Choir Selections Range From Bach to Gershwin

Selections ranging from the classical sacred music of Bach to the semi-popular tunes of Gershwin and Kern will be featured by the McPherson College A Cappella Choir in its formal spring concert tonight in Brown Auditorium.

The 42-voice choir, now in its 31st season, is conducted by Miss Doris Coppock.

Major solos in tonight's concert will be sung by Connie Andes, junior from Mound City, Mo., Marcene Gridley, senior from Topeka; and Nelson Stump, senior from McPherson.

Other solos will feature Karen Andes, Leah Standafer, Sharon Keith, John Miller and Ronald Grout. Karen Oltman, sophomore from Enders, Neb., accompanies the choir on several of the selections.

The first part of the program is devoted to classical sacred and contemporary sacred music, closing with three spirituals before the intermission.

The second part of the program will open with three folk songs, sung by one half of the choir. Following the folk songs, the other half of the choir will sing three madrigals. All of the madrigals are based on texts from Shakespearean plays.

Popular folksongs and light numbers in the semi-popular vein such as "Summertime" from Porgy and Bess and "In the Still of the Night" will conclude the concert.

The A Cappella Choir was started in 1931 by Cheezey Voran, now director of the Centenary College Choir. He was succeeded by Nevin Fisher.

In 1946, Donald Frederick became the conductor of the choir. Miss Coppock is directing the choir this year while Professor Frederick is doing graduate study at the University of Wichita.

This evening's concert begins at 8 o'clock. College students will be admitted by showing their activity card. Admission for adults will be $1, and for children it will be 50 cents.

WORDS OF SHAKESPEARE—burst into music tonight in Brown Auditorium. This twenty-voice group will sing three madrigals based on texts from the great Shakespearean dramas following the singing of three Brahms folk songs by the balance of the choir.

Brown to Study at Marburg Under Brethren College Plan

Mike Brown, sophomore from Wichita, has been approved for a year of undergraduate study at Marburg, German, under the Brethren Year Abroad program.

The program, cooperatively sponsored by the six colleges of the Church of the Brethren, is arranged so that students can receive a full year of college credit, board and room, and ocean transportation for approximately the same price it would cost in the United States.

The 19-year old history major will sail for Europe along with other students from Brethren colleges during the latter part of August.

The American students will attend a Language Institute conducted by native German teachers during September and October. The emphasis will be on conversational skills, vocabulary necessary for attending Marburg University, and orientation in the culture and civilization of contemporary Germany.

The Winter Semester at Marburg University runs from approximately November 1 to March 1. A variety of courses in religion, history, literature, economics, political science, and natural sciences is offered.

Established in the Middle Ages, Marburg was the site of the famous debate between Zwingli and Luther on the nature of the Eucharist.

Situated on the Lahn River, which flows into the Rhine, the city is midway between Frankfurt and Kassel and only a few miles from Schwarzenau, the birthplace of the Church of the Brethren.

Mike will be attending Philipps-Universität, the oldest Protestant university in the world. Dennis Hubbard, a '62 Mac graduate, is currently representing McPherson College at the German University.

Upon completion of his year in Germany, Mike will return to McPherson College for his senior year.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brown of Wichita, Mike has been active in debate, intramurals, and Young Democrats in his first two years at Mac.

Assets Not Discounted By Editorial Criticism

Early last March, I was asked to participate in a practical experiment Dr. Flory was conducting on his American Government class. The class, at that time, was studying a chapter on public opinion and politics. Dr. Flory initiated the experiment by unleashing an attack on the content and timing of one of my editorials concerning student government. I was then brought into class to defend my position and deride the college administration so that he could test the reaction of the students. I don't know what effect my twenty minute speech had on the members of that class, but by 10 o'clock that evening, I felt almost three inches high. Not because of what I had said, but because of what I had NOT said. As I told one of the students later, I could easily have spent twenty minutes enumerating the assets of McPherson College, but I wasn't brought to class for that purpose. I think of McPherson College, or any other college for that matter, as somewhat like a good debate question — there is an abundance of material both affirmative and negative. And in evaluating any college, one side must be weighed against the other. I know I put more weight on one side than the other, but it's for a definite purpose and I'm convinced it's necessary. But I think there are many reasons why a student would find it profitable to spend part or all of his college days at McPherson College. Without going into great length, I'd like to emphasize a few of the factors which are most important in my estimation. I've had several clashes with the administration this year, but I'm glad we have the privilege to walk into the offices of these men and discuss campus policies with them on a person to person basis. I think we should appreciate the fact that this is not the case at most other colleges. Secondly the faculty at McPherson College is of high quality. A student can probably receive individual help at the state schools in the professor's particular field, but the faculty here is interested in more than their own academic area. I don't have to think too hard for examples of teachers who are right now spending their spare time helping students with extra-curricular projects and individual problems. A third reason I like this school is its atmosphere. I realize that there is some hypocrisy, and I would agree with Carl Werner that there is a difference between friendliness and being a friend. But after visiting over three dozen campuses in the last four years, I have yet to visit a campus where my initial reaction was as favorable as the first time I came to McPherson. Yes, we have plenty of problems at McPherson College, and I haven't quit writing about them yet. But it is not my intention to deride the good aspects of the college while attempting to do my part to encourage improvement. WMB

We Get Letters . . .

Court Appeals For More Mature Campus Conduct

To the students of McPherson College: It has recently been brought to the attention of the Student Court that conduct unbecoming a college student has taken place in the cafeteria. However, there seems to be the feeling those responsible for such conduct that this is a trivial problem. If such a problem consisted of an isolated incident, there would be no need for concern. But this is not a problem of isolated incidence. For this reason, the Student Court would appeal to the students to seriously reconsider their conduct in the cafeteria and on the campus in general. The actions of an individual student cannot help but reflect on his fellow students. It is for this reason that it would be to the advantage of both the individual and the group as a whole to conduct themselves in a more mature manner. Student Court

Committee Head Voices Personal Gratitude for Play

To the director and cast of "No Exit": I wish to express to each of you my personal appreciation for the time and effort you put into giving us a serious and thought-provoking play last Friday. Considering the difficulty of the play, the limited time you had for preparation, and the ill-mannered behavior of some persons in the audience, I thought you did a creditable job. In fact, I feel that I or someone owe you an apology for providing you with an audience which included some persons who were interested only in finding something to giggle at rather than looking for the meaning of the play. This caused others to feel that the play was only an attempt to be vulgar. Despite this, however, there were some who genuinely appreciated the play and felt its impact. In sponsoring the play, the Chapel and Assembly Committee, was in effect, engaging in an experiment to see whether McPherson College students are intellectually mature enough and culturally sophisticated enough to appreciate a play of this sort. If the committee does not again soon sponsor a program of this kind it will not reflect any judgment as to whether you failed or succeeded. It will simply reflect the fact that it is pointless to present adult level programs to an audience which includes many students who think and behave at a high school or grade school level of maturity. David L. Eiler, Chairman Chapel and Assembly Committee

Reader Proposes Plan to Make Mac Famous

Dear Editor, While college students across the country have been participating in multitudes of fads — demolishing pianos, stuffing telephone booths, taking fifty-mile hikes, etc.—it seems that the most recent fad has largely been left unadvertised. Of course I am referring to that fad so popular on the MacCollege campus — walking out on chapels and assemblies. I think that in this area McPherson College students should place their goals high, should set an example for other schools across the country which also have compulsory chapels. If we work hard, by the end of May we could have over half of the student body leaving Brown Auditorium before chapel presentations have been completed. Just think, McPherson College might become nationally recognized for such an outstanding achievement! But first, we must go about such a movement in the proper manner. I would suggest the following four-point plan of motivation: 1. We must always remember that we as individuals are always right, and no one should have the opportunity to tell us what he thinks if it differs from our own point of view. 2. There is only one approach to religion—our own. All else is blasphemy. 3. Some ideas may contaminate our minds. We must avoid them. 4. The only way to mature intellectually is through introspection. We should not be compelled to learn the ideas of others. If we really undertake the task vigorously, we must succeed in getting well over two-thirds of the student body to walk out. Oh yes, as far as the chapel committee, well-intentioned as they may be, is concerned, may they roast in the eternal damnation of hell for forcing us to consider ideas other than our own. John R. Harrison Student Urges Use of Upstairs Of SU for Dance Dear Editor, Another formal rolls around, and it's going to be held in the basement of the S. U. The decorations will be up to their usual best and everyone will turn out. The sweat's going to roll again. The temperature is already soaring but why do we have to stay cooped up in the basement? Why not give the upstairs a try once and see if it works just as well. Let's make the formal comfortable! Larry Blair

Begole Replies To Disapproval Of Morning Walk

Dear Editor: Since I have been scolded, reprimanded, and perhaps damned from all sides for walking out of the April 5th Assembly, I wish to ask for an opportunity for this short rejoinder. I repent. Not for having the desire to walk out of that abortive program, but for displaying that desire. I realize we live in a free society, wherein one is permitted to think and do whatever he wills. However, I foolishly ignored the fact that this freedom prevails only when those thoughts and actions are in keeping with the wishes of the majority. Since the entire student body of McPherson College is Christian in thought, word, and deed,

Woodwinds of Houston Display Genuine Professional Ability

By Irvin L. Wagner
Last Friday evening, the final concert of the 1962-63 Cultural Series was presented by the Woodwinds of Houston.

The members of the quintet, each a member of the Houston Symphony Orchestra, displayed real professional facility on their respective instruments. Remarkable accomplishments relative to the entire quintet, in my opinion, were the artistic phrasing, musically governed approach and style, and tremendous ensemble of cohesiveness. These factors made this group one of the finest of its kind anywhere.

The program opened with a "Quintet in G Minor" by Taffanel. It served as a warm-up

Teachers Learn Space Language In Workshop

The second Aerospace Education Workshop, to be held at MacCollege June 3-14 for 2 credit hours, will introduce to in-service teachers as well as future teachers, basic concepts of air and space travel and to recent developments in this field. Teachers and prospective teachers will learn to talk the language of the aerospace age and to use aerospace material in their teaching.

The highlight of the workshop will be a free airplane trip to the Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs. Demonstrations of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will be given. Speakers who are scheduled so far represent NASA, Air Force, a commercial airplane co., Univac, and Civil Aeronautics Administration. They are from Minn., Washington D. C., Wichita, Des Moines, Iowa, and Kansas City. The class size is limited to 35; therefore, prospective students should contact Dr. Rothrock as soon as possible.

piece and was not as interesting as most of the other compositions.

The second composition, "Kleine Kammermusik" by Hindemith was an extremely well-written work for woodwind quintet. The first movement with the delicate juxtaposition of a 16th-note figure against a triple figure was well executed.

Other notable features were the interesting ostinato of the flute, clarinet, and horn in the fourth movement, and the short cadenzas by each of the instruments in the fifth movement.

To conclude the first part of the program some selections from a quintet by Milhaud were performed. This composition was in the style of folk music and contained none of the progressive Milhaud devices such as polytonality.

The "Quartet for Woodwinds" by Francaix followed the intermission. The horn was omitted from the group, and this allowed the pure woodwind instruments to display their idiomatic style and humor.

One other work especially worth noting was the "Scherzo for Wind Quintet" by Bozza. The fast chromatic lines and the crisp tonguing were brilliantly performed.

One question often asked is why the french horn, which is a brass instrument, is used in a woodwind quintet.

The only answer I can give is that this traditional ensemble was probably formed by the wind players in the orchestras in the time of Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven, who assembled to perform some music for winds alone. Of course, the wind instruments used were the flute, oboe, clarinet, bassoon, and french horn. The trumpets, trombones, and tubas did not come into wide use until a later time.

In conclusion, I felt that this final concert on the Cultural Series was excellently done, and programmed in such a manner that it was enjoyable, educational, and uplifting to both those who appreciate listening to fine music and to the trained musician. The genuine love that these men have for music thrilled all of us and was especially beneficial to those students and faculty who chatted informally at the reception following the concert.

Student Teachers Begin Planning For September

A meeting was held Tuesday for all those planning to take the teaching block or practice teaching next semester. Purpose of the meeting was for students to state at which school they would like to take the week of September experience before college begins. Students also indicated where they would like to do their student teaching. Dr. Merlin Frantz, professor of education and psychology, stated that students planning to practice teach next fall should contact the Education Department and obtain one of the forms to fill out.

Class Learns Basic Exercises At Sports Clinic

Basic exercises in strength, balance and control were taught by a visiting Norwegian professor at the DGWS Sports Clinic held last weekend at Camp Wood, Elm-dale.

Doris Coppock, associate professor and director of physical education for women, and the Sports Methods class—Sue Warrick, Beth Looker, Ruth Irwin, Anne Kruse and Delores Priddy — attended the two-day session. It was sponsored by the Kansas Division of Girls and Womens Sports.

Over one hundred women athletes attended the clinic and participated in the three sessions of training. The areas studied included track and field for women, field hockey, and gymnastics.

From The Locker Room

By Larry Morlan

Central College of McPherson fielded its first track team in the school's history last week. In their first meet, Central emerged the winner.

Congratulations go out to Central on its first track team and its first win. With track, Central now fields a track and baseball team, as does Bethany and some other Kansas conference schools. Maybe someday McPherson will also have the resources and the energy to also have a baseball team.

Dale Bloss recently announced

Greenhouse Features Small, Aquatic Pool

Traditional moonlight swims in the city park lagoon may be destined for oblivion next September when Macollege's new greenhouse is put into full-scale operation.

One of the interesting facilities in the new building is a small pool of aquatic plants and animals.

Thus unwary freshmen and engaged students may find themselves introduced to the green algae and selected invertebrates before taking courses in Introductory Botany and Zoology.

Constructed of concrete and steel, and featuring a yellow, Fiberglass roof, the greenhouse was designed by Gilford Ikenberry Jr., associate professor of biology. The materials and labor for the new structure, located east of the tennis courts, were donated by local business men.

Dr. Ikenberry commented that the translucent, Fiberglass roof is becoming increasingly popular among commercial greenhouses because of the protection it provides against the intense summer heat and hall storms.

The greenhouse will have four major functions. It will serve as a conservatory for unusual plants, a laboratory for students, a place where materials for teaching can be grown, and will provide facilities for Dr. Ikenberry to continue research work.

Among some of the unusual plants currently growing in the building are the date palm, papaya tree, and a banana tree. Many more plants from the American Desert to the tropics will be added next fall.

The 57' x 22' structure has a potting house at the north end with enough space for twelve students to work at one time. The rest of the area is occupied by growing plants. Smaller plants are grown in benches, while the larger species are planted in ground beds. Sidewalks make the entire area easily accessible.

Started in the fall of 1961, the greenhouse is nearly complete at the present time. An evaporative air conditioner will be installed soon, and the building will come into full use next September.
