task of creating a climate of mutual respect and understanding among the nations of the West.

This fall the Brethren Colleges Abroad program will enter its third year in Germany and its second year in France. Members of the program will sail from New York in late August. While on board ship, an orientation program will be conducted.

During September and October the students will attend special language training institutes where the emphasis will be on conversational skills, vocabulary, and orientation in the culture and civilization of contemporary Germany or France.

You Surely Are Not Educated

By D. W. Bittinger, President of the College

Some years ago a doctor friend and I were caught in a sudden flash storm in a broad forested area of the African Sudan. By swimming with our horses at first, and then without them we finally arrived on a knoll high enough above the flood to feel safe. The rain lashed us and the fog surrounded us; it was cold. We had with us only what we were wearing and this was very wet. We looked, and felt, forlorn.

A twelve-year-old African boy who was with us saw our dejection, left us without a word, and presently called us to join him where he had a nice fire going. He left us again and returned with a good sized fish, which he prepared for us over the fire. He had no matches, he had no cooking utensils. As we ate the fish together he said with some amazement and with some disdain, "You surely are not educated."

I asked my doctor friend, "I believe he is right, what about that M.D. you have?" He replied, "What about that Ph. D. you almost have?" We agreed that the twelve-year-old was better educated, as far as the essentials of our immediate circumstances were concerned, than we were.

1. Every since then I have been asking myself, "What is education?"

It must have something to do with economics, vocation, being able to sustain life. Now, it is not necessary that we give much thought to our basic needs: air is heated or warmed for us; water, safe for drinking, flows through our taps; we buy clothing already woven; and food almost ready to eat. But with jobs disappearing due to automation, how can all of the people of our society sustain themselves adequately in a Technological Society? Education has something to do with this problem.

2. Furthermore, life must be sustained on a terrain which is becoming increasingly filled with people. Can I live purposefully with my fellows? Right now peoples and cultures are in conflict. In my judgment this indicates a basic lack of education. Since fear of people for people seems to be mounting generation by generation, could it be that our education is in deterioration rather than ascent.

3. Finally man is not educated until he has some sense of security, some basic happinesses, some "peace of mind." This involves both 1 and 2 above, but it involves more than that. Man is a "God creature"; he has always been. He does not find complete security until he works out some kind of an understanding of and with the God who made him, and what this means concerning his relationship to his fellows.

The little African boy was right. I am not basically well educated. I have been working at it and expect to keep at it until the end. We at McPherson would like to help others, particularly all the students we can contact, keep at it too.

On Lust And Love

(ACP) Casual sex attitudes were the subject of attack in a letter to the editor of "The Daily Trojan," University of South California, Los Angeles. The letter was a reply to William Bishin, associate professor of law, who told the Faculty Center Association that the book "Tropic of Cancer" probably will bring forth a new interpretation of obscenity laws when it appears before the Supreme Court.

Replied Peter Woo, graduate student in mathematics: Dr. William Bishin's lack of deploring "Tropic of Cancer" supports the growing trend to a disregard for sexual respect and wholesomeness.

He seems to support the idea that anything conservative is always wrong, and anything new can be classified as a reform. Thus he has been blind to many counter examples in history - Hitler was new to the world during the 1930's.

The professor falls in the same track of the thought that any movement in the society, such as in this case the community's growing disregard for sexual respects, is always right and not only should be tolerated but also encouraged, and that you cannot alter society.

I want to challenge Dr. Bishin and any follower of the current trend of sexual irrespectfulness with only a simple question: If he is looking for or already has a good and understanding wife, does he want her to have sexual relations with other men? If so, he doesn't understand the difference between lust and true love.

Lust is the feelings and strong urge such as incited and aroused by pornography, and uncontrollable lust is undesirable because it will impair our readiness and sense of appreciation of true love.

Pornography is similar to opium in its effects on an addict, in that once it has aroused a man's lust, his reason and will power immediately are weakened and subjected to severe tests, and he is encountering a strong urge of living a life guided by emotions alone, which eventually leads to sexual perversiveness.

Lust has an unsatisfiable appetite, and this is why it needs discipline sooner or later. Medically speaking, appropriate discipline and control over our sexual desires is not injurious to health and character but is wholesome and profitable.

True love is far beyond mere satisfaction of lustful cravings. It consists of mutual aim and encouragement, as well as many other aspects of well-being.

Brown Misses Pet Feline

By Georgianna Krehbiel
Unfortunately, cats are not allowed at the McPherson County Hospital. "But, I keep in touch with Flick," says 79-year-old Jessie Brown, professor emerita of piano at McPherson College, who has been in the McPherson hospital since Aug. 17 of this year.

Flick is Miss Brown's black, yellow, and white cat. One evening nine and a half years ago Miss Brown heard a consistent meow in front of her house. She could not stand the mew of the starving cat. She fed the cat, and Flick and Miss Brown have been together since.

Miss Brown taught at McPherson College for 37 years and donated money for what is now the Jessie-Brown Memorial Auditorium.

Flick stays at 132 North Charles, Miss Brown's home, and is cared for by Mrs. Ethal Klusman, Miss Brown's companion.

McPherson has been Jessie Brown's home since she began teaching at McPherson College in 1915. "The people here are fine people," says Miss Brown. "I wouldn't want to live anywhere else."

She earned her diploma from the Bethany Conservatory in 1907 and her Bachelor of Music degree in 1910 from Bethany College, Lindsborg.

News Note: The U.S. Department of Agriculture "prescribed" a water system for Hermitage, a senior citizens home for Wheatland and a community center for Urbana even though the Missouri towns already had those facilities.
