Personal friend of Frost relates motivations of poets

By JAN PYLE
With respectful silence three audiences listened to Dr. Paul Engle, Director of the International Writing Program at the University of Iowa in Iowa City. On Nov. 15 he spoke to the English majors and students in English classes about Robert Frost, whom he knew as a personal friend. Frost was not presented as a stereotyped bookish man, but rather as a strong-minded man, devoid of self pity.

Since poetry comes out of a man's life and emotions, Frost had plenty to write about.

His children either died, turned against him or committed suicide.

A jealous man Frost loved success and disliked the poets whom he felt were rivals.

About writing poetry, Frost once said, "Never do it to pay a bill because you probably won't."

Much of his life, Frost had a recurring nightmare, which left him unable to sleep. Consequently, he was a great walker, in part out of fright.

Engle brought a sensitive film of Frost, part of which was filmed at John F. Kennedy's inauguration.

At the Nov. 16 Convocation, Engle discussed creative writing. "Poetry is really not just the life of a poet, but your life put into language in a special way," Engle began.

The poet puts intense language down so the reader can feel what he felt.

Because poetry moves beyond the actual facts, he stated, "There is more truth in poetry than in truth."

The secret of expressive writing is to be consumed with emotion, yet to have an overwhelming need for control of the emotions.

True emotion must be shaped to move the reader," Engle related. Poetry is concrete rather than conceptual. The poet takes the natural rhythm of language and tightens it.

So poetry is the "heightened experience of everyday in the tightened language of everyday."

Poetry does not describe, it proves.

Engle further explained that any idea that moves a poet can be a subject for a poem. From the fullness, not the remoteness of life, poetry comes.

Engle concluded that the accurate, expressive word is preferred over the fancy word.

At 1:30 p.m. Thursday Engle spoke to Mrs. Homer E. Brunk's Reporting class on the nature of writing.

"The writing is peculiar to the subject and the job it has to do, so the approach must be suited to the job," Engle stated.

In a good, clear simple sentence, the writer must know the best way to say what he wants to say.

Engle erased the misconception about fancy writing when he said, "Writing is not elaborate language, just the best way to say something."

"The wastebasket is important. The temptation of the amateur is to use too many words," Engle said.

"Write over and over. Revise the vision and revise the revision, so the conscious mind can work on the unconscious motivations."

German Club to give program

The annual McPherson College German Christmas program will be given at the Church of the Brethren Sunday, Dec. 3, at 7:30 p.m.

"Carols will be sung in English as well as German," Jean McLane, Jr., assistant professor of German, said, "but the rest of the program will be entirely in German."

Besides carols, the program will include the reading of German poems and readings from the Bible.

McLane and Mike Ziemann, sr., Berlin, Germany, have been working together to present as authentic a German Christmas program as they can — complete with Christmas tree.

"The program was well received last year," Ziemann, said, explaining that the church was well-filled.

Under the direction and sponsorship of the College German classes, the program is open to the public.

"Such a thing as this not only gives the German students a chance to put the language to practical use," said McLane, "but it also presents the opportunity for others to exercise their ability to speak it and hear it spoken."

Eight students attend prayer breakfast at KSU

Sausage, ham, eggs, coffee, cake, and doughnuts were served Saturday to 200 students at the annual Student Leader Prayer Breakfast.

Eight McPherson students attended the breakfast at Kansas State University, Manhattan.

The purpose of the breakfast, sponsored by the student body president of KSU, was "for students to take time to ponder their relationship to a Supreme Being."

Three speakers talked on how the student's life should reflect the relationship to a Supreme Being.

Ed Cates from Emporia State

Teachers College represented the student's view.

An educator's view was presented by Dr. Chester Peters, vice-president of KSU.

The Honorable Frank Carlson, Republican Senator from Kansas also spoke.

After the speeches, the students gathered into small groups for an hour and forty-five minutes of discussion.

Brunk receives citation award

Mrs. Homer E. Brunk, associate professor of English and journalism, has received a 1967 State Citation of Commendation for her achievement as a yearbook adviser.

The citation, awarded by the National Council of College Publications Advisers, reads as follows:

"Mrs. Sarah May Brunk, McPherson College yearbook adviser, is hereby commended for achievement and endeavor as a faculty adviser. The National Council of College Publications and Advisers enjoins you, your students and others to emulate and continue this high level of achievement."

Winter Formal will be Dec. 2

The first formal dance of the academic year, the Winter Formal, will be Dec. 2 at 8 p.m. in the Student Union.

Tuxedos are suggested for the men and long evening gowns for the women.

The Art Club will decorate for the formal and choose the theme.

Admission will be one dollar per couple.

Hayes accepts applications for different scholarships

By JUDY HILL

Applications for scholarships to McPherson College are now being accepted by Guy Hayes, director of financial aids. Several different kinds of scholarships are offered:

Competitive honor scholarships are available to entering freshmen. The scholarships have a total value of $600-2500 each. They are four-year scholarships with $150-625 available each year.

A "B" average must be maintained to qualify for the maximum value of the scholarship.

Students in the top 10 percent of their high school graduating classes may receive high school merit awards, which are worth $500.

High test scores and upper quartile of class rank may give a student a $400 award. No try-outs are necessary for these awards.

A number of merit awards with a total value of $250 each are available to students in the top 10 per cent of Junior College graduating classes or to transfer students from a 4-year college.

Nursing education scholarships are also available.

Applications and arrangements for a try-out date are necessary for a student to receive a music award. Awards worth $400-200 are available to any entering freshman at McPherson College.

In the past few years the music awards have been increased to encourage high quality talent at McPherson College.

Music awards are given with recommendation from the music faculty.

In order to apply for any scholarships or awards, a student must complete a scholarship application blank and mail it to the College.

He should request his high school principal or counselor to mail a copy of his seven-semester transcript and the ACT and/or SAT scores.

A personal interview must also be arranged.

Competitive scholarships are given on the basis of four things: the grades a student made and the rank in his graduating class, the personal interview, ACT scores, and scores on other standardized tests.

Last year 71 scholarships were given to students. Fifty-seven scholarships were given to high school seniors for their academic achievements. Three bank scholarships were given. Seven transfer students received scholarships.

New scholarships were granted to students from 11 states this year. These states were Kansas, Iowa, California, Illinois, Colorado, Minnesota, Idaho, New Mexico, Ohio and Arizona.

Spiritual adviser to speak at Nov. 30 Convocation

Rabbi Herman E. Schaalman, spiritual adviser for Congregation Emanuel in Chicago, is scheduled to speak at the Nov. 30 Convocation at 9 a.m.

"The Contribution of Prophetic Religion to Democracy" is his announced topic.

The rabbi was born in Munich, Germany, and came to the United States in 1935 on a scholarship to Hebrew Union College, a Jewish institute of religion. He graduated and was ordained from the college, and won a graduate scholarship in philosophy.

Presently, besides being spiritual leader of Temple Emanuel, he is director of the Chicago Federation of the Union of Rabbi Herman E. Schaalman.

American Hebrew Congregations.

Rabbi Schaalman lectures on college campuses under the auspices of the Jewish Chautauqua Society, an organization which works to create better understanding of Jews and Judaism through education. JCS is sponsored by the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods.

At Garrett Biblical Institute in Evanston, Ill., he teaches a JCS Resident Lectureship.

Previously, he served a congregation in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

While there, he was a member of the faculty of Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa, and Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

In 1947, he received a civic award from the city of Cedar Rapids.

High school seniors will visit campus

Friday, Nov. 24, will be Senior Day On Campus. This day is set aside for all interested high school seniors to visit McPherson College and to make decisions about attending.

The high school students may visit classrooms, professors, McPherson College students, dormitories, and the Student Union. Lunch will be served to the seniors in the Student Union Cafeteria.

The admissions office accepted reservations through Nov. 20.

Home Ec Club plans to spread Yule cheer by baking, decorating

The Home Economics Chapter of McPherson College is planning to spread Christmas cheer by making cookies, candies, and tree decorations during its Dec. 4 meeting and by decorating the tree and the lobby of The Cedars Dec. 9.

Karen Allen, fr. Perry, Iowa, is in charge of making cookies and candies. Tree decorations will be made under the direction of Marcia Bryan, fr. Canton.

The women are selling Christmas cards for their money-making project.

The Fifteenth Annual Fall Meeting of Kansas Home Economics College Chapters was Nov. 11 at Kansas State College of Pittsburg. About 100 women representing 16 colleges in the state attended.

The theme for the Conference was "Home Economics at Home in the World." A symposium and discussion groups discussed the role of home economists in working with families in countries other than the United States.

Those attending the State Meeting were Glenice Miller, Christina Flory, Jean Kwok, Janice Howell, Lilli Ann Wivell, Paula Sassel, and Miss Mildred Siek, professor of home economics and sponsor of the Home Economics Chapter.

Are you an idol worshiper?

For many years the scripture pertaining to idols and foreign gods seemed to me to be speaking only to ancient people, or to the people of an undeveloped culture—certainly not to us. However, it has been brought to my attention that Americans may have more idols than did the neighbors of the ancient Israelites! Let's take a look at some of the idols which are worshipped on our campus.

One of our idols is named "Brain." Students bow before this idol and pray, "Give us grades sufficient to make the honor roll. We will stay home from church to study. We will write notes on the backs of our hands before every examination. We will pay $5 for a term paper which some honor student has written so we do not have to write one ourselves."

A second idol is named "Book." His followers dare not dispute the written word, whether it be the syllabus of a professor, the book of "Robert's Rules of Order," or the Bible. The Book is a strict master who demands unswerving loyalty with no questions asked.

A third idol is named "Rule." He stands for peace. His worshippers want things as they are—no demonstrations, no smoking on campus, no sloppy dressers at Sunday noon meals, no more than one Convocation cut, no gambling, and etc.

A fourth idol is named "Bar." Worshippers of this idol run to him whenever their burdens become so heavy that they just can't carry them any more. A student with unfinished homework or a person who has stacks of papers or term projects to do may bow down and worship this god.

These are only a few of the many gods which are worshipped on the McPherson campus and other campuses throughout the United States. What will be the reply when those who are devoted to these idols become deeply distressed and cry to God for help?

Gates, Levi teach Sunday School

Two students are teaching Sunday School at the McPherson First Presbyterian Church as a part of their problems courses in children's art work.

Cliff Gates, sr., Alexandria, Va., is teaching kindergarten classes. Chris Levi, sr., Berryville, Va., is teaching in the junior department.

The men work with teams of teachers who are members of the church. There are four or five teachers on each team. A monthly staff meeting is held to plan lessons, and the men participate in these.

A major part of the program is observing the children's art work. The men report their observations to their instructor, Miss Mary Ann Robinson, assistant professor of art, in weekly meetings. Other course requirements include reading and research. The men have attended several retreats and have heard lectures on child psychology.

Miss Robinson commented, "The Education Department of the church has been extremely pleased with their work. It feels the boys are naturals with children."

"The men do part of their work in relation to course requirements," Miss Robinson stated, "but it is obvious that they are also interested in it."

The problems courses in children's art are open only to upperclassmen. Special permission must be given to students in the classes to teach Sunday School.

Coed displays unusual talents despite congenital defects to arms, hands

By LARRY MARCELLUS

"I don't feel sorry for myself," she said as she reached up with her right foot to open the oven door. "I do get frustrated at times because I can't do something I really want to do."

With that she dropped a box of matches she had been holding between her near-lifeless hands to the floor and deftly opened the box. She took out a match, lit it and placed it to the light-hole of the oven. She then turned on the gas, waited until the oven lighted, retrieved the unburned portion of the match, and closed the oven door—all with her feet.

Jean Keith, sr., Chicago, was born with a congenital defect and has almost no use of her arms and hands. She is able to be self-sufficient, however, by the use of her feet and mouth. Not only is she able to dress herself, but she can also write well by placing a pen between her teeth, use a typewriter, and knit. She is a pretty good cook, also.

Beginning with nursery school and continuing through high school in her hometown of Chicago, Jean attended schools for the handicapped. Since her arms and hands are all but useless, one of the more difficult everyday jobs Jean had to conquer was that of dressing herself.

Her father, William C. Keith, sr., designed a pole with a double hook on it which reaches Jean at about her waist. The pole is attached to a board on which she stands while dressing herself. Using her mouth she places a piece of wearing apparel on one of the hooks and then moves herself into her clothing. She makes a wide use of zippers, also, which is a big help to her.

While preparing a brownie mix, Jean went about adding an egg and three tablespoons of water before firmly grasping a spoon in her mouth to blend the mixture. She placed the mixing bowl on a chair, held it there with body pressure and her arms while she mixed the batter.

When she had placed the completed brownie mix into the oven, she said she disliked having others trying to help her.

A sociology major, Jean is preparing for social work. Her plans call for working in the Cook County, Illinois, Department of Public Aid as a case worker. She also wants to continue her education and go into psychiatric case work after gaining a master's degree in social work.

Last summer she worked for the Cook County Department of Public Aid as a case worker in the slums of Chicago. She enjoyed her work very much and said of it, "I was well received by (the recipients) because they can identify with me." Having received help through the department herself, she said she felt at ease encouraging other handicapped people she talked with and explaining the various programs available to them.

In one home she visited, Jean was surprised to find a young man with whom she had attended a school for the handicapped. He was receiving social welfare payments as his livelihood, but after visits and encouragement by Jean he is now eager to get out and do something constructive with his life.

It is little wonder she can readily encourage others, Jean radiates vivacity and her enthusiasm is infectious. She shares a cooperative apartment in Kline Hall with Carolyn Runyan, Jr., Nickerson and they are frequently visited by other girls during class-free periods.

The youngest of three children in her family, Jean is the only one with a birth defect. She had a difficult time maintaining her balance when she was younger and it was not until she was a senior in high school that she began to feel comfortably confident of herself. Her parents encouraged her to prepare herself for a life of normal living, and this was her greatest influence.

"I really became independent during my freshman year in college," she said, and then explained that she took her freshman year at Illinois University. This is her second year at McPherson College.

Jean plucked a hot pot holder from a towel rack with her teeth, dropped it to the floor and retrieved it with her right toes. She then opened the oven door with her foot, dropped the holder and picked a knife up between her toes and with it checked to see if the brownies were done. She decided they were.

Moving the pan to the edge of the oven with her foot, Jean plucked another hot pan holder from the rack with her teeth, retrieved the pan from the oven and placed it on the counter. "I've only burned my mouth once," she said with a wide grin.

When asked what sort of message she would give to others who are handicapped she said this: "It's wonderful to be quote, normal, unquote, and do things on your own."

With that she passed hot brownies around to her visitors who unanimously proclaimed them delicious.

Ag. Club discusses the Hereford breed

The future of the Hereford breed was the subject discussed at the Nov. 8 meeting of the McPherson College Agricultural Club.

Richard Overholt, McPherson, a member of the American Hereford Association, spoke to the club on the Hereford breed.

The next meeting of the club will be during the first week of December. Plans for the program are not final.

Eighteen alumni act as relations sounding board

A group of 18 McPherson College alumni acted as a sounding board for alumni relations Nov. 11.

They registered in Friendship Hall and, following a general session led by Dr. J. Jack Melhorn, president of the College, and Paul Wagoner, associate director of development, were divided into two discussion groups.

Each section was given a prepared list of questions about the College Alumni program. The list served as a prompter for discussion and further questions and suggestions.

Questions covered how alumni can help procure students and funds for the College, how alumni can best be informed and how the college can best prepare students for society.

This was the second of two alumni conferences which have been held on campus. Nineteen attended the first which was earlier in the fall. A total of 115 were originally invited to the two conferences.

Suggestions for representative alumni were given by the alumni board and the administrative staff.

Many vocations were represented. All but three of those invited were from Kansas. Many could not come because of previous commitments.

The conferences were not an attempt to come to any decisions or determine policies. They were rather opportunities for alumni and administration to exchange suggestions for improving the program.

They were part of a projected program which will invite other groups of related persons to the campus to discuss their relationship with the College.

JEAN KEITH. Because her hands are nearly lifeless, Jean Keith, sr., Chicago, has mastered the art of writing with a pen in her mouth.

Professional meetings will be attended by faculty members

Many faculty members attended various professional meetings throughout the year.

Vernon Friesen, assistant professor of mathematics, and Jesse Krebbiel, associate professor of mathematics, attended a state mathematics meeting last weekend.

The National Convention of Teachers of Mathematics met Nov. 17-18 in Kansas City.

Miss Luisa Pequeno, instructor in French, will be attending a series of language conferences in Chicago Dec. 27-29. Mrs. Monroe Hughbanks, assistant professor of languages, is also considering attending the meetings.

Three associations will be meeting separately. These groups are the Modern Language Association, the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese, and the Association of Foreign Language Teachers.

The three groups will combine for a final session.

Prof. Dirksen will return second semester

Dennis A. Dirksen, assistant professor in industrial arts education, will return to the College second semester after being on leave of absence for three semesters.

He has been attending Utah State University and is expecting to complete work on his doctorate in industrial arts.

Other colleges attended while working on his doctorate include the University of Arizona, Arizona State, and Texas A. & M. U.

Prof. Dirksen received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the College in 1960 and his Master of Science degree in industrial arts at Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia.

Previous teaching experience includes the school systems of Sunnyside, Wash., and Tucson, Ariz.

Second semester he will be teaching General Metals, Architectural Drawing, Metal Lathe, and Machine Tools Operations. Machine Tool Operations will be an evening course.

Prof. Dirksen's wife, the former Sherland Ng, has a master's degree in English from KSTC.

The Dirksens have two children, Thad and Nancy.

13 men students act as 'big brother' to parole boys

By SUSAN PIERSON

In an attempt to prove that someone really does care, 13 McPherson College students are acting as "big brothers" to a group of boys who are on parole to McPherson County probate officer, Lloyd Zook.

Sponsored by McPherson College YM-YWCA, the Big Brothers Program works on a one-to-one basis with the boys who have been involved with juvenile courts.

At their meetings every Friday evening the men try to get each youth involved with the group.

Mike Fox, sr, Valley Center, who coordinates the activities with Mr. Zook, explained that the object of the program is "to establish real friendships" with the boys.

"Many come from broken homes," Fox stated. "They feel like nobody cares. Our objective is to let them know that somebody is concerned with each one of them as a person."

The Big Brother Program got its start last March when Fox, who had been interested in forming the organization, confronted Zook with the possibility.

Because of the very nature of their involvement, each prospective "big brother" is subject to careful screening before he is asked to join.

Acting as wards of the court, the men must meet certain qualifications to insure the confidence which has been placed in them.

"It's pretty hard to tell if we're accomplishing anything," Fox said. "It's a slow process, but we're doing all we can."

Cafeteria plans turkey dinner

Students who are not able to go home for Thanksgiving will still have an opportunity to have a traditional Thanksgiving dinner.

The cafeteria is planning a buffet dinner for students and guests. Turkey and dressing, cranberry sauce, and pumpkin and mince-meat pie are on the menu.

Meat trays, assorted salads, baked ham and yams, roast beef, Irish potatoes, Clam Newberg, Italian green beans, buttered corn, hot rolls and chocolate pie will also be served.

Serving will start at 4:30 and will continue until 6 p.m. Guests will be charged $1.75 plus tax.

There will be no classes Thanksgiving day. The library, Mohler Hall and Harnly Hall will be closed for the day. The campus switchboard will also be closed.

Classes will resume Friday, Nov. 24. After Thanksgiving, there will be only 14 remaining days of classes.

Stuco appoints Lusk delegate to FS of ACCK

Rodney Lusk, soph. Rocky Ford, Colo., was appointed voting delegate to the Federated Students of the Associated Colleges of Central Kansas for the remainder of the year by the Student Council Nov. 8.

Each ACCK college is allowed two voting representatives to the student organization. McPherson's other delegate is Mike Fox, sr, Valley Center.

The next FS of ACCK meeting is Dec. 2 at Bethel College in Newton. There will be a KCSA (Kansas Conference Student Association) meeting the same day, at Friends University in Wichita.

Other Council attention was given to:

1. Dress code campaign. The campaign purpose is to inform students that there is a dress code and to inform them about action which may be taken if they are dissatisfied with the dress conditions on campus.

2. College dances. The school policy for College sponsored dances is that attendance be limited to College students and their dates.

3. Academic Affairs Committee recommendations. The committee is planning to present two recommendations to the Educational Policies Committee.

a. That the Educational Policies Committee suggest to the professors that student assistants not be present while a professor is counseling with a student.

b. That a math requirement be included in the general tribution requirements.

4. College Courts telephone. Jean Keith, sr, Chicago, Chairman of the Campus Improvements Committee, reported the cost of installation would be $1 and $3.60 per month thereafter. This matter is still being investigated.

'Anatomy of Murder' will be shown Friday in Brown Auditorium

James Stewart, Lee Remick and Ben Gazzara star in "Anatomy of a Murder," which will be shown Friday, Dec. 1 at 8 p.m. in Brown Auditorium.

Drawn from the best-selling novel by Chief Justice John Voelker, Michigan Supreme Court, this courtroom drama, which rape and murder are prosecuted, has much to say about trial by jury.

Although a few scenes concern the language dealing with legal technicalities of rape, attitude towards sex remains faultless.

In this courtroom situation the characters speak in the way the court demands they speak in the way they personally wish.

Distinguishing between law and pure justice, the clarity of the courtroom scene protects it from any possible indecency.

The Social Committee will request a donation of 50 cents

Melhorn on committee, will review BVS, AS

Dr. J. Jack Melhorn, president of McPherson College, is one of nine members who have been appointed to serve on a study committee conducting a major review of Brethren Volunteer Service and Alternative Service.

Representative of the Brotherhood, this study committee was formed under the authorization of the General Brotherhood Board of the Church of the Brethren, following a request submitted by BVS.

Completed assignments by the committee include the following: a brief survey of the opinions of some outstanding social scientists on the place and value of volunteer service;

A letter survey of some former BVS participants on their judgment of the critical issues involved; interviews of selected government officials on volunteer programs.

A review of literature and research on volunteer service; and a compilation of statistical and program summaries on BVS during the last 20 years.

Detailed 16-page questionnaires have been sent to 409 churches, the Elgin staff, BVS training staff, project directors, and 400 former BVSers.

Tabulated responses of the questionnaires will be analyzed at the third meeting of the committee in January.

By the middle of February, 1969, the final draft of the report, including the analysis of the questionnaire material, should be submitted to the General Brotherhood Board.

Yuletide travelers may consult travel map in SU for rides

Persons looking for rides home or riders home at Christmas may consult the travel map on the lower floor of the Student Union.

Those wishing to use the service may write their names on slips of paper provided.

The Campus Improvements Committee of Student Council, headed by Jean Keith, sr, Chicago, plans to replace the present map with a large printed map with even small towns listed.

The new map will be covered with a hard plastic and pegs will be put through the plastic for students to hang the slips of paper on.

Miss Keith said that the purpose of the map was to "help riders who need rides find drivers who need riders."

Bloodmobile is visiting many colleges in Kansas

The Red Cross Bloodmobile is currently visiting many college campuses in Kansas.

McPherson College students donated 149 pints of blood Oct. 31 as compared with the 130 donated last year.

Circle K sponsored the Bloodmobile this year with Denny Dahlquist, sr, Alexandria, Va., as chairman. The Home Economics Chapter served the meal.

Bethany college students donated 143 pints of blood Nov. 9 to the Red Cross Bloodmobile in their annual "Bleed-in."

The project was the result of the combined efforts of Bethany's student body president, John Rogge, Lindsay, and Bill Forbes, Kansas Wesleyan student body president, Salina. Although Bethany had 167 donors, 44 were not accepted for various reasons.

Kansas Wesleyan students will donate blood later this month, and the school with the higher percentage of donors, compared with enrollment will receive a traveling trophy.

McPherson College and KWU compete to see which can donate the larger number of pints of blood.
