CROP FAILURES MAY THREATEN THE NUMBER OF STUDENTS—ENROLLMENT IS NOT COMPLETE

Enrollment May Be Larger Than Last Year—No Definite Figures Were Available Early This Morning—Others Expected To Come In Within Next Few Weeks

FOUR NEW INSTRUCTORS

Dr. J. Daniel Bright To Be Dean Of Men And Head Of The History Department

Officials of the College are in a very optimistic frame of mind in regards to the enrollment for the ensuing year. Despite the fact that falling crops throughout the middle west is threatening the enrollment of new students those in charge of the tabulation of the incoming students state that the prospects are looking fair. However, no complete return has been completed and no figures were available this morning.

A number of new instructors have been added to the faculty that will enhance the teaching facilities of the College. Miss Alice Bartlett, A. B., will be the new instructor in the French language. Miss Mary Fee, A. B., University of Kansas and graduate work in the same university, will be in charge of all the practice teaching courses that are now being required by the state for teaching certificates. Miss Fee was at the head of the summer school practice teaching classes and comes to the College with very high recommendations.

Dr. J. Daniel Bright, Ph. D., who was granted a leave of absence two years ago to complete his work for his doctor's degree at the University of Wisconsin, has returned as head of the history department. Doctor Bright will also have the position as dean of men.

Mrs. Earl R. Bohling, wife of Professor Bohling, who is head of the commerce department, will be the new instructor in shorthand and typewriting. She is a graduate of Kansas Wesleyan university at Salina and has taken graduate work from the University of Kansas.

"CASEY" RESIGNS AS BULLDOG CHEERLEADER

Unable To Handle Office He Had Last Year Because Of His Work

Orville "Casey" Voran, reelected cheerleader last spring by the student body, has presented his resignation to the Student Council because of the nature of his school work for the ensuing year. It is not known yet just what action the Council will take to fill this vacancy.

KING CARROLL, THE KING OF HITCH-HIKERS

Woe be it unto the motorist that attempts to pass King Carroll when he is on his way home. Woe be it unto Carroll if he attempts to ask us for a ride. But Carroll was brave, his heart was young and full of vim, and his stomach was leading him home to fulfillment.

Carroll was a Walker and had dreamed of an overland trek into the north. Once upon a time, long ago, in fact it was last month and to be still more definite the first of August, Carroll was awakened in the early hours of the morning and that sudden desire to go home was upon him. So to free his burden, he arose, and made final preparations to take off for home. His path was the highway, the way that led to home. The highway was to be his happy-way—that is of course you understand, if he caught a ride—but the day before the mercury had reached 116 in the shade and there was no shade.

Carroll, later to be crowned King, wished to bid his faithful friends farewell so stopped at his friends' place of business on Main street and in fact nearly forgot he was going home until he realized that Father Time pointed to 9 o'clock and the sun was getting hotter and hotter. So Carroll takes his first fling and down on his bended knees he said to the first passing motorist: "Motorist, be merciful to me—a hitch-hiker." And he was merciful for he hauled the prone body of our dear Carroll for one solid mile and then opened the gate to the wide-open-spaces again.

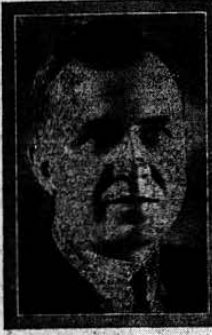

Once more on bended knees Carroll falls—and surely it must have been Barney Oldfield himself and a merciful Barney at that—for he lifted our Carroll from the dust laden road and placed him in the seat beside him and away they went for 320 miles to our dear Carroll's home where his mother met him with opened arms. He simply flew, not literally of course, and at 12:25 he crossed the state line and at 4:00 o'clock that very same evening the same car drew up in front of his home and stopped and deposited its cargo.

And now Carroll is crowned the "King of the Hitch-hikers" with all the pomp and fitting ceremonies that go to such a hero. When a Walker's a hiker and a hitch-to-boot, then let the wayfarer public be careful.

MISS LEHMAN AND PARTY ENJOYED EUROPEAN TRIP

Three Graduates Of M. C. In The Party—Visit Eight Nations—Gone Most Of Summer

Miss Della Lehman, instructor in the English department and who is now on leave of absence studying in London, lead a party of eight girls on a tour of Europe during the summer. The party included three graduates of McPherson college, Floy Brown, '29; Eunice Longsdorf, '29, and Myrtle Myer, '28, and the remaining four girls were from North Manchester and points in the east.

Eight countries were visited during the summer months, including France, Germany, Holland, Italy, Austria, Belgium, England, and Switzerland. While in Oberammergau the group was privileged to witness the famous Passion Play. Many days were spent in the princely cities of Europe. From the gates of Paris to the sternness of Rome the girls saw the people of the Old World.

The party left Montreal June 13 and landed in London June 23. A number of days were spent in and near this old city and then they went to Amsterdam and from there on to Brussels, Cologne, Wiesbaden, Munich, Oberammergau, Innsbruck, Lucerne, Interlaken, Montreux, Stresa, Venice, Florence, Rome, Genoa, Nice, Avignon, and Paris were the principal stops, arriving in New York August 9.

Miss Lehman will remain in London and study but will be back the first part of the year.

THESPIANS TO HAVE REGULAR MEETINGS

Meetings Will Be Held Once Every Two Weeks If Arrangements Are Made

The Thespians are making plans to have regular meetings during the year, once every two weeks. A definite form of programs will be followed and these will be instructive in all ways possible. The purpose of the organization is to study playwrights, drama, actors and actresses, and to present short and full evening productions.

Officers of the organization are attempting to make arrangements

PETRY TEACHING

AT MANCHESTER

Prof. Roy B. Petry, who taught history here last year and in summer school, is teaching this year in the history department of Manchester college, a sister college to McPherson college. The following year Professor Petry intends to resume work on his Ph. D. in Religious History at the University of Chicago.

ILL HEALTH FORCES MATRON TO RESIGN

Miss Lora Trostle, Matron For Last 15 Years—Idaho Lady Takes Her Place

Miss Lora Trostle, for the last 15 years matron of Arnold hall, was forced to resign during the summer upon the advice of her physician. Miss Trostle in the last two years has been experiencing a good deal of ill health and her doctor deemed it necessary to have her give up her work at the College.

To take Miss Trostle's place the management has secured Mrs. Della Holsinger of Nampa, Idaho. Mrs. Holsinger comes to the College very highly recommended by her friends and will be matron in the girls dormitory.

FIRST TIME SPECTATOR IS ISSUED FIRST WEEK

To Have 48 Issues This Year—One More Than Last—Fourteenth Year For The Paper

With this issue of The Spectator, the first of the 1930-31 series, the staff will endeavor to issue 38 issues during the school year. Last year we issued 37, which was the number previously published, and by being able to get one out the first week of school we will furnish you with this added issue.

This year is the fourteenth year for The Spectator, the first volume being published in 1916, in a good deal smaller size than the present paper. The staff will have The Spectator on the campus Tuesday noon of each week.

A distribution box will be placed in the hallway of the Administration building and each regularly enrolled student is entitled to one Spectator a week.

LOCAL Y. M. C. A. IS PLANNING BUMPER YEAR

Speakers Of National Recognition Will Be Brought To The Campus

According to Clinton Trostle, president, the Y. M. C. A. of McPherson college is planning a year of activities which is of interest to every man on the campus. The regular meetings will be held each Tuesday morning at the chapel hour with both students and outside speakers appearing on the programs. A number of festive occasions have been planned.

During the year speakers of national recognition will be brought to the campus. During the past few years this has been one of the most worthwhile privileges that the students have had and this year every effort will be made to continue bringing men of like caliber to the campus.

Otha Whiteneck, sophomore and a member of the men's varsity debate team last year, left for St. Louis last Saturday night where he will enter a dental school.

Dr. Daniel W. Kurtz and Mrs. Kurtz, of Long Beach, Calif., accompanied their son Wheeler to McPherson.

38,000 WATT CAPACITY

Binford Says It Is A Big Thing For The City And The College Costing $2,700.

McPherson college will have night football this fall.

The latter part of August the board of trustees of the College met and upon the recommendations of an investigating committee decided to purchase the necessary flood lights to light the field and in cooperation with the city are furnishing lights for night football.

Coach Melvin J. Binford, who has been working for the flood lights nearly all summer, has checked up the matter with the McPherson Athletic Park officials and they have leased the grounds to the College with the understanding that the lights will be the property of the College.

The equipment has been purchased from the Giant Manufacturing company, a concern that specializes in this type of lights. The McPherson system will be one of the best in Kansas and will include a total of 32 flood light projectors that will light the field like day with a total of 38,000 watts. Four poles will be erected on each side of the field and each pole will hold double units with two lights to each unit, making a total of four projectors to each pole. No lights will be placed at the ends of the field.

The lights will be installed and ready for use for the first scheduled game, which will be with the Kearney Teachers of Kearney, Nebraska, September 26. With the installing of the lights a few changes in the schedule will be required.

The arrangements between the College and the city are of an advantage to the community, the city, and the College. The College has leased, the grounds and will have complete control over the lights. The College has purchased the necessary equipment and the city will install the lights at cost. The equipment and the installation is costing $2,700. The city Water and Electric department will buy the installation and the College will be given three years in which to pay for it, or it may pay for it sooner if it desires. The city department will receive 6 per cent upon their investment. The College is at an advantage because they will receive their equipment at cost and also will be given three years in which to pay the cost of installing.

Coach Binford has stated: "I believe that the installing of the flood lights will be a big thing for both the city and the College." The night games will allow people of the business districts to attend the contests which otherwise they would be unable to attend because of their businesses. It is thought that the novelty of the night games will attract not only the home people but also people from points in this part of the state.

The entire equipment was to have arrived September 10 and a week will be required to install it, and it will be completed by September 20.

ESTES PARK CONFERENCE PROVES GREAT SUCCESS

Eleven Go From Here—Five States Are Represented—Three Go From Bethel

Eleven students from the College attended the Y. M. and Y. W. conference held at Estes Park, Colorado, from June 4 until June 19. The conference included the Rocky Mountain Region of five states—Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska, Wyoming, and Utah. Leaders of national reputation spoke and took part in the conference. Among those most well

MISS TROSTLE, THE DORMITORY MOTHER

For 15 years Miss Lora Trostle was called mother by the girls of Arnold Hall. For 15 years she has toiled and labored among her girls, as she would call them. She has been nurse and doctor and many have been the nights she has been called to the room of some sick girl.

Miss Trostle has witnessed all the sorrows and joys of dormitory life. Death and sickness have both been met with courage and sympathy. She has known secrets dear to some, of marriages and engagements. She has not only been a mother to the girls but also to the boys who have come to her to do their tidy mending of torn trousers, they have come with their sorrows and their joys. She has even helped in tolerant love affairs.

Students will miss Miss Trostle and her pleasing manners. They will miss their pleasant office conversations with her. Her personality will live forever among the minds of the students.

MANY MORE GO TO COLLEGE, BUT FEWER GRADUATE

Fifteen years ago there were about 260,000 young persons enrolled in the higher educational institutions of this country, with about 30,000 in the graduating classes. There are now about one million college students, and in a decade more there may be in the colleges and universities of the United States as many young persons as there are young persons of college age in the United States.

What was once regarded as the good fortune of the youth, who was privileged in property or who was exceptionally aggressive or ambitious may soon be the reasonable prospect of almost any or all of them. We are rapidly becoming a nation of college men and women.

Student mortality is high. But we are not becoming a nation of college graduates. We enter college in large and are graduated in much smaller numbers; a condition out of which comes one of the most perplexing problems in American education.

The period that has witnessed the remarkable increase in the number of college students has witnessed the increasing dissatisfaction with what the colleges are doing and the manner by which it is done. Alarm and resentment spread because of college student mortality which may be said to have reached the proportions of an acute problem.

The figures themselves tell the mournful story. The academic careers of one-fifth of the 200,000 young men and women who entered the colleges and universities of this country in the fall of 1929 ended their college career last spring, and their alma mater knows them no more.

When graduation day arrives for the class of 1933 only half of its original members will receive diplomas and the blessings of the president. The other half will be as a tale that is right badly told. Notwithstanding the knelling and the dirging and the increasing post mortems by college presidents and deans and their personal clinics, the academic death rate remains frightfully high.

These educational specialists do not agree upon any one cause or set of causes of the trouble, but point to many. In their opinion the typical American college student may fall to stagger through on account of any one or numerous ills that range all the way from adenoids, and asthma to alcohol, athletics, Bacchanalia, bigotry, brains (lack of), bronchitis, carelessness, cash (too much or not enough), degeneracy, despondency, extravagance, family, females, jazz, malaria, motor cars, obesity, osculation, sex appeal, tobacco, vanity, verbosity, week-ends, yodeling and zeros.

It is extraordinary that colleges students survive when faced with such infirmities as these. These tribulations may or may not explain most of the failures of college students, but many careful observers seem to see the problem closely connected with a wholly different one; an adequate supply of properly prepared and skillful teachers in the college.

These institutions are filled because democracy has stepped out in another direction, and through public and private effort education has been extended to areas that were once not common. The colleges and universities have urged undaunted youth to enter their gates, but often have failed, or seem to have failed, to make proper provision for the young men and women after they enter.

Fairly adequate material provision has been generally made, perhaps; there are more dormitory, laboratory, library and classroom facilities. And there are more teachers. But better teachers have not always been provided for this flood of students.

Some observers appear to believe that the higher educational institutions are indifferent, if not openly hostile, to the ideas or suggestion that college teachers should be trained to teach.

FRESHMEN

We have come to the time of the year when the youth of America is returning to school. The vacation season is ended, schools and colleges are reopening their doors, the youth is returning to pursue his search for truth. More young people are entering our colleges and universities for the first time as Freshmen than ever before in the history of our educational system.

The student body of McPherson college extends a most friendly welcome and sincerest greetings to those who have come to our institution for the first time. It is our hope that this year may be a most profitable year for you and that you may in some degree achieve the goal for which you have set out to seek.

Again we say greetings to our school family, McPherson college.

If it were fashionable for our coeds to be nice and plump it would certainly take all our wheat surplus to feed them.

After the summer vacation we are convinced of our attractive personality. A million chiggers can't be wrong.

After noticing a few of these collegiate motor cars around the campus we think the handiest thing to have around would be a pull with the police.

A University of Missouri girl student is required to learn how to swim, before she can be graduated, no doubt so in case she goes for a canoe ride she can walk home.

SPECULATIONS OF A SPECULATOR

WELCOME TO FRESHMEN

Did you kiss your ma goodbye?
Did you kind of want to cry
When you thought of leaving all your friends at home?
Did you s'pose when you came here That you'd ever need to fear
That sometimes you're sure to wish you hadn't come?

Did you really calculate
That you wouldn't have a date
Just because you're new to college—
—life this fall?
Did you s'pose the faculty
Wouldn't have the tact to see
That you're needing just a little help
—that's all?

Did you come prepared to stand
All the flunks that you might land
Just because some certain teacher was a man?
Then throw off hallucination
And with no more hesitation
Be the life of this old college, if you can.

When you're feeling blue and sort of like a failure, just remember there are fellows riding in a hearse who'd be plenty glad to have your chances.

Freshman to Upper-Classman: "It's funny, but this new suit of mine is not just what it ought to be."
Upper-Classman: "What seems to be the trouble? It looks all right hanging up, but terribly bunchy on you."

Freshman: "Well, the wooden thing in the shoulders hurts my back, and that wire thing runs up and grabs me in the neck."

Doctors say that during the summer months, many people by the seashore get dizzy when they see people swimming before their eyes.

Someone is gonna cut
His head off at the neck
He's a rannin' ragged this Pool "Check and double check".

As is the custom of newcomers to McPherson College, a certain Freshman walked out to the cemetery. As he walked about, reading inscriptions on the tombstones, he came to one which read, "Not dead, but sleeping".

Scratching his head, the Freshman remarked, "He sure ain't foolin' anybody but hisself".

Next week, if I am in the write mood, I may tell you about the garbage collector's daughter, but she is not to be sniffed at.

HOT SHOTS

From The Day's Weekly

A Lincoln, Nebraska girl sued a young man who squeezed her so hard he broke three ribs. Who says those Nebraska lads pet—and how.

A Kansas man, aged 92, says he never smoked, chewed, drank alcoholic beverages, attended a movie or kissed a girl. Then what's the use of living ninety-two years?

We saw one collegiate model T Ford on the campus yesterday morning that bore this sign: "You may not believe it, but this car once belonged to a Detroit billionnaire".

An Oklahoma slayer, about to be electrocuted for murdering a man, has written his view of capital punishment for an Oklahoma City newspaper. He is against that form of punishment.

We read where a majority of the University of Kansas co-eds express a preference for "careers" over marriage, and the usual proportion of them doubtless will enter upon one by proxy.

HEARD IN THE DORM.

SEEN ON THE CAMPUS

Mr. Bert Trostle of Nickerson brought his daughter Ruth to McPherson Sunday.

Ruben Bowman, Archie Blickenstaff, and Alberta Hovis were visitors Sunday.

Elmer Crumpacker, who teaches this year at Wilmore, visited with his mother over the week end.

Delbert Kelly, sophomore last year, underwent a minor operation during the summer and will be unable to be back in school the first semester, but there is a possibility that he may return for the second half.

"CHEER UP" FRESHMEN, SMILE! LET US KNOW YOU ARE HERE. WHY NOT?

The Girls Want MEN, MANLY men, and GENTLE men. Men Want the Girls to Go Slower and Last Longer. Be Good Sports! Don't Fly Off the Handle—You May get a Splinter. Go Easy. We Welcome you to McPherson

"Nothing to do! Don't know anyone—Can't take what I want too! Classes start tomorrow! Wish—I—hadn't—come!" Poor little freshman! But cheer up! Everyone of these upperclassmen went through the same ordeal and felt just as you do. And down underneath the gay coat of social ease and self-confidence, they are wanting to help you get off the right foot. They remember the pangs of homesickness that made them feel sick all over and caused their heart to contract suddenly rise with a painfulness that nearly choked them. Don't think that you are the first person who ever felt that way. What is more—every other freshman is experiencing it, so why not find one of them and cheer each other up? You'll feel better. Wear a smile; say 'Hello' whether you know the other person or not; meet friendly advances half way, and soon you'll feel at home.

The pass word to social acceptance in college is MIX. Stay with groups. Don't isolate yourself or you'll 'check off. You aren't known here and so will not be hunted out as you were at home. You must prove yourself to us. To us you are zero and we can measure your ability only as you make the thermometer of your activity rise. So warm up and show us what you are.

Don't forget what you came to college for! Once in the social whirl, you may forget that this is an institution of learning rather than a fashionable winter resort. We, as older students in "The School of Quality", expect you to keep your individual scholarship up to a standard that will not embarrass us, our instructors, or you at a later date. The good student is always respected, while the "Dumadora" is tolerated. So, occasionally, it might be well to study, even if you can bluff the professors into thinking you have when you haven't. Bluffs fool themselves more than the professors. They aren't all as dumb as they look.

Girls, don't start out to fast. If that hot little freshman doesn't ask you for a date the first week, maybe a nice, dignified upperclassman will the second. The dazler who knows no modesty never wears well with any of the desirable male eligibles, so go a little slow and last longer. Commencement is held at the end of four years rather than a wedding. Be sweet, attractive and friendly, but don't be hilarious, brazen and soft.

Men, you are past the days of lifeless hardness that marks the adolescent. You are expected to show the marks of refinement and culture. Trustworthiness and chivalry are necessary if you would make good among your school mates. You may attract attention for the time by being boisterous, rude and egotistical, but you will lose much, in respect and confidence. It is only a little thing to be manly and careful of table manners or classroom conduct. It may try your patience to stand and hold doors, or push chairs up to the table, or give up your place to a girl in a crowded dining hall, but you will be well repaid. Don't beissy or soft. We want MEN, MANLY men, GENTLE men.

Be good sports! Though some of the initiation stunts and requirements may seem unreasonable, don't fly off the handle—you may get a splinter. Show yourself a better sport than the fellow who requires it. Remember, you will have your chance next year, and usually the bully is the one who was a poor sport in his day of trall. It is all in fun—though you may fall to see the joke—but you may feel it. Sometimes one can see the joke by looking in a mirror.

Be good citizens! Rules and regulations are much for the good of all, by persons whose experience has taught them what seems best. You can evade the rules, of course, if you possess average intelligence; but if you won't respect the other fellow's rights, you have no right to mingle with society, especially society that is the result of sacrifice and labor on the part of others. Rules governing use of books, dining room etiquet, campus conduct, retiring and study hours, and curriculum are made that we may get along with a minimum of friction. Don't forget that society demands both give heartily. All summer we have looked forward to returning and finding you and getting acquainted with you. The faculty and management have worked and planned to get you here and care for you properly. Student organizations have tried to anticipate your social needs and meet them. Individuals are making a special effort to welcome you. We want you to love our school as we do. You have come to the School of Quality. You have honored it by choosing to come. Let it honor you by influencing you into a greater and larger life.

Sport Fans Are Being Assured Of A Good All-around Athletic Season For The Bulldogs—A Good Deal Of New Material Has Come In And More Is Expected To Arrive Soon

FOUR HOME GAMES

First Game Will Be With Kearney Teachers Here September 26 At Night

Coach Melvin J. Binford, new McPherson mentor, is looking forward to a good grid season for his Bulldogs. However, he is not certain yet as to the nature of his team because at this early date it is not certain just who will be here for the early practices that started yesterday afternoon. A tough schedule has been worked out with four home games all of which will be played at night under the new McPherson lighting system.

Sport fans are being assured that all around athletics at the College are going to be good this year. In the pigskin lineup a number of outstanding athletes have appeared for early practice. Herbert Hochstrasser, Conway, one of last year's All-Kansas conference ends, is looked to as one of the outstanding talents to be back and a great deal is expected of him.

Six lettermen have appeared and these are King, L. Barngrover, Keck, Bigham, Hochstrasser, and Countryman. Both Barngrover, McPherson, and Bigham, Topeka, have returned and will help materially on the squad. Cecil Anderson, a flashy backfield man from Roxbury, a member of last year's second team, is reported to be coming back.

Binford has brought three of his players from the Hutchinson Junior college, where he formerly was athletic coach. These men are Clark, back field man, Sisk, end, and Baintner, guard.

Other outstanding talent holds promise of keeping the regulars jumping to hold their places. Tice, a member of last year's second squad, is on the gridiron and ready for service. Two Miller brothers from Greensburg, Blaine and Loren, have reported, both of them having some experience. Sorenson, McPherson, is small but is solid and may develop into a good lineman. Williams and Peterson, both of Windom, have chances at the squad. Zinn, a large fellow from Washburn, is reported in the Binford camp.

Coach Binford stated this morning that the prospects for the grid season this year were looking fair. He can not tell just what he has until after a number of practices. There is only one man in last year's line that is back. The coach also stated that his candidates for ends are looking good but he needs a good center and tackles to complete his squad.

The McPherson mentor is expecting from 35 to 40 men out for the squad. Yesterday morning at an early hour he reported that he had already checked out 25 suits and that more were coming all the time. The athletic field north of the campus has been leveled and some new equipment has been added.

The schedule so far mapped out is one of the hardest ever scheduled. The schedule so far is only tentative, because with the installing of the flood light it was deemed necessary to change some of the games from Saturday to a week day. The first game will be September 26 with the Kearney Teachers of Kearney, Ne-

— DRIPPINGS — from THE DOPE BUCKET

Coach Binford has been working very hard all summer in an attempt to bring athletes to M. C. He has been the cause of a large number of them coming to McPherson, and he deserves the full support of the student body for his first year as the Bulldog mentor. Go to it you Binfordites—the school is back of you.

Those flood lights are all right for night games but it is certainly going to be tough on the reporters.

Countryman, a former Bulldog player, is back in the camp again this year. This little man may be small in body but in his case it is quality instead of quantity. Sport fans will do well to watch him this season.

It is reported that there is a candidate for the squad that can do 10 seconds flat in a football suit in 100 yards. If this boy can do that all the "Swedes" will see Thanksgiving Day will be a tall light.

And by the way—the "Swedes" are looking forward to a great football year. They have a number of letter men coming back and have doped themselves up considerably.

It seems that some college fellows do a lot more fussing and fuming over picking subjects to take than they do in picking a wife.

OTHER COLLEGES TO HAVE NIGHT GAMES

Ottawa, McPherson and Wesleyan Now Have Lights—Lindsborg Trying To Get Them

Night football is becoming quite popular among the colleges and universities of the state and this fall a number of the institutions in the Kansas Conference will have facilities to play their games at night. Three colleges in the Conference already have the lights or are installing them and these three are McPherson college, Ottawa university, and Kansas Wesleyan university. The Bethany "Swedes" are attempting to put in the flood lighting system but have been unable to do so yet. Two other colleges in central Kansas that are close to McPherson and who have flood lights for their night games are Sterling college, and Bethel college of Newton.

"M" CLUB ORGANIZED TO PROMOTE SPORTS

Coach Binford Says He Is Behind The Program Of The Organization

The "M" Club was organized primarily for the purpose of boosting athletics in McPherson college and is composed of all athletes who have played the requirement amount of time in their respective sports and have been recommended to the athletic board by the Coach for letters.

The college lost several of its best athletes by graduation last spring, however the school has an abundance of new material coming to fill their places. The "M" Club is striving to hold the interest of the old men attract new ones to the College. One of the best ways of doing this is to promote the good will and fellowship of all its members. The co-operation of the student body in general with the "M" Club is making cleaner and better athletics in McPherson college.

Coach Melvin J. Binford states that he is behind the "M" Club and the College is promoting their program. He is a leader of men, and it is the purpose of the "M" Club to give him something to lead.

made the trip to Colorado in a motor covered truck. The first night was spent at the Jamison home near Quinter, Kansas, where Ethel Jamison joined the party and the next night the park was entered.

On the return trip the students went through Colorado Springs and stops were made at Pike's Peak, Cave of the Winds, and other scenic places of interest.

Those going from McPherson were Ruth Trostle, Eugenia Dawson, Lyla Fields, Evelyn Fields, Mildred Mitchell, Ethel Jamison, Clinton Trostle, Ward Williams, Daniel P. Johnson, Glen Harris, and Emery Metzger.

BOONE IN HOSPITAL

Throws Shoulder Out Of Place—May Be Home Today

Prof. G. N. Boone, head of the industrial education department of the College, last Saturday threw his shoulder out of place and did not realize what he had done at the time. It was a day or two later that he was taken to the hospital and after three attempts to reset it had failed he was given ether and the fourth attempt was successful. It is probable that he will be home sometime today.

One Professor says he has been up in the air for years, but he has never thought of claiming an endurance record.
