

Do you know where you're at? Why you're here? What you're doing? These are some of the possible topics for today's Communications Day discussion.

Dale Brown, from Bethany Seminary, Illinois, is the speaker. He was scheduled to speak during the regular Convocation period. An underground film, made on campus by Brian Summerhays, Jr. Brockport, N. Y., and Joel Burkholder, Jr. Melba, Idaho, was shown during this hour.

Since there will be no classes held today, McPherson College students, faculty, and townspeople are invited to attend discussion groups dealing with the aforementioned subjects. Also, in the afternoon, four avant-garde films will be shown.

The people of the community

Juniors gain hours privilege

Since spring vacation, junior women have also been given the no hours privilege, providing they have the written permission of their parents if under 21.

At a meeting Monday, Dour Hall residents were issued cards and Kline Hall women received keys.

According to Miss Mary Ann Robinson, dean of women, the privilege was extended to juniors since it has proved so successful with senior women.

Women elect Walker

Sherry Walker, Jr. Norton, was selected as chairman of the Kansas Home Economics College Chapters at their convention in Topeka April 10-12. Also in attendance from McPherson were Lill Ann Wivell, Jr. Columbia, Pa., past state treasurer, and Miss Mildred Siek, professor of home economics.

The next meeting of the local chapter will be April 28. Miss Marguerite Goodwin of the American Dairy council will speak.

SEA to host banquet for ACCK schools

The ACCK schools which will attend are Bethany, Bethel, Kansas Wesleyan, Sterling and Tabor. The banquet is to promote activities among the schools and help set up a program for the coming year among the ACCK schools.

Dr. Melvin Neely, executive secretary of the Kansas State Teacher's Association and editor of the Association's state magazine, Kansas Teacher, will be the speaker at the banquet.

His topic will be "Current Problems Facing Education." During the current Kansas legislative session, Dr. Neely of McPherson have been invited to the Communications Day with the hopes of improving the town-college relationship. Also, the idea of initiating some community involvement has been thought of.

The committee for the Communications Day program consists of: Joel Burkholder, Carolyn Dadisman, sr. Springfield, Illinois; Rita DeCoursey, soph, McPherson; Stan Hoffert, sr, McPherson; Dan Snyder, soph, Wichita; and Brian Summerhays, Dr. David Eiler, professor of philosophy and religion, is the sponsor.

Women sponsor 'Heart Week'

Heart Sister Week, a traditional McPherson College event sponsored by Women's Council, will be held April 21-27.

All women participating will have a secret pal with whom to correspond. Imaginative and curiosity-arousing notes and favors will be received from an unknown heart sister.

The mysteries of the week will come to an end on Sunday, April 27, when the Heart sisters will be revealed at a nightcap after dorm hours.

Any women who have not yet signed up may do so by contacting Sherry Walker, Kathy Bryer or Michelle Green.

has been active in promoting bills which would aid education.

McPherson College members will be charged one dollar for the meal. Others will pay $1.75 per plate. Tickets will be sold at the evening meal in the Student Union.

Pass-Fail begins in Fall

Beginning with fall term, the pass-fail grading option will be available to McPherson College students.

The proposal, presented by the Educational Policies Committee, was passed at a faculty meeting April 1.

Any student may elect to take as much as 12 hours of work on a pass-fail basis. Only one course in any term, summer session, or interterm may be taken pass-fail. Graduation requirements or courses in a major may be taken pass-fail.

A student must record a decision with the registrar to take a course pass-fail before the two-week deadline for dropping or adding courses.

A course in which a grade pass-fail has been recorded may not be changed at a later date to a conventional letter grade.

Neither a pass or a fail shall count in the GPA on the pass-fail option.

McPherson College will experiment with the pass-fail grading system for two years beginning with the fall term 1969. At the end of the two-year period a study will be made to decide whether the system should be continued, broadened, or discontinued.

Spec welcomes student use

The Spectator has been the object of much discussion, during the present school year, and especially during the recent Student Council elections and campaigns.

Among the chief criticisms is that the paper, as a student publication, does not voice student opinion.

The only way in which any paper can voice this opinion is for the students themselves to write and have their ideas and criticisms (which hopefully would be constructive) printed.

Throughout the discussions, an apparent misconception has arisen in the minds of many of the student body, and perhaps even in the minds of the faculty, that the news matter and editorial matter of the Spectator is highly edited and censored.

The editor-in-chief makes the final decision of what goes into the paper.

In the period that the present editor has been in the position of editor-in-chief, she has never had an article or letter censored or edited by the adviser or by any faculty member or person of the administration.

The only reason any letter which is sent to the Spectator might not be printed is if it was in poor taste, or if it contained libelous matter or profanity for which the paper, the editors, the adviser, the College and even the board of trustees might be sued.

The misconception is unfortunate, but is evidently widespread.

The only way in which it can be overcome, is for students to write and have their opinions printed.

Only by student use can the Spectator become a student sounding board.

Flory relates facts on 'threat' to Racine

Dear Editor:

It occurs to me that a wider audience might be interested in the background of a "threat" to Mr. Racine as expressed by him the week of March 23.

In spite of their protestations of independence, both Mr. Racine and Mr. Livingston asked me to write recommendations for them to a number of graduate schools where they were seeking admission and scholarships in the field of history.

I not only complied with their requests, which they knew, but what they did not know when their editorial appeared was that the recommendations I wrote were totally complimentary and contained no adverse comments of any kind.

The week-end of March 21-22 we had a history conference on this campus, and some of those in attendance were the recipients of some of the letters of recommendation for the two gentlemen mentioned above.

My "threat" on that occasion was to urge that Common Sense be kept out of circulation at the history conference. I have good reason to believe that the complimentary recommendations which I wrote would look highly incongruous to someone reading certain issues of Common Sense.

Evidently Mr. Racine feels threatened when he is reminded that he may need to accept the consequences of his behavior.

I would agree with Mr. Racine and Mr. Livingston that they will indeed be admitted to graduate school. I would add that in my judgment they will both do a good job, though I would anticipate that their overall stance will be a bit more positive than that which we have seen exhibited on this campus in recent weeks.

Another part of Mr. Racine's article is worthy of comment. One of the stated objectives of the editors of Common Sense is that the intend to "spoil" everything and everybody. This they have done.

Frequently their comments have been derogatory, and sometimes almost insulting or obscene. Against that background it is amusing that Mr. Racine is "disappointed" and even accuses me of seeking to "destroy the existence of creativity in . . . students" when I have jokingly referred to their sheet as "common nonsense!"

Do the protesters in our society have all the rights — for their own exclusive use?

Krehbiel feels responsibility to students

By Susan Krehbiel
Student Council elections are valuable for many reasons, and one of these is the re-evaluation of existing structures and policies.

As campus editor I have with interest noted criticisms of the Spectator. I have recognized the campus attitude toward it, and, anticipating spring term 1970 when I will be editor-in-chief, am interested in and feel responsibility to student opinion.

I feel that the first purpose of the Spectator is to be an organ of student expression. Students should be able to voice their opinions within reason. The campus newspaper should be academic in action. It should be a reflection of our educational experience; it should give purpose to what knowledge we are gaining. Also, as a true media of student expression, the Spectator could bolster school spirit and pride.

Another valid purpose of the newspaper is that of informing the campus of events and recording news for a historical record. Perhaps this is being done now, and it should be continued.

The college newspaper can also be a training laboratory. Students interested in journalism and business management can gain valuable experience. In this area it, too, is important that the paper maintains professional standards and good business procedures.

Secondary functions of the college newspaper can be very important but should be kept in proper perspective. The paper is a public relations media informing the community of what the college is doing. It can be helpful in recruiting students and can serve to inform faculty and alumni.

When criticizing a newspaper, one should consider the factors affecting the treatment and coverage of the news. The first and most important of these is policy. In the job descriptions of the Spectator editors drawn up last fall (which may, incidentally, be changed), the editor-in-chief is "to determine editorial policy on questions of what is to be printed and to consult with the adviser in case of questions or controversy."

The Board of Publications assumes more direct responsibility in policy-making in some colleges and even McPherson's constitution states that the Spectator shall be "directly supervised by the Board of Publications."

The class of readers partly determines newspaper policy,

Commercial newspapers, to sell, must give the people what they want. Perhaps it is a healthy indication about the class of Spectator readers that students are interested.

The amount of space left after advertising affects what can go into the paper. The Spectator, as a business venture, must deal with this fact.

In a weekly paper, timing is an important factor. The last deadline for publication on Thursday is Monday evening. Thus, the way news breaks and the previous treatment it has received affect the paper's content.

Another factor modifying treatment is censorship. However, what is commonly thought to be censorship may only be policy. Sources of censorship for college newspapers might be the administration, adviser or printer.

A very important and practical element often overlooked is legal responsibility. If the paper contains libelous material, not only the editors and Student Council but also the college can be sued. However unfair students may feel this to be, they must recognize that this is the pattern of court rulings.

Whatever happens now that election week is over will be determined both by the new leaders and by the interest and support of the student body.

As future editor-in-chief of the Spectator, I will strive to make the Spectator what I feel it should be and to be open to both news ideas and views differing from my own. And I promise if I find the channels closed for making necessary changes, I will let it be known while, not after, I am editor.

Caputo wins KSTA treasury; delegates pass resolutions

Ralph Caputo, Jr., Yonkers, N. Y., was elected as state treasurer for the Student Kansas State Teachers Association at the group's annual convention.

Caputo, who will serve as the treasurer for the McPherson College Student Education Association, was elected March 29 at Kansas State University.

The delegates passed the following resolution:

Whereas, the 104 per cent limitation on local school budgets is still in force in Kansas, (this forces schools to limit budget increases to 104 per cent of the previous year's budget), and:

Whereas, many school districts, because of this 104 per cent limitation, were unable to reach the base set by the 1968 Student KSTA delegate assembly, and:

Whereas, time is needed to organize an efficient program for the removal of the 104 per cent limitation;

Be it therefore resolved, that the Student KSTA commend the school systems that reached the $6500 minimum, and;

Be it further resolved, that 1969-70 SKSTA executive Board commend those systems that made all legal attempts to raise their salary but were unable to meet the $6500 request for the 1969-70 school year, and,

Be it further resolved, that the SKSTA extend the $6500 minimum salary resolution through the 1970-71 school year, and;

Be it finally resolved, that the 1969-70 SKSTA executive Board do the following:

1. Develop a campaign handbook to help local organizations to implement the resolution;
2. Work with the KSTA and local teachers associations in joint effort to raise salaries;
3. Develop a task force of students and resource persons;

4. And, discuss what action can be taken concerning those who sign below $6500.

Speaking at the closing delegate assembly was the associate executive secretary of the KSTA, Dr. Joseph McFarland. He spoke on "Education Needs Today."

The three areas he dealt with were legislative problems, statewide programs and personal needs and problems of education.

Dr. McFarland seemed to feel that the most pressing legislative problem is the problem of finance. A sales tax increase of one cent and a property tax increase of five cents are some possible solutions to the problem.

In statewide problems and programs, Dr. McFarland reminded the group that the School Crisis Alert has been continued for another year because the situation of salaries and state aid to education has not improved sufficiently to lift the alert.

The state dropped to 32nd in state aid to education among all states. In 1967, the state was 31st.

In the past year, 25 per cent of the teachers in the state left the state; in the previous year, 21 per cent left.

State legislators pass resolution

The Kansas legislature recently passed a concurrent resolution guaranteeing the right of orderly protest of state universities and reaffirming the right of officials to dismiss unruly demonstration participants.

Senate Concurrent Resolution Number 18 seeks to encourage students, faculty and administration of the state colleges and universities to maintain an atmosphere conducive to orderly expression of protest and dissent.

"An opportunity to protest or express dissenting opinions in a manner which does not endanger or threaten life or property, and which does not disturb the orderly processes..." should be provided, the resolution states.

However, the administrative head, faculty and student governing bodies are authorized "to provide for the separation from such college or university, in accordance with the principles of due process of law, any person who causes, organizes or participates in such demonstrations of protest or dissent in contravention of the principles set forth in this resolution..."

The key appears to be how the phrase "in a manner which endangers life or property, or which disrupts the orderly processes..." will be interpreted.

The preamble to the resolution notes the belief in the value of higher education in Kansas and recognizes the individual's constitutional rights and freedoms.

It also acknowledges the necessity of maintaining order in the state colleges and universities to preserve the students' rights and freedoms of education to which they are entitled and for which millions of tax dollars have been expended.

Copies of the resolution were sent to every Kansas college or university under the control of the state board of regents.

Musicians to give recital

Students enrolled in vocal and instrumental lessons will present a recital in Brown Auditorium April 18 at 7 p.m.

Marvin Tischhauser, fr, Wilsey, will play a trumpet solo. Winona Achilles, sr, McPherson will be performing on her French horn.

Organ solos will be presented by Neysa Fox, sr, Larned, and Esther Ebeby, fr, Wawaka, Ind.

Piano numbers will be played by Becky Pugh, soph, Peru, Ind.; Cindy Barchesky, soph, McPherson; Janice Bailey, fr, Morrill; Shirley Matile, fr, Madison.

Vocal soloists include Chris Lippy, soph, Littleton, Colo.; Marge Roorda, soph, Denver; Mary Ann Brown, fr, Enders, Neb.; Ray Landis, sr, Dayton, Ohio; and Ken Dilling, sr, Nantoy Glo, Pa.

Coburn to star as Derek Flint

"Our Man Flint" will be featured in Brown Auditorium at 8 p.m. Friday, April 18.

"Our Man Flint" is a take-off on the spoofs that imitate James Bond movies, which already show the strain of excess spoofery.

As Secret Agent Derek Flint, James Coburn works for an outfit called ZOWIE. He opposes Galaxy, a criminal conspiracy "bigger than Spectre." He carries a pocket lighter with 82 different functions, "83 if you wish to light a cigar," and keeps four mistresses, not counting Galaxy's Gila Golan.
