A Challenging Greeting for Christmas

Triteness is the bugaboo of many basically fine spiritual values. Obviously those values seldom are openly called "common" but actions of those who support the customary values too often shout the feeling whether admittedly or not. And so it is with our Christmas season and spirit.

Most certainly everyone will have an interesting vacation, even though their concept of the interesting be limited to and by cranberry sauce and dressing-stuffed fowls. Others will find their interest supplemented by a somewhat higher conception of values. They will revel in the return to old familiar scenes. They will find a hearty welcome by parents and friends. Their activities will become a succession of rejoicings with old cronies, past and present girl friends, and other local satellites.

But few are those who will find, in addition, something of the peace and restfulness of spirit. Few will take a long tramp for the good of either body or soul. Few will welcome the potentials of Christmas and grasp the inspired realization that all of the season's activity is linked to the star of Bethlehem. The values radiating from that star could shed a gleam on every individual were they to rest momentarily from a vacation swirling with activity.

You few who do reach out beyond the commonplace may again congratulate yourselves on your superior nature, thank God for it, and cast a tear for the earth bound majority.

This challenging greeting is supplemented by our wish that each may find a joyous Christmas and a New Year full of happiness.

A Great Institution

There is much to be said for our scheme of Christmas, as it has been developed because it multiplies and intensifies the activities of a community during the weeks before the event.

The happy community is always the busy community and that is just as true in times of uncertainty like these as in times when everything is functioning normally. Pre-Christmas activity this year is, indeed, more beneficent than usual because it concentrates the community mind upon something specific to do at a time when the specifics are all too few. That specific thing to do does not, fortunately concern, self. Most folks have been worrying about themselves too much. The all-pervasive spirit of Christmas concerns others. In their shopping excursions, their charitable enterprises, their planning of family reunions either here or elsewhere—in their general preparatory mulling about with a focal point on Christmas Day people have more selfless minds and therefore happier minds than in many a month.

It is a great institution—Christmases—as America has evolved it. The proof of it is in the better spirit that always rules in this land at this season.—Wichita Eagle.

Mexico Turns New Leaf

Mexico has awakened from his age-old dormancy to follow a new and unchartered course with youth at the helm. The president of the Republic is 39 years old, and he brings to office a new set of ideas and a six-year plan that, he hopes, will transform a nation.

An interview that President Cardenas held with an American quizzer is repeated in the New York Times Magazine, December 16, 1934. The first four questions asked of the young president deal directly with the possible dangers to foreign capital investments, and the questions the interviewer regards as uppermost in the minds of his American readers. Who has expected to see such an open admission as this? This newshawk, trained to perceive the interests of his readers, quite justifiably considers the first interests of the American people to be in the direction of their capital investments. If these are safe, then they are quite willing for Mexico to entertain herself with harmless revolutions and revolts. Why can't the foreign investors keep their miserly hands off of Mexico? When there is a tiny spark of life and hope somewhere in the world, why must the gold plated capitalists rush with their interest in gilt-edged securities to extinguish this spark lest it grow and consume them? The light of life always destroys the filth and contamination of darkness. The warmth of life always melts the artificial wax models of happiness that human beings worship. The fears of the capitalist-investors are well founded.

But can they extinguish it? Never! The spark of true, unadulterated, abundant life has lived through uncounted eras of persecution, darkness, misrepresentations and heedlessness, and that continues to exist.

Yale Finds a Political Union

The Oxford Union, famous English student political club, found its first prototype in academic America a few days ago with the founding of the Yale Political Union. Every measure discussed in the new club will be carried on a strictly parliamentary plan.

Cynical Yale students, not heeding the beneficial influence of its model expressed the opinion that "those hundreds of Yale men who revel in scheming, in 'packing', in every crooked practice known to the country boss, will have paradise especially made for them."

One cannot deny the statement of the Yale paper that many students revel in all kinds of scheming. However permitting this statement to stand undiscounted the formation of this club indicates one thing—that college students are becoming vitally concerned over the administration of the public affairs of this country. If Yale students can provide real leadership by this means they will have filled a long standing need in American education.

Taking Things Seriously

There is existent in the world of today a type of individual who seems to take life as one great, gay, laughable affair. Part of them do so because they approach the condition of the giggling moron, and others only seem to be joyous creatures as a defense for their hidden feelings. There is a rational group however which has found inescapable the fact that there are some things in the world which call for a serious attitude. Nor do such attitudes find limits in the petty maladjustments of the individuals themselves. "There have been our philosophers who have felt that we humans are incurably selfish creatures, and that our life is short, nasty, and brutish."

An expansive knowledge of things serious can only cause us to reaffirm with H. A. Overstreet that "The best answer to these misanthropes is to be found in these voluntary associations that take upon themselves the responsibility for making the life of all of us more nearly what a decent human existence should be. To take part in the work of such associations is to join in stimulating a fellowship of interest and enthusiasm as can be found in a world too largely given over to the exclusive absorptions of self interest."

"We have to take sometimes seriously, if we are to gain for ourselves the right to take many things gallily."

SPECIAL CHAPEL PROGRAM

A special program was given at chapel Wednesday morning by the orchestra and Miss Lehman's German class. Loyal Miles sang and readings were given by Neva Root, Donald Evans, and Mary Miller. Menno Riehert sang a German song and the German class sang "Silent Night" in German.

Sam Writes Santa Claus

Last summer Betty Schwalm was visiting in Indiana at Sam Stoner's home. While there she discovered the following letter, perhaps Sam's earliest effort in expressing his desires in a written form. This is an actual and accurate reproduction of the earliest of Sam's letters:

Ladoga, Indiana.

Dear Santa:

I want a train what backs, automobile, drum, bear what shakes its head, flag, boy doll, ball, water tower, story book, traction engine and a lot of things.

Be sure to come and see Samuel Alexander Studebaker Stoner.

Good-by,

P. S. I want a little red chair too.

Spec-Yu-La-Shuns

This week Dame Rumor is acting as post office intermediary for all letters to Sandy Claus from college students. We hereby take the privilege of showing you some of the best of these epistles.

Dear Santa:

Please bring me a little bit of ambition so that I can study a little bit. I'm afraid that if you don't I shall flunk calculus, as well as several other courses.

Glenn Webb.

Dear Santa:

All I ask is that you do the small favor of paying for my Time magazine in government class. I never will get around to it myself, so please help me out, dear Santa.

Bob Booz.

Dear Santa:

Please send me a course of instructions on "How to Propose to a Girl on a Moment's Notice." Then if I am asked to demonstrate this fine art at a chemistry party in the future I can do so with polish and finesse and not have to stammer.

Dave Metzger.

Dear Santa:

Please send me a private country park where I can carry on my side-ing in peace.

Mike.

Dear Santa:

All I want is one registered letter from Argonia each week.

Ralph Sweetland.

Dear Santa:

Please bring me a new bumblebee. My old one has flown away.

Ernie Sweetland.

Dear Santa:

Please bring me some repairs for Betsy Ann. She's got pneumonia and ingrown toenails and I hate so to see her suffer.

Franklin Hiebert.

Dear Santa:

Please pad all the book racks in the chapel so the song books won't make so much noise.

Dr. Schwalm.

Dear Santa:

I hope you have a nice suite of furniture all picked out for us. We'll need it soon. Also a diamond if it's convenient.

Chet and Esther.

Dear Santa:

Please bring all my boy friends nice presents.

Glee Goughnour.

Dear Santa:

Please bring me a new Jack to use when I have to start Sarah on cold mornings.

Galen Ogden.

Dear Santa:

Please bring me a new score board, especially for use on debate trips.

Amos Miller.

Dear Santa:

I should like to have a baton to use in leading boys' glee club.

Lamar Bollinger.

Bob Booz says he wants some publicity. We don't know why he wants such, but he's sure gonna get it. It's lately been rumored that he got restless in journalism class while Miss Gill's back was turned, and climbed out of the window to the fire escape. Just as he got to the bottom of the stairs who should come sailing along but Dr. Schwalm, who wanted to know the reason for such activities. Which is why Bob went scampering back up the staircase to journalism class.

Last Sun. nite Sam and Alice decided they would like to hear some pipe organ music. Soooooo they go hopefully down to the Presbyterian church—expecting to hear a program of Xmas music. When they got there, they were much surprised to find that ushers were conducting everybody to their seats. So they go in and listen to the music, all the time wondering why it was so inappropriate for Xmas music.

Now for our climax—presently, to their chagrin, our friends discover that they have "crashed" an invitation wedding. Result—a hasty exit.

We are told that quite lately a young Freshman coed went down to the express office, thinking she was at the depot, to ask the fare to her home in Iowa. Said the expressman, "How many pounds?" About "100?" "No," replied the fair damsel, "Bettie make it 200. I might want to take some baggage."

What two famous young ladies set their alarms for 8:30 Monday morning, and then overslept till a quarter of twelve?

Valma—Did you know that the art department has traded names?

Bob—No! What is it called now?

While Glessner was working at the Little Kastie last week, he couldn't have any dates. Wonder if that's why he quit his job?

CROSSROAD PLAYMAKERS PRESENT

"BROKEN DISHES"

"Broken Dishes," a three act comedy directed by Mr. C. E. Oelrich, was presented Wednesday, Dec. 12, at the city auditorium by the Crossroad Playmakers. The play takes place on a winter evening in the Bumsted home in a small mid-western town. The story chiefly concerned a henpecked husband, Cyrus Bumsted, played by Charles White, his domineering wife, Jenny, played by Ruth Mills, and their daughter Elaine, played by Beth Leonard. In her overbearing manner Jenny had cowed her husband, kept her two older daughters from marrying, and was trying desperately to keep her third daughter, Elaine, from marrying "a common grocery boy."

During Jenny's absence with the two spinster daughters at the show one evening, Cyrus forgets to wash the dishes, gets drunk on hard cider, blandly smokes his cigar in the dining room in defiance of his wife's order, entertains a friend, and permits his daughter to marry the "common boy," who was played by Verle Ohmart. Meanwhile an old sweet heart of Jenny's, played by Arvin Gaedert, makes his appearance, and just at this moment the feminine part of the family returns from the show. Of course there is a terrible rumpus, and the upshot of it all is that Chester Armstrong, the old flame of whom Jenny has constantly been harping, turns out to be nothing but a common crook. As a result Cyrus recovers his overshadowed personality, the young married couple leave happily, and Jenny reverses the subservient role formerly held by Cyrus.

The two older daughters, Myra and Mabel, were played by Dorothy Webb and Virginia Lewis. Archie Lindholm, playing the part of a detective, and Harold Hartzel, playing the part of a deaf old person, clarify the situation respectively by proving the boyhood sweetheart to be a swindler and by marrying the young couple.

The highlight of the whole play was the friend, Sam Green, who stopped in to warm up and partake of a bit of cider with Cyrus. This role was carried by Arthur Williams. His witty and caustic observations on married life and the "parson" offered special bits of comedy throughout, however the entire play was exceptionally well presented. Properties were near perfection for the setting of a small town home surrounded by poverty, and the cast as a whole seemed well chosen for the parts given them.

Everybody is wondering what Bobbie "Cotton" Stratman has up his sleeve. Somebody ask him about "Please."

THE McPHERSON REPUBLICAN

NEXT LYCEUM FEATURES FORMER BROADWAY STAR

Progress of American Music
Will Be Theme of Third
Lyceum Number

"A Century of Progress in Music" will be presented Jan. 9 as the third number of the local lyceum.

A revue starring Lucille Elmore will present truly American music ranging from the time of the "Boston Tea Party" down to the present day.

The outstanding periods of song history of this country will be presented, including the songs Washington sang, those of the "Forty Niners" of the old South, and of the "Gay Nineties."

Miss Elmore is the musical comedy star of such well known Broadway shows as "Stepping Stones." She has appeared in New York with Fred Stone, and also with the White Sisters of motion picture fame. She is a "rest pocket" comedian, less than five feet tall.

This program promises to be one of the best to be offered in this year's lyceum circuit.

Students Visit
State Institution

The excursion of the Genetics Department, under the direction of Dean Mohler, proved to be interesting as well as educational. Members of the party spent the forenoon on the campus of Southwestern College and the afternoon at the state home for the feeble minded.

Among the impressions formed were those derived from such startling facts as the following:

Causes of feebleness and idiocy include heredity, syphilis, injury at birth, and alcohol.

Among the 1000 in the institution, there are only about 50 who have intelligence enough to learn. These are in school grades from one to five.

Some of the inmates have been there as long as has been the institution itself—some fifty odd years.

Mentality ranges from idiocy to normality.

About 75 to 80 per cent are physically deformed as well as mentally deficient.

A few cases are nationally known.

Some are from reputable homes.

Three hundred are spoon-fed.

As to the administration in these institutions—

The inmates are divided into small groups according to sex and approximate mental age with a matron or supervisor over each.

The main attempt is to keep the inmates occupied. They are given blocks, tops, and toys with which to play.

The average cost of a meal is 11 cents.

The daily cost of the institution is $500.

Individual cost is $260 per year.

M. C. ORGANIZATION GIVES PROGRAM AT BETHANY

Students from McPherson College presented a program before a joint meeting of the Bethany student organizations Thursday morning as a part of an exchange program which had been arranged previously. The Bethany organizations gave a program in McPherson several weeks ago.

Numbers on the program consisted of a reading by Neva Root entitled, "The Desert of Waiting," a talk by Elmer Staats on "How Radical Should College Students Be?" and three numbers by the College male octet. The octet is composed of Ernest Sweetland, Warren Need, John Moore, Loyale Miles, Chris Johansen, Oliver Andrews, Raymond Lichtry, and Herbert Ikenberry.

Dr. J. D. Bright, Paul Booz, and Veima Keller were also present at the meeting.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Wednesday, Jan. 2—Vacation ends.
Friday, Jan. 4—All school social.
Sunday, Jan. 6—C. E. meeting, College Church, 6:30 p. m.
Tuesday, Jan. 8—Regular Y. M. and Y. W. meetings, 10 a. m.

In Days of Old

Ten Years Ago

Dr. V. F. Schwalm and Dr. J. J. Yoder returned yesterday from a visit to Bethel College, Newton, Friends University, Wichita, and Southwestern College, Winfield, where they had been making a study of the different problems of finance and administration.

A covenant for the purpose of standardizing student activities and organizations was submitted and approved at the weekly meeting of the faculty and college management. The covenant will go into effect immediately.

An extensive program of debates and oratorical contests has been announced by Prof. Maurice A. Hess, debate coach. Two state contests in oratory will be held in McPherson this year, one at Central College and one at McPherson College.

An alumni directory has been published by the alumni of McPherson College. The directory contains the names, addresses, and occupations of all the alumni of the college. Miss Edith McGaffey compiled and edited the directory.

The Bulldogs lost their first basketball games of the season to the Phillips University of Enid, Oklahoma, by a score of 26 to 18.

Ten Years Ago

Charles F. Horner, head of the Horner Institute in Kansas City, gave the third number of the lyceum course Thursday night. Mr. Horner spoke on "Has America Failed?"

The student council and the faculty have adopted a report, submitted by a joint committee from these two bodies, seeking to conserve time for students of McPherson College by the regulation of students' activities.

The mid-year festival, consisting of group games, tumbling acts, a Santa Claus drill, and the presentation of gifts, was held last Friday evening by the physical training department.

President D. W. Kurtz will deliver his annual lecture Thursday evening in the College Chapel. President Kurtz, will speak on "The Philosophy of Human Progress."

The Bulldogs will officially open their 1925 basketball season when they meet Chilocco on the home court, Jan. 8.

Mr. Claus Receives Communication
from M. C.

Dear Mr. Santa Claus:

We have all been such good boys and girls this year. We've been going to chapel on time (when we go), and of course sitting in our regularly-assigned places. Then, too, we've had our lessons every day (Tsk—tsk—how cynical!). Another fact that we've been angelic is that we've been washing behind our ears and brushing our teeth. So aren't we a deserving lot?

You might bring us a lot of nice basketball victories tied up with red and white ribbon. Really we would appreciate these and we do deserve them!

You remember Velma, don't you? Well, she wants a black scotie. Now, not a real dog—just an imitation one to park on your dresser, you know!

Then you might bring Sam "a train what backs or a boy doll" in case his childish desires for these items weren't sufficed.

Santa Claus, lots of the gals on this campus would like a boy friend. Some want blond-curly headed ones and some even want black-blond-haired ones. But, listen, Santa, you won't bring either of the Bean sisters a b. f.—because they both have 'em. Try to be a bit discriminating and bring the males only to those who want them, C?

You might bring Dr. Petry's dictionary. Don't you know he's the prof with the limited vocabulary? Now, I thought you'd remember him. Maybe he won't be happy for this gift and then perhaps he will be able to give us some more of his witty chapel addresses.

Oh, yes, and how about sending Bob Booz someone to go to class for him? And Jessie Miller does need a new box of "beans."

"Tony" Myers wouldn't mind a nice short girl friend either. You know, Santa, contrast is the spice in every pudding.

And last but most important—don't forget the Spec staff. You know you don't like to have your little cherubs sitting up 'till the wee small hours of the dewey dawn—or do you?

Anyway, do come see us—We're expecting you.

Much Love,
At M. C. Believer.
P. S. A Merry Christmas to You,

MOHLERS ENTERTAIN GROUP

The Y. W. C. A. cabinet of the College enjoyed a dinner party at the R. E. Mohler home last Saturday night. The home was artistically decorated in keeping with the Christmas season. A profusion of pine and holly was used throughout the rooms, with the Christmas tree as an especially attractive feature.

Gathering about 8 o'clock, the girls spent the time in making candy, popping corn, playing games, and singing. In the morning, a delicious breakfast was served by Mrs. Mohler, assisted by her daughter, Elizabeth. The table was decorated to further the Yule motif. Those accepting the hospitality of the Mohler home were Elizabeth Waggoner, Mary Miller, Ruth Tee, Maxine Ring, Leone Shirk, Margaret Poister, Velma Keller, Margaret Oliver, Alma Rodbaugh, Fannie Kettner, and Martha Hursh.

Y ENTERTAINS CHILDREN

Fifteen children were present at the Christmas party, given by the Y. W. C. A. Thursday evening at 4:30. The Y room was decorated in red and green. Gifts for the children were placed under the Christmas tree. Each child received a practical gift as well as some toy or game.

BRIGHT SPEAKS IN CHAPEL

Dr. J. D. Bright spoke in chapel Monday morning concerning the great German Martin Luther, and his works. Preceding Dr. Bright's talk, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," the words of which Luther wrote, was sung by the chapel group.

The A Cappella choir of McPherson College, under the direction of Prof. Alvin C. Voran, has been practicing for the last few weeks in preparation for a winter season of activity. The members this year number 16, a membership larger than last year.

The first public appearance here of the choir probably will be in the first part of February; however, no definite date has yet been announced. It is believed that shortly after the holiday season more complete arrangements will be made. The concert will be held at the City Auditorium.

Several out of the city dates are in the making. The only one that is definite is January 10, on which date the A Cappella choir will present a concert at Chase.

YULE SPIRIT PREVAILS AT ANNUAL SILVER TEA

Y. W. C. A. Sponsors Benefit Social—Funds Used for Children's Party

About fifty guests were present at the silver tea, Sunday afternoon in the Y. W. room. The color scheme, white, black and silver, was artistically carried out in the centerpiece of white carnations on the long tea table. The tea service and added decorations around in the room were in harmony with the chosen scheme. Mrs. R. E. Mohler and Velma Keller, president of the Y. W., presided at the tea table.

The program, which was given at intervals during the afternoon, was arranged by Mary Miller, program chairman, and Margaret Poister, music chairman. Corrine Bowers and Helen Burton, accompanied by Jessie Miller, played a group of violin duets, featuring Christmas music. Dorothy Miller read "Mr. and Mrs. Barrister." Bernice Keedy sang "Just For Today"; she was accompanied by Viola Harris. Opal Bennett read "Miss Dorothy Entertains the Minister."

Plans for the tea were made by Martha Hursh, social service chairman, and Maxine Ring, social chairman; they were assisted by the members of their committees.

Proceeds derived from the tea were used to aid in giving a Christmas party for some of the unfortunate children of the community. This party, which is an annual affair, was Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 p.m.

SENIOR CLASS MEMBERS PRESENT CHAPEL PROGRAM

Representatives of the senior class, with Elmer Staats as chairman, displayed their talent Friday morning in a chapel program.

John Kauffman read the Twenty-third Psalm, which was followed with prayer.

A chalk-picture depicting a snow scene was presented by Arlene Wampler. Mildred Gordon assisted at the piano.

"Here Comes the Bride," a cutting from Kate Tangle Basheu's book, "Mary Cary," was read by Geraldine Burdett.

This was the first of a series of chapel programs which are to be presented by the four college classes. The other programs will be given soon after vacation.

NEW POETRY CLUB ORGANIZED

Sixteen people were present Friday afternoon at the first meeting of the organization of a poetry club. The club is for the benefit of those people who are interested in writing, studying and interpreting poetry. The instigators of the organization are Margaret Mattox, Miss Della Lehman, and Miss Edith McGaffey. A temporary chairman, Miss Mattox, was elected and plans were laid for a meeting to be held the Friday following Christmas vacation. In the near future the club hopes to form a permanent organization.

ART DEPARTMENT CELEBRATES

Students of the art department celebrated the Christmas season yesterday afternoon in the art room with a pot-luck supper, and the exchange of gifts. Chet Colwell played the part of Santa Claus by distributing the gifts.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM GIVEN

A joint Christmas program, sponsored by all the religious organizations on the campus, was given Tuesday morning in place of the regular Y meetings. Quiet hidden music, in the Christmas spirit, was played at the opening of the program. Then Miss Lehman gave the familiar reading, "Why the Chimes Ring." This was followed by several Christmas carols, sung behind the curtains by a mixed chorus. The final number on the program was a tableau representing Mary and the Christ Child, accompanied by soft hidden music.

COACH BREAKS HIS THUMB

In a fierce scrum on the basketball court Tuesday evening, Coach Melvin Binford in running into Bob Strafman, received a painful injury when he broke and dislocated his thumb. The injured member was put in splints.

FOOTBALL BOYS ENTERTAINED AT PARTY FRIDAY EVENING

Coach and Mrs. M. J. Binford, Coach and Mrs. Lester Selvies, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Harden entertained the members of the football squad and their lady friends at a Christmas party last Friday evening at the Persian room of the McCourt Hotel. The room was furnished by the owner of the hotel, Mrs. Gertrude Shirk. Various games were enjoyed, the feature of the evening being the gift exchange. Orval Eddy, dressed as Santa Claus, distributed the gifts. At the close of the entertainment a delicious refreshment course was served to the sixty-eight guests present at this occasion.

FIRST PUBLICATION ISSUED BY TEACHERS

History of College Newspaper Reveals Background of Strict Censorship

One would find it impossible to picture present day college life with out its weekly edition of the Spectator, but in early days of the institution students were not allowed to edit or publish a newspaper. Rather, the faculty furnished all of the printed literature issued from the college. This consisted of a sixteen page monthly magazine known as the "Teacher and Student." Such subjects as mormonism, lynching, national debts, arbitration, and free silver were discussed. The faculty, however, gave way in 1899 to a new publication called "Rays of Light," which was published by the students under strict supervision of the faculty. The cover of this magazine plainly stated it to be "an educational, literary, and news magazine."

After a life of sixteen years "Rays of Light" was discontinued by a magazine called "The McColpa." The title was taken from the first letters of The McPherson (Mo) College (Co) paper (Pa). The McColpa was a thirty-six page paper, larger than the "Rays of Light" and published without strict faculty censorship. Not until the advent of the Spectator in 1917 did the transition from magazine to newspaper take place. The first Spectator was a four-page weekly, half as large as the present paper. Simple headlines began to be used. Later a six-page newspaper was issued every two weeks, and in 1919 it became an eight page weekly. In 1921 the Spectator assumed the size that it has today, and gradually faculty censorship has become less.

HOLIDAY TEA IS GIVEN IN HONOR OF FRESHMEN

The freshmen and faculty were entertained at a holiday tea last Thursday by the students in foods. About sixty freshmen were served. The guests were received in the home economics recitation room. Tea with sandwiches, cookies, and mints, was served in Miss Atkinson's office. The rooms were decorated in keeping with the Christmas season.

VARSITY TEAM ANNOUNCED AFTER TOURNAMENT MONDAY

Florence DeCoursey's team defeated Faye Sandy's in the W. A. A. volleyball tournament held Monday night. At the end of the tournament the varsity team was announced. This is a mythical team made up of players chosen from both teams. Those chosen to be on this team are Faye Sandy, Florence DeCoursey, Martha Hursh, Muriel Manning, Lucille Cole, Pauline Abuhl, Glee Goughner, Leola Mohler, Esther Bowers, Irene Bales, Phyllis Barnard, and Alberta Keller. As an unusual feature the varsity team was divided into two groups which competed in a game of volleyball.

The W. A. A. girls will begin playing basketball after the Christmas holidays.

HERSHEY GIVES CHEM PARTY

The chemistry students were entertained at the annual chemistry social in the Y. W. room by Dr. Hershey last Friday evening. Small group games and contests were played, with Kenneth Weaver as master of ceremonies. A progressive game of cootie ended with Modena Kauffman having high score and Glen Snell having low score. Ardy Hershey played two cornet solos while the guests were served refreshments of coffee, ice-cream, and wafers.

NEW SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

Several New Courses Are Being Considered for Second Semester Program

The schedule of classes for second semester has been tentatively planned. In addition to the full year courses which will be continued, the following are some courses of especial interest which will be offered:

Physiology, Mohler. Playgroup games and management, Blinford. Business law, Bohling. Abnormal psychology, Blair. Roman private life, and public speaking, Hess. Dietetics, and foods I or clothing II, Atkinson.

Some courses which have been proposed, but which as yet are not certain are: contemporary problems of American civilization, by Dr. Schwalm, to follow his course in American government; a course in health education; and vocational choice by Dean Reagle.

CHEM STUDIES MAKE ANALYSIS

An analysis of seventeen samples of water was made by advanced students of the chemistry department for Johnson, Rhoades & Lehberg Company, attorneys, as a part of a legal investigation. The samples were taken from oil pools, creeks, small streams, school wells, and farm wells throughout the oil section of McPherson county. Under the supervision of Dr. Hershey, Galen Glassner and Arthur DeVor tested the samples for the total percent of salts and the composition of the salts. The college chemistry department is frequently called upon to make detailed analyses such as this one.

NEXT SPECTATOR JAN. 10

The next issue of the Spectator will be published on Thursday, Jan. 10. Owing to the scarcity of news and the fact that many members of the Spec staff will be out of town, it is deemed inadvisable to attempt publication on Jan. 3, the Thursday following the Christmas recess.

WORLD SERVICE HOLDS SOCIAL

A number of students attended the World Service social held in the Y. W. room, Tuesday evening. Each person was asked to bring some Christmas present which was placed under the Christmas tree until it was time to "draw" one. Most of the evening was spent playing games directed by Galen Ordern. Dr. Petry says he played the games in a different "day" and now they seem quite different. After the refreshments were served, the Christmas presents were distributed and opened.
