BY LINDA DEAN

Spring vacation will officially begin at 5 p.m. tomorrow, and after the serving of the last meal and the closing of the dormitories on Saturday noon, McPherson College students will have left for many parts of the country.

One group of students, accompanied by Dr. Galen Snell, dean of men, will be making a trip to the Grand Canyon in Arizona.

Judy Ketcham, jr, Glendale, Ariz.; Dennis Miller, sr, Lanark, Ill.; Bob Parker, jr, McPherson; Rockford Regula, jr, Leesport, Pa.; Kathy Shank, sr, Fayetteville, W. Va.; Dea Unruh, soph, McPherson; June Ware, sr, Ottumwa, Iowa.

The majority of the group will leave from McPherson by car on Saturday morning. They plan to spend the night out in a Navajo Reservation.

On Sunday, after having oriented themselves with the Canyon and museums, they will begin the seven mile hike down.

Monday through Wednesday the group will be in the bottom of the Canyon, hiking and visiting various places. Four nights will be spent in the Canyon.

On Thursday the group will start back to McPherson, arriving on Friday.

Going to different places in the Southwest may become an annual spring vacation affair. Next year there may be a trip to Arches National Monument in Utah.

Another group of four students—Mike Biscaglia, jr, Worcester, Mass.; Joel Burkholder, jr, Melba, Idaho; Don Davis, jr, Harrisburg, Pa.; Brian Summerhays, soph, Brockport, N. Y. — will be traveling to Mexico by car for the vacation.

Dormitories will re-open at noon on Monday, April 15, with the Monday evening meal being served. Classes will resume at 7:30 a.m., Tuesday, April 16.

141 attend conference

The Senior High Campus Conference, held Friday, March 29 to Sunday, March 31, was attended by 141 persons.

McPherson College hosted the conference for youth from two Church of the Brethren Districts.

The Kansas - Nebraska - Colorado District was represented by 133 persons.

The Southern Plains District was represented by four persons from Texas.

Also attending were four persons from Mount Morris, Ill.

At the banquet on Friday evening, recognition was given to the Garden City and Quinter churches for having the most people in attendance at the conference.

Both of these churches were represented by 11 persons.

Recognition was also given to persons from the Grand Junction, Colo., church for traveling the greatest distance to attend the conference.

Paul Wagoner, associate director of development, and Gene Myers, director of admissions, were co-directors of the conference.

Conference activities included a high school youth talent show, college promotion programs, films, discussion groups and entertainment by college groups.

Rumanian violinist will perform at Convocation

BY CINDY BARCHESKY

Sergiu Luca, Rumanian violinist, will present a concert at the April 18 Convocation.

He will be accompanied on the piano by Robert Edwards, assistant professor of piano and organ.

When Luca was four, a gypsy gave him his first violin lessons. Since then, he has studied four years under Max Rostal, one year in London, and three years at the Berne Konservatorium in Switzerland.

Recently, Luca has studied with the world-famous pedagogue, Ivan Galamian, at the Curtis Institute of Music of Philadelphia.

The Edgar M. Leventritt Foundation is the group that makes the concert possible. Each year six young, talented persons are sponsored by the foundation to tour the United States and present concerts.

Orchestras he has played in include the Detroit, Duluth, Oklahoma City, and San Diego Symphonies, the New York Philharmonic, and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

In 1964, he won the Philadelphia Orchestra Youth Auditions and performed the "Sibelius Concerto" with the Philadelphia Orchestra. He also appeared with the Cosmopolitan Youth Orchestra at Carnegie Hall.

Luca played with the New York Philharmonic under Leonard Bernstein in 1965 in a Young People's Concert presented on CBS-TV Network. The concert was entitled "A Tribute to Sibelius."

This year he will be touring with the Indianapolis Symphony in the southern and eastern sections of the United States.

New council meets May 1

The newly elected Student Council will officially begin their duties Wednesday, May 1. The new council will meet by themselves for the first time.

Vernon urges all students to sign their names to work on committees. Interested persons may sign the poster provided on the bulletin board in the Student Union.

Students may sign to work on one or more of four committees. They are Social, Special Projects, Foods and Academic Affairs.

Committees will be selected after Easter vacation, and each group will meet before the semester is over to begin planning for next year.

Documents will be shown

An exhibit of original historical documents entitled "The War Between the States" will be displayed April 15 to 30 in Friendship Hall.

The exhibit is made available through the courtesy of the Automatic Retailers of America Inc., or Slater Food Service. ARA is a national service organization which provides food service for schools, colleges and other institutions.

Designed to stimulate interest and understanding of United States history, the autographic collection relates the story of the tragic upheaval of the Civil War through original letters and documents of historical significance mounted with pertinent prints, pictures and American memorabilia.

In the display are 19 panels beginning with an autographed note of the order to fire on Fort Sumner in 1861 and ending with the discharge of a Confederate soldier on May 5, 1865.

Docking discusses ambiguity in current public policies

"Public interest, like truth, is what we say it is, and its force depends wholly upon its being accepted for what it is alleged to be."

With those words, Robert Docking, governor of Kansas, speaking at the March 28 Convocation, showed the ambiguity in the making of public policies by politicians today.

Docking stressed how difficult it is to do good "if the good does not stand out in bold relief." Because of the uncertainties our time and frightening dangers, "those who hold public office anticipate the consequences of their decisions."

Following his speech, Docking held a news conference in the Student Union Quiet Room.

In answering questions asked by newsmen and students, Docking said that the state delegation going to the Democratic national convention in Chicago would not be committed to any candidate.

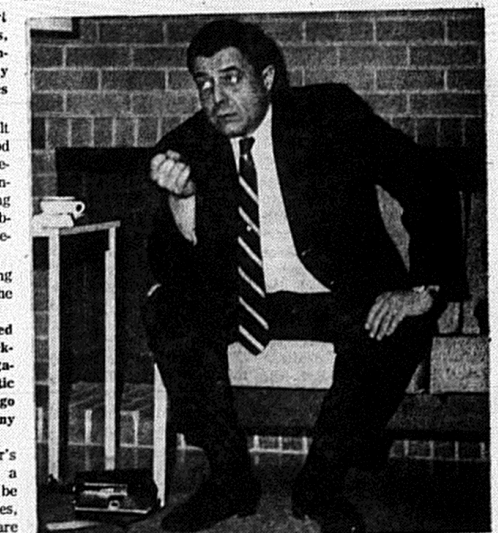

The problem of teacher's strikes, he said, is primarily a local problem which must be solved by local communities, since public school teachers are not on the state payroll.

Docking told the group he has been considering running for the Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Frank Carlson, and that he would announce his intentions between April 15 and April 23.

Following his appearances at McPherson and Central Colleges,

Docking was guest of honor at a luncheon at the McPherson Country Club. It was presented by the colleges and the city chamber of commerce.

GOV. ROBERT DOCKING listens attentively to a question asked him at the press conference held at McPherson College March 28.

Will Johnson run in 1968?

He's done it! That's right, President Lyndon Baines Johnson has decided not to seek the Democratic nomination for the Presidency for the 1968-1972 term.

His statement undoubtedly shocked the United States as it did the world.

But the question still remains whether the "Politician's Politician" is merely stating that he will not seek the re-nomination or is hoping for a political draft.

Even though he did state that the bombing of North Vietnam will cease, except around the demilitarized zone where there is a large enemy build-up, I wonder just what he really meant.

Is this just a way to win back the support that he has lost from the American people?

We will find out the answers to these questions and many others when the Democrats convene this summer.

Kussart explains goals of silent prayer vigils

Dear Editor:

The McPherson Peace Action Council is an informal group of individuals whose common concern is peace in today's world. The "membership" consists of everyone with similar convictions who attend a meeting to discuss ways of expressing this concern.

Understanding this expression of concern for peace to be the objective of the group, I feel that Mr. Kobe was somewhat subjective and presumptuous in his indictment of the Mac Pac.

The Silent Vigil for Peace in Vietnam is such an expression of concern, but I'm sure that there are many different motives and objectives among the participants.

I personally participate because I feel compelled to declare my opposition to war. By doing this through the vigil, I confront you, my fellow students, with my conviction, I remind you that we are in a war in Vietnam, and I hope to cause you to examine your position.

I am personally willing to discuss my position with anyone interested enough to question me about it.

I would like to ask why no more than 15 students are willing to take a stand for peace on a Church of the Brethren college campus? How many of you have taken the leaflet, "Why We Are Here," and read it?

Have you talked with any participant about the vigil? If not, where does the responsibility lie for any misunderstandings that have arisen from the vigil?

Mr. Kobe and the Mac Pac have agreed to hold a panel discussion May 5 on the issues involved in the Vietnam War. I hope that a few students will be interested enough to attend and participate.

MCY will hold installation service April 14

An installation service will be held for the newly elected officers for next year's MCY.

Cindy Eisenbise, sr., Elizabethtown, Pa., is managing the food preparation and serving of the banquet for her quantity cookery project.

Miss Eisenbise's menu includes: frosted fruit juice cup, baked chicken with slivered orange rind, springtime asparagus, minted glazed carrots, cucumber and grapefruit salad, cheese biscuits and butter, blueberry buckle, ice tea and coffee.

Anyone interested in attending should contact Pat Hayes, jr., Geneseo, as soon as possible.

Comment

Johnson's decision is discussed by coed

BY MARILYN SMITH

President Johnson's announcement of his "irrevocable" decision not to be a candidate for re-election left Americans stunned. After the initial shock of disbelief, feelings ranged from jubilation to disappointment and apprehension about the future.

Three things seem apparent to me as a result of the President's announcement.

First of all, Johnson is a bigger man than most of us have given him credit for. He has been widely described as ruthless and power-hungry, yet his decision cannot by any stretch of the imagination be interpreted as reflecting personal political ambition.

Second, I have decided that

Zin responds to Kobe's comments on Mac Pac

Dear Editor:

As a participant in the activities of the McPherson Peace Action Council, I wish to offer my response to the letter by Nicholas G. Kobe Jr. which appeared in the March 28 issue of The Spectator.

For me, the Mac Pac exists as a loosely organized group of students, faculty and community people who are concerned about the lack of peace in the world, specifically in Vietnam.

However, it has been my observation that there is no proposed solution or solutions to world conflicts on which everyone agrees, not even in the case of Vietnam.

The purpose of the Mac Pac, as I see it, is to stimulate discussion, express concern, act corporately in those activities which can be agreed on, and encourage individual action when only one or a few persons wish to undertake some project.

An objective of the Mac Pac is to provide a situation where people can express ideas, listen to others, and hopefully give serious thought to them.

There, people with similar ideas may be able to unite, and those with differences can listen to each other and perhaps reach, or at least entertain, compromises.

As for the silent vigil for peace in Vietnam, I am participating in order to express my concern for peace and my opposition to our government's policy in relation to that area.

I do not see the vigil as an expression of certain alternatives, such as an immediate withdrawal of troops, a complete halt to the bombing, more concentration on economic aid and education, or any other, although some of these may be supported by some of the participants.

Besides being an expression of concern and opposition, I feel that the vigil is a needed reminder that the war does exist and should be investigated and contended with.

I personally would welcome the participation of anyone concerned whether he supports my specific views or not.

I realize my own lack of objective background information but feel that I am willing to revise my previously held conclusions.

Lack of knowledge has produced a hesitancy on my part to be specific in stating my objections, but I could not nor can I now remain totally silent about my views.

Physics Department purchases new Linear Air Track

A two hundred-dollar Linear Air Track, an instrument capable of precision measurements, has been recently acquired by the Department of Physics, and it is hoped that a bigger air track costing three hundred and fifty dollars, which is now on order, will be delivered before the beginning of the fall semester.

Air tracks can be used for many interesting and important experiments. The nearly complete absence of friction, combined with the nearly complete elasticity of the bumpers, makes it possible to attain considerable precision in dynamical measurements, even if the friction and loss of velocity during collisions are ignored altogether.

Further, the losses due to these two effects may be experimentally determined and corrections made for particular experiments, thus permitting even greater accuracy.

Leslie Fraley, Jr., assistant professor of physics, explained that before the purchase of the Linear Air Track, his department had used skate boards in the study of an experiment in motion without friction. "This was not altogether satisfactory since skate boards are not entirely free of friction," he explained.

Songs, dialogue are featured by French Club

Songs and original dialogue by a group of beginning students were the main events of the third monthly meeting of the French Club held in the Mac Shack on Tuesday, April 2.

Cartoons depicting French life and customs were also shown, and these provided a lively conversational topic in French for the members. Miss Luisa Pequeno, instructor in French, was among those who attended the meeting.

Room deposits will soon be due

Spring is here, and now is the time to start thinking about plans for the next school year. Room reservations and deposits will soon be due.

Students returning next semester are asked to make the room deposit of $25 sometime between April 16 and May 8. Upon obtaining a receipt for the deposit, provisions for a room for the next year can be made.

After the deadline of May 8, the incoming freshmen will be assigned their rooms.

Selective service laws change due to escalation of Vietnam war

BY GARY FLORY

The combination of a loss of manpower and an escalation of the war in Vietnam has forced a change in our selective service laws.

Last summer Congress radically changed these draft laws, and one of the most notable results was the loss of occupational and graduate school deferments by America's young men.

It has been estimated that this year nearly 440,000 men will lose occupational deferments, including many teachers who in the past have been relatively free from the service. But the area in which the greatest outcry has arisen against the new laws is this nation's graduate schools. Harvard University's graduate school is expecting 25 per cent of its school to be drafted next year, and Texas University graduate school will likely lose about 1,200 of its 5,000 students.

These are not isolated cases, for across the nation nearly 300,000 graduate students will become eligible for the draft on June 30.

With the fact that no new deferments will be given next year except to dentistry and medical students, some estimates say as much as 65 per cent of the incoming graduate school enrollment would be diverted to the military.

It can easily be imagined that the statement on graduate schools "facing possible enrollments comprised entirely of women, the physically disabled and men over 25" may indeed become a reality.

Graduate schools have been protesting this loss of student deferments for a couple of reasons. In the first place, by allowing deferments for medical and dentistry students but no one else, the government is, in the eyes of some educators, making a "false distinction of national interest between the scientific and humanities field."

This sort of split value system could easily cause bitterness in many graduate schools.

A second reason for school protests is that many graduate students serve as teachers in undergraduate classes. The undergraduate can now be deferred for four years while working towards his degree, but with the loss of graduate school deferments the undergraduate may find good graduate assistants a scarce commodity.

This argument of graduate deferments is by no means one-sided, however, and the government continues to state its view that graduate deferments are unfair because not all college graduates have the ability, opportunity or money to attend graduate school.

Thus, graduate deferments discriminate against the less fortunate individuals who cannot exempt themselves from military service by continuing their education. In some cases the government's viewpoint could undoubtedly be justified.

While there is much disagreement about the government's present policy, it is extremely unlikely that graduate school protest will cause any change in this policy.

Presently many draft boards are scraping the bottom of the barrel trying to fill their induction quotas. As one source of manpower is depleted, another must be found, and college graduates prove a wonderfully available source.

Publications board to buy dark room

Pictures for student publications will be developed in a dark room which the Board of Publications is planning to buy.

The proposed dark room will probably be located in the kitchen of Arnold Hall and will be operated by the publications photographers.

The Student Council plans to meet the cost of the dark room out of the Publications reserve account. It is hoped that the dark room will be ready for use by the publications staff during the 1968-69 academic year.

KWU defeats Mac in duel track meet

BY MIKE THOMPSON
Kansas Wesleyan University used its power in the distance races and over all depth to skin by McPherson 79-65 in a dual track meet Friday.

Four new McPherson College records were set, and one was tied. The 440 relay team (Westergaard, Parker, Taylor, and D. Smith) ran a 43.4 to eclipse the old standard of 43.9.

Mike Butsch held the crowd's attention for many a minute, until his pole would throw him no higher. He set a new school pole vault record of 14'2", and he promises more excitement to come.

Yoder finds book reviewing for church very fascinating

BY LINDA DEAN

Reviewing books for the Church of the Brethren is one job that Mrs. Gordon Yoder finds thoroughly fascinating. These reviews are for the Library of Curriculum Resources to be available in 1969.

The purpose of the Library of Curriculum Resources is to give each church selectivity in choosing appropriate studies for their needs. Sunday school classes, study groups, fellowship groups, or individuals will have the opportunity of selecting books for study from a file of reviews of books.

They then may order the books from the Elgin office. This Library will appeal to churches which are willing to branch out and choose their own study material.

Mrs. Yoder does her reviewing in her home here in McPherson, where she resides with her husband, Gordon Yoder, who is Business Manager of McPherson College.

Elgin sends a shipment of books each month, many of which are paperbacks. Mrs. Yoder's goal is to review one hundred books a month, and on some days she has reviewed as many as eight.

She reviewed books for the Library of Curriculum Resources from June to September of 1967, and from January to September of 1968 she will be reviewing.

Books sent to Mrs. Yoder for reviewing are in a wide variety of areas — sociology, psychology, theology, world religions, denominational curricula and education. The only area in which she feels she is not qualified to do reviewing is in politics.

While reading as much of the book as she feels is necessary for a complete review, Mrs. Yoder jots down important ideas and her reactions to them. Then she writes the review.

In the review she gives the title, author, code according to learning experience and subject matter, age level, and readability.

She evaluates the book by giving its main thrust, its content in general, how she thinks it could be used as a study book, and personal feelings on it. Two or three other people will review the same book.

Mrs. Yoder stresses the fact that she cannot read for retention; evaluation is her purpose. However, she does absorb parts of books that are meaningful to her personally.

She has also done writing. She wrote The Church and Infants and Toddlers, to be used in working with the nursery department.

In cooperation with four other denominations, she wrote the curriculum to be used with third and fourth graders in 1969. It is entitled "How is God Known?"

She is now writing curriculum for the Department of Educational Development of the National Council of Churches. It is to be used with fifth and sixth graders in the 1971 Vacation Bible School and is entitled "All That Is Within You."

In speaking of her work, Mrs. Yoder says, "I wish I could stress to every college student that you never know what you are preparing for or what the future holds. Take advantage of every opportunity that is offered. Don't be afraid of failure."

She feels that this job has provided a new dimension to her life and has broadened her own knowledge, as well as provided many travel experiences and valuable contacts with other denominations. She speaks enthusiastically of her work and of her enjoyment in it.

Above her desk is the quotation, "Learning is a never-ending process. It knows no time, no age, no special structure. It is a part of life, and life is a part of learning." Mrs. Yoder believes this strongly.

Coed gives impressions of spring in Germany

BY PEGGY SLATER

After a lengthy, grey and drizzly prelude, spring has come to Marburg! The sun has finally coaxed its way through late winter clouds — and suddenly Marburg is illuminated.

The stogy, dust-colored old castle high upon the city's reigning hill receives rightfully the first of each day's sunlight, which then gradually condenses to encompass the more mental city buildings. No one can say that days here lack a proud personality all their own.

After so many months of "Nebel" (meaning "fog" — even sounds foggy, doesn't it?) observing the old Lahn Valley from the castle makes one suddenly aware what clear sight really is.

The "Elisabethkirche" (a prominent Old - Gothic church for which Marburg is renowned) stretches her stoney twin-steeples proudly skywards.

The "Studentendorf" (Student Village) a complex of seven dormitories shines, modern and white, from a summit opposite the castle. Kaiser Wilhelm's Tower boasts the top position of still another hill.

And, between all these, are the tall, narrow, tightly packed city dwellings and shops, held together by the strings of incredibly tiny, winding streets.

The effect of these sights is, in one word, stunning. The observer stands, numb, experiencing contrasting emotions: smallness, in view of such magnificence, and privilege, at being able to see it.

After my own first spring view of Marburg from the castle park, I stopped to sit for awhile upon the low castle wall, pondering my tremendous fortune: to be young, to be alive, and to be here.

6 attend Student Kansas State Teachers Convention

BY JANE DADISMAN

The Fourteenth Annual Student Kansas State Teachers Association Convention was held in Topeka March 29-30. McPherson College was represented by five voting delegates and one sponsor.

These delegates were Lynda Beavers, jr, Carleton, Neb.; Leitha Brown, sr, McPherson; Judy Rego, soph, New Bedford, Mass.; and Mike Traetto, jr, Rockaway, N. J. Monroe Hughbanks, assistant professor of education, also attended the convention.

The opening general session was held Friday evening. This was mainly a time for introducing the candidates for the 1968-69 executive offices and hearing their campaign speeches.

The second general meeting was held on Saturday morning. The address was given by Dr. Ruth Stout Wright, former KSTA Staff Secretary and Student KSTA Consultant.

Following the morning session, the delegates divided into groups, each group having one particular area of interest.

Miss Beavers and Traetto participated in the group emphasizing teaching for educational television. Mrs. Eron Haines of Washburn University conducted the group in cooperation with KTWU Channel 11.

The Headstart Program was the topic for Miss Brown's group. Everett Cook, director of the Summer Headstart Program and principal of Quincy School, lead this group.

"New Methods of Teaching Mental Health Concepts to Teachers" was presented by Dr. Marvin Ack, a senior psychiatrist at the Menninger Foundation Clinic. Miss Duffy and Miss Rego attended.

A discussion on "Student Teachers in Politics" was directed by Richard E. Shephard of the KSTA staff. No McPherson College delegate took part in this group.

Voting for the 1968-69 officers took place before the noon luncheon. Dr. Richard E. Collier, AST Executive Secretary from Washington D. C., gave the address. The presentation of the C.O. Wright Scholarship also took place at this time.

The Saturday afternoon session was a business meeting with the voting delegates taking part. Among several resolutions passed, one was of particular interest and importance.

This resolution stated that beginning with the 1969-70 year no beginning Kansas teacher will accept a teacher's position in Kansas if the salary is under $6500. The fact that the present average salary is $5340 may stress the importance and significance of this resolution.
