

College involved in study

by Becky Baile

Seeking a renewal of its accreditation by the North Central Association, McPherson College is undergoing a self-evaluation this year.

Work on the study began March 15 and a final report is due Dec. 1, 1977.

Five years have passed since McPherson College has been involved in an evaluation of this nature and Dave Crist, a student working on the study, believes, "Any kind of self-evaluation is a valuable experience because it brings into perspective both strengths and weaknesses of an institution or college."

The study involves the construction of a book which takes a hard look at McPherson College. The book will include seven chapters: Objectives and Purposes, Students, Faculty, Education Program, Institutional Dynamics, Education Resources and Progress Toward the Future.

Students, faculty and administrators serve on committees which compile the different chapters. Students serving on committees are Daryl Beam, Paula Schnaithman, Linda Pfalzgraf, David Crist, Lothar Stahl, Roger Carswell and Kenny Cotton.

Administrators are also working diligently to complete assignments so as to meet the deadlines.

Dr. Raymond Flory, chairperson for the Institution Dynamics Chapter, believes that in order to be a successful institution, we must look at ourselves from all angles.

When the study is complete, a team from the North Central Association will read through and evaluate it. Then the team will spend several days on campus interviewing students, cooks, maintenance personnel and others. Finally, the team will meet with Pres. Paul Hoffman to present its opinion of the college.

The team which will be evaluating McPherson College must meet with the approval of the top administrators. The North Central team is tentatively scheduled to be on campus March 12-15.

The team is made up of experienced evaluators who are well aware of the things they need to look for while on campus.

A college may be given anywhere from one to seven years between evaluations. As mentioned earlier, McPherson College was granted a five-year accreditation following the last evaluation.

Commenting on the evaluation process, Paula Schnaithman said, "I feel it's good to evaluate our college because it gives us the opportunity to realize our strengths and weaknesses. Hopefully, needed improvements can be made from the study."

Another student serving on the Education Resources Committee agreed that the self-evaluation is needed:

"I think it's necessary to be sure to keep the standard of education up to a level that graduates can use. The courses offered have to be useful for the students," commented Kenny Cotton.

Ultimately, McPherson College will be able to improve its education processes because of the North Central Association's evaluation.

An enrollment of 514 at McPherson College this fall is an increase of one over the 513 enrollment for the fall semester last year. Enrollments both this year and last are significantly higher than the 466 enrollment recorded for the fall term 1975-76.

Students enrolled at McPherson College this fall include 215 from Kansas with representatives from almost every other state. Seven foreign countries are also represented with six international students from Nigeria, four from Tanzania, two from Cypress, and one each from Germany, Bolivia, Japan and India.

Tonie Alvarado presented a program on "The Art of Poster Making" to a group of high school students attending the regional FHA meeting in Inman September 3. Tonie is a freshman art major.

The McPherson Associated Colleges (MAC) was notified recently that it will receive funding in the amount of $200,000. The money will be used for programs in student services, faculty development and renewal, curriculum development, and administrative services for cooperative programs between McPherson and Central Colleges.

Members-at-large on the 1977-78 McPherson College Community Council (MCCC) are Glenace Baldner, Janell Baldner, Cosette Button, Charlotte Hayes, and David Newcomer.

Prof. Mary Ann Robinson is currently exhibiting her art work at People's State Bank. Six of her acrylic paintings will be on display until the end of September. During November she will exhibit her work at the Sandzen Memorial Gallery in Lindsborg.

Two art students at McPherson College are the first recipients of grants recently made available by the Mary Mingenback Scholarship Fund. Debbie Enos, sr, Marion, and Antonio Alvarado, fr, Sublette, each received a $400 grant for the 1977-78 academic year.

Criteria for selection included at least six samples of the student's work and a written statement regarding her interest in art and reasons for declaring a major in the field. Debbie will graduate from McPherson College next spring but Antonio's scholarship can be renewed up to $1,000.

Intramural participants sought

by Bambi Crumpacker

Intramurals is a great way to participate in athletics. Especially if one does not consider himself to be super talented or serious about playing.

Coach Paul Graber said, "Intramurals needs participants."

Anyone can participate in intramurals. The only exception to this is for those who play on a varsity team.

Intramurals are designed for those who do not participate in inter-collegiate sports. Those who play on an inter-collegiate team are disqualified from playing only that particular sport in intramurals.

All other students are eligible for any of the other intramural activities.

There is a wide variety of activities offered this year. This fall there will be intramural competition in men's touch football, women's tennis, co-ed volleyball, women's volleyball and men's volleyball.

During Interterm there will be a time of free play. Officials will be present for those who want to play.

The second semester activities include co-ed bowling competition, men's tennis, co-ed softball, and track competition for men and women. Also offered will be basketball competition for both men and women.

For students interested in intramurals, there is a wide variety of teams to choose from. Two of the teams, Chris Colvert's Cornhuskers and David Crist's Tigers, are already full.

Those teams who need players are the Wildcats, coached by Guy Burke; the Sooners, coached by Danny Nunez; and the Sun Devils coached by Darryl Pittman. The Jayhawk's not only need players, they need a coach.

Tom O'Reilly, student intramural director, is in charge of securing coaches. Those interested in this position or in playing should contact him or one of the coaches.

The best team will have its name inscribed on an all-sports champion trophy. Last year's champs were the Sooners.

Pat Schrag, jr, and Lori Christy, fr, seem to be getting all wrapped up in the toilet paper mummy event, while Reva Bookless, jr, jumps for joy during the gunny sack race. These and other activities, including a picnic in the park, were all part of the fun during last Saturday's "Fall Follies."

Stuco provides channels for change

by Ken Hogle

The 1977-78 McPherson College Student Council has gotten the show on the road again this year with several meetings already under its belt.

President Daryl Beam, sr, McPherson, leads the group with the assistance of Paula Schnaithman, vice-president, Sally Correll, secretary and John Krehbiel, treasurer.

Resident hall representatives include Cindy Correll, Dotzour; Albert Zavalá, Metzler; and Paul Neher, Fahnestock.

Arlon Fishburn is representing the college courts and Dale Eason is serving as the off-campus representative.

When Stuco is in need of help, Merlin Frantz, Academic Dean, and Milton Goering, Dean of Students, are there to offer advice as faculty advisors.

Wednesday evening at 6:30 p.m. is the time and Miller Library 105 is the place where our "fearless" Stuco meets.

Meetings are open to the entire college community unless specifically closed. Daryl urges the attendance of anyone, saying, "Students are more than welcome to come in. I think we can get things changed provided we have people who are interested in changing things or just interested in bringing them to us (Stuco). That's what our function is and if people really want to use that function they will come to us."

Stuco is now working at getting elections finalized, preparing this year's budget and evaluating the present student recruitment program.

Supervising elections is one responsibility of Stuco. Some elections took place last spring, others are being finished up these first several weeks of school and still others are yet to come.

Hashing out an acceptable budget is an annual affair for Stuco. Daryl predicts Stuco will have more money to work with this year as fees which go to student council were raised by $5 a semester.

"By no means do we have an unlimited budget, though," commented the president.

"It seems every year we have requests from $2000 to $5000 and the money goes fast."

The major portion of the budget goes to student activities (social committee). It is used to finance dances, movies and other activities from which the whole student body benefits. Much of the rest of the budget is rationed out to other campus organizations such as Black Student Union, Industrial Arts Club, "M" Club, band and choir.

Organizations receiving money from Stuco last year include social committee, "The Spectator," "The Quadrangle," the cheerleading squad, soccer club and Black Student Union.

Contrary to what some people may believe, the student council is more than a token organization which simply hands out money and supervises elections. Last year's council was partially, if not totally, responsible for the much improved student advising system and obtaining more open dorm hours.

This year one of Stuco's goals is to check over the student recruitment program. A committee has already been organized to study the situation, how it operates and how it can be improved.

"We also plan to look at the student government situation and eliminate any red tape and unnecessary committees," said Daryl. "If a committee or club really isn't helping the students it is really not worth having."

Most conditions point to a productive year for the 1977-78 Stuco. Daryl believes "the faculty as a whole is pretty receptive to student ideas" and will support the student council in most cases.

Daryl is also confident about the people on Stuco: "I think we have people who are really concerned not only about themselves or the group they come from, but of every person in the student body."

Daryl is optimistic about the coming year and believes it will provide opportunities for positive change which both the Stuco and student body can work toward.

Student input stressed

When John Donne wrote, "No man is an island," he wasn't specifically referring to college students, but the concept still applies.

When John Denver sings, "They roll up the sidewalks precisely at ten, And the people who live there are not seen again..." he isn't referring to McPherson, Kansas, but the concept still applies.

As most McPherson residents will admit and many of us college students find out, the city doesn't have much to offer in the way of night life.

Soon after arriving on campus, we realize that college life is more than just sitting around waiting for someone or something to entertain us.

At larger universities, each student is simply one among thousands.

Here at McPherson College, each student is one among several hundred. Each person has the opportunity to make a noticeable contribution, whether it be to social committee, Stuco, intramurals, band or choir.

"Students are McPherson College's biggest asset," said Daryl Beam, Stuco president.

Jim Chipman, director of student activities, commented, "Students are what make us a functioning group. It's the spirit of involvement that makes any student activity either a success or a failure."

Claims give varied perspective of eternal life

by Mike Roberts

"The thief comes only to steal and kill and destroy; I came that they might have life; and have it abundantly" (John 10:10 RSV).

The Good News Bible expresses the same verse in a manner more meaningful to me as it reads: "The thief comes only in order to steal, kill and destroy. I have come in order that you might have life—LIFE IN ALL ITS FULLNESS" (capitols are mine). Now the possibilities of that promise are exciting to me and I am interested in finding out how to implement them into my daily routine if possible. Aren't you?

By the way, those statements come from the Bible and they are recorded comments, if you will, of Jesus. Later on in the tenth chapter of the Gospel according to John, Jesus gives these accounts about His sheep. Verse 27 goes like this: "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me;" and only that semi-colon separates this statement from two promises that Jesus offers to the sheep in verse 28: "and I give them eternal life, and they shall never perish, and no one shall snatch them out of my hand."

All that jazz about eternal life may be a little too heavy to take in. I know for me it is. That's why what Jesus' claims in the last half of verse 10 of chapter 10 gives me a different perspective of eternal life and therefore makes it easier for me to understand. "I have come in order that you might have life—life in all its fullness." Because I believe that through a faith in Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour that I indeed possess eternal life.

It is promised in one of the most quoted Scriptures of the Bible, John 3:16: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believes in Him should not perish but have eternal life (RSV).

But is eternal life reserved for the time after this life is over? Does it come as a reward after leading a relatively good life the first time around? Is it in the form of punishment for a life of sin, or glory for the righteous? Is eternal life in itself its own significance?

Or, perchance, could there be a little more to it? I happen to think so. Going back a little we notice that Jesus said "Whosoever believes should not perish but have eternal life." And then the statement "I have come that you might have life—life in all its fullness."

Are the two, life and eternal life, separate entities? Or, are they a combination which at the moment of confession of Jesus Christ as our Saviour and Lord, from that point on, we experience eternal life?

Yes! From that initial utterance of faith, we become "born anew" nevermore to perish (John Ch. 3). We will go through the motions and possibly the pain of the bodily death but we become a new creation when we receive the Holy Spirit, which becomes our teacher, and we don't die.

From that new birth we are recipients of all the fullness of life offered to us by the creator of this whole thing. "Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation, the old has passed away, behold, the new has come." (II Corinthians 5:17 RSV).

And behold, you will, as you become a new creation and you are completely changed from within. Habits, attitudes, goals, no stone is left unturned when God cleans out the cobwebs that have been built up over the years. As you become tapped into the greatest power source, ever.

However this beautiful rose garden is not without its thorns. A price had to be paid for the privilege of experiencing the complete fullness of life. The price was not cheap. It cost a life. But through the payment not only were we given the gift, but on top of it we also got a guarantee and a demonstration just to prove the mystery of eternal life is for real.

The resurrection. There are graves and tombs of all the great men of history, and every religious leader of every great religion can be pointed to, someplace, except one. Sorry folks, there is no monument for the remains of the Son of God. He's not here anymore. But, in the time He was here, He laid the foundations for the fullest experience of what His Father had made.

But there is a lot we have to learn, and just like newborn babies, we have to start with milk and work up to solid food. And then we crawl, and walk, and talk and continue to grow into the new life.

The abundant life. And, as it takes many years for babies to become children and children to become young adults, and young adults to become adults, so this cycle remains when we accept Christ. It takes dedication, unlike any other. You have to make Jesus Christ your God.

"And so, dear brothers (and sisters), I plead with you to give your bodies to God. Let them be a living sacrifice, holy—the kind He can accept. When you think of what He has done for you, is this too much to ask?" (Romans 12:1 Living Bible).

Foreign students select McPherson College

by Bambi Crumpacker

Have you ever wanted to learn about the different life styles of other countries? McPherson College students have an excellent opportunity to do this if they wish. There are at least fifteen foreign students on campus this year who come from six different countries.

According to Dr. Dale Goldsmith, Foreign Student Advisor, there is no organized program to recruit foreign students to McPherson. One student from India, Smita Nirula, came to McPherson because someone she knew had come here. Smita is majoring in English.

Ruben Carrion is a junior who is in his third year at McPherson. He came to McPherson after a friend from Bolivia suggested Mac College. Ruben says he likes it here "pretty good" and also thinks McPherson College is a "unique place." He is majoring in environmental studies.

Three students come to McPherson from Tanzania. Ish Suleman is a senior majoring in history. Naushad Suleman, also a senior, is majoring in chemistry. Also attending is Mahdia Weljie, a freshman majoring in agricultural economics.

The majority of foreign students come from Nigeria. McPherson College has seven foreign students from Nigeria. Leah Awotundun is a sophomore home ec major and Amos Cosmos is a freshman drama major.

John and Esther Waba are residents of the College Courts. John is a senior majoring in Sociology while Esther is a freshman majoring in home ec.

Three members of the Odakara family are attending McPherson College this year. Comfort Odakara, a transfer student from Central College, is a senior majoring in home ec. Her son, Grand, is a junior. Martina is a freshman and was recently elected Freshman Class Treasurer.

The three other foreign students are from Cyprus and Japan. The students from Cyprus are Andres Christoforou and Louisa Panagides. Andre, a sophomore, is a pre-engineering major. Louisa is a senior this year. Seigi Kuwata is McPherson's only student from Japan. He is a freshman majoring in sociology.

Having students from six foreign countries gives students an opportunity to learn about a wide variety of lifestyles and the experiences of those from other cultures.

England added

BCA expands Study Abroad

by Kathy Cotton

Studying abroad. There's something about it that makes the possibility appealing. Study Abroad programs enable McPherson College students to spend a semester or even a year furthering their educations in foreign nations.

Brethren Colleges Abroad (BCA), which began in 1962, is one such program. Six liberal arts colleges related to the Church of the Brethren are involved in the program.

However, from the conception of the program, students from Mennonite colleges have participated. Now, other denominations are allowed as well.

BCA offers the opportunity for qualified college students to study a full year at Philipps-International d'Estaudes Francaises of the University of Strasbourg in France; or the University of Barcelona in Spain.

Expanding its program of study, BCA now includes a semester study in England. During the spring term of the current school year, students will be able to apply for admission at Cheltenham, which is 60 miles from London.

Classes take place at St. Mary's College, a women's school. However, men are allowed in the program, but must reside at St. Paul's College.

The absence of a language barrier makes it advantageous to expand the program to England.

Since Britain is a leader in the area of education, more specifically, elementary and early childhood education, England was a logical place to expand the program, according to Dr. Dayton Rothrock, education.

Education courses can be a part of the student's curriculum, as the 15 week study is primarily for education majors. Lectures and visitation are also included in St. Mary's programming.

"It's an exciting new program," commented Dr. Rothrock. Any students interested in the trip should contact him soon.

Another study abroad program, "Junior Year Abroad," is located in Valencia, Spain.

Several students from Mac College have participated in this program. Cathy Hamm, C '77, attended several years ago and Anne Erisman, sr, went last semester. Leslie Goodrich, jr, is currently involved in the program.

Anne said her study abroad was "the best thing I ever did."

Being a Spanish major, Anne was most interested in the culture and history of Spain and learned to appreciate both.

"I learned a lot, mostly through experiences which could never be found in the classroom," she said.

"Just the way everything worked out, I knew I was supposed to be there," Anne related.

For those interested in the trip, she notes that it is a very economical trip and provides excellent opportunities for site-seeing.

New dual-degree program offered

by Carolee Zunkel

A new opportunity has opened up for McPherson College home economics students. The Cooperative Education Dual-Degree Program between McPherson College and Kansas State University, Manhattan, enables students to receive a degree from both institutions.

Prof. Connie Nichols, home economics, was contacted last spring by Dr. Merlin Frantz, academic dean, to find out if such a program would be possible.

As a result, Fashion Marketing is now one of the degree options open to McPherson College home ec students.

Dianna Layton, soph, Mulvane, is the first student to take advantage of this opportunity. She will meet her requirements at McPherson in the next three semesters before starting her year at KSU in spring '79.

At KSU she will receive credits in professional fashion marketing classes and field experience through a Kansas City outlet.

"I think it is wonderful how McPherson College professors have found a way to broaden the specialized fields that students are interested in," Dianna said.

"It's a personal pleasure to work with Dianna," said Prof. Nichols. "We have spent many hours shaping this difficult program. I'm really pleased to be able to offer her this opportunity."

Mac to meet Ottawa in non-conference play

by John Angerame

Unable to establish a consistent offense, the McPherson College Bulldogs were overtaken Saturday by the Sterling Warriors 26-8 in the season debut for both Kansas Conference teams.

The offense produced only 97 yards rushing and 47 yards passing.

"The offensive line got beat," said Coach Don Rominger. "They got whipped in the trenches."

Coach Rominger believes Sterling won because they mastered the Bulldog's front line. However, he was well pleased with the overall defensive play, especially from senior defensive ends Kent McDowell and Bruce Waggoner and by the hard-hitting of linebacker James Brooks.

The overall team attitude is that they beat themselves by their own mistakes.

But the "dirty thirty" are not looking back. The Sterling game is in the past, and the Bulldogs are looking forward and are ready to take on the Ottawa Braves in a non-conference game here tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

The coaches are expecting an improved showing by the Bulldogs and are looking for a solid offensive line.

Captain James Brooks said, "If we tighten up our blocking and special team play, there is no way we can lose tomorrow. The team is sky high and we can almost taste victory."

Tourney tomorrow

Alumni to face tennis squad

Keeping the college tennis courts well occupied this weekend will be participants of the first annual Varsity-Alumni Tennis Tournament.

Ten alumni, all of whom are former members of the college team, will face the 1977-78 men's tennis squad tomorrow at 9 a.m.

Play will continue on the college courts until 4:30 p.m., at which time the group will adjourn to Coach Jerry Holman's home for a barbecue and continued play on his private tennis court.

Play will resume at the college courts Sunday at 9 a.m. Coach Holman expects the tournament to wind up at 2 p.m.

"The tournament has been structured so that every member of the alumni team will play every member of the college team and vice-versa," said Coach Holman.

Each match will be worth one point and the winning team will be determined from the total number of accumulated points, he explained.

Coach Holman views the tournament as "a positive step in building a long-range tennis program" at McPherson College. "I hope for this to become an annual affair," he said.

Returning to campus for tomorrow's tournament are Ken Bechtel, C'70, Jefferson City, Mo.; Loren Boughman, C'68, McPherson; Wes DeCoursey, C'40, McPherson; Dennis Farnsworth, C'74, Enid, Okla.; Tom Glynn, C'74, Wamego; Mark Melhorn, C'75, Kansas City, Mo.; Paul Miller, C'37, McPherson; Larry Rolander, C'76, Wichita; Larry Settle, C'75, McPherson; and Don Widrig, C'59, McPherson.

Playing for the college will be last year's returners—Craig Holman, Tracy Ikenberry, LaMonte Rothrock and Marty Ward.

Also playing will be Dan Klassen, a transfer student from Central College; Bob McIntosh, fr. Lockport, N.Y.; Doug Gayer, fr. Buhler; and John Hoffman, a transfer student from Manchester College, Ind.

Bethel dual evens record

During Tuesday's match at Bethel, the conference record was evened out at one win and one loss for the women's tennis team.

Last Friday, the Bulldog netters lost to the Southwestern team 3-6 for their first conference loss after going undefeated last season. Winning for Mac were Lisa Gaskill and Ann Lobban playing number one and three singles, and the number one doubles team of Gaskill and Karen Burkholder.

"Southwestern had excellent depth through all seven players," said Coach Doris Coppock. "They have some very fine freshmen that will be tough competitors for possibly three more years."

"The main thing we've had to work on this fall has been wind strategy," commented Dr. Coppock. "We've had to deal with that factor each match so far."

The Mac women made a clean sweep of all nine matches at Bethel Sept. 20. Gaskill defeated Schroeder 6-3, 6-0, Karen Burkholder won over Schmidt 6-0, 6-1 in number two singles, and Ann Lobban scored 6-3, 6-0 over Franz in three singles.

Nationals attract athletes

by Celia Stover

While most students were looking forward to their favorite summer jobs or perhaps even to graduation, four of McPherson College's top athletes were competing in national contests.

Freddie Wilson, a former student, from Princeton Junction, N.J., Craig Holman, jr., McPherson, Jeanne Suellentrop, sr., Colwich, and Stacy Miles, a former student, from Valley Center, all competed in their respective events.

During the week before graduation, Miles and Suellentrop competed in AIAW national competition from May 19-21 in Drake Stadium on the UCLA campus.

Miles performed near her best effort with a heave of the shot put of 42'8", just a few inches off her best throw of 43'. This, unfortunately did not qualify her for the finals, the last throw accepted being about 45'.

Suellentrop competed in the pentathlon in which she finished 11th in the nation.

"She did an excellent job last spring," said former track coach Art Ray. "The only thing she messed up on was the long jump. She jumped about two feet short of her best."

The pentathlon includes five events: the 100 meter hurdles, 800 meter run, high jump, long jump and shot put.

In the high jump she did well, going as high as 5'1". She ran her best half ever and made her usual good showing in the hurdles.

"In the shot put she heaved it a foot and a half better than her best," commented Ray.

Wilson competed the following week (May 27-29) in Arkadelphia, Ark.

He entered the 800 meter run and won his heats in both the preliminaries and the semi-finals with times of 1:50.2 and 1:49.8 respectively.

These performances qualified him for finals. He gave the eventual winner a run for his money, relinquishing first place by only .41 seconds. Wilson's final time was 1:47.8 as opposed to the 1:47.39 which won the race.

Wilson now holds the new school record in the 800 meter, having broken his own record of 1:51.

According to Ray, "He's in the top eight or nine runners in the United States these days."

"He really did super to run those times for three days in a row."

"Freddie has a shot at the next Olympics if he improves two seconds on his time," concluded Ray. "1:45 would run him with anyone."

In the other spring sport, Craig Holman competed in the NAIA national tennis contest at its traditional site of Kansas City.

Holman made it to the third of eight rounds of competition, losing two tie breakers 7-6, 7-6 to Dave Drossman of Edinboro State in Pennsylvania.

Holman was hoping to make it to the round of 32 players but, said Coach Jerry Holman, "That's as close as one could come to making it there."

Coach Holman said, "He didn't like to lose but he didn't mind losing because he played well. Drossman played just a little better."

The sort of competition that Holman was up against was definitely international with players from about 10 different countries. An American named Jones finally won it.

Lisa Gaskill, sr., Abilene, also represented the college in summer competition. In June she played in the first national AIAW championship ever run for small colleges.

Gaskill won her first two rounds and lost in the quarter-finals, which placed her among the top eight number one singles tennis players in the country.

"But that doesn't mean that much," Gaskill commented, "I was the only one from Kansas competing."

"Kids should know what tremendous accomplishments these contests have been," concluded Coach Holman.
