Frantz offers Danforth info

Dr. Merlin Frantz, dean of academic affairs, invites inquiries about the Danforth Graduate Fellowships to be awarded in March, 1970.

The Fellowships, offered by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Mo., are open to men and women who are seniors or recent graduates of accredited colleges in the United States, who have serious interest in college teaching as a career, and who plan to study for a Ph.D. in a field common to the undergraduate college.

Approximately 120 Fellowships will be awarded in March. Candidates must be nominated by Liaison Officers of their undergraduate institution by Nov. 1, 1969.

Dr. Frantz is the College Liaison Officer.

Applicants may be single or married, must be less than 30 years of age at the time of application, and may not have undertaken any graduate or professional study beyond the baccalaureate.

Danforth Graduate Fellows are eligible for four years of financial assistance, with a maximum annual living stipend of $2400 for single Fellows and $2950 for married Fellows, plus tuition and fees.

Dependency allowances are available. Financial need is not a condition for consideration.

Danforth Fellows may hold certain other fellowships such as Ford, Fulbright, National Science, Rhodes, etc., concurrently and will be Danforth Fellows with stipend until the other awards lapse.

The Danforth Foundation, created by the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth in 1927, is a philanthropy concerned primarily with people and values.

Over the years the work of the Foundation, while orientated toward these concerns, has taken varied forms depending upon changing circumstances and the presence of promising opportunities for constructive action. Presently the Foundation focuses its activities in two major areas, education and urban affairs.

As both an operating and grant-making agency, the Foundation makes grants to schools, colleges, universities, and other public and private agencies, and also administers programs of its own designed to reflect its central emphasis.

Students interested in driving cars should sign up in the Student Union.

If anyone wants to, they may have a picnic at the park.

Mrs. Marguerite Westfall is residence director of the hall, and Wayne Black, sr., Tipp City, Ohio, is dorm council president.

'Howdy Days' draw to close

Free football tickets and the giving away of the game football will highlight the final activities of "Howdy Days."

Downtown merchants have 6,000 tickets to give away before the Saturday night football game. Tickets will be given away through customer purchases or services.

Besides admitting the customers to the game free, the tickets will be used to give away the game football. A drawing will be held to determine who receives the football at half-time.

After the game, the date of the game, who played, and the score will be printed on the football.

All 11 man squad, color guard, and drill master from the Crack Platoon of St. John's Military School, Salina, will perform at the half-time of the game also.

"The Miner's Daughter," will be presented at the Buggy Inn in connection with "Howdy Days." The play is a melodrama of the 1920's.

Performances of the play are Thursday, 6 p.m.; Friday, 6 p.m., 7 p.m., 8 p.m., and 10 p.m.; and Saturday, 6 p.m. and 7 p.m.

All during the week each department of the College has had a window display in the downtown merchants' stores.

The displays gave information about the College and the departments.

Promotion of "Howdy Days" has been through the McPherson Advertising Council, the retail arm of the Chamber of Commerce. The College Advancement Office worked with these two groups to coordinate activities.

Today's Convocation program was presented by the Chamber of Commerce. Udie Grant, president of the organization, gave the welcome. Merwin Haggood, president of the Mac Advertising Council, also gave a welcome.

Frosh get initiated

"Button, frosh." Upperclassmen have been reliving their own freshman initiation days during the initiation of the class of 1973 this week.

Freshman initiation began Monday, Sept. 22 and will continue until Friday, Sept. 26 — provided they win the tug-of-war.

All week freshmen have been wearing red beanies with their name and address on the back of them and have been actively taking part in the initiation.

Today, the men wore Bermuda shorts, nylons, and make-up, while the women wore pajamas.

Tomorrow they will be dressed in red and carry football banners.

They will also participate in the tug-of-war. Tradition dictates that the sophomores win, and freshmen have to wear their beanies for a few more days.

Since the rope broke last year and the war ended in a draw, it will be interesting to see what the fate of the class of 1973 will be.

Monday, was dress up day. Men wore suits and the women good dresses. They carried a toothbrush on a string around the neck, addressed upperclassmen as Mr. and Miss, and opened doors and carried upperclassmen's books.

Tuesday the class wore green, went to chapel, and had to be able to recite the names of ten professors and what they taught. All freshmen had a surprise at supper.

Wednesday all frosh wore mismatched clothes. At supper, they all wore curlers and carried trays to the conveyer belt (not more than three times).

With luck, freshmen initiation will be over tomorrow. Freshmen and upperclassmen will be better acquainted, and the freshmen will be planning the rigors for the class of 1974.

Bob Knechtel, Jr., Beonton, N. J., commands Sue Fox, North Glenn, Colo., and Martha Exner, Encinitas, Calif., to "button, frosh."

Sophs pick candidates

Sophomores are starting this year with action and involvement. Ward Nippert, Carlton, Neb., presided at the class meeting held Sept. 15 in the Student Union basement.

The class voted on homecoming attendants, chose men cheerleaders, and organized homecoming committees.

Sophomore nominees for homecoming queen attendant were Joanna Dell, Beatrice, Neb.; Mary Hutchinson, Thomas, Okla.; and Jolene Schmidt, Hesston.

Chauncy Morehead, Dayton, Ohio, and Jerry Schrock, Harmony, Minn., were elected cheerleaders for the Powder Puff Football game. Ivan Torres, New York City, was picked as the class king candidate for the game.

Homecoming committees were organized. Chairmen of the committees are Bill Chenoweth, Kettering, Ohio, float; Vickie Becker, Galva, publicity; and Annette Runyan, Nickerson, work day.

At the Sept. 11 meeting, sophomores chose Bill Chenoweth; Gerden Griffith, Quarryville, Pa.; and Larry Mooreman, Colorado Springs, Colo.; as the candidates for class representative on the Student Court, one of whom will be elected by the student body.

Drill team to perform

An eleven man squad, color guard, and drill master from the Crack Platoon of St. John's Military School, Salina, will perform at half-time of the McPherson-Bethel football game Saturday night.

The Platoon, well-known throughout this area, combines regulation marching movements with innovations of their own.

The Platoon is a student activity without adult suggestion or supervision.

Visitation needs thought

A Student Council committee is working on getting visitation privileges or open house for the dorms on a regular basis.

The committee is planning to propose a specified number of hours per week for visitation.

If approved by the administration, students could have study dates in their rooms.

If it is approved, students must be prepared to shoulder the major responsibilities of the visitation hours, and each dorm would have to decide its regulations.

Visitation privileges would benefit all College students.

Mac College students are mature and responsible enough to wisely use the system if the administration will seriously consider the possibility.

Adams questions purpose of freshman initiation

by Greg Adams

Initiation of freshman students began Monday of this week. Ideally the freshman initiation has a traditional communal feeling of "joining" the community of McPherson College. However in the hands of ordinary people, this ideal common spirit of entering a college life degenerates.

Older students use the opportunity to harass younger students. The final point of feelings involved in initiating or being initiated is some form of violence.

If freshmen were entering a fraternity or sorority their participation in pledging activities would state that they believed in their involvement in initiation. They would condone it, of their free will.

However, freshman initiation is set up so as to destroy free will which all students bring here from their home. Physical force is used to make the freshmen participate.

For new students who are in an environment that is foreign, adjustment may be hard. Life in a dorm immediately stops any chance for expression of any feelings in a new environment. The initiation only puts concrete fear of older students into the new ones. The experiences in initiation are not usually happy for the initiate.

He or she remembers hostility and loss of dignity. Those older students who practice harassment of younger students have not acquired any depth of thinking since they went through initiation themselves. They understand stripping other people of dignity because they have very little themselves, and they cannot understand the need for dignity in others.

Freshman initiation has no growth in it, only hostility and scapegoating on one side, and fear and harassment on the other.

Women have annual tea

Annual Women's Tea was Sunday, Sept. 21 from 2 p.m.-4 p.m. in the Student Union. Women's Council sponsored the tea.

Fashions from Stanley's and Morris and Son were modeled by Jo Dell, soph, Beatrice, Neb.; Peggy Lusk, soph, Rock Ford, Colo.; Mary Frantz, soph, Denver; Dea Unruh, sr, McPherson; Gwen Brubaker, soph, Lyons; Sally Arnesen, soph, Oak Park, Ill.; and Roberta Strickler, sr, North Manchester, Ind.

The view from Main Street

The recent action by Nixon to work towards revising the draft law brings out the question that faces many Americans today. Is draft resistance, or any civil disobedience justified?

According to former Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas, "Each of us owes a duty of obedience to law. This is a moral as well as legal imperative."

But, is this statement true? Does obedience to law in general have such a high intrinsic value that the law must be held as sacred even when it is in violation of important human rights?

To assume that all laws must be obeyed solely because most laws serve the country gives the government excessive control. . . too much control for a true democracy to exist.

A common argument against civil disobedience is that such violations of the law will lead to general lawlessness. There is no evidence to support this claim.

In fact, it would seem that a contempt for all laws would be more likely to result when the opposite is true, when laws which produce an evil condition are maintained.

Such laws produce intolerable conditions and can cause persons to resort to ordinary crimes as a release for their unfulfilled needs.

If civil disobedience does, in fact, destroy the fallacies that all laws are to be "absolutely obeyed, then this does a good in promoting democracy.

But perhaps the change can come about by other means, without breaking a law. Is there a need to bring about change more rapidly? This can be answered by asking other questions.

Which is more important, the obedience to an act of Congress or the lives of many men in a war? Which is more important, a law made by a number of legislators or the rights and dignity of many persons throughout the country?

The magnitude of the wrong must be balanced against the amount of disruption caused by the civil disobedience. When other means fail, and civil disobedience seems necessary, then the choice must be made.

Law, as all else, must be subservient to human needs. Civil disobedience, if we are truly a democratic society must not just be tolerated; it is necessary. A democratic country cannot remain static in a world of change.

Loveless gives opinion

As it may occur to some to ask why the editors of Common Sense are writing for the Spectator, I shall save time and effort by answering it all now.

One of the main reasons we published Common Sense was that we felt a need to open a line of communication which we felt, at the time, the Spectator had failed to do. But things have changed.

We see now, for the first time, a potential for new life in the Spectator, a new spirit in its editors. But we also see a need for more student participation so we are doing what we can to show our confidence in the editors and their efforts to make a stronger, more representative paper.

I received the following anonymous letter through campus mail last Saturday: If there is nothing else to blast in an upcoming Common Sense, how about expounding on the incongruity of "Brethren" McPherson and "Mennonite" Bethel finding only a military drill team for a half-time show at a football game.

What can I say? Your quotation marks say it all. Besides some people probably groove on military drill teams.

Fans may play To a certain degree postal chess

by Gary Wilson

Chess players are invited to join the Church of the Brethren Postal Chess Tournament and play by mail.

Entries for the fifth annual round, which will begin about Oct. 25, are due Oct. 15.

Players are grouped into sections of approximately the same skill. Each player in a section plays all other members of the section simultaneously.

The winner of the each section will receive a certificate. A point system is used so that players may progress to a higher rated section in subsequent annual rounds.

Novices, as well as experts, are welcome. However, entrants should have a general knowledge of the rules of chess and ability to read chess notations. There is no entry fee.

Those wishing to participate should send their name, address and approximate strength (average, above average, or below average) to the tournament director, Ward B. Crabill, 11819 Mentone Road, Silver Spring, Md. 20906.

Presently there are about 35 participants in the tournament, whose purpose is not to identify the best Brethren chess player, but to promote fellowship between chess-playing Brethren.

We can talk all we want about educational reform. We can speak of pass-fail grading systems, of co-ed dorms, of independent study. But all of this is only reform within the present educational system.

What we do not speak of even question is the almighty Diploma. Diplomas are what you go to school for — they get you a job.

Each job requires different specific diplomas. And ability seldom enters into determining who is employed. In fact, it has been determined that only 15 per cent of increased diploma demands could be accounted for by change in the nature of the work. Diplomas are fashionable. All employers feel a need to require them.

High school Diplomas are meaningless; college degrees are being mass produced; some are now pushing for a degree beyond the Ph.D.

These certificates are used as a basis of who is hired. Yet the only logical way to determine employment is by ability. Diplomas do not insure better performance. Studies have shown there is no relationship between the level of output per worker and his educational level.

So why do we continue to pay homage to this ever growing institution? Its purpose of educating has been lost. It pushes students through with the minimum requirements. The only reason existing for its continuance is that a diploma allows the bearer more material benefits. Which is true, but also senseless.

When examined we can see the hazards of this attitude. Take the field of education — of special importance to everyone, but also especially here — for 65 per cent of McPherson graduates in the past 10 years have gone in public education.

Public school systems do not care what your teaching ability is. They hire you first of all on your diploma. The more you have, the more they want you, which means a teacher may have a fine, broad education and an excellent understanding of his major. But none of this could he ever relate to his students.

Students then lose interest in the subject. Teachers are looked upon as aliens. Learning has stopped.

Of course we cannot just drop diplomas. Preparations must be made first. Colleges would have to change. More work than ever would be involved.

But this will all need to be done if we want a system that will be the best possible. We must begin to think and work on the abolition of the Diploma.

Uprooted

Loving you made me bold, I loved you less than I loved being bold, but now I am neither loved nor bold.

At each dark patch of August sky, I wonder what shall be left in its wake; the autumn frost has made me weary by July.

Not much do I associate with people whom I see, laughter should tear my throat should it escape, but loving you made me bold.

Once the draught is drunk, the thirst shall slowly strangle . . .
