The cabinet is to include, not only students on the campus, but also students living off the campus and downtown. Rules Should Fit Needs

With obvious evidence of conflict between the governed and the governers here at McPherson College, an analysis of the problem might offer possibilities of remedy for the existing evils.

From all obtainable information, the trouble, it seems, lies in the fact that certain students have broken certain rules which have been in existence since the beginning of this college, and likewise have been broken innumerable times since the enactment of these rules. Why are these rules broken? Why is it always the same rules? Is it the students or the rules that

Any group of people, regardless of number, age (within certain limits), or conviction, will live by and abide by the rules only with their own consent. To quote freely from Dr. Peters' speech in Wednesday's chapel, "One should abide by the rules not merely because of fear of punishment, but because of the love of doing that which is good and right." To further this, specifically, if he is to abide by the rules, he should, for the benefit of his own convictions, believe in the rules by which he abides. Each of us personally, at best, very reluctantly abide by an enforced rule if we do not believe in it.

Therefore: the rules should be made to fit the convictions of a representative group of the governed. No small, handpicked few can be a representative group. It must be representative by popular vote.

From this, the remedy, outlined briefly, is the following: Let the students, in the dormitories, off the campus, downtown, wherever they be situated, formulate, by a method of popular representation, a set of rules which seems to be in keeping with the beliefs of the students to be governed, and at the same time to be in keeping with the ideals of this institution of which we are a part. Further, let the governed be put on an honor system. That this can be done is shown by two facts: first, the individual, in that he had part in formulating the rules, will, because these rules are a part of his beliefs and convictions, keep them. Second, one's actions are governed to a very large extent by society. If the society disapproves of an act, the individual will be less likely to do this act than otherwise. What other society than that with which we are in direct contact now, that of the college students, could bear more weight than it does? Logically, and in reality this plan can and should be carried out.

Can Nazi Germany Succeed In Her Anti-Christian Effort?

With the modern "reign of terror" being inflicted upon Norway against both school and clergy, it is well to consider some of its latest action. Just recently published was an anti-Christian book called "God and Nation—A Soldier's Creed." This book declares: "We cannot live two different faiths. In our heart there is only room for one faith, one creed: Germany

"The age of international humanitarian dreams is moving towards its close, and with it the dream of Christian humanity which has been agitating men for 2,000 years without bringing anyone one step nearer it."

Such statements as the above, obviously false to any observer with an open mind, only show the system of indoctrination of Nazi Germany.

According to the new book, there is only one conflict going on—the conflict against christianity. The book states, "Where there is a battle there are fronts. These fronts are evident. One is called Christ, the other Germany. No third one exists. Likewise there is no compromise, but a single clear decision."

Therefore Nazi Germany would say that Germany, and Germany alone stands against one otherwise perfectly united cause: Christianity.

Such statements and ideals put forth by the unchristian German leaders, which offhand seem absured and impossible, on further investigation, seem likely to succeed if definite action is not taken against it. The result is already shown in Germany, in that Christian force is broken completely, and there is no reason to believe that it could not happen in all such Nazi-indoctrinated countries.

Dear Editor:

The Spectator Office was again this week and for several weeks past a veritable jungle of waste paper, filth, dirt, and junk. In lieu of a janitor for this room certain people took it on themselves to sweep the entire batch out the door into a neat pile at the head of the stairs to the publication department. It has been rumored that the Spectator Office has a janitor. If so he has never raised his head this year. It doesn't need to be swept every day, but once a month might not hurt anyone. If there is no janitor at present there should be one appointed. This pile of junk is a fire hazard and an eyesore.

No doubt a few things of some minor value were said but in a meeting of this kind the people being questioned have to be discreet. The faculty will jump on them if they are frank and if they are too discreet nothing is gained. If we were high school kids on our first date maybe such information would be in order, but when a person has reached a college age he should have known 99 per cent of those answers by his own observation. If he didn't I think he is dull indeed.

If a girl doesn't want to be kissed on the first date she'll let you know If she doesn't want to park in the country you'll find out plenty soon enough. Women have as a rule not a little tact and can be plenty burnt up by the continental approach. Coyness is an inherent part of women and they have used it since time immemorial to wrap men around their fingers. Men should realize this and if they will admit it they don't mind being given some of this treatment.

Common sense should tell you what to wear and if this won't, why then don't be afraid to ask questions. Use your brains. You are in college Now comes this question of ganging in the parlor after meals. I'll admit that it is a bit rowdy at times, but I think that the old place would be pretty dull at times if the boys didn't whoop it up a little over there. You will notice that most of the women

There has been a rumor floating around over this campus for the past several weeks, since the new boys dorm has opened, to the effect that the boys do not want the girls to come into their parlor. How this was started is a mystery to me. French And Gross Win From Stucky, Voshell In Mixed Doubles

Returning everything that her opceptionally strong defense, and taking the offense whenever opportunity afforded it, Doris Voshell came through as the winner of the Women's Open City ping pong tournament held on the Y. M. C. A. floor

During the same evening, Junior French and Alta Gross succeeded in winning the mixed doubles city championship after being forced to five games in the finals by another college combination, Dean Stucky and Doris Voshell.

Voshell's most gruelling games came in the finals, when she met Alta Gross and slipped by her in She reached the finals by a bye in the first round, defeating question of men in the girls' parlor Madaline Kittell in the second round, 21-11, 21-7, and defeating Jean Stachling, 21-17, 17-21, 21-17, in the men around. the semi-finals. Gleaned From The Teeming Brain

The men of our college were doubtless much enlightened by the valuable information given them by the Women's Council last Monday nite They learned such facts as these-It isn't nice to chew tobacco while on a date; there are any number of things more interesting than parking in the and a supposedly large number of other things which were not menthey learned that girls prefer roller skating to playing pool and other es sential facts of equal importance. If the purpose of this meeting was tive was accomplished because it sur passed the recent similar meeting in that it was even more hilarious and other meeting of this kind soon because it has been quite some time since we were taught how to conduct ourselves in grade school and then too, there is nothing better for people than a good laugh!!

Alas, that red-headed, ping-pong playing coed of our campus, Alta Gross, tarried too long after the Saturday night curfew sounded and the capital punishment of Arnold Hall has been inflicted upon herin other words she has been campused. Strangely enough too, it happened while "Romeo" Ikenberry was away. Could it be that it was deliber ate so that she could start out with clean slate when "Romeo" returns from his warbling tour?? Another of the Arnold Hall inhabitants has had the same punishment inflicted upon her but there seems to be an air of mysteriousness regarding the reason for it. However I am told that the matron of Arnold Hall and the Dean of Women, assisted by her agents, will probably receive a distinguished service medal for their excellent detective work done on the case.

Proof has been uncovered which shows us that the versatile Clancy Bunyan was one time a very cute or picture of the said person which was recently discovered. If any of you wish to gaze upon this former likeness of friend Clancy you will be able to find it at the Bunyan Hash House located on East Douglas Avenue in Wichita, Kansas and commonly known as Phillip's Cafe.

I hope that we can enjoy an- the misfortune of colliding with an unseen pipe. This is the explanation he gives for the patch he has been wearing above his left eye.

Let it not be said that students eating in the dining hall are not helping in the war effort because if you were present at some of our meals you could readily see that we are making great sacrifices so that the army can have the best. At least I hope this is the reason for some of our foodless meals.
