Christmas play stars animals

For the young and the young at heart, "Turn About Night at the Zoo" will be presented by the McPherson College Players Dec. 9 and 10 in Brown Auditorium.

Written by Carolyn Lane and under the direction of Judy Kimmel, jr., McClouth, the play features four zoo animals who change places and put people behind bars in the zoo once a year at Christmas.

Playing the roles of the animals are Brad Wille, sr., Manhattan as the Lion; Judy Sherlock, sr., McPherson as the Monkey; Darlene Martin, fr.,

North Merrick, N. Y. as the Bear; and Margaret Cussen, fr., Hutchinson as the Tiger.

Other cast members include Charles Baker, jr., Wellsville; Janet Brumbaugh, fr., Belleville, Mich.; Terry Horner, fr., Hutchinson; Susan Rusk, soph., Westcliffe, Colo.; Dan Cox, fr., Lexington, Mo.; Aurelia Smith, fr., McClave, Colo.; and Bryan Hottle, fr., Somerset, Pa.

Judy is working on an independent study in directing under Una Yoder. She commented on her choice of plays, "This is an interesting play and besides I've always wanted to do children's theatre."

BEOG grant now available

Money is tight these days and is often a source of concern for students. This fall, however, a new form of financial aid is available to McPherson College students in the form of the Basic Education Opportunity Grant.

The BEOG is based on need, and the grant is available to incoming freshmen and sophomores this year. Maximum aid is $425 with a minimum of $50. Applications will be accepted until Dec. 15 and are retroactive this semester. Applications for the spring semester will be accepted until Feb. 1. Forms are available in the financial aids office.

In addition, all on-campus students who have earned 30 credit hours and did not receive a scholarship as entering freshman are eligible to apply for scholarships. Awards are based on the student's high school and college records, including academic achievement and contribution to campus life.

To increase one's scholarship, application can be made after 60 credit hours. A seven member scholarship committee reviews these applications.

Jess Cooper, director of financial aids, encourages all Kansas residents to apply for the Kansas Tuition Grant if they are not already receiving funds. A student must be a resident of Kansas, established by the residence of his parent or guardian six consecutive months prior to January, 1974.

One hundred and sixteen students are now receiving the grant. The maximum amount available is $1,000 a year, and the minimum is $200 a year.

Summer brings China tour, registrations due in Dec.

Plans are now being completed for a summer tour of Mainland China that will probably be scheduled for June, 1974. The program could possibly include student exchanges with China.

A spokesman for the program said the trip would include a study of the education system as well as stops at famous landmarks of China such as the Great Wall.

The chance to visit Red China is a rare one. Security laws will demand detailed credentials of each person entering the country. So that the tour may go on schedule it is urged that all interested in participating make a decision within a few weeks.

For definite information on details and cost of the trip, contact Tommy Clarkson, Public Relations Office, Sterling College.

Green directs Upward Bound

Oliver D. Green has been named Director of the Upward Bound program operated by the Associated Colleges of Central Kansas.

The Upward Bound program award was made to ACCK in order to operate a pre-college preparatory program designed to generate the skills and motivation necessary for success in education beyond high school among young people from low-income, minority backgrounds. The grant for the 1973-74 academic year is $72,392. This is a Federally funded program and is part of the TRIO program which also includes Talent Search and Special Services.

Green is a 1967 graduate of Kansas Wesleyan, one of the ACCK colleges. He obtained his masters of art in education degree in 1970 from Washington University in St. Louis where he majored in social studies. Born in Salina, Green graduated from Salina High School in 1963.

"Mr. Green comes well prepared for this important assignment," said Dr. Johnson, executive director of ACCK. "Upward Bound will add an important dimension to the cooperative work of the six ACCK colleges. The program will include a curriculum designed to help creative thinking, affective expression, positive attitudes toward learning, and a need for post-secondary education success."

Previous to joining ACCK, Green worked as director of the Special Services Educational Opportunity Program at Washington University in St. Louis. In this position, he was responsible for a program which developed supportive services for students in the area of tutoring, academic advisement, financial aids, admissions, counseling, and cultural and social enrichment programs. Green is a member of the Board of Directors of the St. Louis Black Studies Institute.

Crop drive exceeds goal

The CROP Drive, Sunday, Nov. 18 netted $2,259.46. The fast for CROP, conducted for six Wednesdays prior to the Drive contributed approximately $175.

Approximately sixty persons participated in the Drive. The group working with team captain Bryan Crouse, jr., Myers-town, Pa., brought in over $500.

The money collected will go to needy people in more than thirty countries.

Students, alumni to attend banquet

Alumni of McPherson College will host the annual student-alumni banquet to be held in the Student Union Dec. 7 from 6:30-8 p.m. Initiated by the Alumni Board in 1969, the banquet is an informal time for students and alumni to get acquainted. Students are selected on the basis of campus positions.

Mac Folk is a small group composed of students who like to sing. The group meets Wednesday evenings at 8:30 in Metzler Hall, where they play and sing folk songs and hymns. Anyone interested in participating may contact Bruce Boccard or John Snell.

Convo features orchestra

For the first time in four years, McPherson College will host the Newton Mid - Kansas Orchestra next Monday night at 8 p.m. in Brown Auditorium.

The orchestra is made up of Bethel and Tabor College students and eleven Mac College students. Wichita Symphony members and community members also supplement the orchestra.

Selections preformed will include Brahms "Academic Festival Overture," Mozart's "Symphony Number 40 In G Minor" and Weber's "Concerto In F Minor for Clarinet and Orchestra." The Weber piece will feature a clarinet solo by James Jones. Mr. Jones is the professor of clarinet at Wichita State University.

This special program is open to everyone free of charge and convocation credit will be given. The program will last approximately one hour and twenty minutes with a short intermission.

Says conserve energy, paper

As all of us are aware, the United States is currently undergoing a rather severe energy crisis. Gasoline rationing and drastically reduced speed limits are being suggested as measures to help reduce the shortage.

The fuel shortage is partly due to the Middle East crisis, and partly due to "prosperity," but I don't think we as individuals can put the blame entirely on others. We have been wasteful in our own energy consumption, and have wrongly assumed that our energy supplies would last forever.

I think it's time that we quit griping about all the inconvenience that the fuel shortage is causing, and begin to be a little more responsible in our use of energy. Lowering room temperatures by four to six degrees is not going to cause any severe illnesses, nor is reducing speed going to kill anyone. As a matter of fact, it would probably save quite a few lives.

We have also been warned recently that the United States is going through a severe paper shortage. Some newspaper printing offices have been forced to shut down because of the lack of paper. Public schools are feeling the pinch because there is not enough duplicating paper available.

As we cannot blame the entire fuel shortage on others, neither can we blame the paper shortage entirely on others.

How much are we doing to conserve paper? Not much, I'm afraid. I'm appalled at the amount of paper that we students throw away every day. I am also appalled at the amount of paper being wasted by our administrative offices.

We must start doing something to conserve both energy and paper, for if we don't, we will have to pay the consequences.

Take One

Coming back from Thanksgiving vacation is a real letdown — especially when you consider what it is you're coming back to!

Take Two

Do you think that conserving energy by turning off lights is a very "bright" idea?

Take Three

Somebody stole the impeachment poll box that Spec was using for the survey. Nixon's at it again!

Take Four

Due to the paper shortage, I have decided to eliminate Take Four from this week's paper in order to conserve space because I feel that preservation of our forests which provide the bulk of our paper supply are quite important in order to maintain both the quality and the quantity of the publications which are so vital to the communications systems of not only the United States but the world in general which . . .

Urges fuel crisis cooperation

Ed. note: The following is taken from the Weekly Report that Congressman Garner E. Shriver issues to his constituency. The report is from the week of Nov. 12, and as such, may contain some dated material, but we feel that the basic content is relevant to the issue.

President Nixon has called on all Americans to take certain voluntary actions in their daily lives this winter to help conserve precious energy supplies. At the same time, a number of legislative proposals are expected to move through Congress on an emergency basis to cope with the energy crisis.

The fact is that our demand for gasoline, heating oil, and other forms of energy will probably exceed available supplies during coming months, particularly if we have a cold winter. This situation is further aggravated by the expected reduction of oil imports because of the Middle East war.

Congress already has taken several steps to increase the supply of energy in the future. Additional funds have been appropriated for energy research and development in almost every field of study.

Special legislation for solar energy demonstration and geothermal energy research and development will soon be considered.

Legislation also has been enacted requiring the President to allocate petroleum products so that no regional shortages develop unnecessarily, and to assure that adequate provision is made for all essential services in each part of the nation.

However, legislation to develop new sources of energy or to increase the supply of petroleum and natural gas will not have any impact for several years. For the immediate future we have no option except to conserve energy.

One-third of all the energy consumed in the United States is used directly by individual citizens in their homes and automobiles. So, if each of us takes conservation seriously, we not only can save money, but we can help alleviate fuel shortages.

Sacrifice and cooperation are necessary to overcome this temporary crisis. I am sure that all Kansans will join in a spirit of cooperation to help our nation at this time.

Commends 'Tempest' players

by Cindy Mines

Set on an enchanted island, "The Tempest" revolved around Prospero, a great magician and the exiled Duke of Milan. Yet as the play unfolded Nov. 15-18 in the Little Theatre to a near capacity crowd each night, it became apparent that William Shakespeare, was perhaps, the greatest magician of all.

The comedy demonstrated Shakespeare's usual versatility and depth in his characters and Carol Kussart, director, adeptly selected a cast who handled the difficult characterizations and dialogues quite well.

After the first scene which may have renewed a few apprehensions about Elizabethan drama, the play progressed smoothly.

Cast as Prospero, Bruce Blocker had the power to command men, spirits and weather but didn't always have command of his lines. Otherwise his interpretation enhanced the play and he was one of the few who looked his part as well as played it.

One of the spirits who Prospero commanded was Ariel, a fairy sprite, whom he had freed from the witch Sycorax. Gayle Appel, as Ariel, presented the best adaptation to her part and her enthusiasm carried the cast through a few otherwise tedious scenes.

The voice quality of Tim Hofert as Alonso, the King of Naples, added a touch of dignity to his convincing portrayal. As his son, Paul Keim enacted Ferdinand with a seriousness that the part demanded and presented an effective contrast to the humorous scenes.

The audience seemed to be hesitating, however, and for the first few scenes only the sight of the leotarded actors got a chuckle. But Jester Bill Callaway did his job and his line, "Misery acquaints a man with strange bedfellows," seemed to turn the tide. The audience missed only a few cues after that.

Rick Tyler took the supporting role of Caliban, a misshapen monster and Prospero's slave, and transformed him into a significant character.

A hard-core Elizabethan drama fan might have been appalled at Brad Wille's interpretation of Stephano, the drunken butler, but the audience was delighted. The Callaway-Tyler-Wille trio proved unbeatable whenever onstage and greatly exhilarated the play's action.

Russ Hunt as Sebastian, Alonso's brother, and Rande Short as Antonio, Prospero's brother, teamed up to liven the acting in several scenes. As Gonzalo, the friend who gave Prospero his books of magic, Charles Baker played his part quite satisfactorily.

The versatile props were just enough to lend atmosphere to the activities of the ship wrecked crew, but the failure to black-out during set changes detracted considerably from the mood and overall effect of the play.

The Little Theatre was no match for The Globe Theatre, but the stage proved sufficient and allowed the audience a closer observation of the cast's expression and gestures that are imperative in understanding Shakespeare.

On the whole, the McPherson College Players should be commended for a presentation that anyone, Shakespeare buff or not, could understand. The audience truly became a part of the happenings and humor on that enchanted island in a very distant sea.

Produces ABO typing serum

by Pam Knotts

"It took me two years to finish my experiment. I worked both with biology professor Larry Welch at Hutch Juco and Dr. Burkholder here at Mac," says Vickie Beltz, a junior transfer from Haven.

Vickie's experiment was to inject two rabbits, one with type A and the other with type B human blood. "Each rabbit receives two injections per week for a total of five weeks. After the five weeks you discontinue the injections series for both rabbits and withdraw blood from them to isolate the A antibodies from one rabbit and the B antibodies from the other," explained Vickie.

"The purpose of my experiment was to produce an ABO typing serum from rabbits that would be comparable to a human blood type."

"Since my experiment has failed so many times, I have had to use two new rabbits each time. I think I have used a total of eight rabbits. Right now I have Snoopy and Bashful. I watched them to see if they had little unusual characteristics and then I named them," she added.

Asked if she was planning any future experiments, she said, "I would like to do a project in the area of serum electrophoresis. It's the separation of different types of protein in a serum."

Vickie plans to transfer to Wichita State next semester where she will major in nursing. "I have learned so much in this one area, it's irreplaceable. I think it should help me in different areas of nursing, and I will be familiar in the area of hematology."

How did Vickie feel after completing her experiment? "I just couldn't believe it! That's the biggest thrill of my life because it's a feeling of accomplishment. It's a very satisfying feeling to know you worked for something for two years and accomplished it. I think I will be lost after I finish my observations."

"Christianity and Oppression — A Black Perspective" is the topic of next Thursday's convocation at 1 p.m. The featured speaker is John Davis, director of the Hutchinson Human Relations Commission.

In addition to speaking at the convo, Mr. Davis is scheduled to meet with some classes and to lunch with the faculty. Classes Mr. Davis will speak to include Social Psychology and Introduction to Sociology at 11 a.m. and Introduction to Education at 2 p.m.

Attendance at this convocation is required.

KCAC honors players

by Steve Burkholder

Glenn Anderson was named to the 1973 All-Conference football team at the KCAC coaches' annual post-season meeting last week. Another Bulldog, Scott Robinson, was also honored as the conference coaches selected him on the Honorable Mention list.

Conference co-champs St. Mary's of the Plains and Bethany College each placed seven players on the 27-man squad. All nine schools in the conference placed at least one player on the squad and four players were unanimous choices.

Junior Glenn Anderson is from Chester, Pennsylvania, and attended Chester High School. Although he didn't go out for football as a sophomore, Glenn started at offensive and defensive tackle both his junior and senior years at CHS.

"Oop," as Glenn is called by his teammates, put on a great burst the second half of the season. The biggest reason for his improved play was a mid-season shift from defensive tackle to defensive end. The 6'4" Chester native stated, "I liked defensive tackle, but I think it was best for the team when I moved to defensive end."

"Oop" led the defensive charts in several areas and finished with 219 points. This included 69 unassisted tackles, 36 assisted tackles, ten forced plays, five pass breakups and seven fumble recoveries. Besides being named to the All-Conference squad, Glenn was selected Defensive Player - of - the Week twice.

"Oop" is a physical education major and comes from a family of five. He came to Mac because of friends he knew who were already at McPherson. The big defensive end started on the junior varsity basketball team last year and is currently challenging for a varsity spot. In his spare time "Oop" cheers for his favorite football team, the Cleveland Browns.

5'7", 142 lb. Scott Robinson was one of 17 players named to the Honorable Mention list. The pint-sized star receiver for the Bulldogs hails from Ellinwood, Kansas. Scott lettered two years in football at EHS, but came to play football at Mac without a scholarship. Scott explained, "When I came to Mac, the coaches planned on trying me at defensive back. But I tried out for wide receiver because I thought I'd like the position. I like to catch the ball!"

Scott hauled in 28 Elwood Scott passes this year for a total of 348 yards and three touchdowns. He ranked first in the conference in number of catches and was the only freshman out of the 46 players that were honored.

Dogs rate high in statistics

The Battling Bulldog football team finished the year with a record of 2-8. The conference mark was 2-6, which placed Mac in a tie for seventh place. Despite the deceptive win-loss record, there were many fine performances, both team and individual.

As a team, Mac finished second in the KCAC in passing. In ten games, Mac's offense threw for 1,206 yards, or 120.6 yards per game. Also, Mac's pass defense rated fifth in the conference, allowing 48 passes to be completed in 137 attempts for 918 yards. The 48 completions tied for lowest number of completions in the KCAC.

Four Bulldogs rated in final conference offensive statistics. Elwood Scott won the KCAC passing title with 99 completions in 215 attempts for 1,139 yards. He was also fifth in total offense with a 102.8 yards per game average. Scott Robinson finished first in the conference in number of catches with 28 for 348 yards and three TD's. Ed Rogers finished fourth with 23 catches for 286 yards and two TD's and Tony Hoch placed fifth with 23 aerials for 252 yards.

Richard Potts led the team in rushing with 431 yards in 139 carries for a 3.1 average and three touchdowns.

All-Conference defensive end Glenn Anderson led the defensive charts with 219 total points. Others who totaled 100 points or more are Steve Burkholder with 169, Mark Melhorn with 142, Brad Wille with 123, Waverly Hatcher with 113, Russ Hunt with 112 and Steve Cameron with 100.

Bulldogs open season

by Steve Burkholder

The McPherson College basketball team opens the 1973-74 season with back-to-back home games this Friday and Saturday against Nebraska Wesleyan and Colorado College. Then next Tuesday, Dec. 4, the Battling Bulldogs host Sterling College in the conference opener.

Coach Don Widrig, now in his 13th year as a Bulldog basketball coach, welcomed back three returning starters from last year's third-place squad. They are senior guard Larry Doll and senior postmen Russell Clifton and Tom Schulte.

Doll and Clifton were two of the leading scorers on last year's squad and figure heavily in Mac plans for winning the KCAC race this year.

6'7" Tom Schulte broke into the starting lineup midway through the 1972-73 season and should again contribute heavily in the rebounding department.

Three other seniors, Ed Rogers, Gregg Stockstill and Tom White, are vying for the two other guard spots in the Bulldogs' three-guard offense. Rogers saw considerable action on the varsity last year and received a letter for his efforts. 5'8" Gregg Stockstill led the junior varsity in scoring last year and appears to have the inside track on a starting position. Tom White saw some varsity action two years ago, but sat out last year's varsity season and guided the "Fanny Bounders" to intramural championship.

6'4" juniors Stan Adams and Glenn Anderson are challenging at the post positions as is Kansas City junior college transfer Larry Settle. Sophomores Joe Hale and Monty Wedel are vying for guard positions.

George Harderson will again coach the junior varsity this year. The combination of George's experienced coaching tactics and the fine material on the JV squad should add up to an exciting JV season. This year's JV squad is composed of three sophomores and eight freshmen. The big men for the JV are 6'6" Lynn Sifrit, 6'5" Matthew Duerkson, 6'3" Steve Smith and 6'3" Paul Keim. Guards are 5'8" Steve Fulmer, 5'10" John Hahn, 6'0" Gale Lambert, 6'1" Brad Mercer, 5'10" Gunter Stehr, 6'2" Mark Treaster and 6'2" Steve Witt.

Defensive end Glenn Anderson was named to the KCAC All-Conference team at the coaches' post-season meeting. Wide receiver Scott Robinson received Honorable Mention.
