Women ask men to dance

The Women's Council will sponsor a "Holiday of Hearts" dance Friday, Feb. 21.

It will be a turn-about dance so the women will have a chance to ask out their favorite guys.

The semi-formal dance will begin at 9 p.m. in the Student Union basement and last until midnight.

Dance music will be played by the Tymer-Beckley Union. Since this is to be a semi-formal it will play more music for slow dances than at regular after-game dances.

The Women's Council is sponsoring the dance to promote social activities on campus with the hope that it will give the students a chance to practice some of the social graces.

Although this will be a dress-up affair, the Women's Council is asking that there be no flowers.

Donna Brubaker, sr. Lyons, is the chairman of the dance committee. Members of the committee are Pat Albin, sr. McPherson; Sue Arneson, jr. Oak Park, Ill.; and Sherry Walker, jr. Norton.

Couples who have been nominated for king and queen of the dance will be voted on as students enter the "Holiday of Hearts" decorated dance room.

Nominees, selected by Women's Council, include:

Kay Cushing, jr. Crestwood, Mo., and Bud Reed, jr. Adel, Iowa;

Diane Merrifield, jr. Champagne, Ill., and Jim Stauffer, jr. Wichita;

Sally Laprad, jr. McPherson, and Steve Laprad, jr. McPherson;

Workshop examines rights issue, freedoms

An ACCK Workshop for the Student Bill of Rights will meet Friday and Saturday at Bethel College to discuss the joint statement on rights and freedoms of students.

The statement was prepared in 1966 and 1967 by ten national educational associations representing faculty members, administrators and students.

The purpose of the workshop, sponsored by the student personnel deans, is to seek communication on the student rights issue and to examine the statement as to its relevance for the ACCK colleges.

Dr. Peter Armacoet, president of Ottawa University, will be the main speaker and consultant. Dr. Armacoet was program director of the Association of American Colleges and a member of the joint drafting committee.

From each of the six colleges the president, dean of students, one faculty member and three students along with some of the deans of academic affairs will attend.

Representing the administration from McPherson will be Dr. J. Jack Melhorn, president of the College, and Dr. Merlin L. Franz, dean of academic affairs.

Dr. Galen R. Snell, dean of men, and Dr. Leland L. Lengel, associate professor of history and political science, will represent faculty.

Students to attend are Larry Vernon, sr. Big Pine, Calif., student council president; Rod Lusk, jr. Rocky Ford, Colo.; and Susan Krebbiel, soph. McPherson.

The preamble of the statement defines its purpose as enumerating the provisions for student freedom to learn. Included are freedom of access to higher education, freedom in the classroom, student records, student affairs, off-campus freedom of students and procedural standards in disciplinary proceedings.

At the workshop the participants will break into small groups with the colleges intermixed to discuss the various provisions.

The McPherson group will leave around noon Friday and return early Saturday afternoon.

Profs resign positions

Two McPherson College professors have submitted their resignations for their positions on the faculty. The resignations will be effective at the end of the present school year.

Dwight E. McSpadden, assistant professor of education and football and baseball coach, has been on campus for two years. At the present time, his plans for the future are indefinite.

Robert L. Edwards, professor of music, piano and organ, plans graduate study at the University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore. He has been an instructor for six years.

When asked for comments, Prof. Edwards stated, "I have enjoyed my experiences here and will kindly remember my association with the McPherson College campus."

Students for 1969 - 1970 apply for scholarships

Ninety-seven applications for academic scholarships and five applications for music scholarships have been received from new students for the academic year, 1969-1970.

The initial decision concerning these scholarships will be announced in late February. Others will be announced as applications are received and scholarships are awarded.

The music scholarship recipients are determined by audition. High school grades and class rank, ACT scores, a personal interview, and other standardized test scores determine the academic scholarship recipients.

The scholarships range from $100 - $675 per year. They are guaranteed for four years if a satisfactory GPA is maintained.

Students attending McPherson College, previously without scholarships, have been awarded substantial scholarships if they have maintained a high GPA. This includes awards to transfer students from both junior colleges and four-year schools.

Guy Hayes stated, "The scholarship program for both new and present students has been substantially increased in an effort to be consistent with increasing school costs."

Column offers colleges' news

Kansas Campuses, a weekly column which is new this semester in The Spectator, will cover activities and news from other Kansas colleges.

The column will tell of programs initiated by other campuses, will list coming lectures, concerts, sports events, plays and other programs in which students may have an interest.

The column will also be aimed at giving McPherson students a picture of the concerns of other students from other colleges.

Too often students on a campus become involved in their own activities and inadvertently become isolated from the "outside world."

The Spectator is making an attempt to help.

Because of the nature of The Spectator and printer's deadlines, it is impossible for it to cover national or international news with any timeliness — so Kansas Campuses is aimed at helping students realize what is happening and what there is to attend on other campuses in the state.

Kansas Campuses

Oils and watercolors by Alva Malm Almquist and Lucille R. Runbeck, Lindsborg artists, are being exhibited at the Birger Sandzen Memorial Gallery on the Bethany College campus, Lindsborg, during February.

Also on display are a group of contemporary prints owned by Austin J. Adams, Wichita, and student art including paintings, prints, ceramics and sculpture from Bethel College.

Samuel Barber's opera "Vanessa" will be presented by the Kansas State College of Pittsburg music department in Carney Hall on Feb. 21 at 8 p.m. "Vanessa" is a modern opera with modern sounds and instrumental use.

Mike Mansfield, Senate majority leader, will speak at Kansas State University, Manhattan, on March 10 in the Landon Lecture Series.

Another speaker this spring will be Gen. William Westmoreland, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Self-regulated hours for sophomore women went into effect on a trial basis last week at Kansas State University.

The new policy was unanimously approved by the Council on Student Affairs. Juniors and seniors are already on this policy.

A University for Man was begun this week at Kansas State to bring members of the university community together in small groups to discuss contemporary topics.

Groups will meet two hours weekly for the next eight weeks. There are no grades or tuition, and all participation is voluntary.

The role of non-violence in a violent world will be discussed by six speakers at the 34th annual Kansas Institute of International Relations Feb. 28-March 2 at Alexander Auditorium, Friends University, Wichita.

Among the speakers are Kenneth Boulding, professor of economics, University of Colorado, and Amiya Chakravarty, former secretary, Dr. Tagore and friend of Gandhi and Nehru.

Tickets and programs may be obtained from Halsey Hulbert, registrar, 824 Porter, Wichita, Kansas 67203.

The Faculty Senate and Student Assembly of Kansas State College of Pittsburg have both passed the "Statement of Student Rights and Freedoms."

The statement will be included in the student handbook for the fall semester.

The second annual Junior College-Senior College Articulation Conference sponsored by Hutchinson Community Junior College and the Associated Colleges of Central Kansas, will be on the Hutchinson Juco campus Friday, March 7.

Discussions will include improving the academic advising of transfer students, practical considerations for the transfer student and transferring of juco work to ACCK colleges.

The purpose of the conference is to work toward more satisfactory program of student transfer from the juco to the four year college.

Bloodmobile gets 62 pints

The Red Cross Bloodmobile made its semi-annual visit to the McPherson College campus on Wednesday, Feb. 12. Blood donors were received from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the basement of the Church of the Brethren.

Sixty-two pints were donated by students, faculty, and citizens of the town who were then provided with a meal by the home economics department. Circle K sponsored the visit; local Red Cross volunteers assisted in the operation.

The Red Cross mobile unit which visited McPherson is one of three which operate in an area consisting of ninety-eight counties throughout most of Kansas and parts of Oklahoma, Texas, and Missouri. The regional headquarters is in Wichita.

The Red Cross services 150 hospitals within this area, and fills an average daily demand for 300 pints of blood.

Hoover responds to Audit editorial, presents short resume of satire

Dear Editor: I shall attempt, in the following article, to respond to Susan Sell's editorial regarding the purpose, acceptance and faults of the McPherson Audit and its cast.

Since an understanding of the medium of satire is apparently lacking, I shall now give a short resume of satire as I understand it.

According to Hignett in "Anatomy of Satire" the Romans originated a form of satire that displayed a series of skits. These skits were not real plays but were forms of dialogue that were improvised humor and made fun of people and their ways, later assuming the role of social and personal criticism.

The method of satire is the combination of humor and truth. The McPherson Audit fell generally into the classification of optimistic satire. Hignett says that the optimistic satirist likes people but thinks they are rather blind and foolish.

He tells the truth with a smile to repel as few as possible but he tells the truth to cure them of their ignorance. Since man is self-blinded, he believes foolishness is a comic spectacle that can be cured.

The desire to satirize may be stimulated through personal frustration, but the satirist attempts to eradicate the foolishness that has frustrated him through the use of satire. This form may appear disorganized in production but should display an underlying organization in retrospect.

Miss Sell, in her editorial, seems to be attacking satire as a purposeful medium as she cautions us to act upon those things we criticize. Contrary to our preparatory statements, Miss Sell assumes we are presenting our understanding of reality, when in truth we set out to use "oddities" and "specifics" only as objects of humor that point to the underlying framework of folly we were trying to cure. Laughter and not applause was expected, however.

Her argument therefore is either based upon a misunderstanding of satire, a feeling that the McPherson Audit was not satire, or a misunderstanding of our stated method and reasoning.

In wondering whether the cast was going to go out and start doing something to assume that they were in fact not achieving a purpose with satire.

The cast was asked by Stan Hoffer and I to take parts from an already existing script of satirical skits. They were, therefore, achieving the purpose of curing foolishness through participation in satire.

But, as Miss Sell is asking for specific proposals for action, I shall attempt to take her view of the Audit temporarily and to set forth some specific proposals.

First, though, I feel that setting forth specific proposals is more limiting in nature than the criticism of a folly. In satirizing a folly, the satirist is not confining the individual to a specific set of options but is leaving the individual, who feels the satirical criticism justified, to freely choose his options.

By setting up proposals the criticized individual or group may be censured for not choosing those proposals.

This line of criticism says not only, "What you are doing is folly," but also, "Unless you do what I say, your activity will be folly." The first statement may be based upon experience while the other is based upon conjecture as well as experience, and to confine the criticized to conjecture is to imply omniscience.

I will, as required, feebly set down several proposals, not necessarily things which I have not said before:

1. The purpose and direction of this institution should be clearly defined and advertised;
2. That positions of authority in the faculty and administration should not be confined to one individual for an extensive period;
3. Faculty and administration salaries should be on a comparable level with the average U.S. university;
4. A maximum time of professorships should be set up to insure liquid, non-calified faculty and administration;
5. Clearly defined channels of due process be set up for the discussion of grievances for both students and faculty.

Nwosu notes attack on home countries

Dear Editor: In recent times, international students have noticed with amazement the attack and ridicule of their home countries or continent by some of our distinguished Convocation speakers.

During one of the Convocations last fall, certain foreign countries were attacked and ridiculed. I do not know how many students from these countries transferred to other schools for the current semester.

The last Convocation witnessed a brazen and unprovoked attack and ridicule of the African continent under the guise of teaching the Hausa language.

I do not know when what a Northern Nigerian villager says or does has become the model of African culture and civilization.

Anyway, I am "grateful" to the African snakes and lions which roam the streets or is it tracks of Africa for the "warm welcome" they accorded our distinguished speaker.

I do not know what purpose the ridicule and slander of the African continent will serve, but I do know that this does not make for good international relations.

I appreciate the good work being done by the college authorities to promote cordial international relations and I hope the Convocations committee will help them in this endeavor.

My consolation is that most people in this great country including McPherson College are genuinely and tirelessly working for better understanding between nations.

It is my conviction that the future of our world will depend on what the youth of today make it. We can have a better world to live in by understanding one another, not by ridicule and slander.

Dear and beloved Africa, forgive them for they know not what they do.

Smith requests points of view

Dear Editor:

There was a lot of talk pro and con about the paper, Common Sense. Regardless of the general opinion of the material, these students have exercised their rights and have challenged Mac students to do the same.

They're not just interested in Mac problems, but problems facing our generation in this world.

It's just plain "common sense" to use your rights. Quit complaining about no freedom on this campus. Let's hear your point of view.

Nigerian man is in Nevada

A missing Nigerian man, Joseph Ayodele Olomiye, who left Des Moines, Iowa Feb. 1 enroute to McPherson College to be enrolled as a student for the second semester has been located at the University of Nevada, Reno, Nev.

Authorities were notified of Olomiye's not arriving in McPherson when Rev. David Hykes, Ankeny, Iowa, called and asked the College if he had arrived.

Rev. Hykes had put him on a bus with more than $400 in his person. When Rev. Hykes learned he had not enrolled at McPherson, he became fearful of foul play.

Olomiye apparently just changed his mind and decided to go to Nevada to school. There has been no statement as to why Olomiye changed his plans and did not enroll at McPherson.

Lectures, observing people enlighten ACCK Jamaica trip

By Susan Krehbiel

Three McPherson College students returned from interterm tan and smiling, enlightened from their Sojourn to the West Indies.

Nancy Brown, sr, Concord, Mass., Hal Hayes, sr, Kings, Ill., and Paul Otis, sr, Denver, Colo., along with 27 other ACCK students studied sociology on the island of Jamaica.

The Sandhurst Guest House in Kingston, the largest city of Jamaica, was the group's headquarters for their two weeks' stay.

Dr. Santayana, head of the sociology department of Sterling College, was professor-sponsor of the class.

The group heard lectures by the vice-chancellor and head of the sociology department at the University of the West Indies. Issues such as economics, industry and population were discussed from a sociological standpoint.

The university campus was quite attractive. Few students are chosen to attend college there, and those selected are thus more serious about their studies than the average American student.

Observing people and their way of life, as well as doing some of the things they do, made the trip more pleasurable and educational.

The Jamaican people are a mixture of many ancestries and colors as in the United States. There is no middle class, and most of the people are very poor.

Granted independence on Aug. 6, 1962 Jamaica is still under British influence. Presently they are undergoing changes, such as switching from the British to American monetary system.

One problem the students encountered was converting shillings and pounds to dollars and cents.

Another unpleasant experience for one coed was discovering a lizard crawling up her leg during a lecture.

A high point of the trip was talking to the "King" or governor of the country at his home. They were unable to see the prime minister who was in England at the time.

Doing much traveling by bus, which cost only four cents per mile, the students covered much of the island. Commonly cows, chickens and pigs shared the road with them.

With the temperature in the 80's, Jamaica is a winter tourist resort. On the southern part of the island it is always sunny and rarely rains.

Carried goat, kippers or smoked fish and a variety of fresh fruits were some of the foods popular on the island.

Getting to know everyone in the group and doing things together were other highlights of this ACCK field trip.

These students' reaction to interterm is, as one might guess, in the affirmative.
