

Council Now A Reality

Student representation for the new Community Council was chosen last Thursday, March 18. Approximately 60 per cent of the student body voted from immediately prior to the Docking address until supper's end.

Seventeen students made the ballot by filing candidacy petitions with the Student Council election committee. Write-in candidates were allowed to campaign and space was provided for such a need.

The off-campus campaign showed the positive side of a well run write-in campaign. Eldred Kingery's name was the only one on the ballot for the post. But, Bud Dzekowski, Jr., McPherson, rushed through to contest him and take the seat as off-campus representative.

In the balloting for the freshman representative's post, Carol Flory won out over classmates Linda Brokar, Cathy Kahler, and Jim Ulrich.

Twelve students campaigned for the remaining six seats. Successful in their bids for office were: Terri Albal, sr., Dotzour; Stewart Hoover, soph.; Fahnestock; Shirley Matile, jr., Kline; Lowell Monke, sr., Metzler; Phil Stever, jr., also of Metzler; and Karen Woody, soph., Dotzour.

It should be noted that most of the new Community Council members are familiar faces of past governance and judiciary bodies. A second look shows that no resident of Bittinger Hall was elected to the new governing body. Al Pitts, President of Student Council, resides in Bittinger, but he, along with John Hurley, were appointed by President Melhorn.

This may play a prominent factor when and if the smoking issue is discussed, because the smoking issue is mainly concerned with Bittinger.

Stuco President Pitts was pleased with the election results, especially with the percentage of voters participating.

Two days before the students chose their council representatives, the faculty cast their ballots and elected their six representatives.

Those representing the faculty are: Dr. Westley DeCoursey, Dr. Doris Coppock, Professor Larry Kitzel, Dr. Jesse Krehbiel, Coach Art Ray, and Dr. Alvin Willems.

The four administration representatives have not been formally announced. President Melhorn will head the Community Council and Deana Merlin Frantz will be president pro tem. Speculation is that Dean Goering, Mr. Holman, and Mr. Yoder will round out the Community Council's membership.

When the four administrators are formally appointed the next question is: When will the Council meet? and What will it accomplish? Like the British people in 1914, we'll have to "wait and see."

In order to clarify original votes on Community Council: total student vote was 136, with 76 in favor, 56 opposing and 4 commenting.

St. Clair Reaches with Music

Folk singer Randy St. Clair will wind up the pre-vacation convocations with a concert on April 1, in Brown Auditorium.

St. Clair uses both the guitar and banjo to bring his 240 plus songs to life. A favorite with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Randy starred for the Kansas Wesleyan basketball squad until his graduation in 1966.

Since then, he has enriched his ability to reach out through teaching history and coaching at the junior high level. His experiences come alive in notes and lyrics of his songs.

It only takes a convocations card to enjoy and experience Randy St. Clair. End this half of the semester with a pleasant feeling about Thursday mornings. Come see Randy St. Clair.

Club Corner

Ag Club Tours

Members of the Ag Club attended the All Science Day at K-State in Manhattan on March 20. Tours of the livestock facilities, bakery, and dairy processing plant were viewed by the students. They also visited the Kansas Artificial Breeders' Service Unit facilities close-by and remained in Manhattan for the Little American Royal that evening.

All agricultural students will meet on Monday 29, at 7 p.m. in Harnley 301. Courses for 1971-72 will be discussed plus the new programs approach recommended by the Agricultural Advisory Council. All interested students are encouraged to attend.

Senior Recital Sets Musical Mood, March 28

Brown Auditorium will fill with music on March 28 at 3 p.m. as two McPherson College seniors present their Senior Recital. Marjorie Roorda Whelpley, Denver, Colo., will penetrate the auditorium with song, and Dale Dowdy, Shickley, Neb., will create the musical mood with his saxophone.

Mrs. Whelpley, a mezzo-soprano, will sing numbers by Brahms, Schubert and Pergolesi. Her repertoire will also include "Daisies" by Samuel Barber and "Love's Philosophy" by Keats.

Dowdy will play "Concerto" by Glazounov, the "First Sonata" by Handel and "First Con-certino" by Guilhaud.

Their accompanists will be Janelle Morgan, professor of piano and organ, Beth Brubaker, soph., Lyons, and Colleen Appel, jr., Curlew, Iowa.

Proposals Pass

Student Life Committee passed the Kling-Hall Key Proposal with the following recommendations:

- 1) That keys be checked once a week.
- 2) That freshmen living in Kling Hall be under the same restrictions for first semester in respect to key privileges as those living in Dotzour.

The Dotzour Hall Card Proposal was passed by the Student Life Committee.

Visitation hours were modified to 4-12 hours per week. The Administrative Committee reviewed each of these proposals and approved them with the added clarification that all dorm visiting hours should be posted in each dorm and a copy of the schedule be sent to the office of the Dean of Students.

Grant possible

What is happening to the Kansas Tuition Grant Program Bill in the Kansas Legislature? J. Jack Melhorn, president of McPherson College, recently received word that both the senate and house bills will remain in committee.

This means that they will be carried over until the next legislative session. However, should the Ways and Means Committee come up with funding possibilities, the bills would then be passed through on an emergency basis.

The State Tuition Grant Program would provide a sum of money paid by the state toward a student's tuition to help meet the cost of attending the college of his choice. All Kansas residents who are admitted to a regionally-accredited non-tax supported college with a tuition of more than $450 a year are eligible for this assistance.

However, not all Kansas students in such colleges would receive a tuition grant, only those students with proven financial need. The amount of the grant would vary according to this need. Its top limits are the tuition costs of the college or $1,000, whichever is smaller.

Several senators have already publicly committed themselves to finding funds for the Tuition Grant Program for next year.

President Melhorn defines a miracle as being an event that has less than a 10 per cent probability or chance.

St. Valentine's Day Massacre has not been defined as yet, but, there will be some information posted in all the dorms and halls by Friday, March 26. Be sure to read it!

The First meeting of McPherson College Community Council will be held to discuss preliminary matters such as setting up ground rules and procedure for the council to follow. This will be an open session and further information concerning time will be posted in Mohler and the S.U.

"Education's Relentless Search for Truth" is the theme of the 76th Annual North Central Association Meeting being held March 28-31 at the Palmer House in Chicago. Speakers will be Margaret Moad and John Brandemes, a member of United States Congress, speaking about bringing teaching and learning together and alternative futures for American education, respectively. Attending the conference will be President Melhorn and Dr. Frantz.

Conflict Necessary

Conflict is a daily and inevitable part of life. Each day we deal with people, and dealing with people demands that we meet conflict because people have differing opinions. Learning to give and accept criticisms is merely part of the growth process. "Conflict is necessary to separate one generation from the next for the purpose of achieving adulthood," says Rene Spitz, noted child psychologist.

This year at McPherson College, has seen a lot of conflict boil out into the open. Does this mean we are finally functioning on an adult level? Certainly it is a sign of maturity when persons learn to face conflict situations.

Has a hint of life finally started to bubble to the surface at McPherson? Open conflict gives us a look at the guts of what makes an Organization (like Mac College) tick. It exposes the veins so that we can see the life blood pulsing. Conflict is a sign that McPherson is healthy. People are thinking. Maybe someone's alive after all!?

As members of this college community and the larger world community, we have to learn to meet open conflict, face criticisms and work honestly from problem solutions. Swallowing our opinions, turning off opinions that differ from ours, or cringing in the face of criticism is conflict avoidance. Avoiding issues suppresses problems and causes frustrations to build up.

Running away, doing the old ostrich trick or trying to sweep issues under the rug doesn't work. It's something like trying to put a lid on a volcano. The pressure builds up and — BOOM!

Opening lines of communications between students, faculty, administration and trustees can help to relieve pressure. Perhaps it can even cure the old apathy syndrome. When people are involved, taking responsibility and know that their opinions are being valued, they are not likely to be apathetic.

Certainly facing open conflict is not easy. Sometimes it hurts. But isn't it much better to get the problems out in the open, before they build up to explosive levels. Once conflict becomes evident, the solutions can be sought.

The challenge to all of us at McPherson is to face our conflicts and get to work—even if it hurts a little.

You Deserve It!

So? So what if the Community Council has been elected! A council that is to contribute to the good or bad of this campus?

Who cared? NOBODY! Last Thursday was the vote. The student body put their x's on the lines beside eight names. But what were they voting for? Ideas? Change, the Status Quo?

Not hardly; they were voting for friends and against people they don't like — justified or not because when the candidates gave their platforms — their views — WHAT THEY WANTED TO DO FOR THIS COLLEGE — the student body (with the exception of perhaps 15) just sat on their brains, sat on their chances of making the Community Council work!

Whether you agreed or not — you had a duty to be there to justify your opinion. How DARE you bunch of apathetic individuals do nothing!

You wanted change but you won't work for it. You wouldn't even come for 30 minutes and LISTEN. Okay MAC, you wanted it that way, you deserve what you got!

Well, Nellie, another meal finished at Slater's. You know, I really don't think the food is so bad, I just miss my mother's cooking. Do you think that if I gave them some of her recipes, they might try them?

I kinda doubt it, Charlie, that would be asking too much. But there are a few things they serve, that I wish my mother could make.

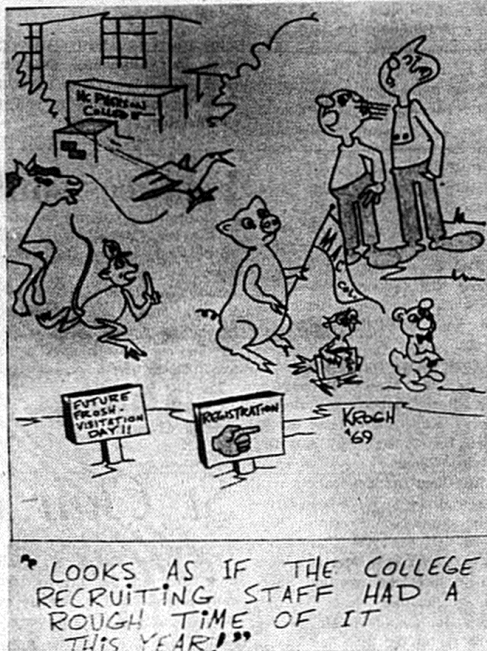

Ah, Charlie, I love spring with its warm weather, sunshine and lighter clothes.

Me too, Nellie. That reminds me, I bought some shirts and stuff the other day and anyone who thinks inflation doesn't affect the college students should see how the price of T-shirts has gone up.

Yeah, it always affects the important things. Fifteen-cent cokes are smaller than ever.

Graduate Expresses Opinion

I thought I'd draw this cartoon and send it along to the Spectator for possible publication. I heard of the difficulty of the college to recruit new students and thought this cartoon appropriate.

I really can't understand why McPherson College is having a problem, since I see few advantages in attending a larger school.

However, there are some existing problems. One is that the tuition is for exceeding any state school. I think also that McPherson needs a more expanded nationwide publicity program to attract a wider range of students.

If it were possible, additional courses should be added, but of course if the students aren't there to enroll it won't help.

Our class of '69 was so far the largest to graduate from McPherson College. I think that was partly due to an expanded admission program which accepted students at that time not up to scholastical par.

It seems to me that many made it to their second, third, and graduation year, and the College, perhaps anticipating enlarged recognition, expanded their spending program.

Well, a number of people are probably speculating with voracious anecdotes, so I thought I'd add mine.

I really miss McPherson College, my friends, drawing cartoons for the Spectator and would rather be going to school than teaching art.

Loneliness

- A yearning for loneliness, and then bitter regret when it comes.
- A yearning for freedom, only to have it accompanied by sadness.
- A longing for friendship, but hesitant to reveal myself to others.
- In you, I have found a retreat.
- A constant fear, of failing myself and those who care for me.
- In you, I have found a retreat.
- I search for another, but I am only running away.
- You understand my need to be alone, yet with someone.
- You know of my need for freedom, But also somewhat tied to the past.
- You know of my need to be liked, But yet not totally open to others.
- You know of my fear of failure, and you help me in my efforts to succeed.
- You join me in my search of happiness and security, and help me to distinguish the real from, my ideal.
- I no longer search aimlessly for something for I've found it in you.

Importance of free press Must Not Be Underrated

The importance of a free Press is often taken for granted. In the throes of the recent political crisis the importance of free information was never better exemplified.

Newspapers, radio and television fought to establish the true facts of the situation and, with Parliament, contributed to extract the facts from the rumors. It is easy, in such a situation, to remember how difficult it is in countries where the government controls the information media that the public is slow to learn the real truth of any given situation.

Recently President Heine-mann of the German Federal Republic mentioned the importance of a free Press. He said that a complete and independent Gazette of Government activities is an essential requirement in the functioning of democratic order.

He was speaking to the West German Union of Journalists in Frankfurt and he said "this freedom involves a duty, allowing the consumers of reports and news stories sufficient latitude to reach their own conclusions."

He said too, that the problems arising from concentration of the Press should be the concern of government.

In other words the more newspapers, the better informed the public is. If there is a contraction in the number of newspapers and if mergers show signs of limiting the independence of journalists, freedom of information is endangered. Ways must be found, even by Parliament, of preserving journalistic independence in all circumstances.

Conference Presents Gloomy World Picture

by Mike Wagner

The 36th Annual Kansas Institute of International Relations sponsored by the American Friends' Service Committee convened at University Friends' Church in Wichita March 19, 20 and 21 to discuss "The Imperatives of the Global Village."

S. Wesley Jackson holds the admittedly gloomy opinion that man is doomed by his own technology, and unless there is a return to a simpler form of life, he predicts a big die-off due to man's developing more than he can handle.

Jackson notes that man as a species is a hunter and had existed as such on this planet for approximately 192 thousand years. His demise began 8,000 years ago with his discovery of agriculture and was hastened by the development of technology.

Jackson's solution to the dilemma is that "we first must get the world's population under control, then we must begin dismantling our technology and decide what things we want to take back with us to a simpler form of life."

Speaking on the global village concept, Jackson noted that the United States, West Germany and Sweden, the prime looters of the world, favor the concept merely as a salve for the conscious. He cites the work-worth ethic as the basis for this looting of the world's resources and strongly advocates a reduction in the "consuming way of life."

To the contrary, R. Buckminster Fuller feels that man currently has the technology to care for twice the population of today's world if he would use it correctly. Furthermore, he claims that man has always taken for granted the idea that he must make war.

He implies that each individual make full use of all his facilities and to defy the educational institution's attempts to conform his thinking. "Do your own thinking."

Offers Internship

Want to spend five weeks this summer in a congressional internship program sponsored by Congressman Garner Shriver? You can if you are one of the two Kansas college students from the 4th congressional district that will soon be selected to participate in the "Summer in Washington." This year marks the seventh year that Shriver has sponsored this program.

Shriver said the program is open to students who have completed the sophomore year of college and are residents of the 4th district. Recipients of the internships will work five weeks each in Shriver's office beginning June 14.

In addition to assignments in the Congressman's office, the interns take part in seminars featuring congressional and administration leaders, and other planned activities in the nation's Capital.

Shriver said a Faculty Screening and Recommendations panel, including a faculty representative from each college and junior college in the 4th District, will receive applications and make recommendations to him. Professor Philip Magley of Friends University in Wichita is chairman of the panel.

A scholastic record and statement outlining the applicant's interest in the program will be required by the faculty panel. Deadline for applications is March 27.

Anyone interested should contact Dr. Raymond Flory, professor of history and political science, Room 219, Mohler, for further information.

WILPF Supporting, Exciting

by Beckie Wagner

There is an organization in McPherson called "The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom." Ever hear of it?

They meet once a month and anyone who is interested in working for peace in our world should be at their meetings.

After my first experience with them, I came away excited and encouraged. It is nice to know that you are not alone in your feelings about the war. Such a supportive group of people, I've yet to meet anywhere else.

Last month they invited James Beidler, a draft counselor from North Newton, to come to their meeting. He talked of his job there and answered questions afterward. The enthusiasm generated by him and this group was indeed catching.

If anyone is interested in attending meetings, contact me at Apt. No. 64, College Courts or go to the next meeting. It happens at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, March 25. We will meet at Nina Zook's home at 1501 E. Sharp St. The topic of discussion will be New Delhi, India and what happened at the WILPF International Congress.

Next month you can learn what it is like to live on an Indian Reservation and you can get it straight from the Indian's mouth. Indians from the Potawatomi Reservation are going to be on hand at the People's Center, April 13 at 7:30 p.m. to give you a complete rundown. If you like to broaden your horizons, don't miss it!!!

Around Campus

The Danforth Foundation of St. Louis has a strong interest in higher education. It furnishes numerous scholarships each year and has sponsored aid to black universities.

Another program involves two or three faculty couples on many college campuses in an associates organization that is aimed at increasing informal student-faculty relationships.

Recently Dr. and Mrs. Burkholder spent three days in St. Louis in preparation for being chairman of the 1972 Regional Danforth Associates Conference. This year's Danforth Conference will be held on March 26-28 at the Lake of the Ozarks. Dr. and Mrs. Leland Lengel, Dr. and Mrs. John Burkholder and Dr. and Mrs. DeCoursey will attend this conference.

Dr. DeCoursey will speak today to the Sterling College Science Club concerning the subject of Sea Floor Spreading and the Continental Drift. He will be speaking to the Buhler and Hutchinson High School Science Clubs on Monday, March 29 at Buhler. His topic will be the Frontiers in Astronomy.

Off-campus Students will note that the Bulldog's Tail will be available at the Switchboard. It is a calendar that includes one week's news.

KABAM wishes to thank all those who contributed for Art Gish's V.W.

Buzz Groups Speak Out

by Linda Thorp

"To keep that many high school students interested and excited speaks for itself," was Terry Albini's reaction. And that is what buzz groups should do: speak for themselves and obviously these did.

By Saturday afternoon, the kids had "let loose" and had become interested in talking about personal ideals, problems, the world, friends, freedom and love.

Attendance was nearly perfect in most groups. Though meetings were scheduled to last one hour, in one case, the group became so involved they rapped for 3 1/2 hours.

The guest speakers in Brown Auditorium were enjoyed by everyone and paved the way, in some instances, for a deep discussion in the buzz groups.

Essentially the buzz groups were a success but how did MAC fair through it all?

John Hurley, a buzz group leader and Master of Ceremonies for the whole program felt that, "the Regional Youth Conference plays a vital role in the recruiting aspects of McPherson College: because it kills two birds with one stone. It gives students a chance to see what the college is like and hopefully provides a foundation that gives the prospective student an insight into the goals of McPherson College."

It is true that many of our future students will probably come because of the effects the rally had upon them, for, as Sandy Blough said of her group, "the Youth Rally itself is a definite boost for MAC. I feel the rally introduces the students to life on the college campus better than any interview could ever do."

The buzz group leaders' goals were to generate discussion and make the group interesting. All those interviewed felt these goals had been met. Rod Custer described his group and perhaps the whole program this way, "the most valuable thing we got out of our buzz group was just getting to know and appreciate each other."

Bulldogs Land Victory, Tally 93 Points

by Mike Wagner
The Bulldogs annexed a decisive victory in the initial track meet of the season tallying 93 of the 196 possible points. Kansas Wesleyan's Coyotes and Bethany's Swedes shared the leavings at 66½ and 36½ respectively.

finishes was remarkably even; 7 each for McPherson and Wesleyan, with the remaining 5 to Bethany. The Bulldogs made up their point margin by virtue of their finishing in the less desirable but never - the - less points carrying second and third places.

For McPherson, Mike Butsch and Ray Craft doubled on the victory platform. Gary Arthaud made a single appearance, and the 400 yard and mile relay teams were victorious.

Wesleyan's seven first slot finishes were shared by Appel, who appeared first at the wire twice, Akusu, Brown, Jamieson, and Mattison.

Bethany's 5 victories were the efforts of Henson, who leaped to the winner's circle twice, Brax, in a solo spot, and Hawley, who hurried to two firsts.

This coming Saturday, Art Ray's Bulldogs will put their tenacity against their Nebraska Wesleyan counterparts again on the home circuit. Competition gets under way at 3:00 p.m.

Mac baseball No Score

by Mike Wagner
The McPherson College Baseball Bulldogs opened their season Saturday, March 20, with a double-header against the tough College of Emporia Presbies.

The Bulldogs came out on the sort end of the 12-2, and 32-0 scores.

Bill Morris was the losing hurler in the opener, backlaid by five hits from his cohorts.

Ron Drudge was the loser in the second of the two bouts, his team mates contributing two hits to the cause.

The Bulldogs will entertain the Hastings College of Hastings, Nebraska, nine on the local diamond Saturday Mike Butsch clears the bar at 15'0" for first place in the pole vault. Mike also won the hammer throw with a 99' heave in Saturday's triangular romp.

No Contest! Ray Craft sprints home to cop the 220 dash. The trio of Craft, Jim Ulrich, and Mike Heidebrecht nailed down 1-2-3 finishes in both the 100 and the 220.
