President D. W. Bittinger and Mrs. Bittinger are leaving today for Colorado Springs to attend a meeting of the alumni chapter of Colorado.

Saturday, they will visit with prospective students of Colorado, and on Sunday will attend the Colorado Springs Church.

Dr. Bittinger will spend next week in soliciting for funds in Kansas City for the church related colleges in Kansas.

April 27, he will speak at the McPherson High School Junior and Senior Banquet to be held at the Community Building.

Last Wednesday through Friday, Dr. Bittinger attended a meeting of the North Central Association of Colleges in Chicago.

Exam Schedule Released

Summer examinations have been scheduled for the week of May 22-25.

A final exam schedule has been released by the central office. Four periods of examinations have been set each day from 8 a.m. to 5:20 p.m.

The McPherson College band marches inside the chapel tonight to play a spring concert at eight o'clock. Professor Donald Frederick, director of the band, has prepared a variety of music and is hoping for a large turn-out.

WAA Banquet To Be Held In Lindsborg Saturday Night

The WAA banquet will be held tomorrow evening at 8:45 at the Chuckwagon in Lindsborg.

This event is a girl-ask-fellow occasion and will be semiformal. The theme is "Seaside Symphony."

Choir To Sing Sunday

McPherson College Chapel Choir, under the direction of Prof. Doris Cockopp, will present the Sunday evening program at the McPherson Church of the Brethren on April 22.

Sunday morning, the Rev. Harry K. Zeller, Jr., will deliver a message on "God's Business Manager." This is the eighth sermon in a series on the Ten Commandments.

The whole program will be a dialogue. Barb Gooden, club president, will act as master of ceremonies.

The program includes three numbers by a quartet whose members are Shirley Bowen, Margie Ross, Gene Snyder, and Buzz Grove.

JoAnn Silver will give a reading, "Rime of the Ancient Mariner." Vernon Thralls will play a piano solo. She will also play a saxophone duet with Shirley Hamilton.

Larry Hayes and Gene Elliott will do a pantomime.

Betty Holderread, who has earned 3000 points, will receive a blanket.

New officers for next year will also be announced.

Colberg Wins Council Presidency; Treasurer Run-Off Necessary

Don Colberg, junior from Lyons, Kans., was elected president of the Student Council in the election held Tuesday morning in chapel. He will take office next September, succeeding Norman Long who has been Student Council president this year.

In the race for Student Council treasurer, a run-off election was necessary between the two top men — Norris Harms and Dwight Oldman.

This is Don Colberg's second successful campaign for a Student Council office, since he was elected treasurer of the Student Council last spring and has served in that position this year.

Don, a rural life major, has also been treasurer of the SCA this year, and last year he was business manager of the Spectator. He sings in the A Cappella Choir, is a member of Rec Council, is on the hour roll, and has lettered in track for two years.

The campaigning for this election has been going on for some time, with the stickers and handbills of the various candidates very much in evidence around campus.

Monday night at 10 o'clock a group of boys had a campaign rally in front of Deloit Hall with torches, flares, pep yell, musical instruments, and hot-winded oratory.

Tuesday morning in chapel the campaigning continued. Speeches were made in behalf of each of the candidates.

Those campaigning for the candidates for treasurer were Don Faules, who spoke for Dwight Oldman; Ed Wolf, who spoke for Norris Harms; and Ted Kaltzousis, who spoke for LeRoy Buskirk.

Then the speeches for the presidential candidates were given. Duane Fike presented the qualifications of Don Colberg; Don Ullom spoke in support of Delbert Hayes; Ken Fancher talked for Leon Neher; and Gary Pamberg ballyhooed for Gene Myers.

A four-piece band supporting the candidacy of Leon Neher and Dwight Oldman added to the noise and excitement.

The second election for Student Council treasurer was held in chapel this morning. At the publication deadline of this issue, the results of the second election were not yet available.

Politics Class Reports On Week In Washington

Of great interest to the 30 McPherson College American Politics students who visited Washington, D. C., last week was Congress's action on the farm bill.

As nearly all the members are Mid-Westerners and a large part of their class work had pertained to the farm issue, they felt privileged to sit in the gallery throughout the farm bill debate in both the House of Representatives and the Senate.

Dr. Roy蒙 Flory, head of the McPherson College History Department, has served as coordinator of similar politics trips over the last number of years. He stated, "This trip was the best yet as to values received. It was unusual to see a bill pass through both Houses of Congress, probably won't happen again in a dozen years; interview cabinet members; and sit in on such spicy committee meetings."

In the top bracket of trip highlights was an interview with Senator of Agriculture Benson. As the 30 students had scattered over Washington, D. C., and even into Arlington, Va., just before this interview materialized, Dr. Flory extensively and expensively toured the scenic spots by cab to collect the majority of his charges.

Meet the Men

Sightseeing in the nation's capital took second place, giving way to study of government procedure as the delegation interviewed top men on Capitol Hill — the Senators Estes Kefauver, Paul Douglas, Andy Schoepf, Frank Carlson, and Tom Martin and Representative Ed Rees.

Other congressmen were observed while they were on the floor of either the House or the Senate

Meet the Men

Sightseeing in the nation's capital took second place, giving way to study of government procedure as the delegation interviewed top men on Capitol Hill — the Senators Estes Kefauver, Paul Douglas, Andy Schoepf, Frank Carlson, and Tom Martin and Representative Ed Rees.

Other congressmen were observed while they were on the floor of either the House or the Senate committee meetings and had the unique opportunity of watching former Postmaster General Jim Farley, who hadn't been before a committee in years, testify, as did the editors of "Good Housekeeping" and Hearst newspapers, to the committee on Post Office and Civil Service. Accompanying Farley was Arthur Summerfield, the present Postmaster General.

During a morning session at the Department of Agriculture, the purpose, organization, progress, and working of REA were explained to the class. While studying this association, the members met the director, Anchor Nelson.

Ed Rees, Kansas's Fifth District Representative from Emporia graciously served as host to the students throughout their stay on "The Hill." He, with his wife and secretary, entertained at breakfast in the House Speaker's Dining Room on Thursday.

Study Other Fields

In addition to seeing politics in action, literature students found time for "Plain and Fancy," art enthusiasts took in Salvador Dali's recently unveiled "Last Supper," at the National Art Gallery. baseball fans watched the Dodgers lose to the Nationals, and others enjoyed the Smithsonian Institute.

Although girls were pampering blisters from their high heels, all 30 students were on board at 3 a.m. Friday for a side trip to New York City. Here the schedule included: matinee at Radio City, U. N. Building, walking in the rain, dodging the noon rush at the automat, Grand Central Station, Times Square, and riding the ferry to Staten Island.

The intelligent faces that appear in this picture are those of the American politics class who recently visited Washington, D. C.

The itinerary included a visit to the office of Andrew F. Schoepf (R-Kan.), interviews with government officials and attendance at committee meetings.

Ward To Direct Rural Life Next Year At Macollege

John Ward, '50, will join the faculty of McPherson College next fall as director of the rural life program. Professor Ward is the fourth Mac grad to be employed by the trustees for next year.

John was born at Litchfield, Neb., and received his elementary and high school education there. While in school he was active in band, glee club, oratory, and class plays.

He participated in basketball and was captain of the football team. He also was active in Future Farmers of America and was sent by them as a delegate to the state convention.

While John was in high school, his father died, and John and his mother took care of a 400-acre farm. John took over the management of the farm while at the same time participating in the activities of high school.

He and the other members of the family carried forward a cattle, hog, poultry, and sheep program so successfully that John was nominated for the Skelly award, indicating superior achievement in agriculture.

He received state wide radio recognition at that time.

John later attended McPherson College and graduated with the A. B. degree in 1950. Following that, he spent two years in military service and then secured a further degree from Kansas State College at Manhattan.

Still not satisfied with his educational achievement, he went to Oklahoma A. & M., where he completed his work for the Master of Science degree in agriculture, and is at the present time pursuing work there for his Ph. D. in the field of agriculture.

He is married to Bonnie Martin, daughter of Mrs. Alice Martin, registrar of McPherson College. They have one child.

Aviation Needs Science Majors

Careers with an agency engaged in basic aeronautical research are being offered to graduates with majors in mathematics or the physical sciences.

The Lewis Flight Propulsion Laboratory of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics (NACA) at Cleveland, Ohio, has openings in Mathematician positions for students who have had 24 hours of math and other physical sciences. Mathematicians receive $4480 per year to start.

NACA also has openings for physical science majors who have had courses in English or journalism for positions as Aeronautical Science Editors, paying $3670 per year to start.

Interested students may contact the college placement office.

Mathematicians work in co-operation with scientists and engineers by applying mathematical techniques in solving problems arising from aero-research investigations.

An example of their work is converting to analysis form data on temperatures, pressures, and air flows of engines being tested in supersonic wind tunnels. Research in basic mathematical theory is also carried on at Lewis Laboratory.

Aeronautical Science Editors review, edit, and revise technical papers written by NACA scientists and engineers for publication. They work in co-operation with the authors.

The NACA was created by Congress in 1915 "to supervise and direct the scientific study of the problems of flight with a view to their practical solution" and to "direct and conduct research and experiment in aeronautics." It is the largest aeronautical research establishment in the country.

Lewis Laboratory is one of three large NASA research centers. At Lewis, research is conducted on problems of flight propulsion, including studies and experiments on all types of aircraft engines, fuels and combustion, materials, and aerodynamics.

Its extensive facilities, which were built at a cost in excess of $100 million, cover 240 acres, with a staff of 2600 employees.

The contributions of NACA to the development of aircraft have been recognized universally.

What's In College Life?

By Noel "Buzz" Grove

Unknown to many, the advantages of a college education are not restricted to vocational instruction alone.

Many people, especially those of pre-college age, sometimes have the impression that a person goes to college solely for the purpose of specializing in some particular field. They feel that the benefits received from higher education consist chiefly of vocational instruction.

Nothing could be farther from the truth. The ideals and values gained from college life are estimable. For example, thousands of young people start their college education each year completely in the dark concerning the vocation they will choose.

A large per cent of these students will return for a second year of school, and a slightly smaller per cent will continue their education all four years.

High school graduation marks the beginning of a young person's life when he is faced with the problem of making major decisions. If he goes to a college that is far enough away to keep him from home most of the time, he finds himself really on his own, for what may be the first time in his life.

In finding himself independent for the first time, the student soon learns a sense of values he never knew before. Money, he soon discovers, is something that must be watched carefully.

The student may also value friendship much more highly, especially if he is in an atmosphere where his acquaintances are few in number. The student and other values are among the assets in which youth receives training in college, even though he may not realize it at the time.

The finesse with which the particular person handles these newly-found values may prove his capabilities in later life.

Pondering With The President Let Us Remember Our Track Men

Gospel Messenger Shows Mac Students In Action

By Ruth Hanagane

Featured in the last issue of the Church of the Brethren Gospel Messenger, are three pictures of Maccollege student life, the pictures being used for Christian College Day articles.

One on the front cover shows some students entering Harnly Hall. The others are the Trans-Mississippi West class, which was taught by Dr. Raymond Flory, and informal religious discussion group at SCA.

These photos were taken by Phil Pulliam and Gary Williams, campus photographers.

The article brought out that Christian colleges are faced with two problems. One is to provide the best education possible at a low expense, and the other is, whether they should increase their student body and lose their small institution values.

The article also developed the thought that a Christian college must unify education and religion so inseparably that either will be empty without the other.

The college should, first of all, express its objectives. The faculty should be selected in terms of both intellectual and spiritual qualities.

The attitudes and practices of the administration should be Christian, and should take into concern the welfare and the feelings of persons.

The last two points are: there should be regular opportunities for public worship, and the faculty students' relationship should be one of mutual regard and friendliness.

The article, "What is a Christian College," was written by Russell Bollinger.

Across the country increasing emphasis seems to be centering upon track.

For some reason or other it seems that the people of this generation are able to break the records of the people of generations ago. The young men of 1956 can jump higher than they could fifty years ago; they can run faster; they can leap more broadly; they can throw the discus farther; they can surpass their fathers.

This is as it should be. Our sons should surpass us.

But this does not come about without effort and supreme trying. Through continued and sustained efforts, barriers such as the 4-minute mile, which it was predicted would never be broken, have been broken. Other barriers still can be crossed.

These track men work hard. Their achievements are individual achievements.

They merit our support. When we are having track days here or when the boys are practicing, if we can get out and give them a word of encouragement, let us do so. We have some outstanding performers in the field of track.

Berg Gives First Sermon

Garner Berg, a sophomore at McPherson College, gave his first public sermon in his home church, the First Methodist Church of McPherson, on Sunday, April 8. His topic was, "Are We Growing Christians?"

Garner has completed his training courses through correspondence to become licensed. After receiving his license, a prospective Methodist minister is on trial for two years and then he may become ordained.

Ordination must be preceded by seminary training or its equivalent in correspondence courses. A first ordination after one year of seminary is that of deacon and a second after three years to seniority is to become an elder.
