A beard-growing contest will be one of the many events to highlight the party. Refreshments will be served and there will be an admission charge.

Grant Given To College

The federal government has approved a grant of $3,173 to improve and strengthen the psychology department at McPherson College. The grant was provided under Title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 and the College is required to match this amount.

The funds, totaling $6,346.60, will be used to set up a psychology laboratory which will contain tapes, recorders, a lie detector, projectors and other equipment.

"This is a fine example of how federal funds are helping church-related Kansas colleges move ahead," Dr. Lewis Young, head of the psychology department, said.

He pointed out that two years ago the psychology department had no laboratory equipment. The new laboratory will enable students to learn from actual case studies and actual experiences in the world of psychology.

Demonstrations will be possible in several areas including those of perception, emotion, learning, conditioning and reaction time.

Green Will Teach English

Bob R. Green, academic dean at Central College, McPherson, will come to McPherson College as assistant professor in English next year.

Green, who has been academic dean at Central since 1962, has also served there as dean of men and as instructor in English. He came to the junior college in 1960.

A native of Nebraska, Green attended Central College and went on to Seattle Pacific College where he received his AB degree. He received his MA degree at Kansas State Teachers College in Emporia.

Green is assistant choir director and a member of the Official Board of the Free Methodist Church of McPherson. Mr. and Mrs. Green have two children, Lucia and Michael.

Metzler Hall Will Open

Doors to Public, April 23

Metzler Hall, a home away from home for 158 men, will hold its Open House, Sunday, April 23, 2-4:30 p.m. Mrs. Marguerite Westfall, housemother since the dorm first opened in 1963, cordially extends an invitation to the public.

Metzler Hall was dedicated and named after Dr. Burton Metzler, former professor of philosophy and religion.

Open House is under the direction of the House Council, comprised of Craig Miller, Jr., Waterloo, Iowa, president; Eugene Roth, soph, Boiling Springs, Pa., secretary; and Jim Haldeman, soph, Mannheim, Pa., treasurer; and the six floor advisers.

The six proctors are: first floor, Roth and Jerry Lankford, Jr., Mincola, second floor, John Lane, fr, Piqua, Ohio, and Richard Burger, soph, Perryton, Texas; third floor, Miller and Dwight Ediger, jr, Buhler, Lane and Burger are head of the Decorations Committee.

Roth remarked, "It gives the girls a chance to see the boys' dorm."

"I thought it (last year's Open House) was very good," added Les Shenefelt, soph, Navarre. "It gives people a chance to quell their curiosity of what the place is really like. It also gives the guys an excuse to clean the place up."

'Show Your Humorous Side' Is Bennett Cerf's Philosophy

By MARGE KECK

"I am first, second, and third a publisher. Everything else is icing on the cake." Spoken by Bennett Cerf in a pre-lecture interview last Monday evening, these words reflect the dedication of a man who knew, at the age of 15, that he wanted to become a book publisher.

Cerf, who is chairman of the board at Random House, Inc., thinks that every youth should have a goal in mind before he enters high school. This goal may be flexible, but should not shut out other interests.

When asked if he tried his jokes out on his family, Cerf laughed and replied, "Yes. If they laugh at them, I throw them out!"

Cerf feels that American writers are miles ahead of any other writers. But then, American culture is miles ahead of any other culture.

The trend in American contemporary literature, according to Cerf, is "Dirty!" He thinks that this will soon spend itself as the thrill of seeing sex scenes and four-letter words will wear off.

The market for filth will die, but filth does have its place on the market, as does every other type of fiction.

Random House publishes books that give every point of view of a subject. Last year, they published seven of the overall twenty best sellers. The two books of the year, "The Source" and "In Cold Blood" were Random House publications.

Cerf's idea of a successful person is one who has known how to take advantage of breaks. He may have had the same breaks that every one else had, but because he knew what to do with them, he became successful.

At the lecture in Brown Auditorium, Cerf stressed, "If you develop a humorous side you can get along with anyone. A laughing remark can get you out of a tough situation if you're with the right people."

Concerning censorship, Cerf objects to self-appointed censors. These are the people who have made many books best sellers because they called these books dirty. The books that will live, however, are the decent ones. Plagiarism is another problem in the book publishing business. It may take awhile, but a plagiarist always gets caught.

For the past 17 years Cerf has been a regular panelist on the television show "What's My Line?" Through this show, he has had the chance to witness all kinds of human nature.

Swede Dancers Will Perform

Swedish dancers, under the direction of Elizabeth Jaderborg, instructor in English, will perform in convocations Thursday, April 27, at 9 a.m.

The 32 members of Lindsborg High School have appeared in various festivals in the area, and are scheduled to perform at Expo 67 in Montreal.

PRESS CONFERENCE can be fun! Bennett Cerf and Marge Keck, Spectator reporter, seemed to enjoy the one held in the Student Union before Mr. Cerf's address.

Cerf ended his lecture by sharing a thought Will Rogers once told him. This concerned the three things in life that can save one from anything.

"First, work hard." This means work hard for one's own satisfaction, not to please the boss or anyone else. "Think Big" was the second factor. Put thoughts up in the stars, and then go after them.

"Have a dream" is the last factor. Keep referring to this dream throughout your life so that you don't ever forget it.

Following his lecture, Cerf was guest of honor at a reception in the Student Union. Here he signed autographs, met with people, and gaily posed for pictures. "An Evening with Bennett Cerf" had come to a close, but many people were left somewhat thrilled to have heard Cerf speak.

Lab, Lecture Sessions Will Provide Radioisotope Training for Participants

By DIANE WARNKE

A mobile radioisotope laboratory will be operating at McPherson College from April 24 to May 4, announced Leslie Fraley, assistant professor of physics.

The laboratory, operated by Oak Ridge Associated Universities (ORAU), works in connection with the United States Atomic Energy Commission and is an important part of the program to provide training in the radioisotope field for small colleges.

The Association operates three mobile radioisotope laboratories that visit about 40 colleges during the academic year. The

Lab Renovation Plans

Dr. Wesley DeCoursey, professor of chemistry, reports that the east chemistry laboratory will soon be refurbished.

New lights, floors, desks, and equipment will be added. In addition to these improvements, two new offices will be built for faculty members.

The renovation will begin as soon as funds permit. The Administration, however, has not made a final decision as to when work will begin.

The Science Department has nearly completed renovation of the west chemistry laboratory. Also, the lecture room has been furnished with new seats.

labs provide training for both students and faculty members.

The program includes laboratory sessions, which are held in the traveling unit, and lecture sessions, which are given in the classrooms or lecture halls of the College.

Two laboratory sessions and one lecture session can thus be conveniently held for 12 to 16 participants each day. All professors in the Science Department, as well as instructors from nearby schools, will attend these lectures.

The well-rounded series of laboratory experiments and lectures cover the basic counting techniques and applications of radioisotopes in the fields of physics, chemistry, and biology.

A typical course pattern consists of a 90-minute lecture five days a week, with two lab sessions of two hours length each scheduled at convenient times during the day.

After a general introduction to radiation, atomic structure, and nuclear processes, lectures are given on such subjects as radiation detection, carbon-14, radiation and health physics, and radiochemical separations.

Experiments in the lab include Geiger counters and scaling systems, identifying an unknown radioisotope, carbon-14 assay, and phosphorus distribution in rats.

McPherson College is fortunate to be selected for the mobile lab. A selection committee reviews all applications and selects those schools that have few or no graduate offerings.

ORAU provides the mobile lab, instruction, all equipment, and most supplies. The colleges are asked to supply electrical power for the unit, classroom space for the lectures, and rats for a biology experiment.

The mobile unit was built at a cost of $75,000. It has a counting room, chemistry lab, office space, two air-conditioning and heating systems, its own water supply, and a storage locker for radioisotopes.

There will be three lecturers at McPherson. Lee Anthony, who will lecture here April 24-28, has a Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin in biochemistry. He is associate professor of chemistry at the University of Florida.

Huey Barnett, who will lecture April 24-May 5, has a B.S. from Florence State College in chemistry and zoology. He will also act as lab instructor.

David Anthony will lecture May 1-4. He has a Ph.D. in physics from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and is associate professor of physics and acting dean at Roanoke College.

The mobile lab will be at Hastings College, Hastings, Nebraska, before coming to McPherson. After its stay here, the lab will go to Friends University in Wichita.

Death Verdict Has No Utility

In a murder trial at Hutchinson this week, 102 jurors had to be questioned before 36 were finally qualified to serve. Most of those disqualified had voiced objections to the death penalty.

More and more the question of "legalized murder" troubles the conscience of thinking individuals. Thirteen states have already abolished the death penalty and bills for abolishment were introduced in 18 state legislatures this year.

Only five of those bills still live, but an Illinois House committee has approved a six-year moratorium on the death penalty and a proposal to submit repeal of the death penalty to the vote of the people now awaits legislative action in California.

After studying, writing and speaking on the question of the death penalty since 1954, Gerald H. Gottlieb, a California attorney and member of the U.S. Supreme Court, has concluded that "capital punishment has no effect and no utility."

"It so happens," he states, "that it's more expensive to prosecute toward the death penalty and to maintain Death Rows than to let people live out their lives in prison."

"I came to the conclusion that the principle that life shall not be taken without necessity creates an imperative to abolish capital punishment."

Appreciation and valuation of life itself must eventually cause this question to be tested in the Kansas courts.

Surely society can be protected without this degradation of humanity.

Chairman Says Respect Grass

Editor:

As Chairman of the Campus Improvements Committee, I have heard many complaints lately about students walking on the grass instead of on the sidewalks.

If one would inspect the different areas of the campus, he would find that this concern is legitimate.

In many places where there once was green grass, there is now a dirt path. And even though this problem is clearly apparent, it is continually getting worse.

At this time of the year it is very easy to take shortcuts across the grass; but we must realize that an attitude of disrespect taken by everyone on campus will lead to hideous results.

A person who continually cuts across the grass, and contributes to the destruction of the campus, is reflecting the lazy and immature characteristics of his personality.

When practicing ball, the football field is the most appropriate place. It was designed specifically for this type of recreation.

Practicing on the campus lawns will only lead to the destruction of their desirable characteristics.

Respect is something earned not given. If we all cooperate in helping to keep the campus beautiful, we will enjoy it more and gain the respect of visitors.

Women Plan Barn Dance

Editor:

The annual Women's Council old-fashioned Barn Dance is planned for Saturday, April 22, 8:30-11:30 p.m.

This affair is a girl-ask-boy arrangement. And girls, there are many, many potential barn dancers available on McPherson campus!

No one need know how to "barn dance" beforehand; you will learn along with everyone else. The learning is one-third of the fun, the second third of the fun is dancing after you've learned and enjoying the other entertainment planned for the evening's program.

Hearty refreshments are important for hardy barn dancers, and the food promises to provide the last part of an unforgettable fun evening.

Class Studies Writing

In the Creative Writing Class, taught by Loren Reyher, assistant professor in English and theater, students study and compose various forms of writing.

The essay is the foundation of the course, and description, expression, and observation are stressed. At least ten essays are written by the students.

The elements and form of the story are also studied, and students are required to submit three short stories of varying length.

Poetry is also studied. Each student must write ten poems, consisting of three sonnets, one poem each of iambic, trochaic, dactylic, and anapestic, two poems in blank or free verse, and one major poem. This major poem is a summation of the study of poetry and is fairly lengthy.

The one-act play and the elements of drama are also studied. The final project of the class is to submit a one-act play that is between 15 and 20 minutes playing time.

Prof. Reyher feels that the course is valuable because it enables the student to learn to express his ideas and opinions.

It also expands his ability to observe and his sensitivity.

The Creative Writing class is open only to upper level students. Since it is a requirement for a major in English, most students are English majors.

The course is offered only every other year.

Sportscaster Predicts Cincinnati as NL Victor

By GENE CZAPLINSKI

When the Major Leagues opened play this week, new faces brightened the hopes of over half of the teams in the big leagues.

Most of these men came via the shrewd trading route of eager general managers. This makes it double tough to pick pennant winners. We picked Los Angeles last year, but missed on Baltimore.

The board of Publications shall review each year the present financial status.

Mauer Teaches Dancing In Preparation for May Fete

By DEE NORTHEY

Lise Mauer, soph, Red Bank, N. J., is choreographer of three McPherson Jr. High School groups for the annual May Fete in McPherson.

May Fete, under the general direction of Mrs. Robert Pritchard for the second year, is a coronation program for the Royal Court of seven county high school queens and prince charming, Wednesday-Thursday, May 17-18, 6:30 p.m., at the band shell.

"Dreams Come True," is the theme of the May Day Parade the following day which will display 40-50 floats, 25-30 marching bands and numerous drill teams.

Miss Mauer is teaching a variety of dances to seventh-ninth graders and baton twirling to six girls to perform in the parade.

Mrs. Pritchard designs the costumes and mothers of the children make them.

The McPherson queen and maid of honor are chosen by popular vote of the senior class and the prince charming by the faculty.

After a processional across the band shell, the Royal Court will view the program from on-stage thrones.

The May Day Parade will be highlighted by the SAK Band, the official Air Force Band from Nebraska.

Beta Omicron, a chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha, is in charge of the May Fete queens' float.

The McPherson Art Department is helping paint backdrops for the festival dances.

About 40 seventh graders will dance to "Open A New Window" from the New York musical comedy, "Mame," and then wind the May poles with nine-foot crepe streamers. The custom of May pole winding began in France as a spring event.

A jazz-ballet type dance set to "Happy Talk," from South Pacific, is being taught to the eighth grade group by Miss Mauer. She is also teaching a chorus-line number.

By LINDA KURTZ

A vicious rumor and its effect on four persons set the stage for cuttings from Robert Anderson's "Tea and Sympathy," a laboratory theater presentation Tuesday, April 25 in Brown Auditorium.

Directed by Peggy Slater, soph, Denver, the play slams modern man's fear of what others will think about unconventional attitudes or actions.
