LARGE REPRESENTATION ATTENDS H. S. FESTIVAL

Tennis Tournament and Music Contest Interest Seniors On Saturday

DR. BRIGHT IS TOASTMASTER

Entertaining Program from Fine Arts Department Presented: Mohler Gives Address

Seniors from many of the surrounding high schools were present at the Senior Festival held at McPherson College last Saturday, although a great many were unable to attend because of conflicting events at other schools. The greatest attendance was at the banquet in the evening. Other events were the tennis tournament and the music contest.

Dr. J. D. Bright acted as toastmaster at the banquet. Professor A. C. Voran favored the group with two vocal solos. Miss Lois Wilcox won great applause from her violin solo. Glen Turner presented a very entertaining musical reading. Dr. Bright then introduced Dean R. E. Mohler, who, in turn, spoke briefly on the advantages of getting a higher education.

The banquet was prepared by the home economics department and served by waitresses from the student group of McPherson College.

In the tennis tournament, which was in progress most of the day, the championship in the doubles went to Hillsboro high school. McKee and Nickel of that school defeated Prather and Mignot of Gypsum 6-3, 6-4, in the final match.

The singles championship went to A. Showalter of Castleton, who defeated Milton Bair of Hillsboro in the final tilt. Medals were given to winners and runner-ups in both the singles and doubles tournament.

Coach M. J. Bjorfond directed the tennis tournament.

A large number of students took part in the music contest, which was held in connection with the festival. Scholarship awards were given to winners in the juvenile and adult divisions. For the first place in the juvenile group an $18 scholarship was given. For second place, a $9 scholarship was awarded. In the adult divisions, scholarships of $25 and $12.50 were given to winners of first and second place respectively.

Following is a list of the winners:

- Juvenile group: Piano: First, Floyd Krehbiel, Moundridge; and Irene Rishel, Galva; tied: second, Ruth Irene Smith, McPherson.

Adult group: Violin: First, Jacqueline Gillum, Gypsum.

Piano: First, Dorothy Dell, Beatrice, Neb.; second, Maxine Schmidt, Lorraine.

Girls voice: First: Marjorie Booz, McPherson, and Wanda Janssen, Lorraine, tied; second, Kathryn Ebien, Inman.

Boys voice: First, Raymond Gray, McPherson; second, Robert Wiegand, Inman.

The music contest was won by the direction of Miss Jessie Brown.

W. S. G. CONTINUES SERIES OF PROGRAMS ABOUT JAPAN

The World Service Group met Tuesday evening to continue its series of studies on Japan.

Theresa Strom led the devotional service. Glen Austin gave the history and modern problems of Christianity in Japan today. Attention was called to the "Kingdom of God" movement which has revived the Christian forces and enabled them to combat heathen foes.

Floyd Harris played a cornet solo. He was accompanied by Lucille Ulery.

Donald Brumbaugh closed the evening's program with a talk on Japanese contemporary problems. Special attention was given to the relationship between the United States and Japan.

Next Tuesday evening the group will have a weiner roast. A short meeting of devotional nature will be held at this time.

JOYCE VETTER PRESENTED IN PIANO RECITAL SUNDAY

Miss Joyce Vetter gave a piano recital in the Baptist Church last Sunday. She played the Grave Allegro Molto e con Brio and Adagio Cantabile movements from the Pathétique Sonata by Beethoven; the D major Prelude and Fugue by Bach; a group of three Chopin numbers, the A flat major Waltz, Prelude F sharp major, Waltz G flat major; a modern group which consisted of the Polonaise Americana by Carpenter, The Girl with the Flaxen Hair by Debussy, and Beliero de Concert by Mana Zucca, and the Presto and Allegro Vivace movements of Mendelssohn's G minor Concerto. Miss Vetter played the entire program in a very finished manner which showed marked talent.

Miss Flora Mae Traver contributed two solos to the program. She was accompanied by Miss Hazel Crawford. The McPherson College Orchestra, under the direction of Miss Lois Wilcox, played the orchestral accompaniment for the Concerto.

JUNIORS PLAN BANQUET

Seniors to be Guests of Underclassmen at Social Event Friday

Invitations were sent out this week for the annual junior-senior banquet which is being held at the College Church on Friday evening at 7 p.m. Music is the theme chosen to be carried out this year in both the program and the decorations. The theme was particularly well worked out in the invitations which consisted of miniature musical scores carrying the requests for attendance.

Since it is believed by those in charge of arrangements that a long program detracts from the effectiveness of an occasion of this kind, the after-dinner program has been reduced to a minimum. Thirty minutes will probably cover the time necessary for the toasts and musical numbers.

Two outstanding numbers of the evening will be a musical reading by Miss Lehman and vocal selections by Professor Voran. Miss Lehman and Mr. Voran are sponsors of the junior and senior classes respectively. Arrangements are also being made for music to be furnished during the dinner hour.

Students who have had charge of planning the banquet include: Ralph Sherfy, head of the general arrangements committee; Dorothy Matson, decorations committee; Lillian Peterson, announcement committee; and Modena Kauffman, program committee. The women of the Church of the Brethren cook and serve the dinner.

SENIORS SECURE POSITIONS

Three McPherson College students have recently been accepted for teaching next year. Neva Root will teach three classes of English, and a dramatics class in the Chase high school. Arlene Wampler will teach at Groveland Center, a rural elementary school. Lillian Pauls will teach at the Lake Valley rural school. Miss Pauls and Miss Wampler are fortunate, in that their schools are within a few miles of their respective homes and they will stay at home.

MISS McGAFFEY GIVES TALK

Miss McGaffey gave a talk in chapel Monday on the "Difficulties in Speech." Some of the common words which she had heard mispronounced around the campus were: get, spirit, window, roof, creek, and been. She also listed another group of words often mispronounced. Among them were: sacrilegious, impalable, zoology, experiment, library, pianist and bleomarginate.

"Y" RETREAT A SUCCESS IN SPITE OF DUST STORM

Dr. Bright Accompanies Group of Twenty-one Members to Twin Mounds

In spite of the dust and wind of last Friday evening, twenty-one Y. M. Y. cabinet members left McPherson for Twin Mounds where an all-night retreat was held.

With the exception of one carload, the "retreatees" reached their destination a few minutes after seven o'clock. It so happened that the delayed car was to bring the sponsor, Dr. Bright, and the official cooks. Since fortunately the food had been brought in one of the other cars, Harry Frantz volunteered to act as chef.

So after a brisk hike up to the top of the mound and down, the hungry campers enjoyed hamburger sandwiches which Harry prepared for them. There was some question as to whether the bananas in the box were meant for supper or for breakfast, but since the committee had not yet arrived, the group decided to have the fruit-for-supper regardless of Modena's and Wanda's lans.

The last car arrived at 8:30, and supper over, the group gathered around a campfire where they sang and talked together. Galen Ogden led in the singing of varied types of songs. Then Willard Flaming and Leta Wine gave short inspirational talks concerning the Christian life. More group singing followed with the songs ranging from hymns to pop songs and popular numbers.

Some members of the party took their blankets and retired as early as 11:30. Others did not "call it a day" until 2 o'clock after a session of horn honking and water throwing in which several of the sleeping "retreaters" were awakened.

At 4:20 the campers began to stir. Leta and Bill chopped wood for their early morning exercise. Five o'clock found the group at the top of the mound, awaiting the sunrise. As the sun arose Galen Ogden led in devotional hymns and Wanda Hoover read inspirational poetry. Dr. Bright read Bruce Curry's chapter on "What Religion Means to Me."

The sunrise proved to be most beautiful and the cabinet members left the heights inspired by what they had seen and heard.

Breakfast was next in order. Bacon and eggs scrambled and served in buns with coffee satisfied the many appetites, and attention was turned toward a game of baseball. Dr. Bright, as a vocal commentator upon the girls' art of batting, and Paul Miller, as a gymnastic pitcher, afforded supplementary attractions.

Several of the students left before the game in order to reach McPherson in time for work. The rest of the group lingered at Twin Mounds, playing games until 9:30 when they broke camp and started back to M.C.

OUR SPEECH

1. The verb "scan" means to look over carefully, not hastily.
2. The noun "detail" should have the accent on the second syllable.

3. "Different than" is not in best use. "Different from" is preferable. Correct: "His course is different from mine."

4. "Anyplace" is a confusion of idiom. Correct: "Anywhere" or "in any place."

MARGARET OLIVER ELECTED AS COLLEGE RELAY'S QUEEN

Margaret Oliver, popular McPherson College co-ed, was elected as the McPherson Relay's Queen in a contest which closed Thursday evening at 6 o'clock. Miss Oliver held a substantial lead over the other two contestants.

Two weeks ago fourteen names of the most outstanding college co-eds were submitted to the student body in a primary election. Three of these girls, Margaret Oliver, Maxine Ring and Agnes Bean, were elected to run in the final election. The election was held in form of a contest. Tags were sold which served as admission tickets to the relays. Five votes for each cent expended for a tag were given to the purchaser.

The Queen's task was to serve as master of ceremonies at the relays. Just before the first relay the queen took her place and was presented with a silver loving cup and flowers. Her attendants, Miss Bean and Miss Ring, were also presented with flowers. The Queen presented the trophies and medals to the winners of the various events.

ESTES TO ATTRACT MANY

Renowned Leaders Are Secured for Ten-Day "Y" Conference

Four hundred students from Kansas, Nebraska, and Colorado campuses are expected to attend the annual 10-day conference at Estes Park, Colorado, which begins June 7. "Modern Roads to Freedom" is the theme of the conference which is sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.

Dr. Henry Nelson Wieman of the Chicago University Divinity School is scheduled as a major conference leader. He is author of "Issues of Life," "Methods of Private Religious Living," and other books. Mrs. Wieman will conduct a group on personal problems of college students.

Kirby Page of New York City, eminent author, lecturer, and journalist, will attend the conference. Mr. Page is familiar to student groups in the middle west.

Miss Helen Topping, English secretary to Toyohiko Kagawa, noted Japanese religious leader, will talk on cooperatives and give an intimate picture of the famed Christian's life and work.

Other leaders include Dr. Bert M. Cherrington, in charge of international relations at the University of Denver. Dr. Harold Case, progressive young minister of Topeka, Kansas, will conduct a group on the function of organized religion in the modern world. He and Mrs. Case will supervise creative leisure at the conference.

Additional leaders are Miss Helen Moeton, New York City, music director; James Chubb, pastor of First Methodist Church, Baldwin, Kansas, student life; Ervyn Inglis, Congregational Church, Greeley, Colorado, worship; Dr. M. G. Miller, College of Emporia, Emporia, Kansas, pioneer in cooperatives; Miss Elizabeth Fackt, University of Denver, world affairs; George L. Collins of the Baptist Church, Madison, Wisconsin, current political thought.

The cost of attending the conference is between $15.00 and $18.00 plus transportation.

EUROPEAN VOYAGE REVIEWED BY SCHWALM IN CHAPEL TALK

President Schwalm told about his trip to Europe in 1930 in Chapel Friday morning. He went in a party of about sixty-five of which Dr. Woodward Eddy was the leader. Some of the interesting incidents which he told about were the talk given by Dr. Jennie Lee; the reception given for them by Lady Astor; and their meeting with Mussolini. Some other prominent men in the party were Charles Curtis Taft, Senator Wheeler, and Senator Barkley.

STUDENT VOTERS SELECT LEADERS FOR 1935-1936

Agnes Bean Is Chosen President of Governing Body in Close Race

CAPABLE OFFICERS ELECTED

Clark, Michael Chosen Editors; Van Nortwick, Zuck, Rock, Financial Managers

Interest and enthusiasm were rife at the polls Thursday morning when the McPherson College student body elected its officers for the ensuing year. The students for the positions of president of the Student Council, treasurer of the Student Council, editor of the Spectator, business manager of the Quadrangle, business manager of the Quadrangle, and the ladies' and men's cheer leaders were voted upon.

The primary election was held Thursday, April 18. Since the preliminaries, much electioneering and campaigning have taken place.

The race between Agnes Bean and Donald Evans for president of the Student Council was a close one. It resulted in Miss Bean's eking out her male opponent by a small margin. For treasurer of the Student Council, Clayton Rock and Clarence Sink were the candidates, with Rock emerging victorious over his adversary.

Vernon Michael defeated Kenneth Weaver in the final race for the position of the editor of the Spectator. The financial details of this college publication will be cared for by Joe Zack, who won over Franklin Hibbert.

The editorship of the college annual, The Quadrangle, was being disputed by Otho Clark and Betty Lou Cameron. Clark registered a victory. Archie Van Nortwick and Ernest Sweetland were seeking election to the position of business manager of the annual. Van Nortwick was selected by the student voters.

Jessie Miller and Homer Kimmel were chosen as cheer leaders for next year. They defeated Twyla Reed and Lamar Bollinger, respectively. Preceding the final election, a fiery ballyhoo assembly was held. Those expounding the merits of his candidate were Maxine Ring, Elmer Staats, Ernest Sweetland, Paul Heckman, Merle Messamer, Gladys Ridell, Sam Stoner, Virginia Quiring, Neva Root, Willard Flaming, Paul Miller, and John Kauffman.

Upon the elected officers rests a great deal of responsibility for the success of the 1935-36 school year. Records of previous years show that each student is capable and qualified to care for the duties of his office for next year.

Y. M. C. A. PLEDGE IS TOPIC OF DISCUSSION RECENTLY

The pledge of the Y. M. C. A. was the center of discussion at the regular Y. M. meeting last Tuesday.

Galen Ogden discussed the first part of the pledge. He stated that the Christian Y. M. should strengthen one's faith in God. He continued by saying that Jesus was the most represented figure of God that we know and probably will ever know. He concluded his discussion by saying that church membership might be a barrier to realizing God in his fullness, because many people think that membership alone will make them a Christian.

The last part of the pledge was discussed by John Kauffman. He pointed out that a Christian would treat all people as his equal. Racial prejudice does not exist in the mind of a true Christian. He continued by saying that this problem would come to light on our campus next year because it is planned to have a foreign student in school then. He pointed out that there are several ways to overcome this evil. By means of international good will, better understanding, and love can we overcome this predicament.

A Verdict on the College Radical

The picture of the American college student in his amusing, almost pathetic setting, was recently set forth by two professors of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The findings which these two investigators among the college agitators of today was recently included in a report in the Technology Review.

One great truth was rediscovered in the survey. That is that the modern college student is not a hypocrite. The professors, however, conclude that the undergraduate agitators are headed in the wrong direction and are placing the wrong values on many things. If these students would spend more time preparing to be able citizens they would be more competent to support any social order they might choose, the educators believe.

"It should be clear to even the feeblest intelligence that all is not well with our economic system, and we shall doubtless witness experiment after experiment. No opposition party, however small the minority it may represent, can afford to ignore the possibility that you may be called at a moment's notice to form a government."

If this happens to our Communists friends, their agitators will at once have to seek new jobs. The complex economic life of our country must go on, and there will be a call for technicians, engineers and those versed in the internal economy of our different industries."

A report of this type should be taken by the student not to discourage any radical thought or opinion. It should however be an indication that radicalism for the sake of radicalism is not a substitute for liberal reform.

You Will Want a Quadrangle

Great as is the realization of the value of the Quadrangle to the student after he has been out of school for several years, it cannot be fully realized until you have had to undergo that period. Observe some alumni of the college, talk with him and he will tell you of its true value.

No doubt every student will want a Quadrangle when it is delivered in the near future. It will be your opportunity to live over again in a few years what your memory cannot possibly retain, with the pictorial representation.

The Reward of Cheating

At Emporia Teachers College last week, two students were flunked in a course because they handed in identical papers to two different instructors. Upon questioning the students, one of them confessed that he had copied from the other.

Many people would argue that the punishment was too severe. After all the students are paying for their education. They are old enough to know the difference in right and wrong. No one loses but the student himself upon copying. Another phase to the argument is the fact that it was definitely known who the cheater was. Why punish the innocent one?

A discourse of the above type is most likely among student not used to widespread practices of cribbing and other practices of cheating. In many cases the problem is so severe that the above solution alone can hope to solve the problem.

Then too at the end of the student's education he will ask the college for credentials for a job that will be highly competed for. A record falsely attained upon which the student receives a recommendation has a damaging influence upon the ability of the college to place the students in the future.

At the same time one is not willing to admit that the action taken by the faculty of the state college is the final one in regulating the problem of cheating.

The McPherson Relays

Last weekend sports enthusiasts were given a chance to witness a new adventure in the realm of sports on the college campus. In the relay events, interest was high both among the students as well as among the downtown fans.

The event is more significant than it might seem from a casual glance. The success of the event is an indication of the appreciation of the local enthusiasts for a new type of major sport. More than this the continuation of the event will draw to McPherson many new athletes who have succeeded well in high school. They will do this because they will feel that a rightful emphasis is being placed upon track as a sport.

Credit for this move goes to Coach Melvin Binford who has worked for several weeks to inaugurate the relays as a part of the sports program of the College.

"New Roads to Freedom"

"Are you going to Estes this year?" "When is the Estes Conference this year?" These and many other questions are being asked on the campus. Such questions clearly indicate the new interest which has been generated for the annual conference held at Estes Park, Colorado.

The greatest favor that you can do for a student is to persuade him to spend the thirty dollars for this purpose, say those who have been there. He will never forget or regret it. In a week filled with rich contacts, wholesome lectures, inspiring atmosphere, and creative living the Student Christian Movement has been especially effective in this project.

For those who contemplate the vacation one point should be stressed—the greatest benefit will be obtained from going during your undergraduate days. Then the leadership acquired there will be especially helpful in the Y organization during the following year.

King Dandelion

"Shall we or shall we not allow the yellow dandelion to reign over our campus?" is the question. It is true that the dandelion has the upper hand at the present time. Are we going to sit around and let him take charge of our campus like Huey Long is running things down south? It is agreed that the dandelion is unsightly and undesirable on the College grounds, but who has done anything to throw him out? He can be thrown out but WILL HE?

There are some ways of driving him out. Wholesale action by students and faculty some afternoon would put a wet blanket over his head. Another more effective way would be to plow up the whole campus and start over again. This would not only squelch the dandelion but would be a wonderful improvement to our campus if we could have good grass all over it. Therefore the only thing that can be said is "We must banish the dandelion."

Where is my wandering girl tonight? Where, oh, where is she?

BREVITIES

F. A. Demmin was on the campus yesterday in business for the Quadrangle. He is with the Mid-Continent Engraving Company of Wichita.

Neva Root, Merle Messamer, Faith Ketterman, and Donald Evans enjoyed a picnic at Coronado Heights Saturday evening.

Wheeler Kurtz, '34, and his brother, Robert, came Saturday for a week's visit with friends here. Their home is in Chicago.

Pete Sandy and Florence DeCourcey visited relatives in Nickerson Sunday.

Gail Patterson of Lyons was a guest on the campus last weekend.

Miss Delta Lehman spent Saturday in Wichita.

Maudena Sondergard spent last weekend at her home in Ramona.

Robert Stratmann visited at his home in Geneseo last Sunday.

Bernice Fowler of Worthington, Minn., is visiting college friends here this week. She is a graduate with the class of 1933.

Dean F. A. Repligie and the male octette visited the Canton high school last Friday to interest students in attending McPherson College.

Dean F. A. Repligie will be visiting the high schools at Lorraine, Hollyrood, Bushton, Clafin, Sylvia, Stafford, St. John, and Macksville today and Friday interesting students to attend College here next year.

Ralph Johnston, Principal of Courtland school, was on the campus Saturday.

Most of the students have probably noticed the concrete seat placed under the tall pine tree by the library. The General Shop class in Industrial Arts Department is making these as one of the units and there will probably be several more.

Senior Personalities

You will remember Arthur DeVor as the Einstein of the senior stunt. He has also helped with many of the chemistry demonstrations which have been given. He is majoring in chemistry and has been a member of the Chemistry Club for two years. He took his first two years of college work at Central College, McPherson.

The greatest favor that you can do for a student is to persuade him to spend the thirty dollars for this purpose, say those who have been there. He will never forget or regret it. In a week filled with rich contacts, wholesome lectures, inspiring atmosphere, and creative living the Student Christian Movement has been especially effective in this project.

Ralph Thompson Writes of Fascist Trends of Disturbing Types in Northern Europe

Although Fascist doctrines have as yet made no notable success in Scandinavian or Baltic states, they continue to be a problem to the governments of these countries, and periodically cause considerable excitement and even disturbance. In Estonia, for example, martial law was declared on March 12 because of the threatening activity of parties with Fascist or Nazi tendencies. Political meetings were forbidden, over 400 members of the so-called Liberators group were arrested, and their newspapers were banned. Shootings and casualties were reported as the government searched homes and offices for ringleaders, and when order was restored a few days later, General Larka, Liberator candidate in the forthcoming presidential elections, was apparently the only leader of the faction at liberty.

The difficulty in Estonia was directly connected with the presidential campaign, and seems to have been the result of an unsuccessful attempt by the Liberators to frighten the voters into supporting General Larka rather than one of the other candidates. General Laidoner and Acting President Paets. The government's explanation for its drastic action was that the Liberators were being financed from abroad (which is to say from Germany) and were planning to seize power by force.

At about the same time that Estonia was experiencing this civil commotion, her neighbor, Latvia, experienced a change in government which is not without a Fascist aspect. On March 2, the cabinet of Adolf Blodmeiks, which had been reconstructed about a year ago, resigned on a vote of no-confidence by the Latvian Chamber, and within two weeks a new government was formed by K. Ulmanis. The change marks a swing from the Left to the Right, for Blodmeiks represented the New Farmers party and the interests of those who were provided with land under the agrarian reform of 1920, while Ulmanis is a leader of the Conservative Farmers Union and an advocate of constitutional reforms which will transfer power from parliament to the president. But the Latvian parliament is still an active force, and during the last week of March the Chamber voted that the Ulmanis government discharge all state employees who belong to Fascist organizations or other Right groups hostile to the existing regime.

Lithuania's struggle with Fascism is perhaps more real than those of her Baltic neighbors because it is complicated by the nationalistic ideas which have long influenced the German and Lithuanian residents of the Memel territory. Nearly every move which the Lithuanian government declares necessary to the law and order of Memel is the subject of protest by Germany as an infringement upon the autonomy of the territory and the rights of the Germans living there; contrariwise, every sign of Nazi activity in the region is declared by Lithuania to be further evidence of a plot against the integrity of the Lithuania state. Numerous notes have been exchanged by the foreign offices of Kaunas and Berlin, but they do not seem to settle matters, and apparently irreconcilable forces continue to oppose one another as they have for years. During March there were numerous counter-moves by the Germans and arrests of Nazi "agitators." On February 23, before the latest steps were taken, the Berlin Ministry of Foreign Affairs informed Lithuania that her actions were likely to have serious effects upon the future relations of the two countries.

In Finland and Scandinavia the friction between Fascist groups and their more democratic rivals is less tense. On March 13, however, the Finnish Diet adopted a law forbidding the wearing of any kind of political uniform or emblem in public—a move which accords with Denmark's action of several months ago, and with Sweden's of last July. It was reported from Stockholm on March 21, moreover, that the Swedish government would probably ban all armed character and make membership in such bodies illegal. Norway, on the other hand, seems to have found drastic measures of this sort unnecessary thus far, although in the near future she may have to cope with the growing strength of the National Union, a Fascist party headed by Major V. A. L. Quisling, former minister of defense.

Library Notes

The book, "The Forgotten Man and Other Essays" is the only book to be added to the collection this week.

A useful pamphlet, "Available Magazines in McPherson College Library Indexed in Readers' Guide," has been prepared and placed on the table with the Readers' Guide.

The family of S. N. Dinsard, of Minnesota, sent to the library a set of Descriptive Charts of Ancient Monuments which remained among his papers. These are very much appreciated and can be used in several places.

"WHEN WHITE BUDS OPEN"

My Lady Spring is here again! I heard the herald birds proclaim. The oaks flung out their earliest leaves,

And all the tall elms did the same. With emerald fire and cups of gold, The meadow is a glorious thing. And we forget the earth is old.

When first the darling feet of Spring Come dancing over the glad hills With snowdrops and with daffodils;

With buds and blossoms in her train—

My Lady Spring is here again!

The sweetest time of all the year! April shower and April sun,

Oh, the fragrance of orchard ways

When the white buds open, one by one!

Winter is over. Winter is past,

And all the snow to be seen is now

The white foam flecking the ragged thorn—

The clustered bloom on the orchard bough!

Spec-Yu-La-Shuns

Recent issues of this column would seem to indicate that there never is any scandal on the campus, which, of course, is a false conclusion. The scarcity perhaps is due to lack of perception, or perhaps more aptly it is due to laziness. Be that as it may, here are a few choice bits of dirt picked up in the last few days.

There's no gem of original thought on the campus like the ones Lackie springs every now and then. Take for example his prize plan for the remedying of the industrial situation. When that topic was up for discussion in economics last week, he piped up with the thought that the best solution for the industrial problem would be birth control. Hmmm—it's a good thing that Lackie isn't under the thumb of Hitler or Mussolini.

A couple years or so ago there used to be held contests to discover the best definition of a kibitzer. The best definition we have found yet is the person who monopolized a public telephone for a half hour when other people desire to use it.

All indications point to the fact that a certain female on our campus is extremely two-faced. However, this conclusion places us in a dilemma, for if she were two-faced she'd surely use the other face. You probably know the dame without our mentioning her name.

"The seniors are sneaking tonite!" Yeh, that's all right if you're sure to say it on the right night. Some weightlessness (?) but gullible under classmate kinds got hoaxed Monday night when a false rumor of a prospective sneak got abroad.

Miss Abeldt, '31, of Hope visited Mildred Pray Sunday and Monday.

Foolish Questions

It seems to be the accepted thing to start a conversation by asking questions. This may be all very well if there is anything to ask questions about, but as far as the asking of questions merely for the sake of asking them—well, there should be a law against it. Questioning, in its proper place, is a very good thing. In fact we are told that we learn by asking questions, but why, oh why, should one ask questions about things that are perfectly obvious? "Certainly it is not because one seeks information, for the use of one's eyes or a little common sense would answer the question before it is asked. But reason or no reason, people do, not just certain people, but people in general."

For instance, Mary meets a friend on the street and when asked where she is going replies that she is on her way to Aunt So and So's funeral. The friend at once exclaims, "Is she dead?" Mary thinks nothing of the question and answers, "Yes," when the more logical answer would seem to be, "No, but she wanted to be different and decided to have her funeral ahead of time, so she could enjoy it more." Foolish of course, but no more foolish than the question.

And then when you have been vigorously blowing your nose at regular intervals during the last hour or so, and someone finally asks, "Have you a cold?", don't you almost feel tempted to answer, "No, I've just been blowing my nose to clear my brains," or some other equally absurd thing?

While still on the subject of "cold," we are reminded of the person who, seeing you shivering and hugging the radiator, wants to know if you are cold. You could answer that you are so warm you are trying to shake off some of the excess heat to warm up the radiator, but of course you wouldn't.

Or suppose you have sung in a concert and when you mention it to a friend he very kindly asks, "Oh! do you sing?" This may or may not be such a foolish question after all, but nevertheless one doesn't like to be reminded of the fact.

How do you suppose the young man felt when he had taken his best girl a lovely box of candy, and when he presented it, she asked sweetly, "This for me?" He probably hastened to assure her that it was, but he should have told her no, that he had only brought it over for her to see, and that he was going to give it to some one else later.

There are always plenty of foolish questions asked about injuries and accidents. There had been a rather serious automobile accident and a witness was relating the incident. After giving an account of how badly the car was smashed, and telling of the blood which was very much in evidence around the wreckage, one of the listeners asked in an anxious tone, "Was anyone hurt?"

Foolish questions are much in evidence around the college campus. A student may be in his room, very comfortably seated in a chair, reading. Another student walks into the room and asks him, "What is the first question is?" "What are you doing?" or he may be struggling with a very difficult problem in mathematics and, after watching him for a few minutes, the visitor will ask, "Are you working math?" It all depends upon the nature of the student as to the reply given. It may be in the form of a book or other handy object thrown at the visitor.

Since weddings always come in for their share in any joke, consider the case of a young lady who, while at home from college during Easter vacation, attended her cousin's wedding. A few days later she told a friend that she had been to a wedding. The friend promptly asked, "Did someone get married?"

And so it goes. People ask foolish questions and never know it; those of whom the questions are asked seldom notice it. But since it is being done by the best of people, in the best of well-regulated families, the most foolish question we could ask is, "What are you going to do about it?"

PIANO STUDENTS RATE HIGH

Miss Joyce Vetter received the rating of superior in piano in the state contest held at Emporia last week. Clayton Krechbeld received the rating of excellent in piano in the Little Arkansas Valley League contest held at Burrian last Friday. These students are both from Moundridge and are enrolled with Miss Brown.

The term, alma mater, is an old Latin word. It means foster mother, and was a title given to several goddesses and translated in England to universities and schools.—The Bulletin, K. S. T. C., Emporia.

A University of Kentucky student (Lexington) attended a class in German two weeks before he discovered he was in the wrong place. He thought it was a class in geology.

SPORT LIGHTS

The McPherson track team is to be congratulated upon its fine showing in the McPherson Relays. The boys were keyed up for the occasion, and it seemed to be McPherson's day to win. Four school records were broken in the events of the day.

"Tony" Meyer was the first man to shatter a school record when he bettered his own discus mark of 133' 10" to 139' 11". The record in that event was 126' 8" until this year when "Tony" bettered this mark in a dual meet with Bethel.

Lee Haun set a new school record in the pole vault. He cleared the bar at 12'. He tied the old school record of 11' 9" last year.

New records were made in the 440 and the 880 yard relays. The new time on the 440 was 46:2 and the 880 was 1:36.

The McPherson mile relay team upset the dope and won over the fast Friends University team. Paul Heckman, who ran third for McPherson, was largely responsible for the McPherson victory, giving his anchor man about a 30 yard lead.

The two cups that were won by the winning relay teams will have the names of the persons on the team engraved on them. The large meet trophy will have the words, "Won by McPherson College" engraved upon its plaque.

Hansen, C. of E. tennis flash, won the singles tournament. He won over Binford in the final match. The score was 6-0, 6-3. This is the third time that these two men have met, and Hansen has been the winner each time.

Morton of Friends seemed to be the iron man of the relays. He won the 100 yard dash and the broad jump besides placing in several other events and running in nearly all of the relays.

MAKING SYNTHETIC DIAMONDS EXPLAINED BY DR. HERSHY

The story of the making of synthetic diamonds will be told by Dr. J. W. Hershey and his assistants in Chemistry club this afternoon at 4:30. The explanation of the process will be made more vivid through the aid of slides and motion pictures, and an actual demonstration of the electric furnace used in diamond making. These diamonds are the same in appearance, and the same chemically as natural diamonds. However, as yet the laboratory method has not yielded diamonds of commercial size. The world's largest synthetic diamond, made by Dr. Hershey, will be on display under the microscope. This diamond has been shown in Washington, D. C., at the Kansas State Fair in Hutchinson, and many other places.

All persons interested in knowing about how diamonds can be made are invited to attend this meeting.
