"To Heal the Broken", A Sacred Choral Service, will be presented at the McPherson Church of the Brethren Sunday, May 10, at 7:30 p.m.

The oratio is for mixed chorus, soloists, orchestra, organ, reader, and congregation. It was completely compiled, adapted or written by the composer, all the music was by Donald R. Frederick, professor of voice and director of choral organizations at McPherson.

The oratio follows the theme of the 1964 annual church of the Brethren conference, "To Heal the Broken." Professor Frederick was asked to write and produce the oratio for performance at annual conference.

Soloists for the number Sunday will be Carol Klotz, soprano; ImoJean Frantz, contralto; Jim Ockerman, tenor; and Paul Wagoner, baritone.

Over 25 will perform in the orchestra.

The chorus, consisting of members of the A cappella Choir, Chapel Choir and Church of the Brethren Senior Choir, will number over a hundred.

The musical service lasts approximately one hour and fifteen minutes. The oratio includes a prologue: "This is Our Faith"; three main parts, "Count Well the Charge", "To Heal the Broken," and "For a World Reborn". "Proclaim His Healing Balm" will be the finale.

Each part of the oratio contains many numbers written for chorus and orchestra, soloists, organ or any of the groups unaccompanied.

The oratio is scheduled for two performances, one Sunday and one June, 17, at 7:30 p.m. at Annual Conference in Lincoln, Neb.

FCA to Meet With Students

By Wendell Kuhlman

All persons interested in athletics and/or Christianity are invited to attend the first meeting of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes to be held at Mohler Hall, Room 212, at 8 p.m., Tuesday, May 12.

The F.C.A. is a program to confront athletes and coaches—and through them the youth of the nation—with the challenge and adventure of following Christ in the fellowship of the church. Beginning with one national conference at Estes Park, Colo., this movement has spread until it now embraces four national conferences each year, dozens of weekend retreats, and scores of "chapters" with weekly or semi-weekly meetings on college and high school campuses across the nation.

Branch Rickey helped found and organize the organization which now includes such baseball "names" as Carl Erskine, Don Demeter, Dave Wicksham, Vernon Law, Joe Cunningham, Dave "Boo" Ferris, and Bob Feller.

Basketball players and coaches who donate their time to F.C.A. include Dick Harp, Tex Winter, Bob Pettit, Ben Carnevale, Frank McGuire, John Wooden, Nolan Ellison, and Sharm Schuerman.

Track and field greats active in F.C.A. work include Don Lash, Bob Richards, Bob Covey, Ducky Drake, Brian Sternberg, and Rafer Johnson.

Impressive personalities among the long list of football greats associated with this movement include Frank Broyles, Bill Wade, Buddy Dial, Fran Tarkenton, Chris Burford, Maxie Baughan, Jim Shofner, Prentice Gault, Bill Krisher, Curtis McClinton, Cotton Davidson, Bobby Dodd, and Paul Deitzel.

The meeting Tuesday evening will be an introductory affair. Speakers are expected from the F.C.A. offices in Kansas City, who will further explain the program and its meaning.

Among the possible speakers are Bud Elliott, newly-hired head football coach at Southwestern College, and John Hickman, head basketball coach at Bethany College and NAIA District 10 Coach of the year in 1963-64.

"Life is like a magazine," someone recently told me, "you open it, glance through it, close it, and it's all over with". While this may be regarded as a defeatist attitude toward life, I would like to say that it could also be an optimist's viewpoint of life.

there are two ways to live life. In reading a magazine one should, to get the most out of it, not just glance through it, but dig in and digest the whole magazine.

So it is with life; those who major in minors and just glance at life never really get anywhere. These people feel frustrated and are bored with life; some can't bear life any longer and end their own lives.

Contrasted to these people are those who live life from cover to cover, so to speak. Life to these people is full and satisfying; life, to them, is a deeper and fuller experience than to those who look at it superficially. These are the people you will find serving humanity in some way or another.

Ministers, Peace Corps Volunteers, social workers, business men, youth group leaders and sponsors, politicians, teachers, and doctors are just a few of the people who, searching for life's meaning, have found it in serving humanity. No matter what one's present or future occupation, he can find fulfillment in life through serving humanity, in religion, and in self-denial.

Too many people feel that life is a time to make money, live a hi-ho life, booze it up, etc., but life is more than this, life is a daily challenge. And the way the challenge is met determines the kind of person one will be. Overcoming these challenges build big people.

How do you read your magazine? daa

Anyone For Segregation?

(KCPA) A new and enthralling game called "Segregation" has just hit the toy market. The game won wide acclaim in the Southern regions of the United States, and informed sources predict that it will soon spread to the rest of the country.

Any number of players join in the fun. Unlike "monopoly" or "Mr. Ree," where the little wood or plastic players are many different colors, "Segregation" is played with only two different colored chips—black and white.

If you manage to collect more than 100 chips of mixed black and white, you have a "riot" and it's worth two points.

If any player collects more than 50 black chips he gets five federal employee chips. Federal employee chips have a yellow streak which distinguishes them from ordinary black and white chips. The federal employees are more valuable because each set of five federal employee chips is worth one "dispersion card."

The "dispersion card" allows the player to use tear gas, fire hoses, rifles, and shotguns to disperse the black chips. If one collects more than five "dispersion cards" he is given five points and made a federal marshal.

If a player accumulates an equal number of black and white chips he gets a separate but "equal" penalty card, and is docked three points.

In every game there are two black chips with green spots. These are called "comedian chips." If a player wins a black chip with green spots he may apply for a "voter registration" card. Usually the card is denied. At this point the player may move all his black chips, led by the green spotted chip, to the capitol. At the capitol all the chips are photographed and the comedian chip manages to get booked solid in Northern night clubs for the rest of the year.

Thirty of the black chips in each set have a red spot. These are called student non-violent coordinating committee chips (SNCC — pronounced Snick). The red signifies blood. If you're playing according to the Leflore County, Mississippi rules, the SNCC chips may take the place of comedian chips.

Since the SNCC chips are not as valuable as comedian chips

By Christopher R. van de Velde
The much-heralded "Kennedy round" of tariff negotiations officially opened last Monday. The late President Kennedy first proposed massive tariff reductions in accord with oft discussed Atlantic partnership. He made his proposal more than two years ago, and it could take as long for the negotiators of the 42 nations represented to finally sign an agreement.

Preparatory talks for the "Kennedy round" actually began some 15 months ago. The talks were made possible by the 1962 United States Trade Expansion Act, which gave the President the power to slash tariffs up to 50 per cent, if United States negotiators can draw similar concessions from other nations.

This authority makes possible the most drastic cut in world tariffs in the history of the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs, or GATT as it is usually called. Previous GATT concessions have contributed much to the doubling of international trade in the last 15 years, to a volume of about $140 billion a year, one result of which has been a better division of international labor, with a rise in living standards all around.

The "Kennedy round" will be novel in that it will embrace agricultural products, non-tariff barriers, and the problems of less-developed countries. Another reason the "Kennedy round" ranks high in importance is that it promises to reduce the division in Europe. By reducing tariffs, Europe will be closer knit economically — and probably politically.

The whole conference will be conducted in a language of technicalities: point by point these are so complex that they are understood only by experts. In general it is obvious, however, that since Great Britain failed to gain entry into the six-nation European Economic Community (EEC or the Common Market), Europe has been at sixes and sevens.

The six-nation Common Market has proceeded rapidly to lower tariffs within its own community, and just as rapidly has been erecting a single external tariff wall. This left the seven nation European Free Trade Association on the outside, finding it steadily more difficult to climb over the growing wall.

From our viewpoint, the "Kennedy round" holds the key to progress toward an Atlantic Alliance or partnership and a stronger Western community. Thus both the United States and the EFTA will be fighting to lower the EEC's external tariff wall. The less-developed nations also have this goal, because they want easier access for their products in the world's largest importing area.

Recently it was my privilege to attend the opening session of a conference on the agricultural problems confronting the negotiators at Kansas State University. Former Secretary of State, Christian A. Herter, was the principal figure that day. The impression that I got at that conference was that all of the negotiators at the "Kennedy round" will be working in expectation of making some tangible progress in settling disagreements.

Though I do not foresee any rapid action or quick solutions, I do expect and hope for success.

'We Cannot Afford Relaxed Morality'

A recent American Legion stag party in Fort Collins, Colo., has given Colorado campus editors interesting news.

Four Colorado State Collegian staff members attended the party and took along a tiny camera hidden in a cigarette package. Their evidence lead to a news story charging the Fort Collins American Legion Post with sponsoring a stag party on state property complete with gambling, underage drinking and nude dancers.

The Collegian revealed that the Legionnaires "wallowed in a bacchanal of vice that would put even the sated students of Harvard College to shame." In a satirical editorial the Colorado Daily at the University of Colorado said, "We cannot afford the luxury of relaxed morality among those entrusted with the defense of the American Dream."

Students Seek Pertinent Letters To JFK Death

Kathryn I. Kulesher, Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, and Thomas H. Mather, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Virginia, are making an appeal to college students to submit letters received by them during the period of the November assassination, and concerning the event.

Such letters would be turned over to the JFK Memorial Library Committee and would serve as indexes of the "emotional and psychological impact of the tragedy upon the thoughts of America's young people," as well as historical manuscripts. It should be remembered that letters sent will be made available for examination by competent and interested persons at the library, and thus, any personal matter may be deleted, or the letter may be recycled, omitting those parts.

Students may mail letters to: Letters, Box 756, Blacksburg, Virginia, 24060.

Kelly Wins Tennis Honors

Bill Kelly, senior from McPherson, has consistently been one of the top winners on the Macollege tennis teams the past four years. During those four years the Macollege netters have always been contenders for the conference title, which they won during Bill's sophomore year.

Bill played in the number three position his first two years, played number four man his junior year, and is number one man this year.

His first three years Bill was undoubtedly the top player in his flight of the conference each year.

His freshman year, the team tied for second in the conference, with Bill winning his flight of the annual post season conference tournament.

The tennis team not only won the conference title and the Tabor Tournament his sophomore year, but the team that year was probably the best in the history of the college. Bill again won his flight of the conference tournament.

Last year with the team taking second in the conference, Bill lost only one match all season, again winning his flight of the conference title.

This year Bill has six wins and one loss up to the match with Southwestern.

Bill played tennis three years at McPherson high school; in the number one position his last two years.

This year Bill was elected by the members of 'M' Club to take over the duties of president of that organization.

As a business major Bill has amassed a 2.35 overall grade average, including a 3.0 average last semester. Through these efforts in the classroom Bill has accepted what amounts to a $2500 dollar fellowship to the University of Wisconsin next year to gain his masters degree in accounting.

College to Host Seminars In Non-Western Cultures

McPherson College will serve as the host campus during the next academic year when six Central Kansas church colleges cooperate in offering two seminars in Non-Western culture and civilizations.

The colleges who are joining in this cooperative program are McPherson College; Kansas Wesleyan University, Salina; Bethany College, Lindsborg; Bethel College, North Newton; Friends University, Wichita; and Sterling College, Sterling.
