Red Cross Bloodmobile Unit To Visit Macollege April 14

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit college hill at 10 a.m. April 14 in an effort to obtain 160 pints of blood from this area. McPherson Church of the Brethren will be the receiving center.

Miss Della Lehman, Macollege representative on the McPherson County Red Cross Board, stated that at least 190 registrants will be needed to obtain the desired 160 pints of blood. The large number of registrants is necessary because some of the donors will not be able to give for various reasons.

Anyone between the ages of 18 and 60 may give, but all persons under the age of 21 must have signed consent of their parents.

Cards for parent signatures will be distributed to McPherson College students prior to Easter vacation.

Mrs. Simon Strouse, co-chairman of the McPherson County Blood Bank, reported that about 15 or 16 pints of blood have been used by local residents since the first of the year. There is no charge for use of this blood; however the attending physician may charge for administration.

The blood bank was established in McPherson County in 1948. Since that time the original group of 11 participating counties has grown to 35.

Huntington chicken will be on the menu served at the Red Cross financed meal which will be prepared by the Macollege Quantity Cookery Class.

Anne Keim, senior, Nampa, Idaho, is planning the meal for an expected 200 people including donors, doctors, nurses and other help. Ladies of the community will donate cake. Meals will begin at 10 a.m.

Persons interested in donating blood may contact Zoann Ewing, sophomore, Gowrie, Iowa, who is in charge of donor card distribution and will supply interested persons with additional information. Zoann resides in Dotzour Hall.

Spectators will be welcomed.

Average milk production for the eight cows on production test was 982 lbs. with an average of 47 lbs. of butterfat per cow.

The college herd consists of 26 head of Guernseys and Holsteins. Nine of the Guernseys are owned by Lyle and Doyle Neher and are kept in the herd on a production agreement basis.

The college farm, sometimes called the old Lee Miller farm, is on First Street three miles west of Macampus, and is under the supervision of Prof. John Ward, head of the Rural Life Department.

Of the 240 acres comprising the demonstration type farm, approximately 190 acres are under cultivation. 35 are pasture and 15 are non-tillable. Irrigation is possible for 65 acres.

Dairy herd supervision is conducted by Lyle Neher, 1957 Macollege graduate and Rural Life Department assistant. The dairy herd is made up of Guernseys and Holsteins. Professor Ward said that a herd of 40-50 milkers is desired.

February marked the beginning of the college farm's membership in the DHIA, (Dairy Herd Improvement Association). DHIA membership will provide data enabling herd comparison with other producers of the county.

NAIA Announces Change In College Football Rules

The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) announced Friday, March 14, that it is patterning its football rules after those being played by high schools, junior colleges and professional teams.

The NAIA has been allied with the National Junior College Athletic Association and the National Federation of State High Schools Activities Assn. since 1957 in all sports except football.

The action last Friday, at a NAIA membership meeting in Kansas City, completed the cooperative tie-up, in all sports which is called the National Alliance Athletic Association.

Before this change the NAIA football code was generally parallel to the code of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The most noticeable difference in the new football code is the platoon system, or free substitution rule. The new code also makes it possible for one player on a team to confer with the coach at the sideline during timeouts.

A fumble or backward pass may be recovered and advanced by any player. Last, no matter how made, a point-after-touchdown is scored as one point.

Although adopted as the official code, use of the new alliance rules is not mandatory in competition by member schools. These rules are optional pending further codification.

According to Coach Smith, the Kansas Conference will abide by the new code as soon as the NAIA completes it.

Pondering With The President Regional Youth Conference

By Dr. D. W. BITTINGER

It was a great satisfaction to have such a high quality of young people here from all over the vast middle part of the United States.

As I travel from one end of the country to the other, I come back home often with the feeling that here in the great central part of the United States lies much of the strength of the future, that out of this area will come many of the significant leaders who will give us direction for tomorrow.

This may be a prejudiced viewpoint, since I live here. Yet I was not born here, but have come to this conviction by learning to know the people here and by sensing the strength of their characters and the steadiness of their natures.

Moreover, I cannot help but believe that much of the direction of the future will be determined by the group who was here at Regional Conference and by other groups similar to them.

I was tremendously moved, therefore, to see them standing in great numbers, consecrating themselves to Christian service through the professions they will choose or through full-time Christian service.

I was glad to see many of our own college youth standing among them.

The question is, "Now that several weeks have elapsed since the conference, how are we now feeling? Has our dedication lasted two whole weeks? Will it last a whole lifetime?"

These moments of dedication are excellent. There are some who fear moments of emotion. In my own judgment, such fear indicates a position of weakness, for it is usually with emotion that great convictions are established, great difficulties are overcome, great love is achieved.

But if one slips back from a peak of commitment into a valley of despair, then perhaps the valley may be deeper than if he had not been on the peak.

It is my hope that back in the areas to which these youth went after they had been at Youth Conference there is a newness of life, both within these youth and within others who they will touch, and that they look forward to a hopeful tomorrow.

This is important because they are going to be that tomorrow. Even more so, it is my hope that within our own college we will move onward and upward from this peak experience, that the college will be better, that the lives of all who participated in the conference will be better, and that they will also touch other lives and make them better.

If this happens, then the Youth Conference was a great even for our region, for our college, and for our world.

I say again, "From these youth will come many who will help determine the direction of our world."

Chaff Condemns Commercialism . . .

Our True Confession

By Faus, Foley, and Harris

Back in the dim gray mists of time when CHAFF was born, its founders, the Three Wise Men, dedicated it to pure, undefiled satire. However, corrupting influences and special interest groups have brought pressure to bear on our dedicated little group, trying to use our spotless reputation to gain support from our trusting public for their cause.

We must humbly confess to you, our trusting public, that a few times during our corporation's life our snow-white record has been smudged when we have yielded to temptation and have allowed crass, crudely commercialism to creep into our column.

You may remember that during the second week of our operation, we succumbed to undue pressure brought to bear upon us by the faculty to publicize the good features of the faculty.

We must admit that we did this in hopes of raising our grade point average. However, we no longer have a grade point average, since the registrar refuses to record negative numbers.

And, to add insult to injury, our chapel sleeping privileges have been taken away from us.

Scarcely had the pain of this brutal retribution subsided, when the overpowering lobbyists of the music department caught us in a weak moment and we again violated our code of ethics by succumbing to their sweet siren song and advertising their opera in our column. "Odd Opera Observations." CHAFF was being exploited; its noble name dragged in the dirt.

Last week the faculty, drunk with power, again caused us to stumble when we sold our Mirth-write for a mess of peas and ham.

Yes, for three free buffet banquet tickets and the promise of the faculty entertainment, we again fell before the faculty's calculated campaign to crucify our column on a cross of creeping commercialism.

We come to you repenting in sack cloth and ashes, rending our garments, mortified at the way we have violated our sacred trust to you, our public.

But never again! We CHAFF, do hereby solemnly swear at the faculty.

But we want you to know that these evil influences have not ceased to press upon us. Even now, as you read this trash, evil forces are at work, giant presses are pounding, sleek black trucks are racing through the night, gloved hands are tapping secret messages on our door in a vile attempt to bend us again to their will.

As an example of this, only this morning, Professor Datin Rottenrock approached us with a demand that we give his play equal column coverage with the opera.

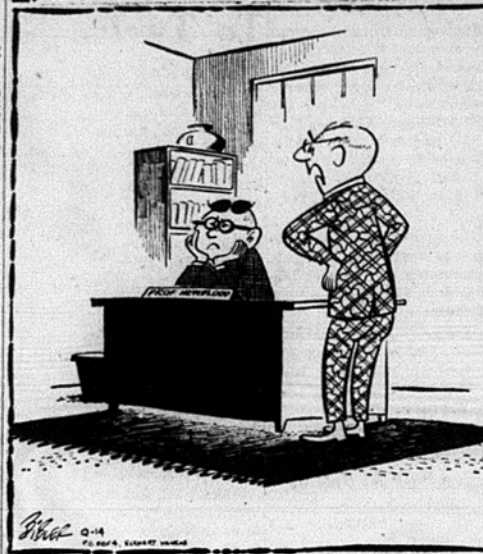

But we refuse to be bent to his will. Just because it is a three-act murder mystery written by the famous Agatha Christie is no sign we should lower our ethics just to advertise it.
