Students react to C.D. 1969

Communications Day, 1969, an opportunity for students to express themselves, met various student reactions.

Dr. Dale Brown, associate professor of theology at Bethany Seminary, Illinois, spoke at Convocation and a film made on campus was shown.

Faculty, students and townspeople met in discussion groups throughout the day to discuss many areas of concern.

Reactions to the film varied from "confusing" and "enjoyed last year's more" to "wonderful."

Dr. Brown's speech and question-answer period provoked much thought about student activism. Some "disagreed with everything he said" while others whole-heartedly endorsed him.

Shirley Matile, fr, Madison, thought the Convocation was the best of the year and found Dr. Brown a "terrific speaker."

Many students chose not to participate in the discussion groups. Some did not go due to their disappointment in last year's, and others found the day a time for study or social activities.

Vincette Goerl, soph, Little River, felt participation was as good as to be expected, and those who did come were the ones who wanted to participate.

Mark Krough, sr, Farrington, R.I., felt the day was okay if something good grows out of the criticisms.

Dennis Coffman, fr, McPherson, was disappointed in the afternoon sessions, but overall thought the day was "great."

Whether the day was a success or a failure depended on what the student put into it, and what will continue to grow from it. Communications Day must not be a single effort to communicate, but a reflection of what can happen every day on the campus.

Controversy rages in Washington over anti-ballistic missile system

By Rita DeCoursey

Controversy is raging in Washington and the rest of the nation about the proposed deployment of an anti-ballistic missile (ABM) system. President Nixon recommended March 14 that the system be put into effect starting immediately. However, Congress will first have to appropriate funds, al-together totalling $4-6 billion for the ABM system.

President Nixon feels the ABM is necessary as an added deterrent against Soviet or Chinese attack against the U.S. Along with other proponents (Senators Richard Russell, Everett Dirksen, Strom Thurmond, Representative Roger Morton), Nixon thinks - our defense sys-tem is at present not adequate to deter attacks by Russia or China.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) said "Russia has reached parity and, in my opinion, superiority in the number of offensive nu-clear weapons they could launch against this Nation and cause cur absolute destruction." Because of this, proponents feel the ABM is needed to maintain (or regain) national security.

Opposing this, Senators Coop-er, Fulbright, Symington, Ken-nedy, Javits, McGovern, Hatfield and others say the ABM is undesirable for several reasons: 1. The high cost of the ABM will force us to cut back on domestic social programs. rather than increasing our attempts to alleviate poverty, unrest and inequality in America.

2. The present plans for the ABM seem not to be perfected, so that if built, the ABM would be almost as likely to fail as to succeed in its missions. Proponent Sen. Russell and others have admitted that the "thin" ABM system advocated by Pres- and USSR) to a higher level ident Nixon would be ineffec-tive in the face of an all-out nuclear attack.

But, says Sen. Thurmond (R-S. Carolina), "With China building an ICBM, with Russia already in possession of an IC-BM, and Russia also having an ABM, we would be completely exposed unless we go forward and deploy our own ABM defense.

3. Since both the U.S. and Russia know so much already about countermeasures to ABM systems, we could no sooner levelop our own ABM system than the Soviets would have developed an effective way to overcome it. Even starting now, it will be 1973 before the ABM system could be completed, which gives the USSR plenty of time to think of countermeasures.

and other proponents claim the U.S. needs the ABM in order to negotiate with Russia from a position of strength. But Sen. Symington (D-Mo.), with other opponents, believes our possession of an ABM would dis-courage the Soviet Union from talking with us about nuclear disarmament.

Those against the ABM also believe that if we build an ABM, it will almost certainly accelerate the arms race with the USSR. If we build an ABM just because Russia has one, then Russia will naturally build more nuclear weapons to counteract our ABM, and so on, ad infinitum.
