

The McPherson College Library and the recreation and lounge areas of the Student Union will be open during the Thanksgiving vacation at specified times.

The areas will be open Wednesday, Nov. 27, from 3-9 p.m., and will be closed all day Thursday. On Friday, Nov. 29, and Saturday, Nov. 30, the areas will be open from 3-9 p.m.

The areas will be open from 3:10-3:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 1.

No meals will be served in the cafeteria after Tuesday evening, Nov. 26. Resumption of the food service will begin Sunday evening, Dec. 1.

Vacation hours for the library have also been announced. On Wednesday, Nov. 27, the hours are 9-12 a.m. and 2-5 p.m. The library will be

Melhorn meets Monday at College of Emporia

J. Jack Melhorn, president of the College, will attend a Kansas Association of Colleges and Universities meeting at College of Emporia, Monday, Nov. 25.

Business of the meeting will include the election of officers, a report from the financial aids committee, of which Dr. Melhorn is a member, and the planning for the remainder of the year and next year.

The emphasis of the meeting will be directed toward cooperation at all levels of higher education, including public and private schools, junior and senior colleges, and graduate schools.

Play tryouts will be Dec. 2

Tryouts for "A Thousand Clowns" will be held in Brown Auditorium on Monday, December 2, at 6:30 p.m.

Thomas Nee, sr., Atlantic City, N. J., will direct the production; this is one of the few times students have been allowed to direct major productions at the College.

Mr. Charles Fischer, assistant professor in English and theater, will supervise the play, which will be given February 14 and 15.

Winter formal will be Dec. 6

"Mistletoe Mystique" is the theme of the Winter Formal which will be Friday, Dec. 6. Dress for the evening will be formal.

Ken Faulk and 'Sounds Sixty-8' will provide the music for the dance which will be in the Student Union lobby.

Tickets for the formal will go on sale Monday, Dec. 2.

According to Jane Brubaker, soph., Rocky Ford, Colo., Social Committee chairman, the band is a four-piece group with a female singer.

Their main style of music is fashioned after Sergio Mendez and Brazill 66 and the Tia Juana Brass. They also have a large closed Thursday, Nov. 28.

Hours on Friday, Nov. 29, are 9-12 a.m. and 2-5 p.m. The library will be closed Saturday, Nov. 30, and Sunday, Dec. 1.

Library hours during Christmas vacation have also been announced. The library will be closed from 5 p.m. Friday, Dec. 20, until 8 a.m. Monday, Dec. 30.

The library will be open Dec. 30 and 31, and Jan. 2 and 3 from 8-12 a.m. and 1-5 p.m. Regular hours will be resumed Jan. 6.

Variety of art is on display

A variety of art will be on display in Friendship Hall during the month of December.

An exhibit of oils, watercolors, and graphics by New York City artists will be displayed by the Old Bergen Art Guild, Bayonne, N. J., Dec. 5-20.

Original graphics by Marc Chagall will be exhibited by the Ferdinand Roten Galleries of Baltimore, Md., Dec. 5-20 also.

The Kansas Federation of Art is sponsoring an exhibition by private watercolor painters Dec. 5-16.

Peace Corps will extend program until June 1969

The officials of the Peace Corps and the State University of New York College at Brockport announced completion of arrangements for continuing and extending the unique Peace Corps-College Degree Program to admit a third group of candidates in June, 1969.

The members of the first contingent completing the 15-month program, which combines the upper division undergraduate education with Peace Corps preparation, are now serving on bi-national educational development teams in the Dominican Republic.

The second group is now in the academic year phase of this joint project and is slated for overseas assignment in Latin America in August, 1969.

The candidates will be selected from the ranks of students in good standing at an accredited college who are completing their sophomore or junior year by June 1969.

Those selected will be able to earn an A.B. or B.S. degree and be eligible for a Peace Corps assignment in one academic year, flanked by two summers of fully subsidized and integrated academic courses and Peace Corps training.

They will be expected to major in mathematics or the sciences. Those who have completed their junior year prior to entrance into the program will have the opportunity for a double-major.

At the end of the second summer, armed with the degree, a teaching license, in-depth cross-cultural preparation, and fluency in Spanish, the graduates, as Peace Corps volunteers, will be off on their Latin American assignment.

As members of the staffs of teacher training institutions and-or consultants to secondary teachers of math or science, they will be important participants in the educational development efforts of their host countries.

Hofer and Shalaby consider gold problem at seminar College hosts Language Day

Two McPherson College professors were among "the chosen one hundred" for the first seminar dedicated to the current world gold problem.

The seminar was held at Stillwater, Okla., Nov. 17-18, at Oklahoma State University. It was sponsored by the College of Business.

Mrs. Emma Hofer, assistant professor in economics, and Farouk Shalaby, assistant professor in business administration and economics, represented McPherson College.

The select one hundred are made up of prominent economists from colleges and universities nationwide.

The convention featured such noted authorities in business as Oscar Oltman, Treasurer of the International Monetary Fund; John Exter, Senior Vice President of the First National Bank of New York; and Miroslav Kirz, Vice President of the First National Bank of New York.

Kirz is a major authority on gold standings and is an author of many books on the world gold standard.

Hans Mast, Manager and Chief Economist of the Swiss Credit Bank, Zurich, Switzerland, was also present, along with Professor Rudolph Trenton of Oklahoma State University, author of the textbook used in one of the economics courses at McPherson College.

Robert Triffin, professor of economics at Yale University and founder of the Triffin Plan for worldwide gold equality standards, discussed the mass topic of "International Monetary Form."

Other topics considered were "The Reserve and Equality of Currency Acceptable for World Use," "The International Monetary Fund," and "Gold to Dollar — Support or Collapse."

Prospective foreign language students will have an opportunity to see what McPherson College has to offer in this field through a Language Day program Nov. 22 in Brown Auditorium.

The morning program will be given by members of the Foreign Language Department. Dr. Jan van Asselt, associate professor of German and linguistics, will speak on "Opportunities and Vocations in the Language Field."

Dr. Merlin Frantz, dean of academic affairs, will begin the afternoon with comments on the Brethren Colleges Abroad program during the junior year. Students who have participated in the program will show slides and speak on their experiences. Details of the foreign language program will be presented separately to students interested in French, German, and Spanish. Language instructors and other college personnel will then be available for consultation.

The Foreign Language Department and the Admissions Office have worked together in planning Language Day.

Students enroll

Students may contact their faculty advisors to pre-enroll for the second semester Dec. 2-13.

Panel of teachers discusses responsibility and militancy

BY CINDY BARCHESKY
Views of "Teacher Militancy" were expressed by a seven member panel of McPherson teachers at the Nov. 13 Maurice A. Hess Chapter of Student Education Association meeting.

Chairman of the panel was Mrs. Jackie Raymond, McPherson High School English and journalism teacher and McPherson College graduate.

Teachers from the high school were Miss Patricia Bauman, Bill Moore, and Jay Frazier. Elementary teachers were Miss Fern Yost and Don Fairchild. Dr. Dayton Rothrock, professor of education and psychology, also served on the panel.

Most of the teachers felt that teachers should be responsibly militant to pursue a better end for a better education.

Five main reasons given for teacher militancy were huge classes, inadequate salaries, non-paying duties, fewer fringe benefits, and no decision in curriculum changes.

According to Frazier, teachers feel dissatisfied and frustrated. There are many things that they want to do, but yet they feel like they are in a rut.

The administration and school board cannot do anything until the federal government gives the say-so. Salaries are very important, also.

Fairchild indicated that most teachers are concerned with their salary and often have to supplement their teaching income. The Board of Education cannot fully be blamed, because they have just so much money to do so many things.

Teachers have been rather conservative. Now they have decided to become involved and educate the public.

Teachers must work within the system to improve the system was Miss Bauman's main point. They must have a purpose, an idea. Schools are running out of classrooms and have no assistants for grading.

Moore interjected the idea of age-old prejudice against teaching. Teachers are tired of the saying that if a person cannot do anything, he should be a teacher.

Social problems are blamed on schools and society is putting more responsibility on teachers — society, too, should share the responsibility.

Teachers are tired of mediocrity and being blamed. It is better to stand for something instead of nothing.

Dr. Rothrock stated that there is a new day in education. The image of teaching is going to have to be improved if more students are to be recruited.

As of now, it seems to be a trend for the top ten per cent of students to by-pass the teaching profession.

Opinions on teachers' striking varied, but most of the panel agreed that there would need to be unity if teachers would decide to strike.

Miss Fern Yost spoke on the role of the teacher as both parent and teacher. Most of the teachers have the welfare of the children in mind.

Teachers need to get public participation. They also need to know what legislation is most beneficial. Everything boils down to money for teachers and students.

In summing up the views of the panel, one idea was that teacher militancy may lead to better results for the students, and is a sincere desire for education to move forward.

Lengel is representative here for Peace Corps

The Peace Corps is represented on the McPherson College campus by Dr. Leland Lengel, associate professor of history and political science.

Lengel's duties as representative are to make information on the Peace Corps available to students, to set up interviews with a national representative of the Peace Corps, who visits campus once a year, and to receive and post new information.

The recruitment program of the Peace Corps is not presently as active as it once was. However, persons interested in the program are still being sought.

For information on the Peace Corps, see Dr. Lengel, room 217, Mohler Hall.

Trustees see ground breaking

A special meeting of the College Board of Trustees has been called for Saturday, Dec. 7, with the purpose of attending the Miller Library groundbreaking ceremonies.

The development and executive committees of the Board will hold conferences.

Tuesday, Dec. 3, at 1:30 p.m. has been designated as the time for opening the library construction bids.

Jerry Schrock, fr., Harmony, Minn., serves punch to guests at Metzler Hall's Open House Nov. 17.

Later hours threaten MC

The question of extending dorm hours is now ominously looming over the otherwise tranquil McPherson campus, threatening the already changing moral fibers and social responsibilities of McPherson coeds.

It is beyond the comprehension of the editor how students can remotely imagine that the women of this school are mature enough to be able to handle extended freedom, considering their numerous irresponsible actions of the past.

An extension of dorm hours would only bring about a marked decrease in studying and a frightening increase in immorality. The name of McPherson College would be forever tarnished.

Increased freedom would force reality upon us and would destroy the comfortable state of being secluded from the harsh facts of life.

The editor defies anyone to argue against the logic of the above statements.

Hanson urges MC students to survey any arguments

Dear Editor:

Several events in the last few weeks — the Nov. 14 Convocation address of Dr. Hyman Appelmann and the recent controversy on the editorial page of the Spectator — have provided the students and faculty with a little bit of excitement and some fresh discussion material. But they have also provided us with some illustrations of a problem which has plagued man from his very beginnings — that of rational thinking versus emotionalism.

It seems to me that the true purpose of education is to train the individual to use his mind; to think rationally; to keep his thinking as free from bias and prejudice as possible; and to look at problems and solve them through logic, not emotion.

I don't mean to say that emotion is not good. Men are human, and it is in their nature.

Emotion is neither good nor bad, and it has its place.

But it certainly does not belong in a supposedly scholarly discussion of ideas.

Education means nothing if we don't use it.

Therefore, I suggest that it would be wise for all of us to re-evaluate our thinking and make sure that our arguments are valid before we state them.

Writer terms past Convo as accidentally 'comical'

Dear Editor:

It is rare when Convocation accidentally becomes comical.

But when the College imports a Russian (influenced, of his own admission, by the Orientals) who happens to be a Jew (complete with typical vivid gestures) with training at a Baptist seminary (where he must have assimilated the fist pounding techniques not completely reconcilable with the aforementioned gestures), the effect is ludicrous — rather like a Cocker Spaniel with telltale Dalmatian ears. I can only imagine how he appears speaking in his fluent German.

Checker-playing craze sweeps men's dormitories

A new craze has swept the men's dormitories.

What do McPherson men do with their spare time? Among checkers.

An outbreak of quiet, competitive games, with no single dormitory as initiator, is gaining in popularity on the McPherson campus.

Fahnestock Hall's lounge is the scene of almost continual chess, checker, Chinese checker, and Di-ho games.

Di-ho is a Japanese game, whose object is to place five pellets in a row before the opponent does. This is much easier said than done.

Physical characteristics notwithstanding, I, as a good Church of the Brethren Christian taught to love my neighbors as myself, cannot see how Baptists, whose neighbors happen to be Arabs, bypass this small Biblical clause.

At best, he is a thorough example that education serves only to reinforce our prejudices.

I can only hope that the audience last Thursday viewed Dr. Hyman Appelmann as a sideshow rather than as a serious interpreter of contemporary world affairs.

Name withheld upon request.

Convo features questions, views about student life

The Dec. 5 Convocation will be under the direction of Student Council. The preface of the program will feature any student who wishes to express his view on any timely subject involving student life.

Larry Vernon, sr, Big Pine, Calif., president of Student Council, will preside.

The chairman of each student committee will give a report on what has been done, what the committee is currently working on and any future projects.

Heading the Social Committee is Jane Brubaker soph, Rocky Ford, Colo. Ted Livingston, sr, Macedonia, Ohio, is chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee.

Hal Hayes, sr, Kings, Ill., is chairman of the Special Projects Committee, and Steve Laprad, jr, Rossville, Ohio, heads the Foods Committee.

Attar speaks in Convocation

Dr. Kerim Attar, Associated Colleges of Central Kansas visiting professor in Non-Western Studies, was scheduled to speak on the political situation in the Middle East at this morning's Convocation.

Attar, a native of Iraq, completed his high school education in Baghdad, earned his law degree from the University of Baghdad and master's degree from the University of Indiana, and completed work on his doctorate in 1967 at Columbia University at New York.

In his broad background of experience, he has had a private law practice in Baghdad; was legal adviser, Ministry of Social Affairs, Baghdad; and assistant instructor in Arabic, School of Advanced International Studies, John Hopkins University, Washington, D. C.

Other positions he has held include assistant professor of Political Science, University of Baghdad; research assistant, United Nations, New York; and research assistant, Bureau of Applied Social Research, Columbia University.

Icarian thoughts A second look

Someone told me the sun was out today. I laughed to myself, for the sun is out everyday. Sometimes you just have to push back the clouds to see it though.

You have to look very hard to see the stars in the afternoon — most people are too busy trying to cover up the sun.

I once thought I could escape the lightning by hiding under my blankets but then I lost sight of the rain too. A turtle cannot escape the sea by drawing into its shell.

You cannot escape the sun by pushing clouds around it, or destroy the stars by turning on the lights.

Neither can you escape yourself by turning from the real truth.

Bulldogs end season 2-7

Sterling scored a touchdown in each period except the third to defeat the McPherson Bulldogs 28-13 in the Dogs' final game.

McPherson ended the season with a 2-7 record in the Kansas College Athletic Conference.

John Suminski scored first for the Dogs on a 12 yard pass from Junior Smith. The kick by Mike Butsch was blocked.

In the fourth quarter, Junior Smith plunged over from the one yard line for the last Dog touchdown. Butsch successfully kicked the extra point.

The Bulldogs gained most of their yardage through the air. They completed 12 out of 33 attempts for 132 yards. Dogs rushed 84 yards.

Sterling completed 8 or 14 passes for 121 yards.

Warriors scored their 1st touchdown when they intercepted a Bulldog pass and ran 55 yards to score.

In other games in the conference, Southwestern won the KCAC crown by a 33-0 victory over

College of Emporia. The Mound-builders are 7-1 for the season. Kansas Wesleyan University lost to Friends University and completed the season with a 7-2 record.

Ottawa kicked a field goal for a 3-0 victory over Baker. Bethel defeated Bethany 9-3.

Students give faculty their points of view

Five students met with the faculty at the bimonthly faculty meeting Tuesday, Nov. 19, in Mohler Hall.

Merlin L. Frantz, dean of academic affairs, said the meeting was designed to inform the faculty of "how McPherson College can be improved in the students' point of view."

Larry Vernon, sr., Big Pine, Calif., Student Council president, appointed Carolyn Dell, sr., Enid, Okla.; Jody Duffy, sr., Abilene; Stan Hoffert, sr., McPherson; and Jan Pyle, jr., Denver, to express their views to the faculty.

Faculty defeat Metzler's squad

The faculty volleyball team rebounded back from its defeat at the hands of Bitterling Hall to sweep a two-out-of-three game series from Metzler Hall Nov. 14.

The men of Fahnstock Hall have been challenged to a volleyball game tonight at 9:30 p. m.

Outstanding faculty players were Donald Widrig, Arthur Ray, Dr. DeCoursey, Dr. Dayton Rothrock, Farouk Shalaby, Dr. Galen Snell, Vernon Friesen, and Paul Wagoner.

Cline sees College change in 22 years

BY JAN PYLE

"College was a lot different when I first started working here," states Keith Cline of the buildings and ground staff.

For 22 years he worked eight to nine hours per day and as many as 16 hours when he first joined the College.

Recently he has semi-retired, working only three hours per day carrying mail and doing small repair jobs.

Cline, who lives with his wife, Sarah at 1816 E. Simpson, joined the staff July 1, 1946, as the only steady man on the maintenance crew. For six years he had only student help.

In those six years he noticed the gradual changes in the College: the renovation of Kline Hall, the addition to the Industrial Arts Building and to the Library, and the construction of the first wing of Dotzour Hall, the new heating plant, and the stadium.

In 1957 Elmer Ruhser became supervisor of the buildings and grounds staff.

"Since then, the old administration building has been torn down and Brown Auditorium, Mohler Hall, Friendship Hall, the new wing of Dotzour Hall, the Student Union, Metzler Hall, and Bittinger Hall have been built," Cline stated, as he thought of the many different moods of McPherson College he had witnessed.

Although he is a native of Longmont, Colo., he moved as a small child to McClave, Colo., in the southeast section of the state, where he lived off and on for 40 years.

When his daughter, Mary Helen, reached college age, he moved to McPherson and began working at the school to help with her expenses. He has been here ever since.

In summing up his experiences, he states, "It has been interesting and enjoyable working here because of the change of work and people."

Book orders are due for second semester

Book orders for second semester and inter-term are due, according to Mrs. Marcia Cotterill, manager of the College bookstore.

All orders for books to be used during the inter-term are to be in by the end of November.

Book orders for second semester are due Dec. 15.

Home Ec women serve appetizers to teachers

The McPherson College Home Economics Chapter prepared and served appetizers for the Student Teacher Appreciation Dinner Nov. 18, held from 6-8 p.m. in Friendship Hall.

Judy Buckwater, soph, Lilitz Pa., and Sue Arnesen, jr, Oak Park, Ill., were in charge of this project.

Nov. 19 found the Home Economics Club at a joint meeting with the chapters from Kansas Wesleyan University and Marymount College.

Admissions is front door to students entering Mac

The Admissions Office is the front door of McPherson College. The first contact prospective students have with any college is through its admissions office. It deals directly with them from first contact to enrollment.

The recruiting, screening of applicants, and final admission of students to McPherson College is a never ending process. Admissions work involves students, alumni, and faculty members, as well as the admissions officers.

Eugene Myers, director of admissions, and Jerry B. Hedrick, Jr., admissions counselor, have already compiled a list of approximately 600 prospective students for the second semester this year and the first semester next year.

A folder is prepared for each prospective student. It contains the student's application for admission, his transcript, references, American College Test scores, Scholastic Aptitude Test scores, and other pertinent information.

When a folder is complete, it goes to the Admissions Committee for consideration. If a student is accepted for admission the College works with him in every possible way to assist him to graduate.

Standards for admission to McPherson College are quite high. The mean composite ACT score on last year's freshman class ranked above 55 per cent of the colleges using ACT nation wide testing.

Permanent members of the Admissions Committee are: Dr. Merlin L. Frantz, dean of academic affairs; E. Dean Reynolds, registrar; Myers; and Hedrick.

Faculty members, who serve on the Committee for one year, are: Mrs. Homer E. Brunk, associate professor of English and journalism; Robert E. Keim, assistant professor in sociology, and Dr. G. J. Ikenberry, Jr., professor of biology.

The Admissions Office receives names of prospects from several sources. Most Kansas high schools and some in Colorado send lists of their seniors. Names are sent in by churches, and students recommend friends.

"I heard a rule of thumb which stated that each student who is currently on campus will be responsible for recruiting five other students for his school. They could be relatives, friends, or his own children," Myers said. "I would be happy to have each of our students submit his five names now."

You say big business has no social conscience?

We beg to differ.

It's sometimes tempting to condemn all business for the misbehavior of a few bad apples within the business community. This is about as realistic as writing off all college students as hopheads and beatniks based on the actions of a handful.

Like most other businesses, Southwestern Bell has a well-defined idea about its social role in the community.

We're concerned about the same things that concern the people who live in the towns we serve.

... about the need to support education.

We make financial and equipment contributions to almost 70 colleges and universities in five states. We sponsor "science recognition days," an educational program for high school science students. We arrange for student visits to Bell Telephone Laboratories and we maintain a speaker's bureau to share our business knowledge with interested student and professional groups.

... about beautifying the areas we serve. We try to design our buildings to be both functional and attractive. We're placing more and more of our wires and cables underground.

... about helping the disadvantaged. We've conducted special programs to train high school dropouts and hard-core unemployables.

... about air pollution. We began equipping all our new service trucks with anti-pollution devices a full year ahead of federal requirements.

... about the hundred and one other "nonbusiness" things people are concerned about in today's world.

Does this mean we're complacently satisfied that what we're doing is enough? No!

It does mean we're trying. And will keep on trying.
