

Work Crew To Camp In Mexico

Valle del Tatarazzo, Mexico, 80 miles south of San Diego, Calif., is the destination of Dr. Doris Coppock, professor and director of physical education for women, and her charges Linda Andes, soph., Mound City, Mo.; Mary Holderreed, soph., Twin Falls, Idaho; and possibly Prafull Pandya, jr., Topeka, come June 10.

The group will be participating in a work camp under the auspices of the Brethren Service Committee and the Southern District of California.

The camp, June 16-July 17, will be continuing the project Dr. Wayne Miller, associate professor of speech, philosophy and religion, worked on last summer — mainly digging wells and purifying the water supply.

The major project will be to build a community center for other work camps coming to Mexico in the future. Construction foreman will be Arnold Groff, jr., Castaner, Puerto Rico.

Coed to Assist Extension Agent

Granted a junior assistantship by the home economics extension service, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Eileen Claassen, Jr., Newton, will be working with Mrs. Sharon Talley, an extension agent at Oberlin from June 20-Aug. 5.

One of 12 home economics majors from Kansas colleges and universities to be selected for the program, Eileen will participate in an orientation workshop June 15-17 at K-State and will begin her apprenticeship in Oberlin, June 20.

During her six weeks' assisting with extension work, Eileen will be consulting with 4-H leaders, judging at county and 4-H fairs and helping prepare publicity programs for local radio and television stations.

Aug. 29 Signals New Semester

With the opening of residence halls slated for Aug. 29, the Saturday before freshmen enroll, the McPherson campus will see numerous changes in procedure and scheduling.

The fall semester will last from Aug. 29-Dec. 21, with only a one-day Thanksgiving day break between the two dates.

Combined Christmas and semester break will begin Dec. 21 and will end Jan. 16. During this period a week seminar, retreats or faculty meetings, may be held. This could also be set aside for a time when other students could visit the campus.

This long period between semesters will allow faculty to grade semester tests.

Also new next year will be changes in the exam week schedule. Four and one-half days, rather than just four days will be given to final week both se-

Ward to Teach, Study At Nebraska Next Year

By Jeanne Williams

Spending his sabbatical leave at Lincoln, Neb., next year, Dr. John K. Ward, dean of men and professor of agriculture and rural life, plans to combine teaching, research and course study, as well as being an avid spectator of athletic events at the University of Nebraska.

Dr. Ward, his wife Bonnie and their three children will be leaving McPherson at the end of August for Lincoln.

Specifically, Dr. Ward will be teaching six hours of animal science, taking course work in biochemistry and physiology, two sciences closely related to his major interest, agriculture, and doing research in ruminant nutrition at the University of Nebraska.

In collaboration with a researcher who is experimenting in feeding oyster shells instead of hay roughage to beef cattle, Dr. Ward will be studying the production and differing proportions of volatile fatty acids, such as acetic and butyric acids, during digestion.

Dr. Ward has previously experimented with volatile fatty acids at Kansas State University in 1960-61 when he was completing his PhD at Manhattan. "Research is the cutting edge of the academic field," Dr. Ward comments, "and to me it is very stimulating and interesting."

After receiving a degree in Business Administration from McPherson College in 1950, Dr. Ward served the army in Korea in 1951-52 as cryptographer, decoding military messages and acting in a liaison capacity between American and South Korean military staff.

Graduation to Mark College End for 108

Dr. James M. Godard, president of the Council of Protestant Colleges and Universities, Washington, D. C., will address the combined McPherson College baccalaureate commencement, May 29, at 2:30 p.m.

The title of Dr. Godard's presentation to the 108 applicants for graduation of the class of '1966 is "The College and the Changing World."

Following the address will be the awarding of citations and the awarding of degrees to 108 seniors.

Five McPherson alumni will receive recognition at the 78th annual commencement. Four will receive Citations of Merit; and one, an honorary degree.

Those receiving citations include Erwin J. H. Bentz, Washington, Ill.; Dr. A. R. Lauer, Santa Monica, Calif.; Dr. John Maxcy, Daytona Beach, Fla.; and J. C. Russell, Lincoln, Neb.

Dr. Elmer B. Statts, recently appointed Comptroller General of the United States, will receive the honorary Li D. Degree. He received a Citation of Merit from the College in 1959.

Bentz is the division manager of diesel engine components and structures in the research department of the Caterpillar Tractor Co.

Lauer is a retired professor of psychology and director of the driving laboratory at Iowa State University.

Maxcy is a retired chairman of the department of health and physical education at the State University College, located at Potsdam, N. Y.

Russell is a retired professor of agronomy at the University of Nebraska.

Directly following the commencement exercises will be a buffet-reception in the student Union for all the graduates and their guests.

Dr. J. Jack Melhorn, president, will hold a reception for the seniors in his home Sunday, May 22, at 2:30 p.m. The administration and staff are also invited.

Postal Officials Ask For Address Changes

Post Office officials are requesting that students make immediate arrangements with correspondents regarding their summer addresses.

According to one Post Office employee, letters can be forwarded only through a great deal of inconvenience and delay, and periodicals, not at all.

Publishers, friends and relatives should be advised of prospective changes in address well in advance of the closing of the semester.

Reflections Look to Future

Reflections are usually the rule rather than the exception when an editor tries to compose the last editorial for the last issue of "his" paper.

My reflections on the long hours and many challenges of editing The Spectator—that I now pass on to another editor for another year—will be limited to a heartfelt thanks to all those who made the long hours a memorable learning experience I will not soon forget.

The entire staff of this semester's Spectator deserves many words of appreciation for the dedication they have shown in producing a fine newspaper for you, the students.

Linda Kurtz, my managing editor, and Jane Newton, my campus editor have special thanks due.

Our advisor, Mrs. Brunk, also deserves mention

We Get Letters...

Writer Labels 'Unfair' The 'Bearers of the Toil'

Dear Editor;

There has been a rash and unfair generalization made in a recent letter which appeared in this paper. The theme of this letter was that the "unquenchables" or those who have gripes against school policies, services, and social events should leave or put up with the status quo.

The author labeled all dissenters as slob, both intellectually and socially.

I am in direct opposition to this point of view. The fact some of us do not fully agree with particular school policies does not mean we must give up our rights to express our opinions or to reasonably disagree.

The majority of students who dissent do not cut-in in chapel or put childish remarks on questionnaires. They rather discuss and criticize school policies on an academic level.

We who disagree do so in the interest of progress, and hope to derive out of our protest a better institution for all. By our presence here we too believe that McPherson College is a good liberal arts college, yet we are not ready to sit back and say nothing about its imperfections.

We say to the "bearers of the unbearable toil" that self-righteousness is more of a hindrance to academic and social achievement than any agitation which is present on this campus.

I further submit that we do not plan to leave this institution or to hold back our opinions, for we have a right to both, as students and as Americans.

MCY Initiates New Officers

New officers for the McPherson College YM-YWCA were installed during candlelight ceremonies held at the MCY banquet April 30.

The officers were elected April 14 and will perform their duties during the 1966-67 school year.

Co-presidents next fall will be Jim Haldeman, fr., Manheim, Pa., and Jeanne Schrock, soph., Harmony, Minn.

Co-vice-presidents will be Ron Meek, fr., Omaha, Neb., and Mary Holderreed, soph., Twin Falls, Idaho.

Co-secretaries will be Glen Frazer, jr., Denver, and Jean Lichty, jr., Dayton, Ohio, and co-treasurers, Terry Bouse, jr., Silver Lake, Ind., and Donna Gochenour, soph., Woodstock, Va.

Co-publicity chairmen will be Jerry McReynolds, fr., Woodstock, and Bonnie Reynolds, soph., Franklin Grove, Ill.

Student Body OK's Code With Varied Reservations

Students Tuesday approved a dress standard proposed by the Student Council in an effort to regulate campus dress and appearance. The code will be in effect beginning in the fall.

Of 466 ballots cast, 328 favored the adoption of the code and 138 voted no on the measure. Eight voters who dissented did so on the grounds that the Student Council should not infringe on students' personal rights.

A majority of those voting against the standard objected to the standard as being too liberal. The code permits wearing of cut-offs and bermuda shorts in campus buildings.

If the code as it now stands is too liberal, the means of enforcement of a dress code have been approved by the student body. Offences pertaining to the dress standard will be referred to the Student Court for disciplinary action.

George Snavely, jr., Lebanon, Pa., and president elect of the Student Council, explained the code is intended to be a minimum standard which must be met, although "higher standards are certainly to be encouraged."

Snavely also indicated that the code will need the support of professors in the classrooms, as well as of the entire student body to be effective.

Reaction to the standard following voting ranged from anger at the code's alleged imposition upon student rights to comments that the code should be more strict if it is to have any effect on raising standards of dress on campus.

But acceptance of a minimum standard seems to indicate students are not entirely against the idea of a dress code.

for her extra hours of service and her ready understanding of a student newspaper and the problems its staff will incur.

Reflections are based on the past, however, and the best of life is lived in the future.

The future holds many tomorrows that few of us can see now, but each of these tomorrows must be met with a searching openmindedness and dedication that made all our yesterdays worthwhile.

For the people returning here next year is the challenge of possible growth in a changing academic and social atmosphere, if it is properly met.

Among those leaving, the seniors face many new vistas in their tomorrows if they are willing to accept the responsibility their degree places upon them, to eagerly face all of life and really learn how little they know and then continue the search for the answers that make life worth living.

Lastly, many tomorrows face The Spectator and all future staffs who must prove the quality and worth of publication designed to inform all interested people on the many aspects of the todays, tomorrows and yesterdays of McPherson College.

Faculty Anticipates Summer With Varied Work, Study

The summer of 1966 will find the Macollege faculty acknowledging the discipline and the challenge of both work and play.

Every professor has found a constructive and interesting summer pastime. A sample is interesting.

Dr. John Burkholder, professor of biology, will attend a YWCA conference at Estes Park, Colo., and vacation with his family in June.

July 6-Aug. 16 will find him attending an Institute on Protozoology at the University of California, at Berkeley. Dr. Burkholder has been awarded a National Science Institute Grant to attend this.

Dr. Doris Coppock, professor of physical education for women, will direct a six-week work camp in Mexico at the Valle del Tasterozo.

Playschool Set Erupts Again In Assembly

By Jane Newton
The playschool kids are once again making their presence known in chapel.

Last week seniors, athletes and outstanding students were honored in awards assembly. Those honored had worked hard; they deserved the recognition and respect of the audience during the assembly.

However, the kindergarten set in the audience was too preoccupied with tossing bits of paper in the air and cracking jokes about people on stage.

When are our college-aged children going to grow up? If these children had won awards or had constructively contributed to the academic or athletic aspects of college, then they would appreciate the work accomplished by the award recipients.

It's too bad some of these people's minds aren't as mature as their bodies. Maybe some of our kindergartners will graduate from grade school over the summer. Maybe.

The camp, sponsored by the Brethren Service Commission, is located 80 miles south of San Diego, Calif.

Dr. Oscar Olson, professor of economics and business administration, will be attending the Annual Conference of the Church of the Brethren at Louisville, Ky., during June.

He is to receive the Service Award of the Church in recognition of 25 years of teaching.

Robert Keim, assistant professor of sociology, will attend a Human Development and Family Life Workshop dealing with education and family finance at the University of Kansas, Lawrence, in June.

Leslie Fraley, assistant professor of physics, has been given a research participation appointment to work in the field of radiation ecology at Oakridge, Tenn., for the entire summer.

The program is a cooperative effort of the University of Tennessee Atomic Energy Commission, Agriculture Research Laboratory and the Radiation Ecology Section, Health Physics Division, Oakridge National Laboratory.

Dr. Wayne Miller, associate professor of speech, philosophy and religion, will represent the Church of the Brethren at a North American Family Life Conference at Ontario, Canada.

Both Dr. Merlin Franz, dean of academic affairs, and Dr. J. Jack Melhorn, president of the college, will attend the Church of the Brethren Annual Conference.

District meetings of the Church of the Brethren and other speaking engagements will find them traveling away from their desk duties at the college.

Sportscope Paint-up Day To Freshen Stadium Area

By Gene Czaplinski

The sports year of 1965-66 at McPherson College is at its end and all that remains is to cut down the nettings, put away the balls, and leave the key to the summer crew.

Our verbal barrage has finally lost its ammunition: the struggles of the gridiron; the bewildering "Bounce - bounce" game; the spring endeavors.

But our minds will look back on this year from many, many, different peaks. For some of us, it will have been the beginning of our college career. For others, it will have marked the end.

For some, it will have meant a happy addition to their lives. For others, it will have left only a blank memory of unpleasantness.

For all it will have left an imprint, unerasable from the score-sheet man call life.

15 Attend Steak Fry

A steak fry and recreation at Lakeside Park were sponsored by Dr. John Ward, professor of agriculture, and Mrs. Ward, for junior and senior agriculture majors and their guests May 9. Fifteen students were in attendance.

Paint-up day at the stadium will be Saturday, May 21. During the day, beginning at 8 a.m., alumni, "M" Club members, varsity athletes and anyone else who wants to help, will meet at the athletic building with a wire brush and a paint brush in hand.

Plans are to paint the football stadium, the wire fence around the field, benches and anything else that needs a little touch-up paint.

Coffee and rolls will be served during the day by the Women's Athletic Association.

Fahnestock Men Elect 1966-67 Dorm Council

House officers of Fahnestock Hall for 1966-67 were elected May 12. President is Ed Shapley, Jr., Sparta, N. J.; vice president, Steve Melillo, soph., Medway, Mass.; secretary-treasurer, Terry Bouse, Jr., Silver Lake, Ind.

Proctors for next year include Ron Cassidente, Jr., Denver; Keith Schradel, soph., Elmhurst, Ill.; and Arnold Groff, Jr., Castaner, Puerto Rico.

Sterling Hosts KCAC For Track Meet Today

Eighteen members of the McPherson College track team are participating in the Conference track meet today, beginning with the preliminaries at 9:30 this morning.

The meet is being held at Sterling College, home of the Sterling Warriors.

Coach Don Widrig named four teams with the potential to win the meet, but declined to pick a winner. "Southwestern and Ottawa are the best bet, but Baker and Friends are also very strong," Widrig claimed.

Ottawa is strong in the javelin and pole vault, but their biggest asset is the depth the team possesses in every event.

Members of the Macollege team who could possibly bring home medals include Gary Coleman in the pole vault, Jim Beachell in the javelin and Jerry Harrison in the 330 intermediate hurdles.

The McPherson track team came in third in a triangular meet held at Salina May 16. Sterling won the meet with 96 points followed by Kansas Wesleyan with 61½ and McPherson with 24½.

Jim Beachell captured the Bulldogs' only first place ribbon with a toss of 182' 11" in the javelin. Larry Bierwirth took second in the 100 yd. dash, while Gary Coleman tied for second in the pole vault.

Art Clark took third in the triple jump, while fourth place finishers included Dan Stockstill in the discus, Jerry Harrison in the 330 yd. intermediate hurdles, and Laurel Patrick in the javelin.

The 440 yd. relay team took second.

Two Students to Spend Junior Year at Marburg

Planning to spend their junior year at Phillips-Universität, Marburg, Germany, in 1966-67 under the auspices of Brethren Colleges Abroad, are McPherson College sophomores Marilyn Wood, Panora, Iowa, and Ron Adkins, Long Beach, Calif.

Along with 42 other students from Brethren and Mennonite colleges participating in the program, they will be leaving from New York Aug. 18 on the S.S. Aurelia, and docking at Le Havre, France, Aug. 27.

Following a short bus tour of famous European cities en route, the two will take part in an intensive study language institute in Marburg.

Four Married Grads Serve In Africa

By Marcella Sherly

An opportunity to serve on the very cutting edge of civilization in the newly developing countries of the world has beckoned four Macollege graduates to Nigeria this coming summer.

The four travelers are Dennis Emmert, who graduated at mid-semester this year, Marcella Yoder Emmert, '64, Bill Grove, '65 and Lois Fruth Grove, '64. They will be serving as short-term missionaries under the Foreign Mission Commission of the Church of the Brethren.

Leaving around July 5, the two couples will be located at Waka, Nigeria, for the duration of their three year stay.

Bill and Dennis will both be serving as teachers in a Teacher Training College; Bill in the field of mathematics and Dennis in industrial arts.

Marcella and Lois will not be assigned specific jobs but will work in needed areas. Both may serve in the Teacher Training College in the field of English.

Although the four will be living in a highly cultured, educational environment, not all the conveniences of modern America will be present.

Since electricity is on only part of each day, they are asked to bring flatirons and either a hand-operated or gas run washing machine.

At the same time, because of the visiting officials they will be expected to entertain, the four have been asked to bring table linens and good china.

Seniors Breakfast

At Rothrock's

The senior elementary majors were entertained at a patio breakfast at the home of Dr. Dayton Rothrock, professor of education and psychology. Miss Virginia Mellenbruch, assistant professor of education, along with Dr. Rothrock, hosted the breakfast.

Summer Term Opens May 31

Although May 26 signals the end of educational pursuits for the summer months for much of the Macollege community, the campus will take up the business of education again on May 31.

The summer school program, to include a wide range of education workshops, upper-level courses and a six-week session for freshmen, will find the dormitories and food service open from June 20-Aug. 19.

A special feature of summer school, which has taken final form in the last week is a workshop in Reading Research offered July 11-15.

Made possible by a $3,000 grant from the United States Office of Education in the division of research training and dissemination, the workshop is a new development on the Macollege campus.

Frantz to Return From Europe

Dr. Merlin Frantz, dean of academic affairs, who departed May 2 for a European tour to interview students spending their junior year abroad in Strasbourg, France, and Marburg, Germany, will return May 23.

The interviews and subsequent evaluation of the BCA program are being made by Dr. Frantz as a part of his functions as a member of the BCA Committee. Other members are Dr. Miriam Schlegel, Juniata College and Earl S. Garver, dean of academic affairs, Manchester College.

Dr. Frantz attended a conference in Freiburg, Germany, to discuss with others involved in a foreign study program.

Their main topic was the possibility of allowing education majors to complete their student teaching abroad.

In addition to his conference schedule, Dr. Frantz planned to meet with the German who had spent one year in the Frantz home several years ago.

Finally, he hoped to meet with an Italian interpreter and old friend who aided him with a Brethren Service project following World War II.

The grant was based on a proposal submitted earlier by Dr. Dayton Rothrock, professor of education and psychology.

It makes possible the bringing of three leaders in the field of reading research to the campus.

The purpose of the workshop is to stimulate interest in educational or reading research. This will be carried out as participants become acquainted with literature in this field, are given assistance in this area and participate in minor research work during the following year.

Some of the topics to be covered are research in design and reading, the gifted child in reading and television and reading interests of children.

The enrollment, to be limited to 200, will give preference to those who are employed as remedial reading teachers, who are in graduate work in the field or who will be teaching reading for a number of years.
