Younger People Make Historical Happenings

The following comments concerning the younger generation were taken from a recent church bulletin.

It is a striking thing to go back through history and discover how many of the great movements in the history of the world have been, strictly speaking, youth movements.

This is particularly true in the field of religion. The movement that Christ started, after all, was a youth movement. He entered His ministry when He was 30. He finished it when He was 33.

It is worth while knowing that He was crucified not by the youth of Jerusalem, but by the elder statesmen of the church — the Scribes and Pharisees.

Along in the middle ages when the religion of Christ was cluttered by the great mass of orthodox debris, the Protestant reformation came along. To lead that reformation, there was another younger generation.

Martin Luther started the reformation at 31, John Calvin joined it at 20 and wrote his greatest book about it at 23.

The Wesleyan movement in England began when a little group of college boys, of whom John Wesley was a member at 26, Charles Wesley, at 23 and George Whitfield at 20.

In the matter of religion, youth is speaking out in no uncertain terms. Youth is asking for a demonstrable religion, a religion judged less in terms of profession than in terms of action.

To older people, particularly to Christian people, the youth of this generation constitute an unparalleled opportunity.

Thus new ties of thought and interest may be destructive or they may be helpful. Whichever course they take is largely dependent upon the attitude of the older generation.

A little sympathy and understanding will go a long way toward enabling the youth of this generation to give of themselves in Christian loyalty to the task of making this world a better place in which to live.

Crowned Heads Reign At Event

Diane Browning and Ivan Prochaska were crowned Queen and King of the 1959 M-Club Carnival last Friday night at the peak of activities. Jerry McPherson, president of the M-Club, presented the King and Queen, and gave each a gift from the M-Club.

Queen Diane then drew the ticket for the diamond ring. Dennis Dirksen matched his ticket with the one drawn and was presented the $100 dollar diamond ring. Dirksen can have the ring in white gold, and the donor will fit the ring free of charge.

Other activities attracted many people. Al Guio won the pie-eating contest and Larry Sams exhibited his pitching abilities. Ralph Rindt was presented a dollar for winning the free-throw contest. He hit 19 in-a-row.

The M-Club took in approximately $135 from the Carnival. The money is used to pay for a $1800 washer and dryer, which must be paid for in three years, and for various other activities.

Les Says ---

Last week's game with Friends University brought to a close the '58-'59 basketball season for the Maccollege Bulldogs. But the close of the basketball season is a far cry from the end of intercollegiate athletics for the year.

Too many students are unaware of the effort top-notch Maccollege athletes put forth to represent their college in spring sports. Maccollege participates in many spring sports such as track, tennis, and golf.

Take a walk out to the north end of the campus some afternoon and observe your classmates working to get themselves in shape for the stiff competition which they will be facing in the conference in spring sports.

Better yet, fellas, Coach Smith says that they still have enough track suits for more participants so if you have enough time to walk over and observe, walk in and take part and get yourself in shape.

School Support

It is the opinion of this writer that the spring sports of this school do not get the support and backing which they should get from the student body. The boys are working hard for the school, so the school should be behind them 100 per cent and show it.

When the golf team comes home victorious from a match they deserve words of praise from the whole student body. If they are not successful, encouraging and backing from their fellow students will help spur them on to another win.

The same thing holds true for any of the springs sports. You have seen how a strong cheering section helps the boys in a basketball game or football game and it will help give a boy an extra burst of speed at the finish line.

No matter which spring sport it happens to be, let us as a student body get out and cheer the boys every chance we have. The cheers and support of the student body will help the boys give Mac a victorious spring season.

Former Student Completes Training

Harold Groves, former Macollege student, has completed a nine-week training program for BVS at New Windsor, Maryland. He has been assigned to work at the Inner-City Protestant Parish, Cleveland, Ohio; and will serve for approximately 22 months.

Harold is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin J. Groves, Waka, Texas. He is the graduate of Spearman High School, Spearman, Texas, and attended McPherson College for one year.

The Inner-City Protestant Parish was organized in Cleveland, Ohio, in Feb. 1954. It relates the Gospel to the total life of the men, women and children living in the overcrowded and deteriorating areas of the city. The Inner-City Parish today is

Profs Learn New Things, Too

Among the faculty members there is a social organization which meets monthly for "enlightenment in areas in which they are not well learned." This group is open to all members of the faculty and their husbands or wives who wish to attend.

The meeting at Vaniman Hall begins with a planned potluck meal after which there is an educational discussion. So far this year the majority of the programs have been presented by the faculty members themselves.

Prof. Paul V. Sollenberger, assistant professor of music, explained jazz and what it is. Prof. Richard Slimon, assistant professor of art, told about interpreting modern art. Dr. John Burkholder, professor of biology, discussed fluoridation.

Rev. Harry K. Zeller talked to the group about Russia and a lawyer presented the legal knowledge the average man should know.

This is the second year this group has been organized.

Chaff Plans . . . Conference Chaos

By Faus, Foley, and Harris
Dear Conference Guests,

Inasmuch as multitudes have bored you with long, hollow welcome speeches, let CHAFF be the first to wish you a safe and speedy trip home.

Since we ourselves come from a humble background, we know what confusion you must feel upon being thrust into this teeming multitude, this boiling melting pot of inhumanity.

Key Spots

In order to set you straight, CHAFF has listed a few key spots on campus that you must visit before leaving.

1. Get a liberal education, learn some of the finer arts, discover techniques for successful living, visit Dotzour Hall at closing time.

2. If you need a place to take your date after the evening programs, CHAFF recommends the museum on fourth floor Harnly Hall. It has several giant skeletons guaranteed to frighten your girl.

3. The Pit, which is located northeast of Harnly Hall. This is where all freshmen who flunk their first semester English are taken out, shot, and cremated.

4. No one should miss the nerve center of the campus, Chaff's headquarters in room 410 Dotzour. Special hours for this week only are 12 midnight to 4 a.m.

For your enlightenment, a book display has been set up in 410, featuring such recent best sellers as: "How to Cut Corners on Your Tithing," by R. Gordon Yoder; "Ten Reliable Ways to Wreck a Local Youth Group," by Ken Holderread; "How to Expand Your Local Church Through Use of the Church Loyalty Oath," by the General Brotherhood Board.

Chaff Supplements

The Regional Executive Committee, which dictated the religious experiences of the region, has said that the conference program should offer something of interest for everyone so that all may participate and gain something of value.

Therefore, CHAFF, as a public service, has done voluminous research and has scheduled some special events to supplement the weaker spots on the conference program.

Like, for instance, this afternoon, they are having a speech contest on the topic "Dare to Be Different." Now those of you who really dare to be different should come with us down to the park where we will have a gala grasshopper fry. Afterwards, Rabbi Schnitzel will speak on the topic, "How to Stand Out as a Heretic in Your Local Church."

Now tonight they're having a band concert down at the community building. For those of you who are tone deaf, (and that includes half the band) we are planning a stomp next door, featuring Chauncy Hippler and his Pink Mountain Playboys, playing earthy music.

Saturday

Saturday morning they are having a business session. You might as well attend it. After your activities of Friday night, you'll

Jacobson, Guthals

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Jacobson, Elmo, Kas., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mildred, to Mr. Calvin A. Guthals, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Guthals, Elmo.

Mildred is a sophomore at Macollege while Calvin is farming near Elmo.

A summer wedding is being planned.

need the extra sleep.

Saturday afternoon, the trustees are holding a ground breaking ceremony for the new Sharp Hall. Of far greater importance for the future of the college, however, is the ground breaking for the Chaff Tunnel, to connect the church basement to Dotzour Hall, and to provide 24 hour access to the church basement.

This groundbreaking will be held in the church basement at 4 p.m. You don't even have to dress up to attend this ceremony. Just bring picks and shovels.

And in closing, we wish that when you leave you at least can say with truth and integrity, "I attended one meeting."
