Fourteen faculty men will assist the four local ministers in serving the Eucharist to participants.

College Invites Youth To Visit Macampus

Guy Hayes, director of admissions has sent letters to the pastors of the churches of the Church of the Brethren, in this region.

The letters suggest that the pastors bring their youth groups, or a portion of their youth groups, to visit McPherson College at any time convenient to them.

Mr. Hayes included a list of basketball games, plays and other campus activities so that they can determine which weekend they would enjoy coming the most. When they come they will be given free meals and a tour of the campus.

This takes the place of Brethren Youth Day, which was changed because it was difficult to set a date which would be suitable for all concerned.

Superstitious People Believe Today Is Nemesis of Fortune

By Carolyn Lehman
In the realm of superstitious beliefs, one day — Friday, the 13th — stands out as the nemesis of all good fortune.

The Spectator staff suffers doubly this Friday, the 13th, for not only was it necessary to undergo the universal misfortunes of this day, but the staff has also been forced to publish its 13th issue of the paper this year today, Friday, Dec. 13.

One would feel that superstition, the arch-enemy of science must be either dead and buried or at least fighting a losing battle for its life.

Man is a queer creature, and even though science and superstition do not go together, there is no end to the number of people who will try combining them.

It is a sure sign that a wedding is coming up if you sit on a table, or if you fall up stairs, or if you sneeze before getting up on Sunday morning.

The success of the wedding can also be predicted by various omens.

Happiness will be your lot if you are married in green, or on Wednesday, or if the bride wears something old, something new, something borrowed, and something blue.

May is a bad month for a wedding, because in ancient Rome it was the month of the festival of the unhappy dead, and of the festival of the goddess of chastity.

June, however, is an excellent month for marriage, because it was the month of Juno, the goddess of marriage.

Black cats are notorious for causing bad luck; however, cats don't always have to be black to cause bad luck.

If a cat sits with her tail toward the fire—look out! If a cat strolls across the stage during rehearsal, the production will flop.

Kentuckians say that if your upper lip itches, you will be kissed by a tall person; if the lower, a short person.

Norwegian peasants believe that whatever a person is thinking when he sneezes will surely come true. The wise men of certain African tribes teach that a sneeze means the soul is leaving the body, while others believe the soul is entering the body.

Why is man superstitious? Some say it's because man has by nature a longing for mystery, which the scientific world fails to satisfy.

Others, because man is a conservative creature who holds to the old ideas, customs, and trinkets, even after he has learned better.

These old customs and trinkets are worth hanging on to—if not taken too seriously.

Donors Win Bloodgiving Competition

MacCollege defeated Kansas Wesleyan by 50 pints in the bloodgiving contest for the Red Cross Bloodmobile Nov. 18. Of 155 applicants, 135 MacCollege donors qualified to give blood.

Combined donations of MacCollege and the McPherson area totaled 191 pints.

About 50 students helped at the bloodmobile. Thirty girls helped with the canteen, and 18 worked as hostesses and receptionists. Four hostesses worked each half hour from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Besides the 50 students, the help of 15 Red Cross nurses was required to carry out this project.

Convocations Calendar

Tuesday, Dec. 17 — Chapel, Christmas communion service. Voluntary attendance.

Friday, Dec. 20 — Christmas Songfest, Robert Edwards and Irvin Wagner in charge.

Bookstore Plans For Expansion

... students browse

Today marks the end of the second week in the operation of McPherson College's paperback bookstore in the basement of the Student Union.

Present plans include an expansion of the display immediately after Christmas vacation.

Four students were named by the Student Council to operate the store. They are Tedd Brumbaugh, student manager, Gary Fisher, Pat Pitts, and Julie Standafer.

Faculty members and students are submitting suggested titles for the display.

Friday Marks Start Of Christmas Recess

McPherson College begins its Christmas vacation on December 20. All the college dorms, and Cafeteria will be closed during Christmas vacation.

Some students will be staying over the holidays, and will, if possible, be placed in homes here in McPherson.

Article Questions Emphasis On Intercollegiate Competition

Louis B. Perry, writing an article in Liberal Education entitled, "Intercollegiate Sports in Academia," points out some possible weaknesses in the sports emphases of today's colleges.

Casting doubt upon the role of intercollegiate football, Perry explains his position with several basic ideas.

First, the glamour which is associated with football is now being directed toward high school and professional teams, rather than college squads.

Second, the question of the ethical validity of spending gift dollars to provide entertainment for the community is arising in the minds of college leaders.

Finally, and most important—I think—today's serious college students have interests which do not allow time for active support of football contests.

More time is being spent in intellectual and cultural pursuits than in extra-curricular activities.

One would suspect that the lack of enthusiasm shown has little connection with the won-lost record which a team may have compiled over recent years.

It is possible that some of Perry's points have a genuine relevance for this situation. Obviously a sizeable number of student body does not feel obligated to support the team—win or lose.

And as academic pressure hopefully continues to increase at McPherson College, we may expect a proportionate declining interest in intercollegiate sports.

With the financial struggle which all small colleges are facing today, I would be disappointed if college administrators were not examining closely the expenditure which is appropriated to intercollegiate competition.

All of this is not to deny the benefit derived from actual participation in sports. Doubtless, athletic workouts provide a needed recreational outlet.

The question which most persistently arises is whether or not we are placing undue emphasis on intercollegiate rather than intracollegiate participation. —BJJ

We Get Letters . . .

Letters to the editor from students, faculty members, or others are welcomed. All letters must be signed, but the name of the writer need not appear in print. Letters may be submitted to the editor or placed in the campus mail. Contributions do not necessarily reflect the policy or opinion of The Spectator, the administration, or the faculty of McPherson College.

two and arrive at a means whereby we progress toward the greatest good for all.

It is to the detriment of our society, however, when one segment or party attempts to force its own concepts upon the other.

From the vantage point of the mean we may criticize but we must not condemn.

It was with great inward helplessness that I read the letters of Messrs. Crabb and Anders in the Dec. 6 Spectator. I feel that they have ignored the fact that it is freedom of the individual to think and express his ideas freely that gives democracy its strength.

The Messrs. appear to be the very example of the group which seeks to obliterate all but that which, in their minds, is right while not realizing that most basic tenet is equal right to existence. The point is that extremists have just as much right to exist as you or I.

No, Mr. Crabb. It was not political apathy which caused JFK's death; only the alien-oriented ideas of a man, who perhaps was so disillusioned with American society that he sought refuge from it.

It is said that he chose Marxism as the alternative, but this makes no difference. The point is that he was not conditioned by extremists but arrived at his ideas through a thought process. It was of his own free will and democratic right that he was able to do so.

To blame political apathy to the existence of the extremists for the ultimate deed is, it seems to me, to evade the issue. Too often we are too quick to point the accusing finger at those whom we do not like or disagree with.

I would reply to Mr. Anders in a similar vein. Oswald may have been a product of our society in the sense that everyone is free to choose his own philosophy of politics and life.

But any attempt to relate said freedom to the particular concept fails at its source for it is right and good that extremists exist.

Two further points need examination. The first is the contention that hatred was behind the assassination. What hatred? Racism or fanatic rightism? In my opinion it was neither, only a one-man vendetta, supported by false belief in the harangues of a false political leader.

The other point is that of Miss Slater's statement that we are too much a people of ideas, not ideals. Ideas are the foundation stones of any society. Only because we are human, are we misled by misconceptions, prejudice, and fallacy.

It can be utilized only as a guide line to the formation of said ideas.

In final analysis, if we must blame someone or something else, blame that which gave us the power of mind, not those who exercise this power in its proper environment.

Thought Extend Beyond Form

Dear Editor:

Mr. Weaver, I think you missed the point of Floyd Bantz' talk in chapel not long ago. It is the thought, not the form, that counts in religious worship or any other kind of worship or respect.

Need more be said?
Mike Weimer

Writer States Chapel Becomes Unwise Mandate

Dear Editor:

Being something of a non-conformist, and having acquiesced long enough, I have decided to say a few words in advocacy of the abolition of compulsory chapel.

At least three points come immediately to mind. First, it does not seem too improbable to say that being forced to worship is just as much a suppression of freedom as being forced not to worship.

Second, such an unarbitrary service assumes at least a partial ineptitude on the part of the students to spend their time wisely, an assumption which, although it may be true in a majority of cases, is not necessarily valid.

Third, there is a very strong possibility that all of McPherson College students do not share even the same set of basic values. Personally, I have every reason to doubt—regardless of my high esteem for Jesus Christ—the Christian concepts of eternal life, resurrection of the body, heaven, hell, and ultimately—God, Himself.

I would only like to add in closing that if the policy of dimming lights during chapel is deliberately aimed at inflicting those who persist in studying at that inviolable time with eyestrain, it is succeeding admirably.

Ansel Neuberger

Opposing Ideas Insure Freedom

Dear Editor,

Democracy is based upon the free interplay of ideas, concepts which arise in individual minds and very often may come to be incorporated in the minds of a large segment of the democratic society and thus is a political party formed.

It is the value of democracy that we are exposed to such radical ideas as those of the extreme left and right, and are able to weigh the merits of the

Marty Dares Students To Destroy Images

By Daryl Standafer

Students were challenged to be "god-killers" so that they might see God more clearly at the Brethren Students Christian Conference during Thanksgiving vacation.

With a total of 140 Brethren students from fifteen other colleges and universities, the McPherson delegation—consisting of 24 students—participated in the conference from Nov. 28-Dec. 1.

The conference converged upon the theme, "No Graven Images," guided by the proficiency of Dr. Martin Marty of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago.

On Friday, Dr. Marty lectured twice on the church as a problem of environment. The lectures considered how Culture and Nationalism presented themselves as graven images before Christianity.

A similar approach was followed the next day considering the church as a problem of itself. Institutionalism and Religion were the focal points of these lectures.

Small discussion groups constituted the nucleus of the conference. These student-led groups met five times during the conference and applied the edification of Dr. Marty's lectures to personal relevancy.

The consensus of the students attending the conference was enthusiastic agreement with its success. Plans have already begun for next year's conference at Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa.

The Scholiast

By Christopher R. van de Velde

Acknowledging the fact that a church related college may be different in its basic approach to higher education than some other private institution, there is only one basic reason why students at McPherson College frequently discover college life exasperating.

I believe one reason is, that no student knows precisely what the college's rules and regulations are, what the bounds of student activities are, or what the extent of administration is.

How many of us are aware of the fact that: to replace either a meal ticket or an activity ticket costs two dollars, or that there is an understanding that one signs up for his room for the entire year and not just one semester, and who would think that anything other than economic details would prevent the students from having a jukebox in the Students' Union!

Probably, there are legitimate reasons for these and similar rules or understandings. The student, however, feels as though McPherson College is against him personally when he discovers what these rules are, because usually the student only runs into them when they suddenly apply to him.

In what is projected as a means of alleviating this problem, the Student Council is going to attempt to turn the Growl into a more informative and useful student handbook. The first attempts at this revision will be at a "public-invited" meeting on Wednesday, Dec. 18.

As most students are aware of by now, the much sought after student bookstore opened after Thanksgiving vacation.

Of interest, however, may be the fact that the Student Council approved the selection of Julie Standafer, Gary Fisher, Pat Pitts, and Tedd Brumbaugh to work in the bookstore; with the latter serving as student manager.

The selection of Carolyn Lehman to the campus editor's position was announced in last week's Spectator; so the only undiscussed item of business from the December 4 meeting, is Arnold Hall.

It was this writer's pleasure to run into one of the previously described rules of the college, and I would not have minded if I had not been so inconvenienced and disappointed.

I am referring to the inconvenience of having to change dormitories for the five-day Thanksgiving vacation, and the disappointment—perhaps shock is the word—in the unsanitary condition of Arnold Hall.

The Student Council brought the deplorable situation to the attention of the Men's Council, and something has, hopefully, been accomplished to correct the existing conditions.

Cagers Upset Bethany for Moundridge Title

Bulldogs, Swedes Battle To Unpredictable Finish

Coach Sid Smith and his crew continued their winning ways last week, when they wrestled the annual Moundridge Coge Tourney championship away from the Bethany Swedes with a thrilling 79-78 victory.

A tight game all the way with the lead changing hands 15 times and a half time score of 36-36, the final outcome was not decided until the last shot had been fired and missed.

John Tegeler led the Bulldogs in scoring with 27 points, followed closely by Marion Enke with 20, while George Czaplinski garnered 14 and Lynn Warner added 10.

For the Swedes Paul Johnson and Paul Ahlstedt each had 22, while Ken Denman added 16.

Mac won the game from the free throw line where they had a 23-12 margin. The Swedes had a 33-28 advantage in field goals.

McPherson hit 47 per cent of its field shots and 69 per cent of its free throws. Bethany hit 45 per cent of its field tries and 63 per cent of its charity tosses.

In a nearly repeat performance of an earlier battle, the Bulldogs beat the Tabor Bluejays 67-62 in the first game of the Moundridge Tournament Tuesday night.

Mac has now played two games with Tabor, and has won them by 4 and 5 points respectively.

George Czaplinski kept Mac in the game during the first half and ended up as high scorer for the night with 23 points. Marion Enke finished with 16, most of them in the second half.

Gary Schmidt was high point man for Tabor with 18. Wiebe and Steine followed with 13 and 12 points respectively.

Bethany earned the right to meet McPherson for the championship by rolling over Bethel 73-55 in the second game.

Women Defeat Two Competitors

MacCollege Women's Basketball Team won the four-team tournament at Lyons, defeating Fort Hays 43-36, and Sterling, 33-32.

Nancy Erritt, Somers, Iowa, and Anne Kruse, Little River, were high scorers with 13 and 21 points respectively for the Fort Hays and Sterling games.

The starting six of last year have all returned this year. They are Connie Weddle, McPherson; Karen Andes, Mound City, Mo; Nancy Erritt, Shirley Vanderau, Plattsburg, Mo; Anna Hutchison, Thomas, Okla; and Anne Kruse.

Other players include Janet Rhinehart, Brooklyn, Iowa; Judy Penny, Garden City; Judy Knelson, Dixon, Ill; Charleen Lewis, Denver, Colo; Margaret Hintz, Canton; and Jo Etta Krehbiel, McPherson.

On December 17, the girls will play Sterling College. The Sterling team is coached by Gail Fillmore, an alumna of McPherson College.

Doris Coppock, the regular girls' basketball coach is presently on sabbatical leave. LeRoy Weddle is coaching the McPherson team.

Mac Quintet to Oppose Defending Moundbuilders

Basketball action remaining before Christmas vacation starts with defending champion Southwestern at Winfield tomorrow night. Mac then travels to Sterling on Tuesday, Dec. 17, and entertains Baker on Thursday, Dec. 19.

Southwestern returns only one starter from last year's conference champions. He is Jim Harris, who will be sharing backcourt duties with John Dabrow. The frontcourt starters are expected to be Sam Beam, Kenneth Bradford, and Gary Leedom.

Southwestern has 30 boys out for basketball, and they could give Mac lots of trouble on their home court. Despite their lack of experience, the Moundbuilders are considered to be title contenders again this year.

Sterling College finished fourth in the KCAC last season with a 15-9 record, 11-7 in conference action. The Warriors beat McPherson twice last year when Mac had won the first game between the two schools 81-79.

Sterling is led by 6' forward Dudley Boeken, a senior from Lorraine. Other expected starters are Desmond Combs, 6' junior guard from Middletown, Ohio; Gordon May, 6' sophomore guard from Albany, N. Y.; Ray Williford, 6'3" freshman forward from Alden; and Gary Rhodea, 6'6" freshman center from Sterling.

Baker returns five lettermen in an effort to improve their 7-11 conference record last year which left them in eighth place.

These lettermen are Bill Foley, two-year letterman from Chula Vista, Cal., who is a 5'8" senior; Mike Sears, 6'3" junior from Shawnee Mission High; Dave Sears, 6'1" sophomore from Shawnee Mission; Jim Hutton 6'4" sophomore from Shawnee Mission; and Bruce Crockett, 6'3" sophomore from Bethel.

The Wildcats have good size, and they could be close contenders before the year is over under new coach John Baker.

Mac Drops League Bout With Coyotes

In their first official league competition of the season last Saturday night, the Bulldogs dropped their first decision of the season by a score of 76-69 to the Kansas Wesleyan Coyotes at Salina.

The Bulldogs dropped far behind at the beginning, and although they did gain the lead once in the second half, they were never able to acquire a consistent offensive attack to combat the hot-shooting of the Coyotes.

George Czaplinski and John Tegeler led McPherson in scoring with 20 and 18 points respectively. They were followed by Lynn Warner with 10 and Doug Knehan with 9.

Harold Johnson and Jim Rash each netted 21 points for the Coyotes.

Various Groups Erect Christmas Decorations

Christmas has come to Maccollege as is evident by the decorations across the campus.

The nativity scene on top of the breezeway between Mohler and Friendship Hall was placed there by cooperation of the Public Relations Office and the Buildings and Grounds Department.

The manger scene, initiated by a member of last year's Public Relations Office, was built by the Industrial Arts Department.

The manger scene in the showcase at the south end of Friendship Hall was arranged by Mrs. S. M. Dell, secretary to the president.

The ceramic pieces, which were painted by Mrs. Dell, were made and given to her by Mrs. Keith Williams, owner of a ceramics shop in Salina.

A Christmas tree has again been placed in the first floor entrance of Mohler Hall on which faculty and staff may place their Christmas greetings. Christmas trees and decorations can also be seen in the various dorms across campus.
