim In Young Artist Contest

Marvin Blickenstaff, assistant professor of piano, was declared state winner in the piano division of the Young Artist Competition held last Saturday on the campus of Kansas University.

Professor Blickenstaff will now advance to the district competition where winners from Kansas, Missouri, and Arkansas will compete for the chance to appear in the national contest in Pittsburgh, Pa.

can be declared a winner by the group of judges.

The contest establishes four requirements which must be met successfully before a winner can be declared. First, each planist is asked to play Barcarolle, Op. 60, by Chopis

The judges then selected one of three concerti which the perform-er has been told to prepare and the contestant must play it. For this particular requirement, Blickenstaff was asked to play one of Prokofiev's works. He was accompanied by Jolene Johnston, sophomore from El Dorado.

Each performer is then required to present an hour and fifteen minute recital from selections compiled by the judges' committee. Blickenstaff selected works of Bach, Beethoven, Schubert, Chopin, Brahms and Copland.

The final requirement called for a 45-minute recital of selections chosen by the individual pianist. Ginastera, Ravel, and Mozart were featured by Blickenstaff as he presented part of the repertoire he has used for various concerts throughout the year.

It was after one of Blickenstaff's concerts at Kansas Wesleyan that Oscar Yancey of the Wesleyan music faculty wrote, "Blickenstaff did all one could ask of a Mozart-player: he played correctly, musically and technically, as well as communicating a feeling of complete personal absorption in the music. "I do not cast compliments about freely when it comes to the performance of the music of Mozart, but in Blickenstaff's case I am almost willing to use superlatives!

"It would be wonderful if most of the pianists whom I hear from day to day had at least half of the interest and enthusiasm for their music and playing that Mr. Blickenstaff has. The tist' can be truly applied to him without any reservation!

More Projects Like West Side to Develop Memorial Service Honors Bowman, Former Professor In Inner City Areas, According to Wilson

"Some really exciting things have been happening in the inner city, and in years ahead more and more will be seen of projects like the West Side Christian Parish," stated The Rev. Thomas Wilson, pastor of the First Church of the Brethren in Chicago, Ill.

Rev. Wilson was in McPherson last weekend for the Regional Youth Conference.

As Rev. Wilson grew up in the city he became interested in people and aware of the prob-lems of the city. This interest sharpened during his work as a social worker after graduation from seminary.

When he received the call from this was the challenge of what he wished to achieve in a racially changing neighborhood.

Rev. Wilson believes there will be a real continuation of the inner city church. "As I perceive it, I believe the core of the Protestant Church is captured by the society in which we live, and has become a stilted institution which has lost its vitality.

"The inner city church can show the way to Protestantism and move ahead in terms of church work and renewal of the church This will stimulate and renew the church in a spiritual way because of the newness and freshness of the approach to the

"The inner city is high mobile and a society in transition. Even hough this is true of all cultures, it is more true in the inner city. However, in most cases, after two to three years, a highly movable community tends to stabilize to some extent.

"The inner city does not measure success in the terms of numbers. Most of the pastoral ministers counsel with people they may see only once in their lives, so there is no way to measure success.

"Because of the complex situations involved, a minister of the inner city must assume many roles and have a certain type of personality. Anyone coming into the area with certain ideals may face problems.

"One must become involved in the problems of the inner city, yet must stay aloof and not become too emotionally involved.

"Being a minister in this area requires a certain dedication and commitment because one is taxed in his capacities in every waymentally, physically, and spirit-

When most people talk of the inner city they consider it a geographical area with the city it-"However," Rev. Wilson said," this is not my concept. I think of it as any area of extreme need and depravation in a general metropolitan area. This means it can even be a suburban area.

"Generally when one talks to a person of the inner city it is easy to get a negative impression of the city because of their involvement in the problems of the

"One must consider the total city-its cultural centers, urban renewal and tremendous building projects to get a real picture of the kind of things that are happening in the city."

Recently a national conference on race was held in Chicago where more than seventy denominations were represented, including the three major faiths. These delegates, including Rev. Wilson, met with a sense of urgency to discover the ways to arrest the rising tides of racial conflicts in America, especially as it relates to the church and Wilson commented, sense that the church has a very lem of race. Some people say this conference was just another conference passing high sounding views and goals.

"I believe it is another mile-stone of the church. Already some results of the conference can be seen in Chicago.

"For example, members of a sponsoring committee became very disturbed at the fact that a Negro woman had been invited to play in a symphony orchestra. Attempts were made to prevent her playing. The prodding of a group of ministers from this conference resulted in letting her perform with the orchestra.

"This is the kind of thing the church can do when it acts in a decisive way. Results of the conference can be seen within our own area, also.

"There have been inner - faith meetings of ministers in the area to discuss political questions. believe that more and more the church will present a united front

Reader Charges Unjust Criticism Of Mac Courtesy

In answer to Mr. Weaver:

Mr. Weaver seems to feel Mc-Pherson College students are disrespectful and are not openminded enough to listen to points of view in opposition to our own. However, Mr. Weaver, listening to someone else's opinion is one thing, but having to take unfair abuse of your own is another.

A speaker has every right to state his own beliefs, and I agree we should all show respect for them; however, when he starts tearing into someone else's, he is the one who is showing lack of respect.

Perhaps Mr. Weaver would not be so open-minded if the speaker had instead implied that all pacifists are yellow cowards who have to forget their cowardliness

I feel the speaker was quite unfair in what he said, and I think the students had a right to object. Even respect doesn't say we have to sit and, with a smile, take any abuse someone wants to

He taught at LaVerne College in California, at Ripon College in Wisconsin, and at Juniata College in Pennsylvania before coming to McPherson College as a teacher.

Survivors include his widow: two daughters, Mrs. John Burkholder of McPherson and Mrs. Omer Masterson of Lombard, Ill.; eight brothers and sisters; and seven grandchildren.

Burial was in the McPherson Cemetery.

J. L. Brown Taught at MC For 33 Years

By Burton Metzler

In his thirty-three years of teaching at McPherson College, Prof. Joseph L. Bowman guided thousands of students along the paths of mathematics and physics. His sly humor and imaginative approach to his teaching helped brighten up what was a dif-

Professor Bowman was of an artistic temperament as is also his wife who was a student at the Art Institute in Chicago during their courtship.

He will be remembered as an unassuming man, gracious and well poised, and as a patient Christian teacher.

Once in a great while there comes a play and a collegiate cast that seem positively made for each other. Every part fits. Every element magnifies every other element.

It is a happy union, and the play becomes an experience to remember for a long time to come. This can be so even if the technical quality of the play is not quite up to standard more pleased that the cast, and every collegiate player hopes to something of the sort happen during his career. I had hoped to witness such an event last Saturday evening in Brown Auditorium. I was disappointed.

Technically the production was fine. The lighting was good, and the set conveyed the proper atmosphere. I could even tolerate the acting, what there was of it.

Actually, some parts came through fairly well. Edwin Mohler's portrayal of State Trooper Brendle was credfole, and although the picture of a tyrannical Mennonite father is slightly unpalatable, Peter Ford made it almost believable.

But the crowning achievement and the high spot of the evening was John Harrison's portrayal of Jake. The Pennsylvania Dutch dialect, difficult at best, was handled the most convincingly by

For the rest of the cast, the dialect was like a coat that was too big. It just did not fit. They spoke it, but they did not live it.

Now one would think that with fine technical work, some high spots in the acting, and the rest of the acting adequate, the play would be-if not great-at least good and enjoyable.

But when you have a play with as little plot) and as little message as Greene's "Papa Is All," this just does not happen.

Spec Corrects Error

Last week's Spectator stated that the Student Council dropped the matter of setting up a used book sales service because of the seeming inadequacy of the pres ent system. This statement should be corrected to read "adequacy" and thus change the tone of the paragraph. .

When you have a play of this nature, what else can you expect from even the best of casts but mediocrity? Given a finer vehicle, this cast could have risen to the heights. But when the play is all, you are dead before you start.

Elmore Closes Career As Mac Offensive Star

When Deryl Elmore came to McPherson College as a freshman in 1959, he brought with him a fine set of high school baskethall records from Colorado where he had been chosen for the allstate basketball team.

player in high school, Elmore excelled in offense at Mac where he recently completed his career in college basketball.

Dervl made the varsity squad his freshman year, although not as a starter. He saw enough action though to tally a 6.6 per game average that year.

As a sophomore, Deryl gained the varsity berth that had eluded him his first year. It was a position that he never relinquished while at Macollege.

During his sophomore year, Deryl compiled a 21.7 point per game average in his first year

His average was good enough to win him the conference scoring crown. And at the end of the season Deryl was a unanimous choice for the all-conference first

All the teams in the conference tightened their defense against Deryl in his junior year.

Still Deryl was able to build an 18.1 per game average in spite of all the rough play. He was also named to the all-conference second team for his play.

Deryl's senior year was one of his finest seasons at Mac.

His average, 19.2 points per game, did not match his average in his sophomore year, but his all around fine play prompted many to call it his best season

B-Team Records Winning Season

Macollege's B-team opened its season Dec. 4 at Bethel, and the season closed Feb. 25 with the team having an 11-9 record.

The B-team scored an average of 66.1 points per game and gave up an average of 63.7 points per game. Totals read 1322 points scored and 1274 points given up.

The B-team opened play with a hard-fought 55-42 win over Bethel. The next three games were losses to Southwestern 52-50. Sterling 51-48, and Ottawa 98-74.

The losing streak was broken by a 68-57 win over a tall C of E B-team. Three more wins fol-lowed, including, Bethany 76-75 in the final minute of play, Friends 84-69, and Tabor 61-58.

The Baker B-team defeated Mac 76 - 59 at Baldwin. Three more wins followed this loss. The wins were over KWU 83-47. Bethel 51-45, and Southwestern 66-53
