

Welch To Be Guest Speaker

Guest speaker for the chapel program of October 13 will be Mrs. Rosa Page Welch, classical sacred music singer.

Mrs. Welch served as a short-term missionary in Nigeria, West Africa, under the Church of the Brethren from 1961 to 1963.

Her two-year assignment in Africa allowed the mezzo soprano to present concerts in cities and villages of northeastern Nigeria as well as in the congregations and schools of the various missions of that area. She also taught classes in "The Christian Home" at Kulp Bible School and the Waka Schools, two training centers for Nigerian churchmen.

In 1951 Mrs. Welch was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal of the National Conference of Christians and Jews for "distinguished service in the cause of brotherhood."

She is also a member of the Disciples of Christ, and formerly was vice president of the United Church Women.

A native of Port Gibson, Miss.,

Mrs. Welch was graduated from Southern Christian Institute, a mission school at Edwards, Miss. She taught academic and music courses in Southern schools.

Mrs. Welch also holds an honorary degree, Doctor of Humane Letters, from Eureka College, Eureka, Ill.

"Through A Glass, Darkly" by Stanley Richards and "Riders To The Sea" by John Millington Synge are the two plays to be given this month in lab theater.

The first one is October 13, and the second, October 27. Both will be given in the theater of the round with the audience and the actors all on stage. Both start at 7 p.m. in Brown Auditorium.

"Through A Glass, Darkly", under the direction of Kenneth Dauer, junior, Dunkirk, Ia., tells the story of a Jew, Aaron Schaeffer, who has a persecution complex and feels that everyone is anti-Semite. When his son Sandy, brings home a Gentile wife he is adversely affected by the marriage.

The cast consists of Aaron played by Alan Cable, sophomore, Syracuse, Ind. and his wife, Clara, by Leah Standifer, senior, Worthington, Minn. The next door neighbor, Mr. Lawson, is played by Marc Rasmussen, freshman, Lansing, Ill., and Aaron's sister, Rosalie, by Velma Hoyer, junior, McPherson. Dan Messer, junior, West Chicago, Ill., portrays Sandy and Rayna Hamm, sophomore, Rocky Ford, Colo., portrays his wife, Carol. Curt Christy, junior, Garrison, Iowa, plays Phil Mandelbaum.

"Riders To The Sea", directed by Georgianna Krehbiel, sophomore, McPherson, is a well-known Irish tragedy in which a widowed mother who has lost a husband and two sons at sea is awaiting the news of the drowning of a third son, Michael, also at sea. Bartly, another son, during the

Freshmen Peddle to Fair

Want to see a fair and save shoe leather and sore feet? Tom Crago, freshman, LaVerne, Calif., and John Kough, freshman, Morgan Hill, Calif., found the solution when they rode their bikes to the recent State Fair at Hutchinson.

Leaving Macampus around 8 in the morning, they miscalculated and began their trek on Highway 61 but soon got rerouted correctly at Inman. After reaching the fairgrounds, they cycled over the grounds to view all the exhibits and midway. Returning to campus about 5 in the evening, they commented it was quite an experience.

John remarked, "People were always looking at us and saying, 'Look, there are those two guys we passed on the road'."

Tom Crago and John Kough get ready to take off for the Kansas State Fair.

Bloodmobile On Campus Monday

The bloodmobile unit from Wichita will be at the Maccollege campus on Monday October 12. Dick Welch is the coordinator of a committee consisting mainly of the Men's Council and Women's Council which annually sponsor the bloodmobile coming to this campus.

The goal of the college is to obtain 160 pints of blood; however, in each of the last two years this goal has been surpassed, with 180 pints being received last year.

This 180 pint total was enough to defeat Kansas Wesleyan in the competition between these two schools to see which could donate the most blood.

This year Bethany College has also entered the competition, and it is rumored that the Swedes have vowed to donate more blood than the other two schools combined.

Close to 200 Maccollege students have already agreed to donate blood and more cards are still expected by the coordinating committee.

French Table Creates International Atmosphere

By Linda Kurtz

The image of provinciality, which too many people associate with Maccollege, is being partially dispelled by the international atmosphere created in the cafeteria by the French table every Monday and Thursday.

According to Mrs. Herbert Schmidt, instructor in French who instigated the French table, the purpose of providing a foreign language speaking situation at lunch was two-fold. First of all the time students spend at the French table, which convenes at 12:15, completes the requirements for the three-hour course.

Second, the table provides a stimulating half hour in which students are free to discuss any topic and in which to build their vocabulary.

Although the French table was designed primarily for the members of the second-year French class, Mrs. Schmidt welcomes anyone who has a speaking knowledge of French.

Participating students' opinions of the success of the French table are favorable. Freshman Kathleen Shank, from Fayetteville, W. Va., stated, "We are learning to converse with each other about ordinary occurrences, such as what is happening in the news."

Glenn Roub, freshman from Martinsburg, Pa., called the French table "a very good opportunity for French students . . . to be able to hear French conversation as it might occur at a table in France."

A member of the Lincoln Center Young Artists Group, sponsored by the Metropolitan Opera Association, Mr. Michalski has received many commendations for his "rich textured voice" and his "impressive interpretive skills."

His program at Maccollege will include selections from German, French, Italian, English, and American music literature. Mr. Michalski will be accompanied on the piano by his wife, Nadine.

Ziegler to be Leader

At Church Voc. Group

Dr. Jesse Ziegler, Associate Director of the American Association of Theological Schools, will be the guest leader at an informal discussion during the Church Vocations Fellowship meeting.

He is a graduate of the Bethany Theological Seminary and has taught courses in mental hygiene and personal counseling there. He has also been a guest professor at Yale University.

It is a supper meeting and will be held in the private dining room of the Student Union, October 26, at 5 p.m.

Debaters To K-State

The McPherson College debaters will participate in their first tournament on October 24 at Kansas State University, Manhattan, McPherson will take four debaters.

This will be a novice tournament for those debaters who have not yet participated in college competition.

Phy. Ed. Workshop Saturday, On Campus

Teachers in the area of physical education and students planning to teach in the area of physical education will be at McPherson College for a special workshop. The workshop, entitled Physical Education for the Elementary Child will be held October 10. Leading the workshop will be Miss Joan Tillotson, from State University College at Cortland, New York.

Registration will be held in Friendship Hall at 9:00 A. M. Saturday, Oct. 10. 100 persons are expected from the surrounding area. At 10:00 A.M. Miss Tillotson will briefly present the subject, Movement Education, which will be followed by a discussion from the total group.

Movement Education is that phase of the total educational program which has as its contribution the effective, efficient and expressive movement responses of a thinking, feeling, and sharing human being.

At noon the workshop will break for lunch but will be back for a demonstration of physical exercises with third grade children, lead by Miss Tillotson. Following this will be a discussion and an evaluation period of the observed demonstrations.

Closing the workshop will be a movie, "Movement Education". This twenty minute film will be followed by a panel discussion regarding the days activities concerning Movement Education. Questions will then be taken concerning the study and the workshop will be over at approximately 4:30 p.m.

On campus students who are planning to attend are urged to register early and then return to the dorms until the first session to save congestion.

There is a possibility that the afternoon session will be moved to the high school gymnasium due to a larger crowd than anticipated.

Joan Tillotson is currently studying to complete her Ph. D. degree in physical education at the State University of Iowa, and is on leave from the State University College at Cortland, New York.

She has had much experience studying and working with the elementary school child, including attendance at the Anglo-American Workshop on Elementary School Physical Education, Yorkshire County, England.

Her contributions in the field of Movement Education include articles published in professional literature of physical education, and the creation, direction and production of the film, "Movement Education in Physical Education."

LBJ Represents Progress

Some pro Goldwater associates of mine have suggested that it is time I express my political stand in the form of an editorial.

I have been expressing my stand in subtle little ways, (such as putting the pro-Johnson letters at the top of editorial page and the Goldwater ones at the bottom) but the time has now come to get into the open warfare.

I believe in progress, therefore I support Johnson. Goldwater wants to do an about-face and return to "earlier" times. (I refrain from using the word "primitive" for the sake of not getting in too hot a war with Goldwater fans)

Government is run in a pragmatic way. When a need exists, legislation is passed to fulfill this need. If a certain law isn't effective, one is passed that is.

We had a definite need for civil rights law (despite Goldwater's claim that integration has to be in the hearts of men.) The "hearts of men" just weren't coming through, so legislation was passed. This legislation is not perfect and will not solve all the problems, of course, but it is a start—a start which Goldwater would probably never take.

The Commentator

Are You 17 or 70?

By C. L. Dadisman

We strolled down the lane together,

The sky was studded with stars.

We reached the gate in silence,

I lifted down the bars.

She neither smiled nor thanked me,

For she knew not how,

'Cause I was a farmer's boy

And she was a Guernsey cow.

Thus goes a poem from my youth.

Ah, when one reaches my age,

Thoughts from the past filter into the thinking processes of one's mind.

As old age, arthritis, and Geritol creep into my system, nostalgia fills my spare-time thoughts until my eyes find themselves filled to overflowing with sentimental tears.

Those glorious times of bad report cards, detention after school, Sunday School whispering sessions, and stolen glances at the cute first grade girls can only be re-lived in memory.

Yet as nostalgia and old age seem to run together, they are not always complimentary.

It is possible to have old age without nostalgia, but to have nostalgia without old age is difficult.

After all, to a first grader, a third grader has old age. To a seventh grader, a sophomore in high school has old age.

To a seventy year old person, nobody else has old age. It all slimmers down to how one feels; whether a person feels like a teen-ager or a reject from the social security benefits. In what category do you place yourself?

In placing yourself in either of these two age groupings, much depends on how you treat others around you.

If you treat them with respect and honesty, the same will be yours in return, and you will gain a feeling of maturity and equality.

But if your treatment of others lacks reason or maturity, these feelings will be mirrored back to you.

You may ask what this has to do with feeling seventeen or seventy. Here is my answer to that: your feelings depend on not only how you treat others, but how others treat you in return.

The society in which you travel has the ability to either make you feel young or old.

If you feel "old" in your own little group, check it out; maybe it's your fault, or maybe it's the deficiency of the group who are your "friends".

ample. Goldwater opposes federal aid, and in the 11 years he has been in the Senate, he has never voted for any act of federal aid to education.

It will be quite a blow to education (not to mention state finances) if federal aid is withdrawn.

Many Mac College students are receiving government loans. Our library received a federal grant recently so more books could be added. Our new buildings on campus were made possible through federal loans. Mac is one in about 40 colleges and universities in Kansas.

Dozens of issues are involved in this campaign; space allows me to discuss only two. But these two pretty well illustrate that if we want to make progress in the next four years; if we want a man who attempts to solve 20th century problems pragmatically rather than falling back into 19th century idealism, then we must keep Johnson in the Whitehouse. cal

This Odd World

By Ben Marcus N. Akamnonu

It sounds unbelievable — but just accept it because it really did happen. It was a man—the renowned Daga—a farmer by profession, who had the rare privilege of understanding the meaning of the squeaking of the squirrel, of the hiss sound made by snakes, of the barking of the dogs, the bleating of a goat, of the mewling of the cats; in short, he was endowed with the power of understanding the animal kingdom—both the two-legged and the four-footed.

This our man, Daga, had a wife who lost her right eye after a motor accident and who was always disturbed by the slightest laugh from anyone.

It chanced one day that this "one-eyed housewife" was drying her palm kernels in the sun—and of course had to keep watch over the heaps of kernel nuts against the fowls and other domestic animals that might come and commit havoc on them. The husband was sitting near by smoking his pipe.

When the sun was descending in the horizon, the woman had to start collecting the nuts once more, and at this moment, three fowls came marching on and started to swallow the kernel nuts.

The woman drove them away several times, but one of the fowls discovered that the woman had lost her right eye and told the rest. "The woman is one-eyed and the deal is ours if we can only attack the nuts from the woman's right corner—for her right eye is gone."

"Bravo, bravo," echoed all the fowls and without further discussion they dashed on the nuts through the right corner and feasted to their satisfaction.

At this time, the man, who had been watching the fowls, could not help laughing at the woman. He laughed until his lungs started to pain him and his laughter made his wife very angry, and she demanded an explanation.

The man, to deceive the woman, told her that it was an old event which whenever it came across his mind always caused him to laugh. But the woman was not convinced. "You are laughing at me, and I cannot live to be laughed at."

The man, afraid that she may give tears of blood, told the whole story to her.

But the man was not supposed to reveal to anyone what the animals mean by their various noises, or else his power to hear and understand them would be taken away and he would die after seven days.

The man, forgetful of this, still revealed the whole thing to his curious and upset wife. Eventually he lost his power of understanding the animal world and their actions, and as written in gold prints in the moral code of the gods, had to die after seven days.

Well now, Mr. Reader, ponder awhile over this incident and think of the story of Adam and Eve. Statistics have shown that events which tantamount to the fall of Adam and Eve happen every day and will continue to happen.

Compare these two events and draw your inferences. The flesh is weak, there is no doubt about this—but man should keep his secrets from all the world. You can thus play the Adam and Eve one day through want of organized approach to previous matters.

Council Adds Five

Five new members have been appointed to the Women's Council by the Dean of Women, Miss Mary Ann Robinson.

The new members include Helen Thomas, Junior, Wilberforce, Ohio; Maralee Strom, junior, Worthington, Minn.; Glee Hoover, freshman, Plattsburg, Mo.; Pat Howell, freshman, Glenview, Ill.; and Velda Schrock, freshman, Harmony, Minn.

The Constitution states that the council consists of fifteen to eighteen members. These five girls have been appointed to replace those who have graduated.

Goldwater Fights For Peace For All

Letters to the editor from students, faculty members, or others are welcomed. All letters must be signed, but the name of the writer need not appear in print. Letters may be submitted to the editor or placed in the campus mail. Contributions do not necessarily reflect the policy or opinion of The Spectator, the administration, or the faculty of McPherson College.

Dear Editor:

Recently, Barry Goldwater, Republican candidate for the President of the United States, spoke at Wichita, and I was privileged to be present.

Among the statements made by Mr. Goldwater was, "We are peace mongers and not war mongers." The Johnson administration wants to cut down on our military strength and also to disband our manned bombers.

I believe that since Mr. Goldwater is a man that has seen war and knows what it was like, he is in a position to assess this position better than Mr. Johnson.

If we would disband our

SNEA Officers To Workshop

On Oct. 10, the officers of the SNEA will be attending the Officer Workshop in Topeka. Those officers going are: Bill Grove, Sr., McPherson; Junior Hindricks, Jr., Kingsley, Iowa; Angie Benton, Sr., Costa Mesa, Calif.; Carol Christy, Sr., Garrison, Iowa; Ellen Sell, Sr., Conway; and Sandy Hoover, Sr., Plattsburg, Mo.

Vida Werner, Sr., Winona, is going as state student KSTA treasurer. Jim Lambert, So., Inman, will represent Macollege on the state handbook committee.

Career Days Begin in Wichita

High School career days for seniors interested in making their college choices began Oct. 5, 6, and 7.

Macollege was represented at the Wichita Schools — Wichita Heights, South High and South East High. All of the Wichita Public High Schools were represented at one of these three places.

Other career days will begin on October 19, at Valley Falls, and in North Central Kansas—Minneapolis, Lincoln, Concordia, Bellville, Beloit, and Osborne on October 27, 28, and 29.

Mr. Robert Keim who is assisting Guy Hayes in admissions work, will be representing McPherson College on some of these college career days.

Many other dates will be added this fall and winter, including coverage in the Denver area and points in Missouri, and Nebraska.

fighting jets, we would be ripe for war. I believe that no man in his right mind wants war. Mr. Goldwater is a man that can save this country from such a war.

Another statement made by Mr. Goldwater in his speech was, "We are not at peace." I believe that truer words were never spoken. The reason I say this is because we have many boys over in Viet Nam and other countries fighting for peace of all people.

What has Mr. Johnson done to help stop the war in Viet Nam? Not a thing that I can see, except to send more American boys over to fight.

Yes, we have to protect this country, but we also have to protect our children from an all-out war. We, the people of the United States, do not know everything that is going on over in Viet Nam. Mr. Goldwater, if elected president, will do something to ease the tension in Viet Nam.

"The President of the United States is the strongest enemy of social security," according to a statement of Mr. Goldwater. If L. B. J. signs the Medicare bill, Social Security will go right down the pipes. I believe that Goldwater has the right idea concerning the Medicare bill and Social Security.

Among the most important of the statements Mr. Goldwater made in his speech was, "Without freedom, we have nothing." Freedom is the most important thing in our freedom-loving lives. It states in the Constitution that all men have the freedom of peace, religion, press, etc.

Do we all have the freedom that is stated in the Constitution? Think about it. Mr. Goldwater, if elected to the presidency, will endeavor to change this back to the way it belongs. Donnie Churchill Big, rugged Nick Petrucci was chosen player of the week last Monday evening by the football squad. Nick got 12 tackles against Southwestern last week. He also has the most tackles so far on the Bulldogs squad.

Nick stands 6'0" and weighs 210. He is majoring in history, but plans to teach special education for retarded children. This semester he is taking guidance, educational psychology, secondary schools principals of teaching secondary education, and metal lathe.

Nick has played football all four years while going to McPherson. He also played football for two years in high school.

Nick played Q.B. for the first three years at McPherson and was known as a strong arm Q.B., but this year he is playing middle guard on defense and is doing an excellent job. Nick is better known as "Mad Dog" by the football squad.

Nick says we have a lot of tough competitors ahead of us, but if we can maintain our "never dying" spirit, this season will be the best he has experienced.

Eight Out for Soccer Team

McPherson College soccer team held their first practice Monday, October 3. Practices are scheduled from 4 to 5 p.m. every day at the Central College soccer field.

Eight players turned out for the first practice which turned into a scrimmage with the Central College team.

The scrimmage went to a 0-0 tie which shows some potential for the MC team who had no prior practice before the game.

Founded in England in 1858, soccer has now progressed to a fast-moving game of skill, concentration, and stamina.

Each team consists of 11 men who play 45 minute halves with substitutions only in case of injury. The main purpose of the game is to score balls by moving the ball to the opponent's netted goal.

Soccer is played on a regulation football field with the goals 8 feet high and 8 yards wide.

Much of the credit for Mac's stout rushing defense this season must go to the middle guard of the front five, Nick Petrucci. Nick came to Maccollege as a 200-lb. quarterback, but became a defensive lineman late last season, and has performed very capably in that position.

So far this year, Nick "Mad Dog" Petrucci has averaged ten tackles per game, tops on the squad. Tom Reazin and Larry Bowman, linebackers, also rank high on the tackle list.

In the KCAC last week, Baker beat C of E 32-21 for the Presbies first loss in 25 league games since 1961; Ottawa rolled over Sterling 33-0; Bethany beat KWU for its first win this year; and lowly Friends jumped up and whalloped Bethel 25-7.

Southwestern barely managed to turn the tide in the final minutes for a 14-7 win over Mc-Pherson. Now the Bulldogs need to keep their sights set on Friends, who should come in "flying pretty high" after beating Bethel.

Baker, Ottawa, and Southwestern now stand as the only unbeaten teams in conference action; C of E is alone at 2-1; Friends, McPherson, Sterling, and Bethany are 1-2, and Bethel and KWU remain winless at 0-3.

All Kansas Conference games this weekend figure to be close except Baker and KWU.

Bechtel Writes Books

Dr. Kenneth C. Bechtel, retiring professor of sociology and language, is presently writing a history of the past twenty years of McPherson College. Also on the agenda for Dr. Bechtel is writing a textbook on the church and social living.

Dr. Bechtel has been collecting material for his textbook for some years. His interests for publishing his textbook originated when he taught the course, Social Life and the Church, and was unable to find a textbook on the subject material. He was encouraged to write a history of the college as a member of the historical committee of the college.

Dr. Bechtel came to McPherson in 1946 and has been head of the Sociology Department during that time.

Following his graduation from Jmjata College, Dr. Bechtel taught high school for three years before entering Presbyterian Theological Seminary in Chicago. After receiving his masters degree he earned his Ph. D. from the University of Chicago, in the area of religious community study.

Social Comm. Hosts "The Informer"

"The Informer", winner of three academy awards, is the film being sponsored by the social committee tonight in Brown Auditorium.

The social committee has decided to let students attend this movie at no cost as long as they present their activity ticket. This generosity is due to the fact that the projector began giving trouble at the climax of the film last week, causing about a ten minute break at a very crucial part of the film.

Georgianna Krehbiel, managing editor for the Spec, finds that headlining stories is no easy job.

Krehbiel Edits Spec Stories

By Doug Rapp
The headline at the beginning of this story and those of the other stories in today's paper took more work to organize than one might imagine.

"You can't confuse 12 point type with 18, nor both with 24... Italics can only be used in certain places... Capitals should be used only when... Letters must be properly spaced in order to..."

Those were the words of Georgianna Krehbiel, sophomore from McPherson, who holds probably one of the toughest three-day jobs on campus, that of Managing Editor for the Spectator.

The job consists basically of correcting stories and organizing headlines, and takes place on the three nights, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, just prior to the printing of Friday's Spectator.

The job pays $150 a semester and gives one valuable knowledge in the field of Journalism which should put Georgianna in good stead when she pursues her ambition of becoming a high school teacher of English, speech and journalism.

At first glance it seems that such a job might be rather dull, but Georgianna or "Georgi" as her friends call her, has other ideas on this subject. "I've found it very exciting! The more I do the more I see I have yet to learn. Besides that, I know everything that goes on around campus."

All three nights involve a lot of work, but Tuesday night is probably the most hectic for it is the last night that copy can be sent to The McPherson Sentinel office where the Spectator is printed.

Sometimes the work is not completed by the 10 o'clock dorm deadline so Georgi and her superior officer, Editor, Carolyn Lehman, senior, Lincoln, Neb., pull up stakes from the Spectator office and move operations to one of their Dot-zour rooms. Here they spend the midnight hours completing the job.

At about 12:30 Tuesday night when work is finished Georgianna can usually be heard to say, "Whew! all this work, I hope somebody reads this." And in this case someone has.

Olt, Nigeria Nurse, Attends Maccollege

By Linda Kurtz
A shock of carrot-red hair, merry blue eyes, and a wide grin characterize Miss Madelaine Olt, sophomore student at Maccollege. However, her red hair is not the only attribute which gives Madelaine a certain distinction.

As well as participating on campus as a student, Madelaine is acting as the college nurse. Her experiences in nursing are somewhat extraordinary since she returned recently from Nigeria, where her duties as a medical missionary kept her moving from one dispensary to another for three years.

So far, Madelaine is enjoying her return to the less dramatic life on a college campus, although she speaks fondly of Nigeria and hopes to go back after receiving a B.S. in nursing. She laughs as she compares her nursing duties at McPherson with those in Nigeria, where anemia, snake bites, elephantiasis, and tropical and nutritional diseases are not uncommon.

Even for as widely-traveled a young woman as Madelaine Olt, the trials of fitting into the pattern of college life are the same as for any other student. Miss Olt states, "For me, coming back to school is a test of my ability to adjust to people, to studying, and to dormitory life."

Bizarre adjustments having been a part of Madelaine's life for the last three years, she will undoubtedly experience little trouble in finding herself.
