

Players Learn Sign Language

Learning sign language and learning how to act as if you are blind, have been the main tasks of the cast of the "Miracle Worker" this last week.

This production will be given Dec. 6 and 8 in Brown auditorium. If Connie Andes and Carolyn Lumley are seen arranging and rearranging their fingers in odd gestures, it does not mean they are merely exercising their joints; they are learning the sign language of the deaf in preparation for characterizing Annie Sullivan and Helen Keller.

These roles in William Gibson's "The Miracle Worker" were made famous by Ann Bancroft and Patsy Duke in both the Broadway production and the movie.

Joyce Martin is also learning the sign language, for she plays Mrs. Keller, who longs to communicate with her afflicted daughter.

Another peculiar sight concerns the stumbling about of half a dozen girls. Practicing "being blind" in order to play parts of sightless friends of Annie Sullivan are Winifred Brown, Donna McBride, Beth Looker, Elaine Greff, and Emilee Solomon.

The illusion of children and adults should be created effectively in the McPherson College Player's production Dec. 6 and 8, for the students who play grownups are from eight inches to more than a foot taller than those who are cast as youngsters.

Sign language, being blind, and the illusion of size between adults and children are three more reasons that point to a fine production.

National Champs Compete At Emporia Debate Meet

Last year's national champions from Ohio State University, and the national television champions from North Texas State, were among the 72 teams participating in the Emporia Invitational Tournament held last weekend at Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia.

Dr. John King, president of Kansas State Teachers College, opened the tournament with remarks concerning educational debate.

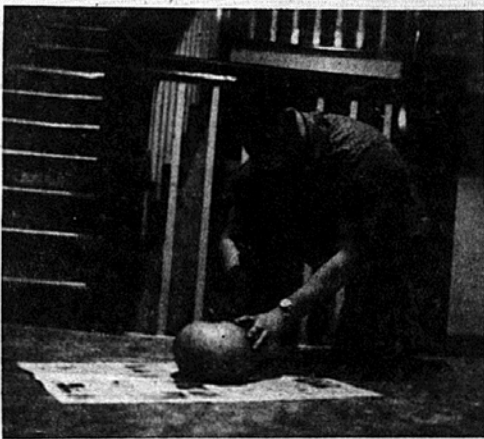

He noted with disapproval that debate is becoming very restrictive in some colleges. For instance Ohio State with 20,000 students has only 19 debaters, while McPherson College with 600 students has 26 on the squad.

Kenneth Ullom and Weyland Beeghly represented McPherson College at the six round tournament. The team whipped Central Oklahoma State, William Jewell, and Bethel College, while dropping decisions to Washburn University, Baylor University—the national runner-up last year, and North Texas State—the national following committees and positions; publicity, asst. stage manager, prompter, call boy, sound, and the painting of the scenery.

Those interested in filling these positions should contact Mrs. Una Yoder, director of dramatics.

Also, those students who will remain at the college during the Thanksgiving vacation and are interested in painting scenery should contact Mrs. Yoder.

Maccollege Uses 54 Phones To Serve Students, Faculty

"Good morning, McPherson College," says the friendly operator as she answers a call on one of the three lines coming into the college switchboard.

The caller states who he wants to talk to and the operator connects the two parties. The party he wants to talk to may be on one of the 29 extension phones. Sometimes there are as many as four on each extension.

The offices are on a party line system; each professor having a code ring. When ringing an office, it is better to call through the switchboard because of the code ring setup. Otherwise two phones may ring at the same time.

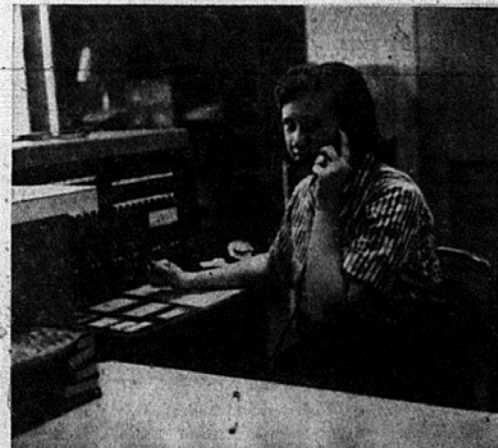

Not counting the eight pay phones, including the one on the second floor of the Warren Hotel, McPherson College has approximately 54 phones.

Carol Cheek, a 1962 graduate of McPherson College is the full-time switchboard operator. After 5:00 p.m. two part-time operators, Kay Weber, a senior, and Anna Geesaman, a sophomore, rotate hours.

The main switchboard is open from 8 a.m. till 10 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays. On Friday it is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

When the main switchboard is closed, calls are switched to Dotzour Hall. Miss Neber answers the call, and rings the party called.

'I Shall Not Silence Them'

Colorado Daily Denied Editorial Freedom

Gary Althen, editor of the Colorado Daily, was recently fired by University President Quigg Newton in spite of the protests of over 500 students, the student government, the Faculty Senate, and the Board of Student Publications.

Althen was apparently fired for an editorial stand during Barry Goldwater's visit to the University of Colorado last March, when the Daily disagreed, editorially, with the sentiments Goldwater expressed in his speech.

Since then an editorial was printed which said the editors hoped the Colorado football team would have a losing season this year. This was possibly asking the university administration to de-emphasize football or make it openly professional at the school.

Although there are definitely extremes both ways as to what should be printed in a newspaper, the factor which should be brought out in this issue is that President Newton reversed a stand he had taken previously when he defended freedom of discussion by telling Senator Barry Goldwater, "Senator, I shall not silence

"We have a genuine democracy of ideas on our campus we have fought long and hard to achieve it, and the fight has been against those who—like yourself (Goldwater)—believe the function of a university is to indoctrinate, rather than educate; to control thought, rather than to stimulate it.

"The cry you raise has a very familiar ring to us: 'You must silence those who do not agree with me.'"

The Daily, which is the third largest newspaper in Colorado, has maintained a tradition of independent editorial comment and freedom from outside restriction, according to the Daily Californian.

However, some sources have hinted the controversy was a result of pressure from the state's officials and political parties.

In the past year several other college newspapers have been forced to bow under the pressures of the administration. Why? Shouldn't college students be allowed to express their opinions editorially? Should there be only one right way and all who disagree should be silenced?

Can students really be challenged when issues are not brought up and discussed which stimulate thought and makes a person discover what he really believes in?

True, a newspaper does represent a college but should it always put on a false front to build up the institution to others? But an editorial or letter to the editor does not necessarily represent the feeling of the entire student body and administration.

It must be emphasized that we are not defending the libel against Senator Goldwater, or disagreeing with President Newton's "right" to fire Althen, but we are doubting the abrupt reversal of Newton's "I shall not silence them" attitude.

Was it really "in the best interests of the university" as Newton said to fire Althen when the board which has been given the authority to control the paper was one of the group who upheld him? —meg

Mac Writers Analyze Controversial Issue

Reader Assails Forced Pacifism

Dear Editor,

Well, we had it again. Another pacifist trying to force his ideas upon us as students. Most of the students here are probably pacifists, at least in word. But why force this upon the rest of us who are not pacifists.

From some of the things I heard during the Regional Conference I gathered that true Christians will not take up arms against his fellow being. Because I'm going to hell then, because if I were called upon to kill in order to defend my country, I would do it.

But, I know that I'm not going to hell. I believe that I'm a Christian because of my personal faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as my Savior. Jesus did not say that to become Christians we had to dare to be different and become pacifists.

I, like others on this campus, do not like the thought of killing, but if the need arises, I would. I realize that the enemy would be young men, fellow human beings, just as human as we are.

But what are we to do if they threaten our way of living? Just sit down and let the enemy overrun our country? Frankly, I'd rather be dead than red.

Live in peaceful coexistence? That will never be until the Lord returns. The Bible itself says that there will never be peace.

I respect the pacifist and believe that he has a right to follow his beliefs. In fact, some of the greatest leaders of our time are pacifists, and I respect them also.

What gets me is the fact that here on the local level, through films, speakers, and other means, we are being subjected to the views of pacifists. Why not be realistic and bring in both sides of the issue?

McPherson College is too idealistic and needs to be awakened to the fact that the world is not idealistic, but realistic. It's nice to sit back and philosophize about what the world could be if all men everywhere were pacifists.

But lets face it, all men are not pacifists and idealists. If the pacifist wants to sit back and let the Reds overrun us, let him. He can compromise all he wants to. Pretty soon he'll compromise himself out of a country.

Some people won't compromise. They realize that we need arms to defend our country. No armed forces to back up our way of life will lead to the destruction of the democratic way of life that we enjoy.

Thank God, there are some people who realize that we need to defend America and its democratic way of life.

How about bringing a non-pacifist in, to speak in Chapel? Give him equal time to give his beliefs. Then see what will happen. Of course this will never happen here, unless some people have a change of heart.

One way is right, that is already decided for us, so we are being instructed in the right way. We, therefore, do not need to know about the other side of the issue.

We've been told to be different, to be agitators; well, here it is. I'm being different on this idealistic campus. In writing this letter, I'm doing just what I feel is right. The speakers have already told us that we should be agitators for what we feel is right.

Sincerely Yours,
David Anders

Letter Writer Views Pacifism

Dear Editor,

Since pacifism has been undergoing considerable criticism on Macampus recently, I feel compelled to speak briefly in defense of the pacifistic position.

First of all, let me urge you not to judge the validity of pacifism on the basis of last week's chapel presentation which certain students seemed to find objectionable. We are all disappointed that such an influential person could not speak more boldly for pacifism.

"Being different" is indeed a poor justification for any stand—particularly for an issue so important as this. I frankly felt that there was little in his speech which was original or vital, especially in these days of crisis.

Second, pacifism is not strictly a Brethren doctrine which, so of your feel, is being rammed down your throats. Pacifism was not invented by the Church of the Brethren, but it was lived by Christ.

Anything less than pacifism is denying the spirit of Christ. (Anyone who claims that he would be justified in killing to defend his country is suffering from a super-charged nationalism which says "my country, right or wrong." Let's face it, we're not God's chosen people set upon earth to redeem the world unless we attempt to repair our moral decay.)

Thirdly, I feel that pacifism is greatly misunderstood, not only by its opponents, but also by those who claim to be pacifists. It takes more intestinal fortitude to settle differences at a conference table than it does on a battlefield.

Whether we like it or not we are past the stage of winning a war by throwing bombs back and forth. It just isn't practical. The battle for freedom must be a battle for men's minds.

Pacifism is realistic because it recognizes that killing and war are childish, immature methods of trying to make the other fellow agree.

If America has something worth defending, if she lives up to her stated ideals, then let's use our intellectual might to win (not destroy) our enemies.

Despite what you may hear, pacifism is not passive. It must be a vital working force in the world or it is nothing.

My final point is this: do not throw out the possibility of pacifism just because some of us Brethren think that we are unique and think (perhaps unjustly) that we can save mankind through Brethren Volunteer Service and other such projects. I hope that you can look at it from a broader viewpoint than we do.

Diner Questions Attitude Of SC

Recently there has been considerable discussion among the students concerning the "dress-up night" which, the Student Council has decreed, shall be each Thursday night.

I am not arguing whether this is a valid practice or not, but I am seriously questioning the attitude which the Student Council is taking toward the matter.

It was my impression that the members of the Student Council are the representatives of the student body, and, as such, are to pass legislation which the majority of the students favor.

I have also been told that when the Student Council took the action which brought "dress-up night" into existence, they were under the impression that the majority of the students were in favor of it.

Since the issue has never been voted upon by the students, I wonder just how they arrived at this conclusion.

The Student Council President has said that the Student Council does not wish to shove anything down our throats. If this is true, why was the issue never put to a vote.

Do the members of the Student Council feel that their opinions are better than those of the students who elected them? If so, some grave mistakes were made when the Student Council positions were filled at the last election.

I suggest that the issue be taken to the polls, so that all of the students can express their opinion on it. Then, the Student Council can take whatever action is indicated by these votes.

Sincerely,
Dale Neal

Student Desires Understanding Of Brethren Beliefs

Dear Editor,

Not being a Brethren, and having had little contact with Brethren ideology, I am puzzled by what I have observed as seemingly Brethren beliefs. I would like someone to answer my questions as to what I have observed.

Is it Brethren belief to criticize militaristic means of preserving peace, or do Brethren feel that communism and other threats to man's personal rights can be halted or deferred by such as the BVS, or would Brethren rather someone else fight for them?

Never before attending Macollege have I heard talk of CO's but here it is common-place; is this a belief of the Brethren Church?

No offense is intended by my letter but I would appreciate a better understanding of the Brethren views along these lines.

A Student

fact in mind I must ask one question: how can pacifism create peace when the persons who are threatening the "peace" do not have a basis for pacifism?

In other words, how can anyone preach peace in accordance with the teachings of Jesus, when Russia denies his very existence?

In my own philosophy there is a sincere desire for peace maintained by mutual love. This desire, however, is suppressed by what I understand about Communism. I must ask myself, "Can pacifism create and hold peace?" The answer is invariably, "No."

Gridders Await Ottawa Clash

The Bulldogs travel to Ottawa tomorrow to meet the Ottawa Braves at 1:30 p.m. This game marks the Braves homecoming, and is therefore being played in the afternoon.

The Braves will carry a 5-1 record into the contest and will be seeking to improve upon that record. McPherson's record stands at 3-4, and the Bulldogs will attempt to even their record.

In games played to date, the Braves have defeated KW 12-12, Southwestern 34-0, Bethel 31-0, Friends 51-0, Sterling 34-0, and a non-conference 14-2 win over William Jewell. Ottawa's only loss of the season was to Emporia 20-16.

In comparison, McPherson has defeated KW 13-12, Friends 39-0, and Sterling 12-0. The Bulldogs have lost to Southwestern 26-7, Baker 26-0, C. of E. 39-0, and Bethany 7-0. In last year's game Ottawa dubbed the Bulldogs 34-0.

The Braves alternate two quarterbacks, Ken Smart and Jerry Harshaw, with equal success. Jon Krebs leads the Braves in scoring, while Floyd Scott is close behind him. Of late, Jerry Freeman has been carrying the ball well for Ottawa.

The Ottawa defensive unit has been a very important part in the Braves victories this season. Although the unit doesn't shine at all times, it stiffens whenever an opponent nears the Ottawa goal. Ottawa's defensive unit has given up only 34 points in seven games, or an average of 4.9 points a game.

McPherson, in comparison has given up 110 points in seven games for an average of 15.7 points per game. McPherson has scored a total of 71 points, 10.1 points per game, while Ottawa has scored a total of 193 points, for a 27.6 average.

Presbies Cling To Narrow Lead; Southwestern Slips

College of Emporia held on to its slim Kansas Conference lead with its sixth straight league victory. Emporia moved its record to 6-0, while Baker and Ottawa remained in second place with 5-1 records. Southwestern slipped to third with a 4-2 record.

Emporia defeated Sterling in the Warriors homecoming 49-16. The passing of Bruce Upstill and the running of Jim Switzer paved the way to the win. Upstill passed for two scores and scored one himself, while Switzer ran for two scores and caught a pass for a third.

The Ottawa Braves sent the Southwestern Moundbuilders reeling for the second straight week in a row with a 34-0 victory. Three of the five Ottawa scores came as a result of fumbles. Southwestern lost the ball a total of five times on fumbles.

Bethany College moved into fourth place in the conference with a 13-6 win over the Friends Falcons. The win gives the Swedes a 4-3 record and drops Friends record to 1-5-1.

And Bethel College climbed past KWU into sixth in conference

McPherson, Knehans Are Co-Trainers For Bulldogs

Larry McPherson, special student from McPherson, and Doug Knehans, junior from Owensville, Mo., are co-trainers for the McPherson College football team this year.

Larry, who graduated last year, is taking the teaching block this year. He plans to teach industrial arts and to coach.

While at McPherson, Larry lettered four years in football and was in charge of intramurals for three years. He was also a member of M-Club.

Doug, a business major, plans to enter banking following graduation from college.

Doug, who is a member of M-Club, is interested in intramurals and basketball.

Doug and Larry are responsible for taping, care of minor injuries, and the equipment of the team.

From The Locker Room

By Larry Morlan

Cal Unruh and Galen Huffman did some mighty fine running against the tough Baker line. I hope it continues against Ottawa.

The Bulldog defensive line played another outstanding game against Baker, but once again the defensive secondary was weak. If the forward pass had never been invented, the Bulldogs might be undefeated at this point.

Even though the Bulldogs were defeated by 26 points, it was one of the most interesting games of the season to watch. The Bulldogs made Baker work hard for the win.

Tomorrow afternoon the Bulldogs will be playing in their third homecoming game of the year. The Bulldogs were defeated at their own homecoming 26-7 by Southwestern, they were defeated at Bethany's homecoming 7-0, and Ottawa — well, we will know after tomorrow.

Why doesn't the Kansas Conference winner and the CIC Conference winner play each other on a neutral field to decide the best small college team in Kansas. This game would provide not only top-flight football, but would also serve as a small basis of comparison between the two leagues.

Things look bad for the Bulldogs, as once again they face a mighty good football team.

Bulldogs Down C of E 11-25

McPherson cross-country team dominated the field of runners as it swept to an 11-25 victory over C of E Oct. 27.

The Bulldogs took four of the first five places in the ten man field. Top individual placings and times were: Lynn Warner, McPherson, first at 17:19; Marion Enke, McPherson, second at 18:31; Douglas Knehans, McPherson, third at 18:37; London; Emporia, fourth at 19:04; and John Tegler, McPherson, fifth at 20:02.

The race was slightly over three miles long and was laid out over a golf course. The dual meet was the second of the year for the Bulldog runners.

Wildcats Claw Bulldogs 26-0

After holding Baker's vaunted offense to only 6 points in the first half, the Wildcats came back to score 20 points in the second half for a 26-0 victory over the Bulldogs. The win moved Baker's record to 5-1, while the loss dropped the Bulldogs below the 500 mark for the first time this season with a 3-4 record.

The Bulldog defensive unit almost completely stifled the Wildcat offensive punch in the first half. Baker's only first half score came on an 80 yard drive in the first quarter. Gary Gore and John Jacobs did most of the ball carrying on this first drive, with Jacobs scoring the touchdown on a 10 yard run. The extra point was no good.

Baker had a scoring opportunity late in the second quarter after Jacobs had recovered a fumble by Art Hoch on the Mac 29-yard line. Duane Pope ended this threat by intercepting a Baker lateral in the Wildcat backfield.

Baker scored the first time they got the ball in the second half on an 82-yard drive. This drive lasted 6 plays with 3 of them being pass plays. The score came on a 35-yard pass from Wilber Hedrick to Kirk Covell. Bill Wolf kicked the extra point.

The Wildcats also scored the first time they got the ball in the fourth quarter. Gary Gore scored the touchdown on a 5-yard pass from Mike Welch. Wolf kicked the extra point.

The final Baker touchdown came late in the fourth quarter after Baker got the ball when a McPherson player mis-handled a kick. Mike Welch passed to Dennis DeLay for the score.

McPherson's only threat of the game came in the third quarter after Silas O'Neal recovered a Baker fumble on the Wildcat 33-yard line. But the Bulldogs could gain no yardage and lost the ball.

Final statistics showed Baker with 20 first downs and 377 yards gained, while McPherson had 10 first downs and 117 yards gained.

Rodes Experiences Include Visit To Kai-Shek's Chapel

Christine Rodes, McPherson freshman, was born in Washington, D. C., but she visited France, Greece, Egypt, Pakistan, India, Arabia, Malaya, Ceylon, Hong Kong, Japan, Okinawa, Philippines, Wake Is., and Guam. She has also seen Hawaii, Alaska, and the Western and Eastern States. This is the first time Chris has seen the Midwest.

When asked, "What do you think of college?" She replied, "I love McPherson, it's a typical American college and everything I expected."

She came to McPherson College by recommendation of Dr. Berkebile, Dean at McPherson College from 1950-57, and because McPherson is located in the Midwest.

She is interested in political science, and in the future Chris will return to Hong Kong hoping to work in political relations.

Chris' father is Assistant Economic Chief for the Agency for International Development of Taiwan. He was sent to Taiwan by the State Department of the United States. Since her father travels frequently, Chris tagged along in his footsteps.

During her travels, Chris had many interesting experiences. She went to New Year's Day services at Chiang Kai-shek's private chapel by invitation with her parents, and flew to Hainan Is., off the coast of Red China, with five Vietnamese officials.

Some motion picture scenes were shot at their house for a movie called "Eleventh Commandment," an American-Chinese movie production about Communism. In Italy she got lost in the canals of Venice.

Chris lived in Washington, D.C., for nine years, Italy one and a half years, and Taiwan six and a half years. She is eighteen years old. Her hobbies include folk music, tennis, bowling, football, writing, and travel.

While in Italy, Chris attended the Overseas School of Rome. In the Taipei American School on Taiwan, she was feature editor of the newspaper, a member of the Spanish Club, Pep Club, Journalism Club, Glee Club, and Drama Club.

At McPherson she is enrolled in Written Communications, U. S. History, Argumentation and Debate, General Drawing and Painting, Tennis and Bowling, and General Biology.

Chris' brother lives in New Jersey. He works in the First National Bank in New York, and attends Fairleigh-Dickinson College in Rutherford, N. J. Her mother teaches English to the Chinese in an American school on Taiwan.
