The second section will present the feeling of the colors black, brown, gold, red, white, purple, and orange.

Program Helps
"To appreciate the program more fully," Prof. Doris Coppock, instructor of the class, recommends that before the recital a look through some books on modern dance would be helpful. John Martin's "The Dance," and the book "Martha Graham" would be particularly helpful. Also it would be good to have read the poems "Renaissance," and "The Hollow Men," Prof. Coppock continued.

Pondering With The President

To March, Or Not To March

By Dr. D. W. Bittinger

This is a year for marching. Labor has picketed or marched against management. Students and others have marched against social customs or government regulations. As this is being written, the following are among the multitude of marchers:

Students are marching in Turkey to protest government action.

Students are marching in Korea to reform a government.

Students and citizens are marching in South Africa for racial reform.

Students are marching in various European countries almost continually.

Students are marching from the Ivy league colleges of the East into Washington, D. C., to focus attention upon racial inequalities.

Students are marching in various parts of the South to assist in "sit-ins" for racial justice.

Students are marching at missile bases at various places in America to protest growing militarism.

The military of course is marching continuously almost everywhere.

The White House is almost continuously marched upon. This occurs even when the President is absent. One of the marchers there recently carried a placard which read "We protest the occupancy of celestial space." He was protesting the colonizing of any planet or star.

This is indeed a spring for marching.

Almost the only place where marches are not allowed, or in which we do not hear of their occurring, is in Russia. An absolute state does not tolerate protest.

At the moment McPherson has given thought to marching, also. There are some who wish to march against the missile bases in this area as a protest against growing militarism in our world. There are others who wish to march in protest against any such protest.

This universal marching illustrates the rise of individualism in our world; the desire and the right of the individual to express himself.

This is not new; something like this occurred when the people of England marched against King John and, the Magna Charta came into being as one of the forerunners to freedom. If they had not marched, we might never have written a constitution of the United States.

The citizens of the world are marching for many things. They may march for directly opposite things. The factor of significance is not so much what they march for as that they are free to march. When the freedom to march is denied we have absolute state. This is recession.

To march for a particular thing may be futile or even foolish. Protests aimed at the places where laws are made, or better still a more careful selection of the people who make the laws, is a more effective approach.

But to refuse to anyone the right to march as his conscience leads him, either for or against any proposal, can play dangerously close to absolutism and dictatorship. Against this free men must be on their guard.

Cutting Classes Can Be Costly To Student's Grades

By Dennis Hubbard

Mid-semester has come and gone and many students are wondering why their mid-term grades weren't what they expected. One reason for this could be the excessive number of cuts in various classes.

Contrary to popular belief, Mac does not have a class cut system. Thus far the number of cuts in each class has been left up to the individual instructor and the departments. In terms more precise, our system operates upon the principle of compulsory attendance with excuses for death in the immediate family, illness, or college business only. The excuses are obtained from the deans, instructors and the school health office.

At college a student is considered an adult. As an adult he is expected to be present at all class meetings in which he is enrolled.

Our system places responsibility directly upon the student to be in his class and to do necessary make-up when absent. It should also be an equal responsibility of the instructor to make each class meeting so worth-while that the student cannot afford to be absent. Nothing will make a student want to cut class more than a dry lecture that has been hastily prepared, or given.

Cuts are not always taken for good or sufficient reasons. If there were a cut system, a student who did not take all of his "cuts" would consider himself cheated or would take them at the end of the semester without good reason.

It is not the duty of an instructor to call you each morning to make sure that you get to class on time. If you can't assume some of the responsibility that accompanies adulthood, than you don't belong in college.

World-Wide Celebration Of Mother's Day Sunday

"All that I am or hope to be, I owe to my angel mother."

Countries everywhere will be celebrating Mother's Day on Sunday, May 8, with families presenting their mothers with a gift showing their love and appreciation.

In America the commemorative day is rather new. Many years ago in England and Europe this was an old tradition called Mothering Sunday, being observed on Mid-Lent Sunday.

The day was kept by visiting one's mother and taking her a special gift.

The Yugoslavs celebrate the day by binding the mother and not releasing her until she promises the family something good to eat.

Serbian Custom

In Serbia a similar custom is observed at which time the mother hides little gifts under her pillow for her children.

Records indicate that Julia Ward Howe first suggested that Independence Day be established as Mother's Day in the United States. The idea was never taken seriously.

Jarvis Is Founder

Credit is given to Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, Pa., as the actual founder of Mother's Day.

Because she wanted to honor the memory of her mother, Anna Jarvis thought of the idea of celebrating one day each year in honor of mothers everywhere.

On May 8, 1914, her dream came true when President Wilson signed a resolution in Congress that the second Sunday in May be set aside for Mother's Day.

Wearing of Carnations

It is customary to wear carnations on this day, wearing red if the mother is living, white if the mother is dead.

The carnation's petals which fold toward the center of the flower symbolize the undying love of a mother.

Tree Planting

Also tree planting has become a tradition. In Washington, D. C., the trees which have been planted are in honor of the mothers of the Presidents of the United States.

In 1934 a special postage stamp was issued in the United States with the famous picture of Whistler's Mother printed on the stamp.

Two Mac Alumnae Win Honors

Two Macollege alumnae recently were honored by two youth who have won awards and received wide recognition.

Lanny Unruh, Newton, high school student and winner of the National American Legion Oratorical Contest was asked what he had that other entrants lacked, he replied, "Mrs. Moore." Mrs. Leland Moore, 17, who served on the Macollege Board of Trustees for a number of years, is Lanny's teacher.

Mrs. Mary B. Crumpacker, 26, Santa Monica, Calif., was chosen to accompany one of her home economics students on an expense-paid trip to Washington, D. C., the last week in April. The student, Carolyn Louise Brahn, rated highest in a written examination on homemaking knowledge and attitudes given to 29,238 senior girls in 451 throughout California. This was the All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow contest.

Krehbiel Piano Student Wins Spelling Contest

A pre-college student of Miss Anne Krehbiel, professor of piano, has won the Kansas State Spelling Contest.

Celia Krehbiel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Krehbiel, Moundridge, will participate in the national spelling bee in Washington in August.

Jolitta Schlehner, national spelling champion in 1935, was also a piano student of Miss Krehbiel.

"Celia has discontinued her piano lessons for awhile, to study spelling in preparation for the national contest," stated her piano teacher, who is also a second cousin of the spelling champion.

Fire? No, But Stop The Buzzer!

The buzzing of the fire alarm in Dotzour Hall shortly after 10 o'clock, Sunday night, April 24, brought the girls pouring out of the three entrances, in robes, pin curls, and assorted costumes.

Laughing about what the girls thought was a practice drill, the girls assembled on the lawn of the dorm and waited for the all-clear signal, but the alarm continued to buzz. The girls waited five minutes, ten minutes, and fifteen minutes.

A siren sounded as the city fire chief appeared on the scene. Within a few minutes he had the situation well under control.

His difficult task was to replace the broken glass of two alarm boxes, which had been thought to be intact, but caused the alarm to drone for nearly half an hour.

Group Of Students Form New Organization

A new organization has been formed on Macollege campus within the past weeks. An election of the executive committee for The Movement for Peace was held April 24, with Jack Farrell, Bob Sifrit, and Paul Stern as the committee, and Ron Bestwick as secretary.

The executive committee has issued this statement about the organization and purpose: "It seeks to become a permanent organization of college students and other persons who wish to do effective, beneficial work in any possible way they can to promote international peace and understanding."

The Movement for Peace organization is not a McPherson College sponsored organization.

Decoursey, Burkholder Vacation In New Mexico

Driving 2,000 miles in nine days, Dr. DeCoursey, Dr. John Burkholder, and their families traveled to New Mexico, visiting places of interest and camping out each night during Easter vacation.

Several places visited were Taos, Bander National Monument, White Sands National Monument, Carlsbad Caverns, El Paso, and Capulin Mountain National Monument.

Capulin Mountain National Monument covers 680 acres which is dotted with extinct volcanoes. La-va columns formed by erosion surround them.

Carlsbad Caverns contain the largest explored series of underground caves in the world. The caves were formed by the action of water penetrating massive limestone formations.

Although 37 miles of caverns have been explored, the full extent is unknown. Bander National Monument embraces 27,048 acres which is the sight of many prehistoric caves, cliff dwellings, and stone sculptures.

Possible Work Shop
"We are considering using this area as a possible one hour natural science work shop course to be offered during the Easter vacation in the future," stated Dr. DeCoursey.

He also added that the trip increased his knowledge in the field of science, and everyone enjoyed the trip.

Dr. Burkholder has this to say: "The trip was interesting because I saw desert communities which I have never seen before."
