Concert earns Convo credit

The McPherson College concert band and choir will present a concert for convocation March 21 at 9:30 a.m. The band, directed by Larry Kitzel, will play contemporary band music. Dr. Coppock, who directs the choir, said that they will perform Bach's "Cantata No. Four"; with Lent and Easter emphasis. The choir will be giving many future performances in churches and at Bethany College in May. A tour is also scheduled in April.

RYC frustrates teenagers

by Susan Burkholder

"Fantastic" is the way Steve Tuttle described the Regional Youth Conference. This year's theme, "Get Off My Back," dealt with the role of conflict with teenagers and their lives. The idea of the conference was to create and arouse enough frustration in the kids to force them to find a means of releasing it.

Throughout Friday the kids were tormented, beginning with the mix-up of registration, and hitting a climax that evening when they were forced to sit in the football field after a meaningless hike to the park at midnight.

Buzz groups were set up so that kids could examine and evaluate their feelings and actions to others, and then find out how others accepted or rejected their actions. Said one buzz group leader, "It was interesting to see people cope with the problem and it made me wonder what I'd do if I were put through that."

In general, the feelings toward the conference were positive. Several people felt that the conference was a big success and that it had a good influence on the college. The actual number of students attending was 259.

A lot of work was put into this conference. Many hours of planning and putting together was done by the students of McPherson College. Said one student attending the conference, "I really enjoyed it I had so much fun that now I don't want to go home."

Dotzour Hall's long-awaited hayrack ride will leave Dotzour at 7 p.m. Saturday night.

The hayrack ride was scheduled for two weeks ago and was postponed because of cold weather.

The cost is still 25 cents for singles and 30 cents for couples. Refreshments and hot dogs will be provided, but those attending will have to supply their own sticks.

Board of Trustees elects Jewell

J. Paul Jewell of Kansas City, Kansas, was elected chairman of the Board of Trustees of McPherson College at the annual board meeting, March 2-3, at McPherson College. Jewell replaces Harold Mohler of Warrensburg, Mo. who resigned after serving as board chairman for more than ten years.

Jewell, an instructor and director of student activities at Kansas City, Kansas Community Junior College, has been state president of the Kansas State Teachers Association organization for junior colleges and president of the faculty organization of State Junior Colleges.

An active member of the Church of the Brethren, Jewell has held the post of deacon, chairman of the ministerial committee, chairman of the official board and moderator in the First Central Church of the Brethren in Kansas City. He first joined the McPherson College Board of Trustees in 1966.

At the trustees' meeting this year, three McPherson residents were elected as new or renominated members of the board. They are Wilbur R. Hoover, M. Clare Miller and Robert W. Wise.

Other new and renominated trustees elected include: Earl J. Brubaker, Rocky Ford, Colo.; Glendon D. Button, Conrad, Iowa; Richard L. Clinefelter, Littleton, Colo.; J. Paul Jewell, Kansas City; Ernest A. Peterson, Wichita, and Irwin C. Porter, Quinter.

Members of the board set aside the afternoon of March 2 to meet in committee sessions with faculty and students at the college and conducted regular business in additional sessions.

They voted unanimously to pledge a minimum of $4 of their net income in contribution to the college and approved rate increases for next year. Tuition will be $1,390 for the full year. General fee for each student will be $120; board will be $530, and residence hall charges will vary from $300 to $450.

Trustees also heard administrative reports from J. Jack Melhorn, president of the college; Merlin L. Frantz, dean of academic affairs; Jerry Holman, director of development; Milton Goering, dean of student affairs, and Gordon Yoder, business manager of the college. A progress report was given by the Presidential Selection Committee.

Press questions Docking's role

by Pam Knotts

Sitting on the edge of his chair, drinking coffee and eating a doughnut, Governor Robert Docking created a relaxed and informal atmosphere at his press conference following his March 9 convocation address.

When asked what goals have been set for 1972, Governor Docking answered, "I think the overall aim is basically one of fairness; fairness of taxation, fairness of employment opportunity, and fairness throughout the 200 agencies in state government."

What can Docking do now about the Tuition Grant Bill? "There's nothing I can do now. I still think it's right and fair. If I run and am elected as governor the next term, I will introduce it again."

His proposal consisted of two time periods. The first period granting one million dollars would lead into a second period of 2.5 - 3 billion dollars. "I think it's a good investment for the state."

Will the governor run for another term? "I don't know. I've been so busy lately I haven't thought about it. In April and May I'll make my decision."

When asked if he thought Attorney General, Verne Miller's drug raids have been successful, Governor Docking answered, "I don't think there is any doubt about it, yes. I don't know of any time he made an arrest without substantial evidence."

Who will Docking support for the Presidency? "Let's see who the nominee is. I don't want to commit the delegation. We plan to stay loose till our delegate is selected."

Every governor is busy and away from home a big portion of the time. When asked how his family reacts to his being gone all the time, Governor Docking answered, "My family never causes me any trouble.

I cause them trouble. I've been married 22 years and to a wonderful girl. I have two sons; one is a senior in high school and one is a student at Kansas University."

Governor Robert Docking makes a point clear during his press conference last Thursday.

Mac's apathy hits new low

Last week, apathy at McPherson College reached a new high - or perhaps more appropriately - a new low.

When members of the Junior Class picked up their ballots to vote for a replacement representative to Student Council, they discovered there were no names on the ballot.

This apparent apathy is hardly limited to the Junior Class. It applies to nearly every member of the McPherson student body.

Admittedly, the elections were not well publicized, but if we the students of McPherson College cared enough about student government, we would be aware of what our representatives are doing; we would read the minutes of the meetings; we would make the effort to talk to Stuco members; we would know when elections take place; we would want to be a part of them.

Political knowledge and activism can not be force-fed. We have to make the effort to be involved. We have to take the initiative and get involved.

If we cared enough to be aware . . . if we cared enough to do something . . . apathy at McPherson College would be a thing of the past.

Group strives for good will

Students from McPherson and Central Colleges have been meeting with local businessmen to plan a dinner in an effort to improve school and community relations.

Bruce Johnson, McPherson College StuCo president and originator of the project, appointed Richard Brindle, sr., Jeanine Strom, fr, and Mary Krehbiel, soph, to represent Mc-Pherson College on the task force.

The dinner, which will be held sometime in April, will pair fifty businessmen with fifty students on a one-to-one basis to implement conversation and communication.

Twenty-five students will be chosen from the McPherson Student body and twenty-five from Central College.

Gross gives up being out there

by Mary Krehbiel

"What are you doing out there?"

Henry David Thoreau posed this question to his friend, Ralph Waldo Emerson, from behind prison bars where Thoreau sat in consequence to his refusal to pay war taxes.

Because of a similar act of civil disobedience, a severing of ties with the Selective Service System, Bob Gross, a Brethren Volunteer Service worker from northern Indiana, is now serving a three year prison term.

The strength consistency and firmness of Bob's character were revealed to me while working with him in BVS in 1971. Perhaps McPherson College students remember Bob from his visit to McPherson last spring during a cross-country speaking tour aimed to further his efforts in peace education.

Although Bob served two years in Brethren Volunteer Service, he refused to cooperate with the system as an alternative service worker because of his deep conviction against the perpetuation of our military state. He is only one of many college-age youth in this country who are serving prison terms because of draft resistance.

In an age of compromise, perhaps it is time to take stock of the student's relationship to the world, not only in terms of the draft and war, but also in the areas of poverty, starvation, education, racism, and overpopulation.

With the example of Bob Gross and others who have acted upon their convictions, perhaps more people will gather enough courage to quit compromising and take a stand on pertinent issues.

What are you doing out there?

Grants, costs to rise

As a sign of the times, costs are rising at McPherson College.

In an effort to secure more activities for McPherson College students, the student fee for the 72-73 year has been raised $19. According to Bruce Johnson, StuCo president, the added fees are intended to insure students better activity funding and will give McPherson College Student Council a budget similar to other colleges.

Although the tuition and charges were held at McPherson College during 1971-72, it is necessary with rising costs that they be increased for 1972-73.

Despite these rising costs, McPherson College continues to be one of the more reasonably priced private colleges. In addition to this fact, scholarship and grant money has greatly increased and further increases are being considered by the administration for next year.

Commenting on the increased tuition, one student estimated that his expenses would total only about $100 more next year because of the residence hall grant program.

Estimated costs for next year are from $2,340 to $2,490.

Committee member forecasts barren interterm next January

IS APATHY REALLY DEAD?

I am a member of the Interterm Committee, and we are in trouble! We have only received EIGHT departmental proposals for Interterm '73. This is after having set three deadlines, introducing the subject of post-deadline interterm proposals in a faculty meeting, and, in final desperation, establishing a "get tough" policy.

This latter consisted of issuing a note on March 5 to all faculty members which essentially said that proposals had to be submitted by March 9, or we should have to assume that the professors concerned were not offering an interterm course for January, 1973.

When the Interterm Committee met March 9, it was to find that proposals had been received from only EIGHT departments, namely: Religion, Biology, Physics, Chemistry, Music, Education, Foreign Languages (Spanish only), and Art. NO proposals had been received from at least TEN departments, namely: English, Philosophy, Sociology, Psychology, Business Economics, History, Math, Industrial Arts, Home Economics, and Physical Education.

The Interterm Committee was established as a sub-committee to the Educational Policies Committee. The Interterm Committee is supposed to evaluate, approve or disapprove, offer advice to departments on the value of their proposals, and finally to submit all approved proposals to the E.P.C. This was done to expedite the "log-jam" of multiple reports exploding on the E.P.C.

We are left to evaluate our findings. Over half the departments on this campus are presumably not offering interterm courses for January, 1973. On the basis of this information, should we assume that the professors are apathetic or overworked; or should we suppose that they feel our committee is insignificant, beneath their notice, and hence to be ignored?

To this student, Interterm, January, 1973, looks like a dry period because of an insufficient amount of "course-fall."

Psychiatrist's ideas penetrate education

Dr. William Glasser, M.D., a psychiatrist and consultant at LaVerne College, will conduct a workshop March 23 and 24 in Brown Auditorium.

He will use material of his newest book, "The Identity Society" at one session and "Schools Without Failure" in others.

Glasser's ideas have penetrated many Kansas schools. One of the latest to make a start with Glasser's concepts in South Hutchinson Grade School.

Glasser's ideas also are the basis of a community-wide Title III education project of Hugoton schools. McPherson schools have also made steps to incorporate some of his concepts into its system.

Last summer, McPherson had a seminar on Dr. Glasser's concept of "Schools Without Failure." Representatives from 22 schools in Kansas participated.

In Glasser's "Schools Without Failure" theory, grades are eliminated, because they are based on fact repetition and a time limit. Credit should not be given for unsatisfactory work, but the time limit should be extended enabling the child to master it.

Children would be steered away from memorization, and emphasis put on information-seeking and problem solving. Glasser believes that many of the failures in our society are caused by current school practices.

Students wishing to make reservations may contact Dr. Dayton Rothrock. The cost is one dollar.

Irish rebels to celebrate St. Pat's Day

by Mary Krehbiel

Ah yes, a touch of the Irish. . . Tonight St. Patrick's Day will be ushered in by a Dotzour Hall version of Bernadette Devlin and a group of Irish insurrectionists burying a shamrock on the Dotzour Hall lawn.

Disguised as an innocent St. Patrick's Day party, the burning, sponsored by second floor new wing, is rumored to have tones of religious. . .um. . .disharmony.

Hopefully, after the shooting effect of Irish punch, the women will mellow to sing Irish melodies such as "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," "My Wild Irish Rose," and "Too-Ra-Loo-Ra-Lee."

As the burning shamrock dies and the day of the wearing of the green rolls around once again, the women will return to the fortress for another night of rest.

A test for the incentive recruitment program will be given this evening at 5:45 in Mohler 227.

The test will cover material discussed in the four previous sessions conducted by Dennis Heisey, acting director of admissions.

Heisey urges students who wish to recruit but have not attended all the sessions to drop by the admissions office and pick up a booklet containing notes from the meetings.

"I think the program is going to be a success," commented Heisey. "We already have several applications as the result of student recruiters efforts."

Ekpo seeks knowledge, understanding

by Dave Sharma

Ekpo Imah — all 5'9" of his stocky figure make up the man he is — a man for all seasons.

A well known figure all over campus, he, in his six or so months here, has made many friends in McPherson. The slow trotting Ekpo is always willing to stop and talk to people — students and faculty alike, to learn more about them and their behavior. It was his search for knowledge and greater understanding of people that brought him all the way from Nigeria to McPherson.

Born in Calabar, South Eastern Nigeria, Ekpo worked hard with the common man in his country. He was involved in the trade union movement and his duties as General Secretary of the Tobacco Workers Union took him to many different countries.

Despite the fact that he had left school to start working, his thirst for further studies did not diminish and with this goal in mind, he left Nigeria in 1968 to study in Europe, going first to Britain and then West Germany, where he lived for almost three years. That's where he learned to speak German like a native.

Ekpo explains that he came to McPherson because it is in the U.S. midwest — "The meeting point of American cultures of the East and West." Mac College is cosmopolitan in its outlook with the student intake from all over the U.S. Ekpo feels that it is very well suited for his needs.

What impressed him most is the awareness by McPherson College of the needs of the students of the 1970's. The Master Plan, when fully implemented will give a graduating student a general idea of all fields which will fit him into almost any field of personal endeavor.

"Socially, McPherson isn't one of the best places to live in," he says. Therefore, he became one of the pioneers of the Mac College International Student Organization (ISO). He hopes the ISO will help the foreign student here to lead a healthy social life and also lead to greater cultural exchange between Americans and the International community, and, of course, among foreign students themselves.

He feels that relationship between the American and the Foreign students falls below his expectations, because most American students tend to isolate themselves. This may be due to lack of communications. He is optimistic that this state of affairs will improve with the implementation of the aims and objectives of the ISO.

Ekpo also feels that there has been some disintegration of the campus community in cases where there is a cultural conflict. Such he thinks was the case when the Black Student Union ran the Mac Shack. Most other people considered the Mac Shack for Black students only. He says that an organization such as the BSU should act as a base for communication rather than fend for the interest of some group.

As one of his closest friends put it, "In Ekpo we have a great individual, with great ideas and great plans for implementing these ideas."

Ekpo says he cannot do this single-handed and will try to rope in as many students as possible. Another buddy of his says, "The Ekpo Imah Effect' has still got to be felt on this campus, but when we feel it, this will be a great place to live in."

Ekpo, who is an Economics major, hopes to do all his undergraduate work at McPherson and then go on to graduate school.

"My people need my services and I will definitely go back to Nigeria upon completion of my work here."

This is how this man who has seen some of the best things in many societies, and yet is content with McPherson College, lets out his keenness to serve his people.

Reps elected

In the election last Thursday, Ann Herbst, sr, LaVerne, Calif., was elected representative-at-large to the McPherson College Community Council, and Gary Best, jr, Dayton, Ohio, was elected Junior representative to Student Council.

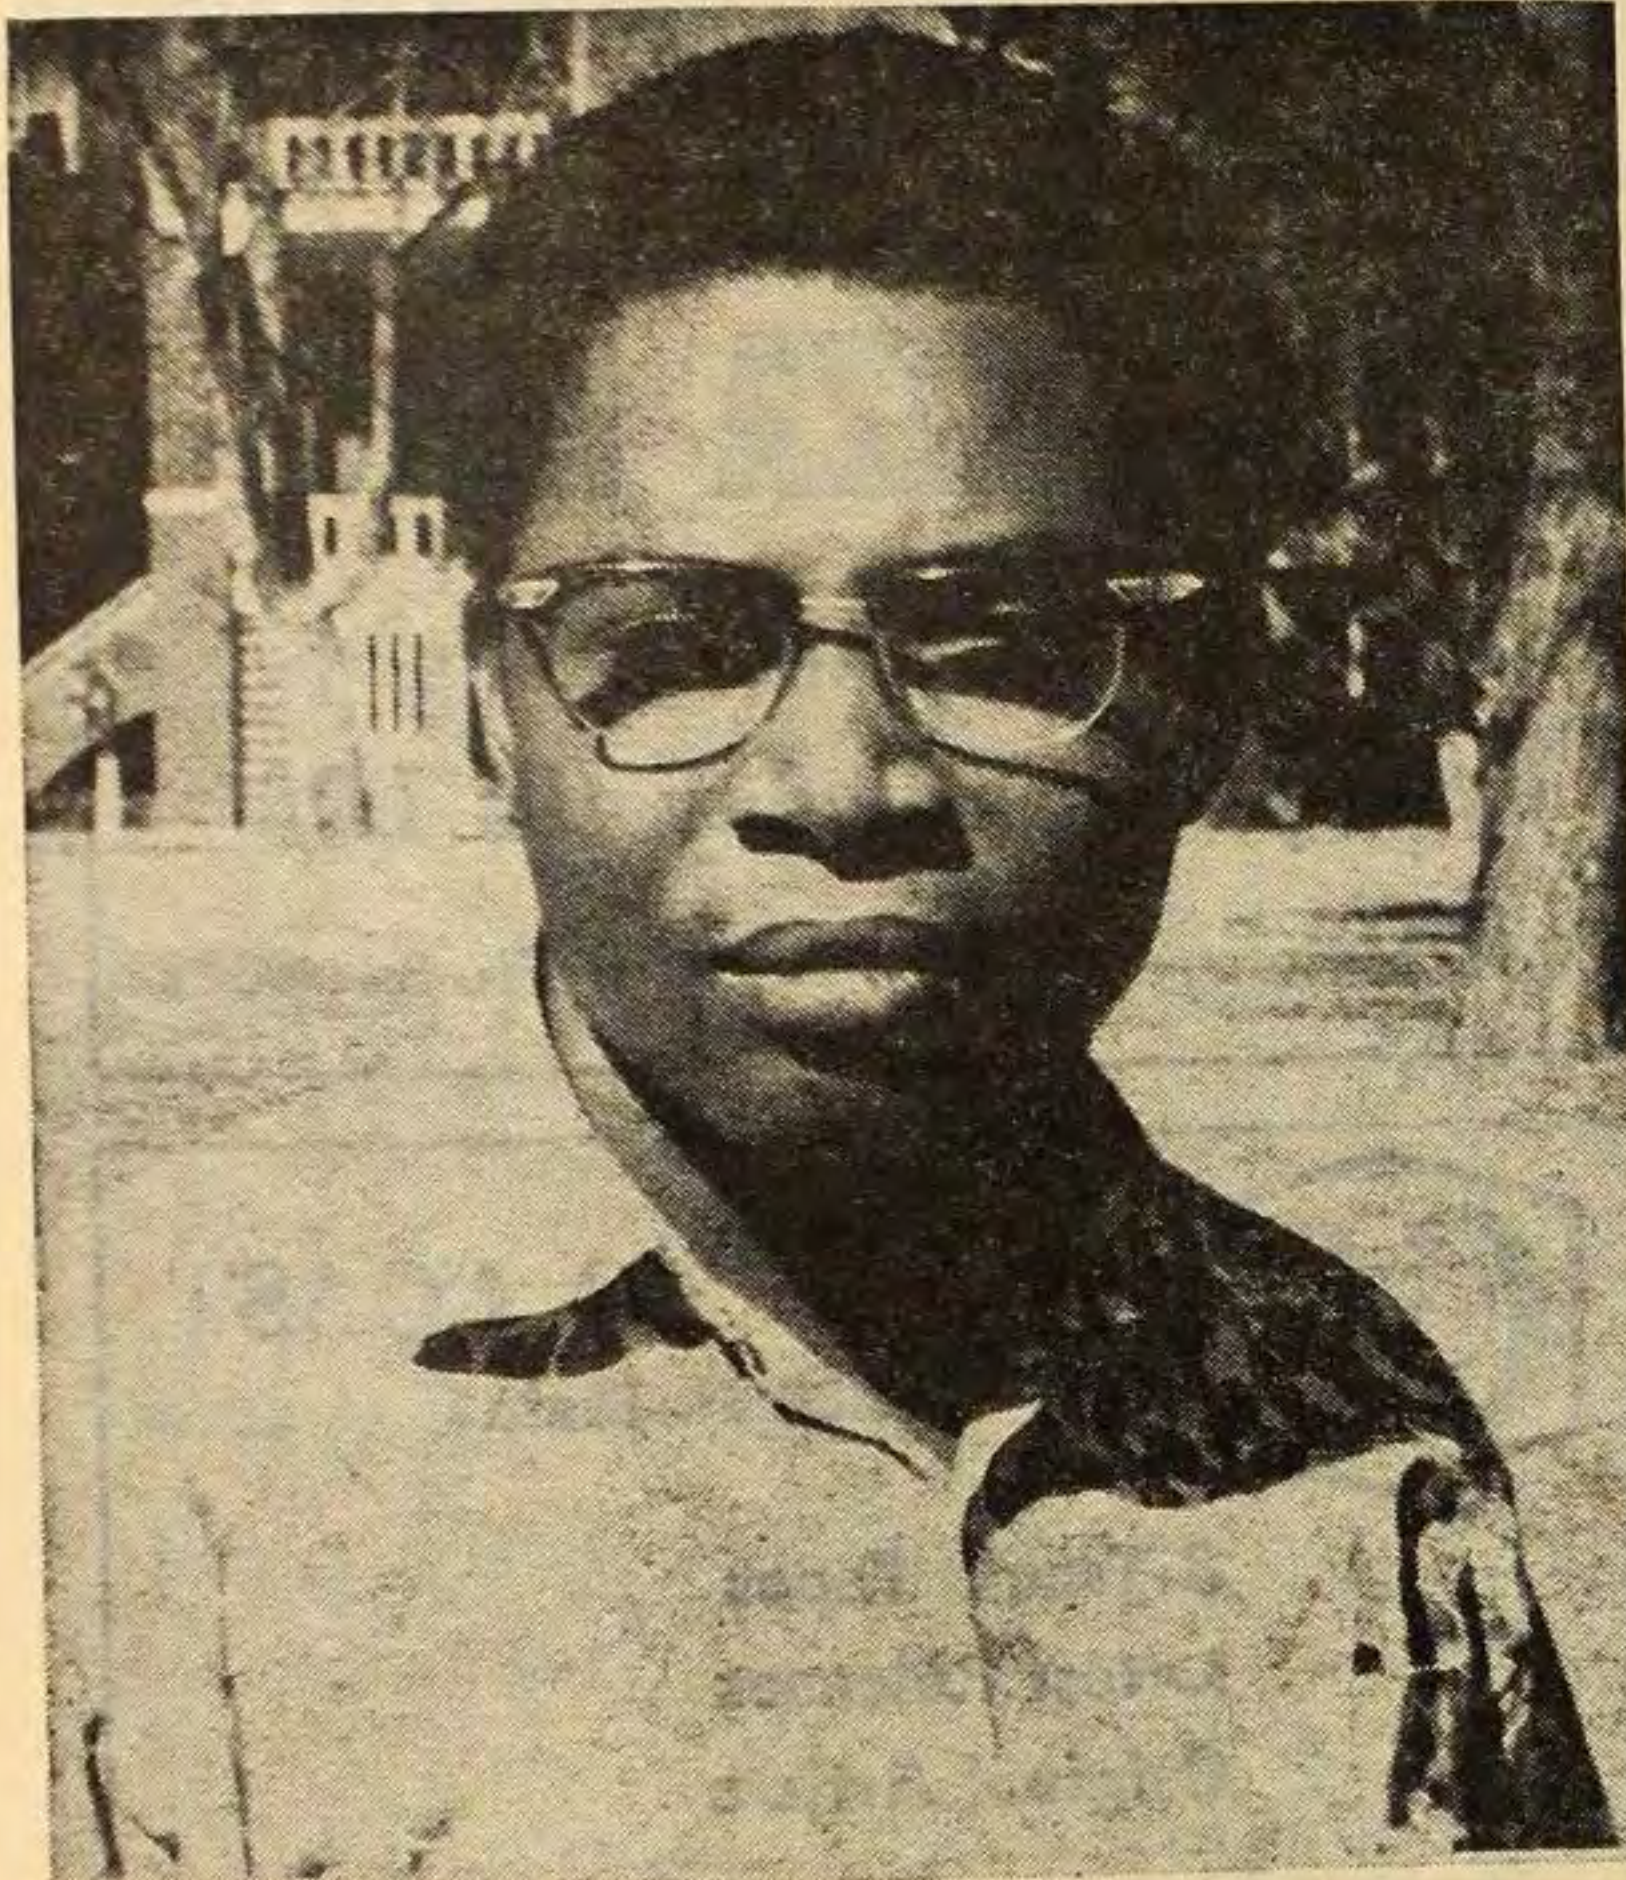

Only 184 students of the 543 eligible voted in the election.

Gary won on a write-in vote. He had attempted to get the 50 — signatures necessary to make application to run but he had had only a half a day to get the signatures from the approximately 100 members of the Junior Class and according to Gary, he just didn't have enough time.

Cameron wins all-league honors

Don Cameron, the high scoring back court man for the McPherson College Bulldogs this past season, was given the honor of being announced as All Conference Basketball Player. This honor is presented to the five top performers among all teams of the Kansas College Athletic Conference.

Don, a junior college transfer from Oberlin averaged 18 points a game this past season. An enthusiastic player, ever since he was able to hold and shoot a basketball, Don has led an outstanding career. He played his first organized game at the age of ten on his fifth grade team. Later he went on to win the honor of All Conference two years in succession, and made the All State Honorable Mention Team in high school.

From there, he accepted a basketball scholarship to Colby Community Junior College where as a freshman, he averaged 11 points a game. As a sophomore, his average almost doubled, and he ended the season with an average of 20 points a game. While playing for Colby, he set, and still holds the all time scoring record of 750.

Don is looking forward to his next and last season here at Mac, with high hopes that the team's performance record will improve.
