M. C. DEBATERS TIE BETHANY SWEDES FOR STATE CHAMPIONSHIP WITH TWO VICTORIES

Affirmative Team Wins Over Friends University—Negative Squad Claims Victory Over Sterling in Two Contests Friday Night

FINAL CONTEST APRIL 5

Bethany and McPherson Will Fight It Out For State Title in Double Debate

Fri., Mar. 18—Professor Hess and his winning debaters again came through tonight with two victories over Kansas Intercollegiate Debating League contenders, thereby going in to a tie with the Bethany Swedes for the state championship. The Swedes won their two debates earlier in the week.

The final debate for the state championship will occur on Tuesday night, April 5, in the form of a dual debate. Instead of one critic judge as in the other varsity debates this year there will be three judges at Lindsborg and three at McPherson for the final debate. Judges will give their decisions along with percentages for each contestant, so that in case of a tie in placing, the championship can be determined on the basis of percentages won by each school contestant. Last year the McPherson debaters took their fifth state championship on the basis of an advantage in points over Wichita university, champions of the southern half of the state.

Coach Hess is looking forward to a hard contest with Bethany, with the odds at present favoring neither team. The Bethany team took an extended debate trip into northern Kansas and Nebraska this spring, winning a good part of the contests entered with some of the leading schools of the territory. Next week a Bethany team composed of Carl Lundquist and Loren Sibley will go to a national contest at Tulsa, Oklahoma, accompanied by the coach, Prof. Martin J. Holcomb. The latter has been at Bethany approximately the same length of time that Professor Hess has coached at McPherson, and has won a fair degree of success with his forensic contestants during that time.

Tonight the McPherson affirmative team, composed of Libburn Gottmann and Ward Williams, debated Hoff and Hinshaw of the Friends University negative team, winning by what the judge termed as a rather close decision. Prof. G. H. R. Pfbaum, debate coach at Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia, acted as critic judge.

At the same time Lawrence Lehman and Walter Wollman of the McPherson negative team were victors over the Sterling affirmative squad in a contest held at Sterling. Superintendent Frank L. Irwin of the Stafford city schools, the critic judge, indicated that the margin held by the McPherson debaters was not particularly close. Prof. J. H. Fries accompanied the McPherson contestants to Sterling.

WELSH SINGERS GIVE EXCEPTIONAL CONCERT

Large Audience Hears Last Number of Lyceum Course

Wed., Mar. 16—The Welsh Imperial Singers, famous chorus of fourteen men's voices, rendered a program of music this evening at the Community Building which was exceedingly pleasing to the large audience present. Under their able leader, R. Festyn Davies, the group presented men's chorus numbers of beauty and perfection accomplished only through the years of training individually received by the members.

Among the best received numbers were such well known songs as "March of the Men of Harlech", "Liebestraum", "Goin' Home", "All Through the Night", "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming", and "Pillgrim's Chorus". Numerous tenor and bass solo numbers also added to the variety of the program, which was the last of the Community Lyceum Course for this season.

Seven candidates for the various offices of the school have thus far presented their nomination petitions to Ralph Keady, president of the Student Council, who will have general charge of the spring elections. FACULTY BUYS 100 PER CENT

Ladies of College Church to Have Charge of Menu—College Students to Serve

Wed., March 23—Only nine more days until the second annual McPherson college Booster Banquet! Plans are rapidly nearing completion for the banquet, which will be the first day of April. The banquet is expected to be one of the outstanding affairs of the year's calendar of events. According to Prof. R. E. Mohler, advertising manager for the banquet, the ticket sale will begin in dead earnest tomorrow. The faculty has already purchased tickets 100%, according to Dr. J. I. Yoder. Tickets will soon be made available to all, in a city-wide advertising campaign.

An exceptionally good program is assured, with Dr. Burrus Jenkins, noted radio speaker, author, and lecturer the main speaker of the evening. Dr. Jenkins is the well-known minister of the Linwood Boulevard Christian Church in Kansas City. He has had a varied career, and is especially well suited to speak on his subject for the Booster Banquet, which is "Education for Modern America."

Other speakers on the program include Dean Paul Lawson of Kansas university, Lawrence; State Superintendent of Schools George Allen of Topeka, and Superintendent Huesner of the Salina Public Schools. Musical entertainment for the program will be furnished by the McPherson college musical organizations.

The faculty and students of the college, as well as many friends of the college, are enthusiastically boosting the coming banquet. McPherson's civic organizations are backing the banquet and are assuring its success. Among the organizations which have heartily endorsed the banquet are the Chamber of Commerce, the Retailers' Association, the Ministerial Alliance, the Federation of Women's Clubs, and the Rotary and Lions Clubs.

The banquet menu must not be overlooked. Many a dormitory-fed student will welcome this opportunity to step out into society and attend a real banquet with all the fixings, and prepared by a group of unexcelled cooks.

Tickets for the banquet sell at a minimum of ten dollars, with additional tickets for the members of the same family obtainable at one dollar each. All college students may purchase tickets for one dollar. The entire proceeds from the banquet will go into the McPherson college Loyalty fund for the support and endowment of the college.

Mr. LeRoy Doty of Hutchinson, a graduate of McPherson in the class of '25, has already been active in towns near McPherson selling tickets for the banquet. He reported approximately a dozen tickets sold before Monday morning of this week in the short time during which he has been working. He has sold many of these to alumni of the college, who in most instances gave twenty-five dollars and more for their tickets. The ticket campaign will show a decided acceleration before the end of this week as college representatives begin their work in earnest. All tickets must be purchased by the morning of March 31, in order that those in charge of the menu will be able to calculate the number to prepare for.

TATE SINGS AT NEWTON

Mrs. Anna C. Tate, voice instructor at McPherson college, sang the soprano solos in the Easter cantata "Seven Last Words of Christ," by Dubois, in Newton, Sunday. iring president of the Y. M. C. A., Miss Della Lehman gave a short address.

She said that after a college education, the world has a right to expect much more of the individual. There are unlimited possibilities for the person who makes the most of his advantages. Just a handful of clay becomes china, sand becomes turquoise, and water becomes beautiful snow, so can the lives of people be changed and transformed when subjected to the proper influences, said Miss Lehman.

The college ladies' quartet sang a selection, "Jesus Savior, Pilot Me," after which Dr. J. D. Bright presented the charge of office to the new cabinet members, Alberta Yoder, leaving the office of president of the Y. W. C. A., gave the benediction. be the closing date for nomination of candidates for the primary, which is to take place on Thursday, March 31.

Each candidate is to select a campaign manager, who will have charge of all publicity regarding his candidate, and will either select a speaker or act as nominating speaker for him in the Nominating Convention, to be held in the chapel on March 31.

To date the following have been placed in nomination for the school offices by presentation of duly signed petitions:

President of Student Council—Milo Stucky.

Treasurer of Student Council—Corrine Bowers.

Candidates and campaign managers are urged to get the nomination petitions in at once in order to place the names on the ballot for the primary. A large number of candidates will not only allow for a more representative selection, but will add to the interest of the election and prevent the contests from being mere complimentary vote affairs.

WHEN YOUTH FACES HIS WORLD OF TODAY

We who are in college are on the very brink of life. In a few more years we will be out on our own feet, supporting ourselves, facing and wrestling with our problems by ourselves. The greater part of the next few years must be years of intensive preparation if we are to enter into the future well equipped.

Everyone wants to succeed in life, and most of us want to be happy. To reach this goal that we set for ourselves there is one piece of armor that we must not fail to provide ourselves with. It is friends, one of the prime necessities of life. What satisfaction do money, education, or talent give us if we are without friends? When the realities of life come rushing in upon us and overwhelm us, and we are vainly striving to establish a footing against all these odds, a word from a friend is going to be an inspiration.

With it all remember that there is one friend each of us may have. He may become our greatest inspiration and our strongest arm of support. —Submitted.

WILL HISTORY REPEAT ITSELF?

In a recent speech a well-known economist referred to the meeting of a group of leading financial statisticians—experts in business forecasting—in New York City on November 4. He quoted eight of these experts as follows:

"The farmer will not buy much from the proceeds of this harvest; and with the price declined in process throughout the world, there would seem to be very little prospect of any extensive business revival in the near future."

"The general prospect is for slow and irregular business for ten years."

"I expect to see a long and slow recovery to a general level of sub-normal, slow business."

"Prices will advance a little from present levels and then fall once more. Recovery will be slow."

"Conditions abroad will continue to affect our business conditions here. It is a conservative estimate to say that ten years' must elapse before we can see genuinely prosperous business in this country."

"Business will come back to fair, slow operations in three years."

"The period of readjustment will be long. It will take at least ten years."

"We must expect a slow return to a basis on which business can be done at a profit in about three years."

Then the economist continued: "These pessimistic forecasts were made on the 4th of November. But it was the 4th of November of the year 1921. At that time business was actually improving, although the experts did not know it. Within four months the gain was so marked that everybody could see it. Within sixteen months business was so far above normal that experts became frightened again. Today, the major economic factors are more favorable to a rapid recovery of business than they were in 1921. It is my sober belief that just as the Depressionists of 1921 were routed, so the Depressionists of 1931 are in for a rude awakening." —From a Rotary Letter.

THE VALUE OF MISSION WORK IN INDIA

Recently Lord Irwin, former Viceroy of India, addressed a gathering in London and paid a striking tribute to the work of the missionary in that great land. He said among other things:

"While I was Viceroy I was able to see a good deal of their work, and appreciate not only its moral and social results, but the spirit in which it was conducted. Among outcasts and lepers, among criminal tribes, or aboriginal dwellers in jungle tracts, in crowded cities, and remote places in the hills, I have seen men and women slaving devotedly to translate the message of Christ into the practical language of India, and their most powerful sermons are their lives." —Contributed from the local World Service Group.

C. E. PRESIDENCY GOES TO EVERETT FASNACHT

Succeeds L. Gottmann—Installation Services Sunday Night

Sun., Mar. 20—Everett Fasnacht, sophomore, was elected president of the College Church Christian Endeavor Society this evening at the annual election of officers. He succeeds Libura Gottmann, who was elected last week to head the local Y. M. C. A. for the coming year. Fasnacht has been one of the most active members of the C. E. in his two years at McPherson, and his interest in Christian living and church work peculiarly fit him for his task as president of the society.

Glen Austin, a freshman, was elected as vice-president; Faltha Kosterowicz was elected secretary; and Edith Bechtelheimer was the contest for the treasurer's office. Both of the latter are also freshmen. The annual installation services, at which the present officers of the C. E. leave their duties and the new officers are inaugurated into their various tasks, will take place next Sunday evening, March 25, during the regular C. E. service.

MISS DELLA LEHMAN GIVES EASTER MESSAGE

Booster Banquet Ticket Sale Is Inaugurated Monday

Mon., Mar. 21—With an introduction concerning the "Significance and Meaning of Easter," Miss Della Lehman conducted the chapel period this morning. She said that when Jesus left the world he bequeathed what he had to various persons and groups, and that to his disciples he left, not silver nor gold, but his Peace, the better gift.

Miss Lehman read a number of poems having the theme of "Peace," and a short reading from Henry Van Dyke, "The Footpath to Peace."

As a conclusion to the chapel program Dean R. E. Mohler and Dr. J. J. Yoder outlined the progress made so far on plans for the McPherson College Booster Banquet on April 1, and urged the students to buy tickets at one hundred per cent for the event. Students may obtain tickets for one dollar each. Presidents of the four classes are directing sale of student tickets.

ORIENTAL OPPOSITES

(Written by Elizabeth and Emma Josephine Wagoner, freshman students recently returned from a mission post near Bulsar, India)

To the newcomer, India presents a maze of differences. He is surprised at the dress of the ordinary Indian villager, for usually in the pictures he has seen the people wear quite full dress. In reality many of the men are practically nude. In the cities or towns where there is a piped water system, it is no unusual sight to see a man dressed only in his loin cloth taking a public bath. No one feels embarrassed about it—it is much too common. Besides, brown skin fits in to the landscape beautifully, much better than white. Little children dressed only in their brown skins, running around on the compound, do not look bad or particularly unnatural.

So it is with many oriental opposites. What seems to many people too queer to be considered possible is really not so unintelligible in India.

The Indian gentleman wears his shirt on the outside of his "dhoter" (substitute for trousers). It looks funny at first, but it is very practical. By wearing nothing very tight around his waist, thus allowing the air to circulate freely, the Indian does not feel so hot, nor does he suffer the agonies of prickly heat as does his more civilized western brother.

If you give an Indian a piece of lined paper to write on, he will write below the lines, carefully hanging each letter to the line. Their letters thus greatly resemble a clothes line on Monday.

If he is writing a letter in Gujarati, or whatever his language is, he signs his name at the beginning of the letter. The reader is never given a chance to guess at the identity of the writer. Elegant and long-winded salutations are the custom, also. "To the very loving and honored Wagoner Sahab, Madam Sahab, Elizabeth, and Jo from Hritsingh Master, Hahaelhal, and their family." This lengthy salutation usually takes up a good two lines of his paper. Next he proceeds to the business or news of his letter, on the same line, never re-signing it at the end. The finished letter looks just like an essay.

The westerner tells the truth as a rule, often even if it hurts; an Indian hopes to gain much by flattery. He cannot be prevailed upon to tell you what he really thinks of you; he will flatter you until he thinks you have forgotten your question. He thinks if he flatters you enough you are bound to give him a job or money. If that is what he happens to be wanting.

An Indian Christian who had lost his job in one mission once asked Mr. Doty, of another mission, for a position as a teacher. Mr. Doty kindly but firmly replied that he had no vacancies. It so happened that he knew the man's reputation. The Indian pleaded, finally ending with, "But, Sahab, give me something so that I may be permitted to have the pleasure of basking in the sunshine of your presence!"

The occidental, on arriving at the home of his friend, rings the doorbell or knocks. When he is admitted, he immediately removes his hat. Not so the Indian. When he has arrived at the door of his friend's home, he coughs, loudly and until he is admitted. If he is told by a white man to wait, he does so, for he has all the time in the world and is never in a hurry, but, at frequent intervals, he coughs apologetically to let the white man know that he is still there. When he finally is invited in, he adroitly slips out of his shoes and into the house barefooted. He leaves his little round cap or big billowing turban (a head-dress) on, not removing it if he is not trying to ape the westerner, unless, providing he is a Christian, they have prayer together. In some places north of Gujarat, the men do not remove their turbans even in time of church. In our mission, however, they do.

Front yards in America are clean and neat, with flowers and grass growing in them. If there are any disfiguring possessions such as chicken coops or pens, they are in the back yard. Here again, in India, it is different. The Indian's chicken coops, and he usually has several, are in front of his house, scattered about promiscuously. His trash pile adorns the front yard. If the cattle are not grazing in the fields, they are tied loosely in the front yard, placidly chewing stubble. The back yard, in contrast, is scrupulously clean. It is apparently not of any particular use, but it is always clean.

The American farmer puts his cattle into the barn and leaves them there all night. The Indian, with much noise, succeeds in making his cattle go into their part of his house. He, and his family, and his animals all share the same house. Sometimes a low mud wall separates the family from the cattle; sometimes all sleep in the same room. In milking cows, the Indian sits on the left side, while we sit on the right. He declares that his cow will not permit herself to be milked on the right side.

Western kitchens are light and airy. The lady of the house stands or walks about as she prepares the food. The Indian woman squats on the floor in the corner of her dark, smoky kitchen. The room is often the only one in the house. The woman rolls out her round, flat breads, using the floor for the table she does not have and probably would not use if she did. She prepares her rice and curry or "dahlia" also on the floor. She cooks on the six-inch-high "choola", her circular stove. Her vessels sit one at a time on top of this "choola". When the food is cooked and the men of the house are ready, she puts the food, still in the cooking utensils, on the floor again, and they eat. By the time they are all together the food is cold, but that does not matter. They prefer cold to hot food.

When the meal is ended the woman wash the "tarlees" (brass dishes on which the Indians eat) in cold water—never hot. The curry is always quite greasy, so the "tarlees" always are too.

A westerner carries his purchases home or to his car in his arms. Usually, in India, the men carry as little as possible. They load their wives as they might a pack-animal. However, whichever carries the load, it is balanced on the head. Indian women have very straight backs—they have to, for they carry full water vessels on their heads without spilling a drop.

When we go to bed at night, if we are cold, we cover ourselves up to the necks. An Indian, if any part of him is to be covered, wraps up his head. If his head is warm, he thinks he is warm all over. He never opens any windows or doors. He sleeps without fresh air as much as is possible.

Many are the differences between the occidental and the oriental. Although the westerner does not approve of many of them, he finds that they, by their many surprises, add zest to life. A knowledge of some of these differences helps him to adjust himself more readily.

STUDENTS TO TAKE PART IN AN EASTER CANTATA

Next Sunday morning, March 27, the Brethren Church choir, directed by Blanch Harris, will cooperate with other members and attendants of the local church in presenting the Easter Cantata-Pageant, "Behold, He Liveth," by Herman von Berge. Most of the roles are being taken by students. The production, which will be directed by Miss Della Lehman, contains many beautiful chorus numbers, numerous solos, duets, and quartets, and a relatively small amount of dialogue. Special costumes and scenery will add to the effectiveness of the cantata-pageant.

The hour for the program on Easter Sunday morning has been set at 5:45 o'clock.

CANADIAN JOURNALIST SPEAKS HERE APRIL 4

Ben Spence to Speak on "Canadian System of Liquor Control"

"The Canadian System of Liquor Control" will be the subject of a lecture and forum in the college chapel on Monday, April 4, conducted by Ben Spence, noted Canadian journalist. Mr. Spence was recently a representative at Washington of one of the leading Canadian newspapers. Here he was a member of the Press Club and of the Senate Press gallery. Thus he has had an exceptional opportunity to observe American affairs. As a speaker he is said to be keen, witty, and resourceful, having the facts and the ability to present them forcefully. After his lecture he gives his audience an opportunity to ask questions and present their own views in an open forum. The chapel program will begin at 9:45 a. m., fifteen minutes earlier than the usual time, in order to allow sufficient time for the lecture and forum.

HECKMAN DRAWS LESSON FROM STORY OF SIMON

Friday, Mar. 18—Prof. J. Hugh Heckman gave an Easter talk in chapel this morning.

He told of Simon of Cyrene, a man from the country who, on the way to Calvary, was seized to carry the cross of Jesus. His major interest at the time was in observing the passover feast, but he was drafted to bear the cross. Later on, however, his hearing the cross probably became the boast of his life.

While we also have our major interests, we will be judged, not by these, but by how we have stood up under emergencies when we have been drafted for certain duties.

TO INCREASE GOAL FOR ESTES PARK CONFERENCE

Prospects Good for Largest M. C. Delegation in Years—12 Now Signed Up

From twenty to thirty—so it appears that the Estes Park goal for McPherson college is to be moved. Starting out with a tentative objective of sending twenty students from the local campus to the Estes Park Student Conference, to be held early in June, the "Y" cabinets have already definitely signed up at least half that number, with a large group of students not yet finally decided. Many are not yet certain that their various occupations for the summer vacation will allow them to attend the conference; others, mostly seniors, are waiting to make sure of their teaching positions for next fall before agreeing to be a part of the M. C. delegation.

Arrangements for Estes Park are being actively carried out under the leadership of Ward Williams, Esther Brown, and others of the local "Y" cabinets who have already attended the meeting and have first hand knowledge of the valuable inspiration and experience to be gained therefrom. The McPherson college delegation, which promises to be the largest in years, will make the trip to Association Camp in the Colorado Rockies by automobile. It is hoped that arrangements can be made whereby delegates from other nearby colleges can join the McPherson squadron during the journey.

Among the Estes Conference leaders will be found such able leaders as Kirby Page, Margaret Quayle, Ervino Ingalls, J. W. Terry, and W. H. Bernhardt.

FORMER GRADUATE GETS CREDIT FOR GOOD RECORD

For the second consecutive year the Buhler high school basketball team, which is coached by Floyd Bargrover, a graduate of McPherson college in the class of 1920, has taken the state Class B basketball championship. The Buhler team defeated Cullison in the final championship game Saturday night, by a score of 18 to 13.

Coch Bargrover is a former resident of McPherson. His record is especially good since this is the first coaching he has done since leaving college.

ETIQUETTE PROBLEMS DISCUSSED IN FORUM

Eunice Almen Leads Discussion Sponsored By Social Committee

Thurs., Mar. 17—Miss Eunice Almen of McPherson, a graduate of M. C. in the class of '24, kindly consented to lead an open forum to discuss campus problems of etiquette, held this morning in the chapel.

The Student Faculty Social Committee, composed of Miss Della Lehman, Dean R. E. Mohler, Miss Adelyn Taylor, and Kermit Hayes, was responsible for this meeting. During the past week various students put questions into a box provided for the purpose, and this morning they were either answered by Miss Almen or openly discussed by the group. An unusually large crowd attended the forum. Among the problems discussed were dining hall and classroom etiquette, matters of dress, including formal and informal attire, and other items of personal good taste and courtesy.
