Meeting to Be Held For NIH Applicants Elections Set For March 24

Normal control volunteers and the Brethren Volunteer Service program at the National Institutes of Health will be the main topics of discussion at a meeting to be held March 10 at 7 p.m. in Harnly 304.

Discussions will center on the National Institutes of Health at Bethesda, Md., and ways McPherson college students may apply to spend an entire summer serving as a Normal Control Volunteer Patient.

The research at NIH is aimed at curbing chronic illness in the U.S. To do that the researchers must know more about the functions of the normal healthy person's body. That is where the Normal Control Volunteer is used.

Dr. Burkholder, professor of Biology, will lead the discussion Wednesday night and explain the procedures for applying to NIH. A movie, "Serving by the Pools of Bethesda" will also be shown at the meeting. Delbert L. Nye, Chief of the Normal Volunteer Patient Program at Bethesda will be on campus Thursday, March 11 to interview all applicants interested in the program.

Mr. Nye may also be available for the meeting Wednesday night.

Any student who might be interested in serving at NIH this summer should see the Dean's secretary, Mrs. Barchesky this week for an application and an appointment for an interview with Mr. Nye on Thursday.

Interested students could also contact Dr. Burkholder for further information or see some of the Maccollege students on campus who have served in NIH in the past.

Porter Gets Fellowship

Robert Porter, assistant professor of German and literature, who announced his resignation from the McPherson College faculty in order to start work on his doctoral studies in German, was the recipient of a teaching assistantship fellowship at Rice University in Houston, Texas.

The fellowship is in the Department of Germanics at Rice University and will begin this coming September and continue throughout the 1965-66 school year.

Professor Porter will be able to work toward his Ph.D. in German languages while teaching at the university.

Prof. Porter also announced that he plans to spend the summer months following the close of school at McPherson as an assistant at the Deutsche Sommerschule am Pazifik, a summer German program sponsored by Portland State College in Oregon.

This is the same school that Prof. Porter attended last summer.

The program at the school requires all students and instructors to speak German the entire summer.

Dr. Abdul Haqq Will Give Special Chapel Program

Dr. Abdul Haqq, traveling evangelist for the Billy Graham team, will present a special chapel program in Brown Auditorium, Wednesday, March 10. This chapel period, which will start at 3:00 p.m., is not compulsory, but it is hoped that many students will be on hand to hear Dr. Haqq.

He comes from India and has received his Ph. D. in Theology and World Religions. He is also noted through his good reputation for "getting through" to college students.

Dr. Haqq's visit is in conjunction with his tour of several neighboring colleges. Besides appearing in McPherson, he will also speak at Bethel and Tabor Colleges.

Thursday evening Dr. Haqq will lecture on "Intellectualism vs. Faith" in the Student Center of Tabor College. Following the first lecture, there will be an opportunity for questions and an informal discussion.

Students from many surrounding colleges have been invited to this presentation, and all Maccollege students are cordially urged to attend.

Besides receiving his Ph.D. in Theology and World Religions, he has also received many other degrees. He received his B.A. (cum laude), M.A. (Philosophy), M.A. (Oriental Languages) from the University of Punjab, India.

Kretton, (Merv Penner, sophomore, Olathe) glares with delight as the savage vibrations from a fight scene fill the air in this shot from final rehearsals of "Visit to a Small Planet," going into its third performance tonight.

Comedy Continues Tonight

Tonight marks the third performance of Gore Vidal's fantastic comedy, "Visit to a Small Planet." Staged in the arena theater, the show has played to responsive crowds during its run, which began Wednesday, March 3.

Professor Loren D. Reyher, director, anticipates a sell-out crowd at tonight's show, as well as Saturday's. Reserve seats are still available, however, for tonight and Saturday.

Association of Professors Will Meet At Maccollege

The American Association of University Professors will hold a meeting at Maccollege March 5, at 7:30 with the possibility of establishing a chapter on the McPherson College campus.

Dr. Charles B. Creager, Professor of physics, and two of his colleagues from Kansas Wesleyan University will be guest speakers and will provide an informal program.

Membership at McPherson College is as follows: Dr. Lorell K. Weiss, professor of sociology; Dr. O. A. Olson, professor of economics and business administration; Dr. Gilford Ekenberry, professor of biology; Sgt. Kwing Lee, assistant professor of chemistry; and Sarah May Brunk, associate professor of English and journalism (on sabbatical leave.)

The American Association of University Professors, founded in 1915 by a group of distinguished scholars to advance the ideals and standards of the academic profession, is the only national organization in the United States that serves exclusively the interests of all teachers and research scholars at institutions of higher learning.

From a charter membership of 1,362 full professors, the Association has grown to include 62,000 faculty members in every rank and discipline. The membership is distributed among approximately 1,500 institutions in the United States and abroad. Forty-seven state and regional conferences have been organized to facilitate the work of the Association, in addition to more than 850 local chapters on college and university campuses in fifty states.

Literary Magazine For Arts Festival

A magazine of student literature and humor will be published in conjunction with the fine arts festival. The magazine will contain short stories, essays, poems, and humorous articles. Some art work and possibly some student-drawn cartoons will be included.

Works for the magazine will be selected from those submitted to the Fine Arts Festival. Works not submitted to the Festival can be submitted to any member of the Literary Magazine Committee.

The Literary Magazine Committee is sponsoring a contest to name the magazine. Any names significant in the area of humor and literature and which are appropriate may be submitted to the committee. The final date for contributions will be March 20. Contestants are also asked to submit ideas for a cover design. The winner will receive acknowledgment of his or her contribution in the magazine and a complimentary copy of the magazine.

The committee will judge the entries on originality and relevance to the general humorous and literary theme.

Advance subscriptions for the magazine will go on sale March 24 after a title and design are selected.

Any person interested in working on the magazine may contact Carolyn Lehman for further information.

Silence Indicates Agreement

It appears that every student and faculty member alike agree that the library should be open on Sunday. At least the Spec has received no replies indicating otherwise.

It also appears that compulsory chapel is unethical to all the students and faculty, everyone is enthusiastic about a literary magazine, and all agree that the midwest is the center of prejudice, to give a few examples.

In other words, I have been writing weekly editorials for the past twenty issues, and not one letter of refutation has come in on any of them.

We Get Letters . . .

Southern Society Is Falling On Its Own

Dear Editor,

This letter is a collection of a few passing thoughts concerning the segregation problem in the South, and more specifically, those college students who are planning on spending Easter vacation in Mississippi.

Today the Negro in the South is imprisoned by socio-economic limitations imposed on him by the tradition-bound majority of white southerners. I do not believe that this situation can or will continue.

Basically, there are three factors contributing to the downfall of the southern system of segregated society. The first is time. The force of the original reason, that of slavery, for holding the Negro in an inferior position is weakening.

I do not believe that I am assuming too much to say that the Negro has more freedom now than in the reconstruction period after the civil war.

The second factor is the Negro's awareness of, and dissatisfaction with his position. The third, and probably the most overlooked factor, is the small minority of southern whites dedicated to raising the position of the Negro.

These factors are causing a two-hundred year old social structure to crumble.

As could be expected, the

This could mean about one of three things: (1) students and faculty are not reading the editorials—which is good enough reason for not refuting them, (2) They are afraid to refute editorials for fear I might wreak vengeance on them the following week (which is always possible, but a good fight once in a while makes things more interesting), (3) they are too lazy.

Now, admittedly, students are very busy, but surely they are not so busy they don't have time to express their own opinions. Most students find time for an occasional fiery bull session in the dorm. By taking just a little extra time to write ideas down, the whole school can get in on the discussion rather than just a select few.

Editorials are nothing but the subjective opinion of one person, and each person on this campus has just as much right to make his own opinions known.

One of the main purposes of a school paper is to allow students to express their opinions. Don't let my editorials go unrefuted. I'm getting tired of doing all the talking. CSL.

Book Review

Christian Faith Carrying Much Excess Baggage

By Dr. Wayne Miller
Bishop James A. Pike, "A Time For Christian Candor" (New York: Harper and Row, 1965, $3.50.

Here is a book that will be one of the more threatening and irritating books of the century to orthodox Christians who have to have their Christianity served to them in traditional gift wrapped packages. Any person who was challenged or forced to think by Bishop John A. T. Robinson's "Honest To God" will find this book an equal stimulant.

Bishop Pike essentially says that there is a lot of baggage being carried about by the Christian Church that should be parked and forgotten.

Many will say that this sounds fine until they learn that the Bishop includes the Trinity.

Perhaps we should allow the Bishop's own words to speak: "The church's classical way of stating what is represented by the doctrine of the Trinity has in fact been a barrier with the well educated and less educated alike. And it is not essential to the Christian Faith.

"The apostles and the other first followers of the Way never heard it. All that can be said of God without attribution to a distinct Person in the Godhead . . . It is that in God which creates and reveals.

"To affirm this does not require belief in a distinct person serving as the Agent of the Father. . . . For many today . . . the Trinity-in-Unity apparatus seems to provide a satisfactory, and satisfying vehicle for apprehending and expressing, as much as finite minds can, what God is, and has done and ever does."

Qualities Of Small Schools

By C. L. Dadisman

By glimpsing at the past few issues of the Spectator and by remembering the ideas which I have thus far presented this year, one would begin to think that our school is just about ready to go to "pot".

Fault-finding with the faculty, inefficient student government, colorless girls, unenthusiastic, non-intellectual students, etc., combine to paint a fairly gross picture of our fair school. And, in writing this column of the times, I have sought those facets of campus and world life in an attempt to point out these deficiencies.

However, on what do I write if most of the major problems have been pointed out? On what do I write if the problems which are brought out are ignored by those who have the power and ability to solve them? Simple. I write about what is good about our school.

One nice thing about our little school is the nice friendly attitude that each person has for the other. It is simply wonderful to be so close together in a college that everyone knows everything about you.

Where else could some stranger from heaven-knows-where be able to discover exactly what your ailments are, how many times a day you brush your teeth, how old your mother is and how long your parents have been married?

Where else could someone build upon scandalized gossip and cause it to spread across the face of the earth to ruin the future of some unsuspecting person? Where else could wide-eyed high school graduates go in order to maintain their naivete and to graduate maintaining the same quality?

Another extra-special quality of our little school is the way we all are such excellent students. I mean, we sit in class and listen to our professors read from a book and we take all that they say to be the absolute truth beyond questions of any sort.

With this type of educational practices, missing classes causes no alarm because we can simply read the book and accomplish the same result as those who suffered through the class.

In a way, we are not students at all. We never really have to study for a course, just read and believe what it says in the book. . . . they all go to the universities and come out in little boxes made of ticky-tacky, and they all look just the same."

And I also want to point out the wonderful way that we in a small college have of working with each other. We have such wonderful opportunities to work in little groups with each other and by doing this we form friendships which will last for the rest of our lives.

Yet we pay little attention to those who are outside of these little "groups" and who are unable to be a part of the life of these little societies. These are those students who are on the outside looking in.

We are assuming, of course, that this kind of person actually wants into the group. Have you ever thought that by being in some similar group that you are on the outside looking in?

I would suggest that we as students evaluate ourselves in relation with those around us, be they our family, our church, school, town, city, or what have you, and discover just where we are and what we are heading for.

In a sense I'm suggesting that we look beyond or behind our false fronts and try to see just what we really look like and what we really believe. Do you know yourself??

Lets Stop Haggling

Dear Editor,

I'm chapped off! I've been reading the different articles by color me blank, disgusted, stupid, etc., kick.

The only observation I can draw, and I feel that I am capable of making this observation because of my experience in Dairy Husbandry class, is that we are forming a so-called sex barrier.

This is good for the guys that don't like to date, and I think these are the guys that are writing these dumb articles. There are guys around who do like to date, me for instance, and I don't care how the girl looks, just as long as she's a girl.

I made a survey of several girls on campus to see if they thought they looked and dressed as sloppy as the boys seemed to think they do. And to you, the meddling writers against the girls, the results were that 4 out of 4, or 100 per cent of the girls didn't think they were as sloppy as the boys thought they were.

Now, I think that this conclusively proves my point, that the girls aren't as sloppy as the boys seem to think they are.

As to these sex barriers that are forming as a result of all this haggling back and forth between the sexes, they just don't make sense.

I think that we, as college students and future leaders of our great American heritage, should respect and honor the position of the opposite sexes. After all, we all have to form

A Look at the Administration

By President D. W. Bittinger

From time to time we read in the Spectator that certain items of concern to McPherson College students or groups of students, have been called to the attention of the Administration and that these items should be handled forthwith. These suggestions vary all the way through clock synchronization to curriculum changes, to library hours, to dismissal of faculty personnel, to student dress or student behavior.

Usually, if the answer to such suggestions can be yes, and something happens quickly, this is considered a victory for the petitioner. If, on the other hand, the answer needs to be no, or if further study needs to be given to the question, the petitioner seeks other approaches in order to move the Administration.

Who is this Administration? Why does it seem so slow, or so perille?

Since this is the week of trustee meetings, let us take a look at the Administration of McPherson College. McPherson is administered by a Board of Trustees. Currently, they number 26. They are selected in a variety of ways. Some are selected by the churches of the McPherson area; some by the alumni of the college; others are District Executives; some are representatives of the city, or of the immediate area; some are elected at large. They operate under a charter which is now more than three quarters of a century old.

Under this Board of Trustees there are administrative officers within the college itself. They meet with the total trustee body twice a year, and with various trustees, particularly the Executive Committee, more frequently.

In addition, there are student administrative officers who administer certain aspects of student life within the college. This includes dispensing certain funds and the handling of items of student behavior and discipline.

Faculty personnel, staff personnel, and department heads have considerable administrative authority for those phases of the college life under their immediate jurisdiction.

With this much overlapping of administrative personnel and administrative responsibility and since all of this is permeated with a genuine desire on the part of everyone that consultation, mutual respect, and the democratic process prevail, administrative decisions often seem slow in being arrived at and announced. This slowness is hard for everybody at the college to understand. It sometimes arouses an impatient feeling on the part of trustees, the president of the college, and the student body.

There is still another dimension of academic administration which should be mentioned. This is probably the most important of all. Each student must be the chief administrator of his own life. This must include administering his time, his money, his study habits, his personal behavior, his moralities, his goals, his dreams.

A college is an academic community where the major purpose is a quest. In this quest, and in this academic community, all members are joined: trustees, faculty, students. Their quest has no absolute and irrevocable answers; the quest never ends.

M-Club Carnival Scheduled March 6

By Tim Bomberger
The M-Club of McPherson College is sponsoring its annual Carnival, Saturday, March 6. The Carnival, which will be held in the gymnasium, will include different types of recreation and amusement.

For the athletically inclined, free-throw shooting, nail driving, and football throwing contests will be held. For the men, a weight lifting contest will be held to give all Hercules a chance to show off their bulging muscles.

Less vigorous amusement will include bingo, and the Carnival will be highlighted by the crowning of a king and queen.

The queen and king are nominated by the student body. For a quarter, a student can nominate a king or queen, and after that, each vote costs a penny. The man and woman receiving the highest votes are elected.

The M-Club Carnival is put on by the lettermen of McPherson College to help raise money to buy athletic equipment and supplies. The prizes, which are given to the winners of the various contests, are solicited from the businessmen of the community.

The door prize, which is donated by the jewelers of McPherson, will be valued at over 75 dollars. The other prizes given away, will also be very desirable.

Enke ended the season by being selected for the KCAC all conference first team, while Tegeler was chosen for the second all conference team.

Enke, Tegeler End Careers

By Les Bloom

On February 22, Marion Enke, senior, Owensville, Mo., and John Tegeler, senior, Gerald, Mo., closed out their careers as members of the McPherson College basketball team.

This final game of the 1964-65 season marked the end of an exciting era in Bulldog basketball. Enke and Tegeler added much color and talent to the game.

The story of these two players goes back many years. They first played basketball together in junior high school in Owensville, Mo. Later, while students at Owensville High School, they led their teams to an overall 89-16 record. In high school Enke earned 11 letters, while Tegeler received 9 for varsity sports.

The two give much credit to McPherson alumnus Richard Hood, their high school coach, for helping with their decision to come to McPherson College. In the spring of their senior year in high school they visited the Mac college campus and decided to come to McPherson the following fall.

During their freshman year the Bulldogs were having little success on the basketball court. After a ten game losing streak, Coach Sid Smith decided to start his two freshman players. The two quickly responded and the team won 6 of its last 9 games to finish with a respectable record.

As sophomores, Tegeler and Enke combined with Deryl Elmore to help post a record of 13-12. Tegeler was the leading rebounder, while Enke was the second highest scorer. Elmore was the top point-maker in 1962-63 and thus set the career scoring record for McPherson College with 1701 points. Tegeler made honorable mention on the All-Conference team.

As juniors they worked with Doug Knehan and George Czaplinski to lead the team to a 15-12 record. Enke scored 517 points and was chosen to the All-Conference team. Tegeler connected for 449 points and was picked for the All-Conference second team. Both players pulled down 230 rebounds to tie for the team high.

As seniors they were largely responsible, along with George Czaplinski, for the 14-9 mark which the Bulldogs recorded. Enke again was the leading scorer with 428 points and again was elected to the All-Conference team. He was the fourth leading scorer in the KCAC. His total of 1518 points for 4 years makes him the second leading scorer in McPherson history.

Tegeler accounted for 369 points and the highest number of rebounds by a McPherson player. He again made the All-Conference second team.

Both men are versatile athletes, having earned college letters in other sports. Enke has two letters for track, and Tegeler is a returning letterman for the tennis team. At graduation each will have 6 college letters, having lettered in basketball for 4 years.

Their specific plans for the future are rather uncertain at the present time. John is an Economics and Business Administration major and plans a career in business management. Marion is majoring in biology

German Compares U.S. With Germany

By JoAnn Howell
Born in Munich, Germany, Gary Mittermaier, a first semester freshman psychology major came to the U.S. at the age of 16 to live with his mother in Eatontown, N. J.

The 19 year old, sandy haired student is the equivalent of a high school sophomore in Germany, but because he did not speak English he had to start over as a freshman in the U.S.

According to Gary, the German people are daily made aware of Communism through a continuing barrage of propaganda on the radio and through the press. Gary traveled through much of Germany but was unable to visit Berlin because "the city is like an island completely surrounded by a sea of Communism."

Life in Germany is quite different than here in the U.S., but, "I like it better here," says Gary. Hamburgers, hot dogs and corn were American foods that Gary had not eaten before, but now enjoys very much. Hot dogs were unheard of, and Hamburgers were what the citizens of Hamburg, Germany were called. Corn is strictly food for pigs and unthought of as human food.

Private colleges do not exist in Germany. The only higher education is the university with only eight per cent of the population able to obtain such an education.

Students Assist Mac Professors

Several Macollege students have become assistants to professors for the second semester. Working for Dr. Rothrock is Carol Christy, Senior, Garrison, Iowa; working for Dr. Coppock is Lorene Pauls, Freshman, Inman; for Professor Fredrick is James Ockermen, senior Holsansburg, Ohio; for Professor Zahradnik is James Dixon, Junior, McPherson and for Professor Dell is James Kiazar, Freshman, Marion.

living in Europe, owning such items as homes and cars is not a common occurrence there. Gary considers Kansas to be very similar to the part of Germany he knew with its open land and many farms.

Following graduation, Gary hopes to tour the U.S. Easter vacation, with its home-cooked meals, and returning to his summertime job as a lifeguard on the New Jersey public beaches are his plans for the months ahead.

251 Visit Mac For Youth Rally

251 Brethren youth registered at the youth rally on campus this week-end. Registered were youth from Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and Louisiana, including a bus load from the southern tip of Texas.

Floralyn Groff of McPherson won first place in the speech contest on Saturday morning on the topic "Faith in a Changing Creation." Second place went to Mary Ellen Ewing of Quinter and third place to Joe Knight, also of Quinter.

Skaters Plan Party

The Mac Skate Club is planning a party on March 13th. Anyone interested in an evening of enjoyment is invited to attend. The party will be held either at the Skate-O-Rama in McPherson or at the Hutchinson Roller City rink.

Students wishing to attend the next skating party are encouraged to express their opinions as to which place they prefer to Ken Dauer, Skate Club President.

Macollege Students Earn Kansas Scholarships

As a result of a 1963 decision by the Kansas Legislature, the State of Kansas Scholarship Program was created. This program is designed to help Kansas high school graduates who are limited financially to continue their education.

Macollege has five students selected to receive this scholarship. They are: Christina Flory, freshman, McPherson; Lorene Pauls, freshman, Inman; Glenn Walker, freshman, Brookville; Bob Fox, sophomore, Garfield, and Tom Worthing, sophomore, Wamego.

Each scholarship stipend grants $500 annually or the cost of tuition and regular fees, whichever is less, to those selected for it.

To qualify for these scholarships, the applicant must be either a Kansas high school senior planning to graduate at the end of the current school year, or a graduate of a Kansas high school. The applicant's parents must be legal residents of Kansas. The applicant must be recommended by his high school administration, and he must be planning to attend full time a college or university in Kansas which is accredited by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

ACT or SAT test scores plus class rank of the applicant are equally weighed and combined into a selection score. From this the applicants' scores are ranked in order. Of these, 600 finalists are selected. On the basis of financial need 200 are chosen for the stipends.

Southern Society

tradition - bound white majority in the South has developed an insane, irrational fear of the rising Negro.

The southern whites cannot see in the Civil Rights movement a drive for equality, but a drive by the Negro to turn the social order completely upside down, placing the Negro on top and pushing the whites into the position once held by the Negro. This fear has steadily grown until the whole white society has become paranoid.

To the paranoid southerner, every government intervention, every civil rights worker, every Negro demonstration, further proves that forces are at work to destroy him and his society.

The major question at this point is how much will it take to push this paranoid fear into a panic reaction in which the whites attempt to destroy that which they feel is threatening them.

Between the rising Negro and the paranoid white, a powder keg situation has developed in the South.

So as college students, what right do we have to run off to Mississippi for a ten-day vacation, even as observers, when the possibilities are so great that we might be the spark needed to blow up the whole mess.

What beneficial results can be expected from such a trip? We will learn, but what will be the cost of our education, not so much our cost, but the cost paid by the people who will remain after our little visit is over?

Lets Stop Hagglng

a working society sooner or thereafter, so we might as well start here at college during our growing period.

We have a nice campus here, and I think and feel that we should respect all parts of it; this includes Dotzour Hall and all of its fine residents.

We have lots of things to be thankful for on such a fine campus as this, and I think that the sooner we realize this, the sooner we're going to be able to get along with each other and especially the opposite sex.

I think the idea of the "college family" is a fine thing in combining the students into relationships of respect and love for one another, in the sense of family closeness and love.

I feel that my thoughts on this subject should be taken seriously by all groups and individuals. The harder we work to get along and not haggle around with stupid things like girl's clothes, the better our relationship is going to be.

We can't hope to work together in respect and understanding if we form sex barriers and other types of barriers, that happen to come along.

Let's try students! O.K.? The future is ours, so let's make the most of the present.

Art Interest High at Mac

By Jim Anderson
Art, one of the fine cultural aspects of the world, should be important to a college and its students. McPherson College has a great amount of talent in the field of art.

First semester 117 students enrolled in art courses, and even more have enrolled this semester, indicating the interest in this area at Macollege.

The art exhibited in Friendship Hall has been extremely well received by students, faculty, and the town people. Last year at one time $10,000 worth of paintings was exhibited in Friendship.

There are special art projects for students to do, such as woodcarving, lettering, commercial design, water color, secondary school art, and contemporary art.

Since not all the work of the art students is placed on exhibit, everyone is invited to visit the art department, located in the basement of Arnold Hall, at any time.

Dell Honors Seniors

Senior industrial arts majors were honored at a dinner given March 1 by S. M. Dell, professor of industrial arts education, and Alvin Willemts, associate professor of industrial arts.

The dinner was held at a Smorgasbord in Assaria.

Senior majors present at the dinner were Bob Barnett, Flushing, N. Y., Dennis Emmert, Adel, Iowa, Charles Snyder, Thomasville, Pa., and Vance Alexander, Geneseo.
