On Thursday, April 12, a ballyhoo campaign will be held in the college chapel. In this meeting each candidate will be represented by a campaign manager. All campaign speeches will be limited to a definite length of time, depending upon the number of candidates.

MEASLY STUDENTS FIND MALADY AID FOR EXAMS

It seems as if Johnnie Schul did somebody a good turn when he started this measles epidemic. Right here at the 9th week, you know, when everybody is worrying about quizzes and exams, those who are fortunate enough to be among the elect can lie in bed all morning and afternoon and thoroughly enjoy themselves (?). Well at any rate, there's a chance to catch up on back sleep.

Of course, no one seems to want to get the measles very bad to get these benefits. Indeed, it's rather embarrassing to a young lady to before has just taken down, or vice learn that her escort of the night versa. Such was the case of Pee Wee Anderson, who had a date with Johnnie the night before he got his. She is still worrying because the ten days are not up yet.

One feature of the measles seems to be that the weaker sex is more susceptible than are the men. At any rate, there are about nine gals down, while only four boys have been afflicted so far. According to the victims, it isn't such a bad life. Three of the so-called sick women all stay in one room and have a jolly good time together. And, according to rumor, Brown sneaked over to the girls' dorm Sunday night to hobnob with Keedy thru her window, when both of them were supposed to be in bed.

So folks, if you want to enjoy an enforced vacation, with room and board furnished free just trot around like a good Samaritan visiting the sick, and I've a hunch that you won't have to wait long.

WORLD SERVICE MEETS

The World Service group Tuesday evening held a short meeting consisting of talks by members of the group. Van Hunt commented on his favorite Psalm, Irene Mason told of her favorite song, Viola Rothrock spoke of her favorite poem, and Paul Heckman presented his favorite Biblical character.

This organization will have two delegation teams in the field over Easter vacation.

APPRECIATION OF EASTER-THEME OF Y. M. PROGRAM

In accordance with the Easter season, the Y. M. C. A. devoted its program at the last meeting to the discussion of the significance of Easter from several viewpoints.

The significance of Easter was discussed by Carol Koons, to the Jew; Ralph Shorley, to the Church; and John Goering, to the common man. Arthur Goughnour discussed the students' attitude toward Easter while Leonard Lowe told what the season meant to him personally. The meeting was opened and closed with music played by Glen Turner.

PUBLIC LIBRARY GIVES MAGAZINES TO COLLEGE

Nearly 100 bound volumes are included in the list of magazines given to the College by the McPherson Public Library last week.

Review of Reviews and the Atlantic head the list with 14 volumes each. Harper's is next with twelve. Current Literature and World's Work are third, each having 10 volumes. Other bound magazines in the group are Scribner's, Current Opinion, Popular Mechanics, Living Age, National Geographic Magazine, Craftsman, Hearst's International, Cosmopolitan, and the Independent magazine.

Many magazines that are not bound were also given to the library at the same time. There are a number of copies each of the Annals, Bookman, Century, Dial, Educational Review, Fortnightly Review, Forum, Independent, Nation, Outlook, Review of Reviews, Scientific Monthly, Scientific American, and Survey.

These magazines are all indexed in the Reader's Guide, and contain a great deal of reference material. They are however, ten years old or older. The magazines were given to the College because of the lack of room in the Public Library, and because in the College library they would still be available to the citizens of McPherson.

FIFTY ALUMNI MEET AT LONG BEACH, CAL.

M. C. Graduates Give Toast to College; George Boone Chosen President

About fifty attended the annual dinner of McPherson College Alumni in Southern California which was held this year on Friday, March 23, at the Long Beach Church of the Brethren. The dining room was beautifully decorated with spring flowers, and the tables carried out the Easter color scheme. Reverend Heisley, pastor of the Long Beach church gave a brief speech of welcome. Mr. Levi Stump, president of the local alumni organization then introduced Mr. Floyd Mishler as toastmaster. A toast was proposed to "McPherson College—our Alma Mater" and all joined in singing "O Sacred Truth." After the dinner, Mrs. John Deeter read "The Coming of the Light." Mr. Mishler then introduced Mrs. Jacob Booz, who gave the address of the evening. She based her speech on the experience of "Twenty Years in a Parsonage." Mrs. Booz brought to the group, the thought that the years after college, when "life centered," have greater possibilities for the enrichment of life than the short years of college.

In the business session which followed the program, the secretary, Miss Ruth Mohler, read letters of good wishes from President Schwalm, Dr. Harnly and Miss Edith McGaffey. Those attending the McPherson College banquet for the first time were then introduced. An election of officers for the following year resulted in the choice of Mr. George Boone, president; Gladys Muir, secretary; and Mr. Sanger Crampacker, treasurer. Plans are being made to hold next year's meeting in Pasadena, Calif.

The contest will probably begin at 7:30. Each oration is limited to fifteen minutes and will be judged by five persons. The winner is determined by a ranking of the judges.

This winner will represent McPherson College in the state contest which will be held at Winfield, April 10. Probably eight Kansas schools will enter this contest where prizes are $50, $30 and $20 for first, second and third places respectively. Local prizes are $7.50, $5.00 and $2.50.

Ward Williams was the local competitor last year.

JOYCE VETTER THIRD IN MID-WEST MUSIC MEET

Miss Joyce Vetter, Fine Arts student, this week placed third in piano in the Mid-West Music Festival at Bethany College, Lindsborg. This contest is held in conjunction with the annual Messiah Festival.

Miss Vetter is a student of Miss Jessie Brown, dean of music at McPherson College. She received a $25 tuition scholarship to Bethany. The Mid-West contest brings together some of the outstanding musical talent in the middle west.

A Correction

Last week The SPECTATOR carried an announcement to the effect that Dean R. E. Mohler had been elected treasurer of the Kansas State Teacher's Association. Instead he is treasurer of the Kansas State School Board Association. We are glad to make this correction.

THEATRICAL PRODUCTION PROGRESSING RAPIDLY

Judging from all reports, "The Enchanted April," the Thespian Club play to be presented Friday, April 13, is taking on the marks of a finished production. Coach Ada Brunk may be seen at seven o'clock almost any evening ushering the cast from the chapel to Miss Lehman's room, or vice versa. If you have heard someone mention Lady Caroline or Lotty, or perhaps even Mellersh or Mrs. Fisher, you are not to be alarmed. They are not new students, but rather members of the Thespian cast.

Now that it is out that "Tuffy" Wine will appear on the evening of the Thirteenth with a monocle and that a couple of the players are concentrating upon their Spanish speeches, we feel that perhaps this play is going to amount to something! The new cyclorama will make its initial appearance with the presentation of "The Enchanted April!"

I. R. C. DISCUSSES TOPIC OF CONFERENCE IN MEETING

The International Relations Club met Tuesday afternoon to review the discussion units to be used at the International Clubs conference at Grinnell, Iowa, April 6 and 7.

Fred Hale reviewed the relations between the United States and Latin America, and Everett Fasnacht told of the crisis in International Organization. Means of transportation to the Grinnell conference were discussed. Several students plan to attend. The conference promises to be well worth while, for the speakers include such noted persons as Sherwood Edney and Edward A. Steiner.

Those students entering the contest are Paul Booz, Erwin Bentz, Francis Christian, Guy Hayes, Glen McGonigle, Elmer Staats, and Kenneth Weaver. The next issue of the SPECTATOR, which will be issued April 12, will print the winning oration.

The contest will probably begin at 7:30. Each oration is limited to fifteen minutes and will be judged by five persons. The winner is determined by a ranking of the judges.

This winner will represent McPherson College in the state contest which will be held at Winfield, April 10. Probably eight Kansas schools will enter this contest where prizes are $50, $30 and $20 for first, second and third places respectively. Local prizes are $7.50, $5.00 and $2.50.

BETHANY COLLEGE HOST TO M. C. LANGUAGE GROUP

German and advanced French students of McPherson College went to Lindsborg last Wednesday afternoon where they were entertained by the Modern Language department of Bethany College.

Prof. Emory Lindquist met the group and took them to the art department. After showing them the work displayed there, Birger Sandzen took the M. C. students to his private studio. Among his pictures was a portrait of Matilde Shay, former M. C. student.

While Mr. Sandzen was showing his work to the Wesleyan language students, who were also guests for the afternoon, the McPherson group went back to the main building.

Not long afterward, Dr. Hoff appeared and began to prepare the stage in the chapel for the program. "Little Red Riding Hood" was presented in both French and German. The plays, however, were not identical. For one thing, the wolf in the German version was more jovial than the French wolf. (Perhaps he was not as hungry as she was.) Besides the plays, there were also German and French vocal selections.

Dr. Hoff and Miss Lehman furnished a little entertainment aside from the regular program. (Either should be able to give further information.) After refreshments served in the cafeteria to all the guests, Miss Lehman and several others went to see the women's dormitory. While there, they were shown one of the suites by the matron, Mrs. Olson.

A new plant for the elimination of the abuses of Hell Week has been proposed by a student-faculty committee of Rutgers University. It will only last for two and one-half days henceforth.

GOOD WILL BANQUET HELD FRIDAY EVENING

About Six Hundred Attend the Affair in Community Building

LINDLEY AND KELLEY SPEAK

Amount Set for Goal is Over-Subscribed; Dr. Schwalm Gives Appreciation

As a fitting climax to the recent successful financial campaign for McPherson College, sponsored jointly by the College and the McPherson Chamber of Commerce, the Good Will Banquet was held in Convention Hall last Friday evening. The banquet was served to about 600 friends and supporters of the College.

Splendid support for the College was gained through the recent campaign by the untiring efforts of the school and business men. $10,650 had been contributed at the time of the banquet. The goal had been set for $10,000.

Following the invocation by Rev. Leon Sweetland, Simon Strouse, head of the Chamber of Commerce, stressed the value of the College to the city as shown by the response to the campaign, in thanking those who had contributed.

Dr. V. F. Schwalm, McPherson College President, enumerated the amounts of the larger gifts, and expressed a promise that McPherson College should remain an institution dedicated to the installation in youth of the highest in Christian ideals and principles. He also gave recognition to the prominent people present.

Greetings from the Kansas Council of Church Colleges were brought to the assembled group by Dr. J. H. Kelley, of the College of Emporia, who stressed the place of the small college in the general field of higher education. Dr. Kelley was the first main speaker of the evening.

Closing the banquet in the second principal address, Chancellor E. H. Lindley of Kansas University emphasized the marvelous advancement made in the field of higher education during the last thirty years, and finished by commanding McPherson, city and College, on its splendid leaders.

The attendance thus far has been very good. The meetings will be held every night the rest of the week, with the possible exception of Saturday night. Special music is furnished at each service.

Appear At Arts Club

At a meeting of the Priscilla Arts Club at the home of Mrs. Clare Miller last evening, dramatic students appeared on the program. Maxine DeMott gave "At the Sign of the Cleft Heart," and Bernice Dappen read "Finger of God."

Y. W. Has Easter Theme

Easter was the theme of the Y. W. C. A. program on Tuesday morning. Lois Edwards had charge of the devotionals, and Nedra Root program chairman, announced the following program: Vocal solo, "Open Wide the Gates of the Temple," Margretta Okerlund. Miss Lehman read a short Easter play by Stark Young, entitled "The Twilight Saint."

FACULTY ADVISERS Prof. M. A. Hess and Miss Alice GIII

Pledged to full cooperation in constructive campus projects.

An Appreciation

Appreciation and thanks to the friends of McPherson College have been frequent during the last few weeks. Little has been said of the students' appreciation to the friends of M. C. for their cooperation.

Students in college come to feel that they are a definite part of the institution and feel a vital interest for its welfare.

We are glad for your cooperation that our college may provide us with better opportunities and for the new encouragement that we hold for the future.

The Hopes of An Easter Season

The Easter vacation which begins this afternoon marks the dividing point of the second semester. This means that there are just nine weeks of school left. For the seniors, they have just nine weeks left of their college life. Being the only vacation of any importance this semester, it comes, perhaps, at the most appropriate time.

Easter also is supposed to be "Old Man Winter's" last chance to get in his dirty work. Before this time little can be expected in the stability and warmth of the weather. After Easter, spring with all its sweetness and likeable qualities, should be here to stay.

One thing is troubling the minds of a number of students, however, as this Easter season approaches and that is a fear of the measles. The measles, no doubt, to most anyone at this particular time would shatter the realization of many anticipations.

A New Deal In Patriotism

Are we due for another German propaganda scare? While it is true that the insidious Nazis are known to be organizing the Silver Shirts in this country and publishing wild articles in subsidized publications about the necessity of decapitating all the Semites, certain ultra-patriotic individuals are working themselves into a needless state of nervous fury every time they see a Hitler mustache.

That this is literally true is illustrated by a story which comes to us from Louisiana, where every man is supposed to be a king... or a Kingfish. Professor B. T. Clark of Louisiana State University recently appeared before a Shreveport women's club and delivered what was described as a very enlightening address on the Nazi regime in Germany.

Because he was said to have concluded that "Nazism, on the whole, has been productive of more good than evil, although it has suppressed freedom of speech, and destroyed individual liberty and democracy," he was criticised by one of the super-patriots. And when the super-patriot discovered that Professor Clark wears a Hitler mustache, he emitted a roar and promptly wrote a letter of protest to the governor.

"That Clark is a Nazi propagandist," said he.

As a matter of fact Professor Clark has declared that he disapproves thoroughly of the Nazi discrimination against the Jews, and his talk before the club was little more than a historical sketch, but if some of our 100 per cent Americans who wave the flag with one hand and gry the NRA with the other want to encourage Nazism, they should simply follow the lead of the protesting gentlemen from Louisiana. It's the best advertising in the world.

This country certainly needs patriotism more than ever before, but we also need a "New Deal" in patriotism—a patriotism of cooperation instead of money-grabbing selfishness that sacrifices nothing more than a bit of flag-waving or a protest to the governor for the sake of the nation.

In Defense of Science

To a few misguided people there has recently come the misconception that science has forged so far ahead of mankind that it is time to slow up on scientific research. Some people are arguing that our economic troubles today are the direct result of over-expanded industry, boosted to its present plane by scientific discovery and progress. A few years ago an English bishop made the puerile statement that it would be advisable to place a ten-year moratorium on scientific investigation.

When one stops a moment and considers the great debt of mankind to science, one can readily see how shallow the thinking of this Bishop really was. He was mistaken first of all in the assumption that science increases mechanization and decreases employment. It is true that, temporarily, scientific advancement may throw a few men out of work. But the increase in the number of industries, the increase in demand for goods as a result of improved industries, far more than make up for the immediate unemployment. For instance, the advent of the automobile threw the wagon makers, livery stable managers, blacksmiths, etc., out of work; but figures, when corrected for increase in population show a 250 per cent increase in jobs as a direct result of the new automobile industry. Similar increases in employment have come from the new industries of electric lighting and power, the airplane, the radio, the electric refrigerator, the motion picture, and a host of others. The total number of persons employed through just eight of Edison's inventions alone total many millions.

Not only is the Britisher mistaken in his major premise, but he is forgetting the fact that science is due virtually the entire progress of the world in the last century. Throughout history, the rise and fall of civilizations has accompanied the waxing and waning of scientific progress. During the last 100 years, no marked progress has been made in the fields of government, in social welfare. The great advances have been in the fields of chemistry, physics and medicine, in the natural sciences if you please.

What is needed is progress in other fields rather than a decrease in scientific endeavor. While economics and government today allow war to continue just as it did thousands of years ago, and kill millions of men in one war, science, in the hands of such immortals as Pasteur and Koch, has made possible the saving of the lives of many more millions. It is science today that is fighting crime, through the fields of ballistics, finger-printing, and the microscopic methods of scientific sleuthing, not religion, not government, not economics. It is science which is liberating womanhood from her heritage of drudgery and hard work. It is science which is bringing man nearer to heaven on earth, by its discovery of the radio, the telephone, the automobile, the electric light, and the moving picture.

In fact, it is to science that we owe almost the whole debt for the enlightenment and progress of the 20th century. May a true American never allow himself to speak disparagingly of this great field of endeavor, nor to suggest a decrease in the research which makes possible his comfort and well-being.

PLAN TO HEAR SHERWOOD EDDY.

Campus Chaff

My my! Will wonders never cease? Tuesday evening even our misanthropic editor ventured into Arnold Hall. But maybe it was just to see some erring or measly reporter.

The measles seem to be the big news of the week. Everyone has been imagining headaches and sore throats so that no one can tell just who does have them.

Tuesday morning Albert Dean drove to school on the highway. When he wanted to turn the corner, he saw two cars behind him, and thinking that they might be planning to go around him, he cautiously slowed down in order to let them by before turning across the road. Both cars went around and turned the corner while he waited. He had merely let two students keep him from getting to class.

And that reminds us—did this chen student's marriage ever make the headlines of our school paper? He espoused one of our own alums, Adelyn Taylor. This proverbial bride showed some of her first visitors dishes and pans full of cooked rice. "Of course," she bewailed, "I knew that rice swelled, but it looked like such a little bit rattling around in the pan that I put in more. And Al doesn't even like rice pudding!"

We usually consider it difficult to get to an 8:00 o'clock class but when we see players busy on the tennis court when we come to class, we decide we haven't the proper motivation—or sump'n'.

We hear that when the language classes went to Lindsborg, Miss Lehman was told to sit down—emphatically. Dr. Hoff was probably asking her to be seated, but his, "Miss Lehman, please sit down" sounded more like a command.

For almost the third time Miss Lehman has made arrangements to go against one of the principal laws of science. She had tried to be two places at once. She promised to give a program—the same afternoon she arranged to accompany the language classes to Lindsborg. Really, Miss Lehman, you aren't that large.

Our President Speaking - -

How can one keep up interest in studies to the end of the school year? The winter has been long, work monotonous and familiar tasks and surroundings grow wearisome. One fourth of the school year is yet ahead of us and all of us have much to do. Can we manage to keep up our zest and spirit of enthusiasm to end?

It may help if we explore the possibilities of silence close to nature occasionally. An occasional walk alongs out in the great outdoors, letting voices speak to us out of the silences of nature. It will help us to get a perspective on life and feel

Exchange Notes

St. Norbert College students recently tried to run for city offices in West de Pere, Wisconsin, as Independent Democrats. The campaign started as a bulletin board joke, but grew into a serious attempt to file nomination papers for a complete ticket of fourteen candidates. The students had secured the support of several faculty members and townspeople before the campaign was ended by the city council's passing of an ordinance prohibiting students to run for elective positions.

The Baker University team probably was the "youngest" team at the Kansas City tournament this year. Three of the members of the team are only seventeen years old.

Dr. F. C. Allen, coach of basketball at the University of Kansas, advocates raising the height of the goals on basketball courts to twelve feet for college play, eleven feet for high school, and leaving them where they are—at ten feet—for junior high school players.

McGill University (Canada) students have turned out in such numbers for ping-pong matches that the school has built a special bleacher section to accomodate all spectators.

When clean-up day was recently observed at Bethel College, all the students received a free meal ticket to a cafeteria lunch at noon, and at 2:30 were served doughnuts and apples. At that rate they will want clean-up day often.

The New College Life, C. of E. newspaper has a gossip column called the Kollege Kibitzer. The one or more students who guess who the Kibitzer is, will have their picture in the last issue of the paper this year.

Dr. O. P. Dellinger of K. S. T. C., Pittsburgh, says that mid-western colleges are more democratic than those of the east. Most eastern colleges are not co-educational and dates are allowed only over the week end.

Reogle Speaks

Dean F. A. Reogle spoke to the chapel Monday on "Why Religion?" Dean Reogle stated that since this is Passion Week we should all give a greater amount of attention to religion.

our relation to the universe in which we live. Then, too, I have found it particularly helpful to get a great book, an inspirational book that lifts us out of ourselves and spurs us on to new endeavor. A friend gave me such a book the other day, entitled "He Whom a Dream Hath Possessed." It was full of rich, suggestive nuggets of inspirational truth. Don't close the year on a low level. Keep a clear vision of your ideal and moral enthusiasm to attain it.

Born 1892, Dr. Nathan attended the Universities of Wuerzburg, Freiburg, and Munich. For three and a half years he was connected with various banks in London and Brussels. In 1920 he became a member of the official Reich Statistical Bureau in Berlin, and in 1923 was appointed Regierungsrat. Being director of the division for research on international economic problems and also a member of the official Institut fur Konjunkturkundung, has an exceptional knowledge of world trade and commercial policy. During his years of service with the Statistical Bureau, Dr. Nathan was twice loaned by that organization to the Ministry of Finance for special work. In March 1920 he was transferred to the Ministry of Economics of the German Reich as economic adviser and was promoted to the rank of Oberregierungsrat. He was editor of "Die Wirtschaft des Auslandes 1920-1927" and "Die Wirtschaft des Auslandes 1928" and author of numerous articles and reviews in economic periodicals.

Coming to this country on leave of absence from his government in 1930 Dr. Nathan was the guest of the Institute of Economics in Washington and later lectured at New York University. While here he was appointed as economic adviser to the President's Emergency Committee for Employment.

On March 6, 1933, Dr. Nathan voluntarily left the German government service in consequence of political developments in that country. He is now a visiting lecturer and member of the faculty of Princeton University.

THE Spectator

In the language of the Jitterer, again I speculate.

Folks, you can't imagine how trying it is to run a column like this and maintain any stability of mind or safety of body. Why, only last week my life was threatened, to say nothing of suits I received for breach of promise, libel, exaggeration, misrepresentation, and what have you. It seems as though a person can't run a decent scandal sheet any more. How was I to know that Romeo would take offense at a little dig about balconies and moonlight nights?

So, despite the fact that I still have the death threat hanging over my head, I feel it my duty to bring you the news, all the news, and anything that even looks like news, before it happens if possible. Thus, with my life hanging in the balance, I am constrained to tell you that according to latest observation Romeo and Juliet still seem to be doing quite nicely. (However, I've been told that Lackie has been seen getting chummy with a certain little library assistant at times. This is, of course, only heresy.)

And now to get down to the business of campus dirt—it seems as though measles are the topic of the week, what with every other person having them. Not a bad idea, at that, waiting till the time of nine week's tests to get them.

Last Sunday night, one young measles-stricken Romeo who was supposed to be reclining in Farnsworth stock journeyed under cover of the night and unbeknownst to Mother Emmett to visit his fair lady, likewise afflicted, in good old Arnold. Well, it's been said that misery loves company.

About the only way you can tell that Tuffy has the measles is that he has a permanent blush smeared over his physiognomy.

Since the last edition of Ye Goode Olde Spectatore, several romances have blossomed forth with promising vigor. It's a trifling early in the season to mention names publicly, but a self addressed and stamped envelope, sent in care of this station, will bring you all the particulars. Or, if you're industrious enough you can drop around to any Sunday night social and see for yourself.

Dame rumor hath it that Pearson always comes in late to meals in order to sit at the old maid's table. Very strange, very strange.

The joke of the week is on Leeland Esberg, our beloved chem assistant. While running an experiment on some innocent mice a few days ago, he unconsciously inhaled a large quantity of nitrous oxide commonly known as "Laughing gas." After finishing his work at the lab, he went home and sat down to do some rather dry reading, when suddenly he was seized with a laughing spell which lasted a couple of hours. Here, folks, is a sure fire remedy for homesickness or the blues.

It's sure funny how Goughnour has to rob the cradle to get a date.

If anyone feels an urge to say amen in chapel, let him come to the front of the room and join our beloved dean in his devotions.

A certain group of college fellows have suddenly become interested in bowling as a pleasant diversion from studies. McCoy says that he will take on anybody, and Hiebert is quite willing to play, altho he isn't quite as good at bowling as he is at pool.

One young swain on our campus thinks so much of his lady friend that he walks four miles every Sunday, regardless of the weather, in order to enjoy her company. Such devotion is really quite touching. Is there anybody wealthy enough and impressed enough to buy a medal for the above mentioned person?

It was discovered during the sale of tickets for the Booster Banquet that in giving till it hurts, some people are extremely sensitive to pain.

Robert Brooks would like to know if anyone has a good second hand rocking chair which he will sell cheap. Bob, you should be more careful how you sit down.

The moral of something or other is that people who live in grass houses shouldn't throw matches.

Extra! Extra! College Prexy Thumbs Way Home From Newton! Yowsh—believe it or not—Dr. Schwalm found himself stranded in Newton the other day and decided that he didn't want to wait there. So he started thumbing his way home, and as luck would have it he was picked up just outside the city. Well, there's a time for everything.

And so—we come to the end of another imperfect column, and pray to the fates that we may be privileged to live another week without feeling the blade of the assassin or without being taken for a ride. In the words of Ben Bernie—Au Revoir, toodle doo, a bit of a sweet tweet, and unpleasant dreams, or words to that effect.

ALL OPPONENT TEAMS CHOSEN BY SPECTATOR

Barb, Barker, Thatch, Schrey and Mortimer on First Squad of Conference

ALL OPPONENT
CONFERENCE TEAM
First Team

Forwards: Barker, Ottawa; Barb, College of Emporia.

Center: Thatch, College of Emporia.

Guards: Schrey, Baker and Mortimer, Kansas Wesleyan.

Second Team

Forwards: Dillon, Ottawa; Suran, Kansas Wesleyan.

Center: Heine, Baker.

Guards: Anderson, Bethany, Captain; Lee, College of Emporia.

With the close of the basketball season, The SPECTATOR announces an all opponent team taken from the members of the Kansas Conference.

Thatch and Barker get their positions without any argument because they were outstanding against every team they played. One of these two men should have the captaincy, and Thatch gets it because he is a senior. Barb gets a forward post along with Barker because of his scoring, general floor play and speed which caused many a guard considerable worry.

Schrey of Baker led his team in almost every game and was the spearhead of their attack. He gets one guard position, although he did not compete in every game. The other guard position brought out a close race between Mortimer of Wesleyan and Anderson of Bethany. After some deliberation and recounting of votes, Mortimer was given the first team position and Anderson was made captain of the second team. Both of these men are good scorers and were leaders on their respective teams.

The second all opponent team is composed of good talent but their play was hardly as consistent as the ones that rated on the first. In all cases the selections were made on the entire season's play and newspaper reports had considerable to do with the ratings of every player.

ALL OPPONENT
NON-CONFERENCE TEAM
First Team

Forwards: Eastman, Pittsburgh, and Kenison, Bethel, captain.

Center: Baker, Pittsburg.

Guards: Dickey, Coffeyville and Edwards, Pittsburg.

Second Team

Forwards: McClure, Pittsburg, and Cates, Friends.

Center: Brown, Warrensburg.

Guards: Hitt, Coffeyville and Kriebel, Bethel.

These two teams were picked to a great extent on their season's record and also on their individual showing against the Bulldogs. Kenison was Bethel's star during the entire season and led the scoring consistently. Eastman did not show exceptional power against McPherson but played a good game the entire season.

Baker of Pittsburg was the outstanding player for the Gorillas the night they played McPherson. Dickey of Coffeyville was the leading man for his team during the season and played a good game against the Bulldogs. Edwards, another Pittsburg man has been an outstanding man in the Central Conference the last few years, and easily deserves the other guard position.

Tice and Binford Only Lettermen in School This Year

The all school tennis tournament has started with 32 men of the College contesting. All the men entered have had some tennis experience but only a few have had a great deal of previous experience. Raymond Tice and Harold Binford, the only College lettermen in school were placed in opposite brackets. It looks as though a few new men will make a good showing on the Bulldog tennis team this spring.

About half of the first round has been completed and the remaining matches of the first round will be

SPORT LIGHTS

By Paul A. Luckie

Coach Melvin J. Binford is quickly shaping his track team into form for the several inter-class and interschool meets on the spring program.

It would seem from all early indications that the Bulldog track team would be somewhat weakened by the loss of varsity men and lack of available men for a number of the main events.

However, it is hoped that some new and undiscovered material may be found in the school which will greatly strengthen the team.

As the days grow warmer, the tennis courts are fast becoming the most popular recreational center of the school!

Shortly after the lunch hour each day the courts are filled to overflowing with those who would seek the favor of Lady Luck by way of the "racquet game!"

As in track, a goodly percentage of the varsity tennis team was lost through graduation. However, a number of strong men have enrolled in school this year who should add strength to Coach Binford's court team.

Lilburn Gottman and Delbert Kelly, who made up the first string varsity tennis team, both were graduated in the spring term.

Charles Austin, who was paired with Raymond Tice as a second string man, also finished his schooling at M. C. last spring.

This leaves Raymond Tice alone on the regular varsity from whom Coach Binford will make his selections. Tice, however, is a strong tennis man!

With proper training and teamwork, a strong team should again be evident at M. C.

played before vacation starts. The losers in the first round games will compete in a consolation tournament. The outcome of the main division of the tournament will have considerable to do with Coach Melvin J. Binford's selection for the varsity tennis team.

The following men are entered in the all-school tennis tournament: Paul Booz, David Duncanson, Lester Pote, Robert Boor, Paul Prather, Robert Brooks, Robert Bowman, Paul Luckie, Emerson Chisholm, Chester Johnston, Brice Peck, Russel Carpenter, Archie Lindholm, Byron Eshelman, Harold Binford, Robert Farris, Everett Fasnacht, Raymond Tice, Walter Wedde, Max Oliver, Donald Richards, Wilbur Yoder, Charles Strong, Harold Johnston, Leonard Wiggins, Ralph Sweetland, Cleo Minear, Guy Hayes, Sam Stoner, James Reed, Orval Eddy, and Ernest Sweetland.

A course in mental hygiene and social work has been established at the University of Buffalo.

KAN. CONFERENCE MEET WILL BE HELD MAY 12
C. of E. Is New Competitor in Track for This Year

Although no one school appears to be especially strong in every event this year it seems that the Kansas Conference track and field meet will be faster than it has been in the past few years.

This year the Conference track and field meet will be held at Ottawa on May 12. College of Emporia, new member of the Conference, plus the five old members will compete for the championship. Baker, champion of the Conference for the past four or five years will probably not be as potent as in former years. The Wildcats have only three lettermen from last year's team, but you can figure on Baker having a good team by the time the state meet comes along.

Right now, it looks as though College of Emporia and Ottawa will be the two strongest teams in the conference. The Emporians have a wealth of material and included in this bunch they have a few who were stars in the Central Conference last year. Ottawa, besides having many lettermen, has some new men with exceptionally good high school records. Perhaps Ottawa does not have the outstanding individuals that Emporia has, but they will have a well balanced team.

Little is known as to the relative strength of the track teams of Bethany and Kansas Wesleyan. The Coyotes lost some good men last year but will probably be strong again in Lexington (CNS)—All students wishing to participate in any extracurricular activity at Washington and Lee must obtain permits from the dean's office, according to a ruling announced this week.

"My ideal man must be sincere and possess common sense and understanding," a Little Rock Junior College coed affirmed when approached by an inquiring reporter.

the running events. Bethany has some new men that they report as being good track material plus a star distance runner from last year that is probably back in school again.

With all this competition the Bulldogs will be handicapped since several stars graduated last year. If some of the men develop they will give a good account of themselves in the coming meets. The Binford coached men are showing good possibilities.

Some records are bound to fall at Ottawa if the new conference men come up to the form they showed last year.
