

Cast Tackles Shakespeare

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" will come true April 16-17 when the McPherson College Drama department presents this Shakespearean play at 8 p.m. in Brown Auditorium. Shakespeare creates a mystical "fantasy dream" of a royal couple who plan to marry and all the spirits that entangle their lives and marriage. The confusion of three other couples and how they manage to get their lives and marriages straightened out displays many trifling and conflicting periods for them as well as the audience.

A week and a half of play rehearsals have begun for the cast in readying and studying their parts, planning schedules, and learning their roles.

One of the problems that Linda Taplin, stage manager and drama major, sees is learning the techniques of a Shakespearean play. Because of the rhythm patterns and the style and kind of drama it is, Shakespearean acting is hard to perform. Also working out conflicts of a large cast is another problem.

Through audition and practices the cast was chosen. The following is a list of the cast and their roles: Mike McCrary, Thesens; Pam Smith and Carole Flory, Hippolyta; Steve Beaver, Lysander; Gene Lightner, Demetrius;

Ann Linville, Helena; Diane Salisbury, Hermia; Art Foxall, Egeus; Ralph Dickerson, Philostrate; Dan Hiebert, Quince; Jim Olenick, Snug; Rick Tyler, Bottom; Ken Smith, Flute; Jim Lady, Snout; Sai Lie, Starveling;

Vietnam Intervention Criminal

by Pam Knotts

"The war is such a mess," says Judy Danielson, guest speaker at Chapel, after two years with the Vietnam Christian Service.

Judy worked as a physical therapist at one of the five national rehabilitation institutes in Vietnam. There she found the great need for doctors because of the increasing number of amputees, farmers, women and children who were suffering from "mine" injury, disease and war accidents.

"The Vietnamese people are living an unstable and insecure life. We are merely a band-aid effort," says Judy, "to help those in the war. The Vietnamese people die young. Most of the men leave their families to go to war and the women and children are left at home. This only adds to these peoples' insecurity."

Seeing one-seventh of their country defoliated and their farming land blown up by 35 billion tons of bombs and explosives has disrupted the worn-out people and their lives.

Hunger strikes, boycotts, demonstrations and rallies still go on for the Vietnamese people in their search for peace as well as for all those participating in the war.

"The people use songs to keep going," she further explains. "They do a lot of singing and write a lot of poetry. The songs and poems are written by everybody."

When asked whether prisoners of war would be freed soon, Judy's answer was, "the only way we'll get these men is at the end of the war. The more men they take captive, the more we hate them and will want to end the war. Seriously, in getting 'p.o.w.'s' home, we will have to end the war."

"It is immoral and criminal," she explains when asked about her personal feelings of U.S. intervention in Vietnam. "There is no legal basis for us to be there according to the Geneva Convention. When do we change our attitudes to let countries stabilize their own governments. I think behind the whole thing is the 'American dollar.'"

Feeling useless, losing arms and legs, and then coming back home where everybody is against the war is hard for those guys who are fighting to feel needed. "We have to support our military front to shut off Communism," Judy emphasized.

"I just can't understand

Republicans Speak Out

The Kansas College Republican Federation will hold its State Elections Convention March 26-27 at the Ramada Inn in Wichita. Twelve voting delegates, one voting state officer and several alternate delegates will be attending from McPherson College.

If there are more interested in attending, arrangements will be made so that they can. Everyone will have the opportunity to participate as fully as possible in the convention procedure.

Activities will include a gala dinner-dance Friday evening in cooperation with the Sedgwick County Twelve Hundred Club, a branch of the Sedgwick County Republican Central Committee.

Senator Pearson, Senator Dole and Congressman Shriver will be the guest speakers. There will be a banquet from 7-8:30 p.m., and a dance from 9-12 midnight at Century II, Friday evening.

Saturday the Standing Committees of Rules, Resolutions, Constitution and Credentials will meet with committee members appointed from each delegation.

In order to facilitate ticket distribution and room reservations, please make application to Linda Keim, Kline Hall or 241-5907, as soon as possible if you are interested in attending. Names of possible sponsors will be given upon request.

Trustees, Students Discuss, listen, learn

by Dick Smalley

Although the McPherson College Trustees had much important business to discuss during their three-day meeting March 4-6 on the college campus, they found some of their more interesting discussions to be with students. Many of the trustees spent hours with students in the college dormitories, sharing thoughts about life at McPherson College.

The first such meeting came at 3:15 p.m. Thursday and lasted until dinner time. Later in the evening, at 9:30 p.m., after a full day of business meetings, each trustee was invited into one of the college dormitories, where they sat down with students, and listened to their likes and dislikes concerning each issue quite thoroughly. The sessions broke up at different times; one session lasted until 1:30 a.m.

The following day found the trustees handling business during the daylight hours, attending a Faculty-Trustee Dinner in the evening and then returning to the dorm for more communication with the students. This session also lasted into the early hours of the morning, and several trustees found it convenient to sleep in a student's bed while their comrades carried on the discussion.

This meeting of the McPherson College trustees was different than most others. It was the kind of meeting that is beneficial to the entire McPherson College Community; administration, faculty, staff, and perhaps most important of all, students.

Friends University Hosts Environmental Conference

"The Imperatives of the Global Village" is the theme of this year's Thirty-Sixth Annual Kansas Institute of International Relations, being held March 19-21 at the University Friends Church in Wichita.

This annual program is sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee. The public is invited. All sessions will be at University Friends Church, 1840 University, Wichita.

The institute will be considering what man must do if he is to continue to inhabit this earth.

Douglas Ensminger, coordinator of socio-economic dynamics and professor of rural sociology, University of Missouri, will begin the program on Friday, March 19, 8 p.m. His topic will be "How Can the United States Contribute to the Achievement of a Global Village?"

On Saturday, March 20, at 9:30 a.m., Judy Danielson, physical therapist, recently returned from her work at the South Vietnamese National Rehabilitation Institute in Saigon, will speak on "Vietnam Look to the Future."

"Man: A Species Out of Context" will be the topic of S. Westley Jackson, Saturday, 11 a.m. Jackson is professor of biology at Kansas Wesleyan University, Salina.

Another pizza comes hot out of the oven ready to be served.

Campus Greet Youth Invasion

This weekend McPherson College will host the Regional Brethren Youth Conference. Approximately 350 people are expected to be on campus for the conference.

College students are invited to attend all sessions. However, a special invitation is extended to both public and students to attend the session with Glen Cunningham Saturday, March 13, 8 p.m. in Brown Auditorium.

Decisions

The board took action to approve the Education Master Plan 1970-80. In the motion it was stated, that implementation proceed immediately on those items having top priority. With the unanimous adoption of the Education Master Plan, they called for wholehearted support from faculty, students, and alumni.

The Trustee Board Approved the following:

All present salaries be stabilized for the 1971-72 academic year, with only necessary minimal adjustments for change of assignments and new responsibilities. The Board expressed deep appreciation to all employees for holding present salaries for next year.

Costs approved for 1971-72: Tuition and room remain the same as this year. Returning students are eligible to apply for a Residence Hall Grant. Board will increase $10. The general fee will increase $10.

Trustees Can and Do Listen

Many McPherson students have expressed their opinions concerning the rapping that they were able to do with the Board of Trustees members this past weekend.

The general consensus of many of the students, as I hear it, is one of optimism in the fact that the trustees were able to communicate.

They were willing to listen, and they did. They made an effort to explain some reasons why. They were able to say that they could understand how the students felt because they too had been students.

As a student and a member of the college community, I realize that having the students' voice in that community is essential for its maintenance, growth and cooperation between members. McPherson College is finally realizing this too.

Some Timely Humor

BITTER Timepiece Release

by Harve

Rumor has it that the BITTER (ing)ER Manufacturing Company will soon come out with a new toy watch called the Goering Sundial.

The watch, soon to come off production lines, will feature two faces, both sporting a figure of an idle man. Unlike the popular Agnew watch, the figures are capable of doing nothing. Instead of arms as hands, this peculiar fellow boasts a forked tongue which runs around in circles. BACKWARD

One face shows the fellow facing to the left with a smile on his face. Kind of a nauseating smile, at that. The other face, on the reverse side, features the same figure in the same position except that it is facing the opposite direction, has a more devilish face, and bears a butter knife in the visible hand.

A BITTER release says the purpose of the watch is solely entertainment. The tongues revolve counterclockwise stopping periodically and taking a jaunt in the right direction as if to deceive one into believing that

Something to Think About

Black History:

No More Lip - Service

Black History Week has come and gone (Feb. 7-14). There is something that I want you people to think about. Blacks and whites alike have been giving lip-service to Black History. They tend to forget that Black History is the History of the United States.

Take slavery for example. Slavery was an important issue in the writing of the constitution. Later one of the causes of the Civil War. The list can go on and on.

You may say yes, Blacks did do something. Look at Booker T. Washington, George Washington Carver, Ralph Bunche and Jackie Robinson. But you are forgetting that we made this country great; we did everything. We worked in the fields, in your homes, suckled your babies, provided work to farmers who fed the slaves and New England shipbuilders, who built more ships to get more slaves. This list can go on forever, too.

One last fact: slavery was a world wide institution, but the particular institution that was to be found here was started with white folks (commonly called indentured servants) not Blacks.

So therefore Black History is a very important part of U.S. History and more than lip-service needs to be paid to Black History and to Black folks. When will that debt be paid?

Liberals

One day while in the S.U. basement I overheard a conversation. It goes like this: "I patronized a colored gas station while I was in Washington, D. C. and the colored people were so friendly and the station was so clean." Now the person who said this is an educated man but he seems to be culturally deprived.

I read the article in the Spectator about the "Coeds Find Cute Program Challenging, Exciting Work." Now I ask you what's challenging and exciting about working with poor Black kids?

I have worked with poor Black folks for most of my life and I find our condition very sickening. But we of the Black-kind thank you coeds for your help, but you are working with the wrong people. Go home and work with your own brothers and sisters.

I also read an article in a Mennonite publication. It stated in a 'round about way that Black people owe a debt to white folks. Aint that ridiculous (see my other article in the Spectator about History for the answer.)

So we don't want your patronage or your liberal concern and we don't owe you a debt. Remember we are not the problem, you are.

Is Rhetoric U.S. Policy In Southeast Asia?

Editor's Note: The following is a letter that was printed in the Hutchinson Newspaper and is reprinted here by request.

GIs returning from the northern quarter of South Vietnam say there is no withdrawal at that point. Replacements arrive for every one sent home. These GIs predict intense conflict to come.

From President Nixon, the secretary of state, secretary of defense, and the news in general it sounds like we are hardily involved in Southeast Asia today. More careful analysis of all the reports coming out of there reveals that rather than slowing down we have accelerated, but shifted to more technological means which fortunately for us results in fewer American casualties. What happens to the Vietnamese and Vietnam is of little consequence—so long as Thieu and Ky are safe.

Note the tone of voice and the rhetoric when mention is made of our Air Force. Emphasis is placed on "ground troops" as "combat" forces. Apparently our sophisticated Air Force is noncombatant.

Maturity Is A Necessity

This year, we, the S.U. Directors, have made an honest effort toward unifying and identifying the Student Union with the needs of the students.

At the beginning of the year we placed candles on the tables in the snack bar area, hung posters on the wall, pinned flags from the ceiling and made an attempt to keep the calendar up to date. However we have repeatedly run up against the same obstacles.

If an object is of aesthetic value, someone always finds a way of appropriating it. How can communication within the school be maintained if advertising posters disappear? How can we decorate, if all articles we hang or pin up on the walls are subject to being taken?

We urge you as responsible, mature, college students to work with us toward making the Union a better place to be. Your ideas and suggestions are always welcome.

Depersonalization: Sad Part of History

"Cultural Disorientation and Depersonalization": These three words, when first introduced to me in this particular order, had none or very little meaning. I have read selections from a section (which was not by coincidence) entitled "Cultural Disorientation and Depersonalization."

So at the present time I believe that there might be a chance I can begin to define the terms "cultural disorientation and depersonalization."

Many of the selections in the section seemed a bit vague or confusing to me at first. Maybe because I just hopped right into the story and began reading really without any meaning. But it also appeared to me that every story did have something in common with our culture, past and present.

They all tried to relate to some experience that the reader (you and I) might have been a part of. Take for example, the story "Notes of a Native Son" by James Baldwin.

This was a story that had great meaning for me. It talked about the problems of the average (Ghetto) black family, and the many crisis they faced every day: mainly racial tension, lack of communication between family members, the fight to be recognized by the white society during the second World War, and finally death.

Since I am a Black Afro American, I hope you can see how this particular story may have had some impact on me.

And I am certain that other stories in the section "Cultural Disorientation and Depersonalization" probably had some impact on other readers like myself.

At this point, I would like to get a bit more specific. It seems that all through history (no matter who's culture we're talking about) there has been depersonalization, and there always will be.

Man just cannot help himself, he's got to degrade someone, be he white, black, yellow or pink. He's got to do it. And the sad part is that while this is happening everyone is saying the world is getting better.

Well this is true but there are also areas in society that have become worse, or even corrupt. One example is a story I read entitled "Government by Publicity," which stated "Senators and congressmen (who are so inclined) seem to publicize themselves with more vigor and skill than their public servants." Although he is dead and almost forgotten, Senator Joseph McCarthy was a master at manipulating public opinion to gain his own power. Now if that's not drawing blood from our cultural society, then how far can one go before such a flaw is rectified?

So until our society can control the depersonalization of its fellow man, I can only begin to define the terms "Cultural Disorientation and Depersonalization."

Friendly People Keep Thai Student in Kansas

The name "Ead" may not mean anything to you. It has no meaning, and it has never been listed in Webster's Dictionary. It is just the nickname which everybody calls me.

At 8:30 p.m. on one day in 1951, I was born as the first child of the family in Bangkok, Thailand. I started going to school when I was four years old and finished high school where there were 6000 students in 1968.

I have three reasons I came to study in the U.S. I just happen to like the English language so much that my father decided to send me here to study and to get some experience of living in a foreign land while I am still young.

The U.S. is considered to be one of the most civilized nations where I can come to learn some knowledge. So when I go back home, I'd work and share my knowledge that I've learned to people in order to develop my own country.

I had a recommendation from an official at the International

Institution of Education that a small college would be a good place to start with, so I started writing McPherson College about coming here to study.

But my father had some friends who were staying in Washington D. C., and he thought that I should go to a college in Washington D. C. So I decided to go to D. C.

I arrived at Wichita Airport on Feb. 1, 1969 where Mr. Myers and Thai students were waiting. On the next day they showed me around the campus, and I found myself interested in McPherson College because of the friendly people.

So I decided to stay here instead of going to D. C. where I, until now, have never been to yet.

It has been two years since I got here. I've been getting along well in both education and the American cultures. I wish that you all would come to my country where I can show you the peaceful land, of the land of happiness which can bring you a unique and unforgettable experience. A truly warm welcome awaits you at the land of Smiles.

Bulldogs Compile List of Notable Statistics

The McPherson College Bulldogs, runners-up in the KCAC this season, finished the campaign with a quite impressive list of conference statistics, both individually and as a team.

The Bulldogs finished the season with a 14-9 record and captured the conference's Northern Division championship before losing to Friends University in a battle for the conference crown.

John Pyle, a 6'2" junior, averaged 19.3 points per game to finish third in the conference scoring race; ranked sixth in field goal percentage with 50.7

percent shooting accuracy; and finished seventh in free throw percentage with 75.5 per cent. He also was named to the KCAC All Star team and to the Northern Division All Star Squad.

Roger Trimmell, a 5'11" sophomore, won the free throw title by hitting on 90 of 108 attempts at the charity stripe for 83.3 per cent.

Russell Clifton, a 6'4" freshman, finished the season ranking thirteenth in field goal percentage, with 48.2 per cent, and fifteenth in scoring, with a 14.7 points per game average. Both Trimmell and Clifton were named to the Northern Division All Star team.

As a team, the Bulldogs ranked fourth in the conference in scoring, with an 80.4 points per game average, and with their defensive average of 75.6 points per game, they ranked third in the KCAC in the winning margin category, with a 4.8 points per game advantage.

The Bulldogs also finished second in the conference in field goal percentage, with 47.1 per cent, and second in free throw percentage, with 71.5 per cent.

Women Gain One, Lose One to KSU

The Women's State College Basketball Tournament, held March 5, 6 and 7 at Kansas State Teachers' College at Emporia, provided some tough competition for the McPherson College team.

In the first game on Friday night, McPherson downed the University of Kansas for the second time this year, 31-26.

McPherson led in the low-scoring game 4-3 at the end of the first period, 13-9 at half-time and 20-16 at the close of the third quarter.

Sue Bozeman, jr, Nickerson, led her team in scoring with 15 points, and Mary Hutchison, jr, Thomas, Okla., hit 8 of 9 free throws for her total.

Free throws kept McPherson in the game and proved to be the difference between victory and defeat as they hit 15 of 21 and Kansas only 6 of 13. KU netted two more field goals than McPherson.

Kansas State University handed McPherson their first loss of the season, 52-45. Saturday afternoon in the second game of the tournament.

McPherson jumped off to an early 7-0 lead, but some costly turnovers by Mac and some sharp shooting by KSU brought K-State to within three points, with the score 13-10 at the end of the first quarter.

KSU took over the lead at half time, 25-21, then outscored Mac 23-14 in the third period to gain a 48-35 advantage at the close of that period. In the final period, McPherson added 10 points and held KSU to 4, but it was not enough to overcome the deficit.

Scoring more than half her teams' points, Sue Bozeman was again McPherson's top scorer with 24. Mary Hutchison added 7 points.

Attention Bowlers

Bowlers get ready! The Starlite Lanes will be hosting those students who are interested in a college league championship at 7:15 p.m., Saturday, March 13.

The two divisions are singles and doubles and handicap and actual scores. Those who wish to play in the handicap must play two games before Saturday for their average to qualify for the tournament.

Trophies will be given for the different categories and free refreshments will be served afterwards.

Got Guts? Join Dogs!

If you've got guts, like winning and can play team sports, the McPherson College football team wants you!

Anyone who has ever played football in high school or on a sand lot league or even anyone who has ever had a secret desire to play football and can learn quickly is urged to attend a prospective football players meeting in 101 Harnly Hall on Tuesday, March 16, 6 p.m.

The secret to a successful team is the spirit and desire of the players. If you possess this elan and think you have or can develop abilities such as blocking, tackling, running, passing, kicking or receiving — then attend this important meeting!

If you are unable to attend because of evening class or a previous engagement see Coach Sid Smith as soon as possible.

Remember:
Don't sit there and mope like a hump on a log
Try out, join the team — be a Batt'lin Bulldog.

Mac Coeds Accept Amarillo's Invitation

The closing of the McPherson College women's basketball season will be delayed until the end of March. On March 24 the team will travel to Texas to participate in the three-day Third Amarillo National Women's Collegiate Invitation Basketball Tournament.

Sponsoring the tournament and paying the teams' expenses will be the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce. Seven other teams are taking part: Wayland College, John F. Kennedy College, Parsons College, Belmont College, Ranger Junior College, Seminole Junior College, and Temple Junior College.

In their first game, the McPherson coeds, seeded number eight, will meet number-one seeded Wayland College on Thursday, March 25.

The team is looking forward to meeting some very fine teams and gaining valuable experience.
