Students get ideas on paper

by Terry Johnson

The student body meeting held in the Student Union last Sunday afternoon almost accomplished one of its goals; that of getting something concrete on paper.

Several proposals in the form of constitutional amendments were read to the assembly of some 250 students. It was decided that these amendments should be published in order that the students could better review them.

Yesterday a general election was held to see where student opinion lies concerning the amendments and other proposals.

Some of the faculty took part in the discussions. The grading system was discussed at some length, but no real answers were found.

Also, several academic proposals were brought up. It was suggested that the level of academic achievement at McPherson should be raised. Methods on how to accomplish this goal varied considerably.

The general opinion of the students towards the meeting seemed to be that of getting things started. A lot of time was wasted, some said, by talking about irrelevant subjects—such as the immediate changing of the grading system.

The election results will perhaps show how much the students want to accomplish, how willing they are to work for student regulation of dorms and other social amendments.

Poetry entries due April 10

All college students are invited to submit manuscripts for consideration for the annual anthology of college poetry. Closing date for submission is April 10.

Each effort submitted must be on a separate sheet and every manuscript must bear the author's name, home address, city, state, and college attended.

The annual competition is sponsored by the National Poetry Press, 3210 Selby Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.

Singers come here Feb. 23

K-State Singers will be in concert Monday, Feb. 23, at 8 p.m. in Brown Auditorium. The McPherson County Woman's Club is sponsoring this program which has an admission of $1.

The K-State Singers from Kansas State University, Manhattan, have been a popular singing and entertaining group since the organization was started in 1954. They have performed widely throughout the Midwest and have made frequent TV and radio appearances on local stations.

Jerry Polich, Assistant Professor of Music, is the director of the group, and Sharon Washington is the choreographer.

There is more than vocal talent among the K-State Singers. The students from the Sunflower State have put together a show filled with singing, dancing, and instrumental solos. Their program includes rock, folk, jazz, and music from the Broadway stage.

Five times in recent years the K-State Singers have made overseas USO-Department of Defense-National Music Council tours to entertain the American servicemen.

Most of the performances which the K-State Singers give each year are at banquets for business, civic, school, and church organizations. One of the important fund-raising drives for a charity which the group does each year is the Music Scholarship Benefit Concert.

Although membership in the Singers is limited to non-music majors, proceeds from this and other concerts provide several full scholarships for music students at Kansas State University.

Around Campus

Kansas Music Education Association will hold their annual meeting at Wichita State University on Feb. 20-21. This meeting will include various choral and instrumental workshops and speakers.

Several members of McPherson's Music Educators National Conference and music professors will be in attendance.

Election of 1970-71 officers was held at the Feb. 11 meeting of the Student Education Association.

The results of the election is as follows: Jerry Schrock, soph., Harmony, Minn., president; Brenda Reddinger, soph., Cleona, Pa., vice-president; Jan Naylor, jr., Waterloo, Ia., secretary; Janet Mason, soph., Norborne, Mo., treasurer; Bob Knechtel, soph., Boonton, N.J., publicity-historian.

SEA will have their next meeting on March 11, at which time Dr. Daryl Berry will speak about the $6500 Resolution.

McPherson College Trustee annual meeting will be March 6-7.

Following the Tabor-McPherson basketball game on Feb. 20 there will be free popcorn served at the Mac Shack until 1 a.m.

460 students sign petition

by Terri Elechberger

Women's right were greatly enhanced and supported by a majority of the student body last week.

Due to the concentrated efforts of individual students, the proposal (for the extension of the card or key system to all sophomore and second semester freshman women and for the distribution of cards twice per month, excepting the first month of school, for all first semester freshman women with the same rules of conduct, parental permission, and use of cards effective now applied to both conditions) was well circulated and supported.

Those who helped were Mary Krehbiel, Becky Keim, Mark Hochwender, Bruce Kitzel, Dennis Haugen, Becky Durbon, Nancy Ehninger, Kevin Hair, Mike Loveless, Frank Berens, John Peterson, and myself. Linda Sleenwenhoek and Terri Pifer contributed posters. These students and Thomas W. Deal, assistant professor philosophy and religion designed the proposal.

At this time there are 480 members of the College community including on-campus and off-campus students, faculty, and dorm mothers—who have endorsed and supported the proposal.

Many of the off-campus students and some faculty were never located to read the proposal. Those few students who did read but refused to sign the proposal mostly were against freshmen obtaining cards.

Faculty members who did not sign felt either that freshmen are too immature or that it was up to the students alone to decide and support this proposal.

Nevertheless, of this 480, an approximate 460 are students, which means that 70 per cent of

Convo features Danish baron

Baron Erik Gydenkron of Copenhagen, Denmark, will speak at Convocations on Thursday, Feb. 26 in Brown Auditorium at 9 a.m.

Gydenkron has been consistently interviewed over the past two years by the Danish newspapers and radio because of his inspiring impact on the public and his initiative in the educational field.

He has been lecturing to the faculties of mathematics, psychology, geography, and medicine at the University of Copenhagen, and has talked over the radio and lectured from the internationally famous platform of the Students Club.

This is Gydenkron's first visit to the United States.

the student body endorse this proposal. This shows what the student body wants. The problem now is to make what we want reality.

In fact, the struggle to realize this proposal has just begun. Although 70 per cent should be an impressive figure, it is still necessary to demonstrate our support of this proposal. We can't stop now.

The proposal will be submitted to Mrs. Anne Price, dean of women, this week and she will later present it at a Student Life Committee meeting. The final decision will be made by the administrative committee (whatever that is).

We must not lose track of this proposal in the maze of institutionalized committees. It is up to the students who have endorsed this proposal to support it all the way. I'll keep you informed.

Circle K checks ready

Friday is the last day to pick up checks from the Circle K book sale.

Checks will be available in the Student Council room in the SU basement from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. Friday.

FS meets

Federated Students of the Associated Colleges of Central Kansas held their Feb. 7 meeting at McPherson College, with Al Berg, Tabor College, presiding.

Berg reported that he had presented the November motion and the FSACK position paper to the ACKK board of directors on Jan. 26. The board passed the motion as it now stands, advisory capacity.

After a discussion concerning the selection of committee representatives, a motion that the schools send representatives to the committees on a rotating basis, with each school picking a representative and appointing him to the FSACK council for that year, was voted upon and carried. The representatives will be approved by the FSACK council and will be responsible to this council.

The Leadership Conference was scheduled for May 1-2 with Friday afternoon and evening to be concerned with a consultant speaking on ecology, the black situation, urban problems, or another current issue. Sat-

Library to open in April

Tentative completion date of Miller Library is sometime during the first week in April. All materials are here, but a number of skilled craftsmen were unavailable so that some of the interior work was not being completed as rapidly as originally scheduled.

President Melhorn says, "Our hope is that the building will be opened in time for this graduating class to be the first ones to use the new facility. We are anxiously awaiting the opening of the new building of which we can be proud."

MCY sponsors special speaker

Sam Dalton, a Denver Negro, will "tell it like it is" on Feb. 26 at 7:30 in Brown Auditorium as a special event in Brotherhood Week which is Feb. 22-26. He is sponsored by the MCY and local churches.

Mr. Dalton has worked as a production manager for 15 years, and has spoken all over the nation and world the past four years. He speaks to groups of all ages. The emphasis of his talk is not Black Power or White Power, but Christ Power.

Music will be provided by the community Negro churches. An offering will be taken and part of it will help with local Negro churches.

urday would be reserved for student government issues.

Berg will be trying to obtain a student government consultant and will take any suggestions which are of minimum cost and can be obtained within the ACKK.

Activities of individual student governments of the ACKK schools were discussed.

Sterling has not been active except in the area of research.

KWU has a new president and is working on a $13 additional assessment on the activity fee.

Tabor defeated a motion to disband and will sponsor an open forum with the college administration at their next meeting.

Bethel is proposing that all dorms be coed and is working on a day to evaluate the curriculum.

Bethany is revising the handbook, attempting to start a radio station, and sponsoring a President Appreciation Day.

Berg announced that he would appreciate the exchange of student government minutes, catalogs, handbooks, activity announcements, and newspapers between the ACKK schools.

The date for the next meeting was set for March 7 at the McPherson College coffeehouse at 1:30 p.m.

Mac mistakes Christian role

The stereotyped picture of the Church of the Brethren on this campus, particularly but not exclusively of non-Brethren students, creates a misunderstanding of what the "Christian" college should be.

Although temperance and retreat from the world were once the strongholds of Brethrenism, most of today's young Brethren don't find the church saying "Thou shall not somke," "Thou shall not drink," and "Thou shall attend church each Sunday."

Instead, and rightly so, the concerns are those of war and peace, poverty, racial equality — that is, the call to replace injustice with justice, despair, misunderstanding, and hate with hope, reconciliation, and love.

Admittedly, not all local congregations see this role for the church, but the Christian academic community should not be bound to what constitutes the church for another group.

Thus it's time we on campus recognize that rules pertaining to personal conduct do not come from the true church but from people; and if we want change, it's the people we must deal with.

Also, we must see that the greatest challenges to a Christian college are not those petty issues of personal freedom, but the greater need for justice and love among all mankind.

We get letters

Concern is clarified

After reflecting on the meeting of the student body, I feel that any stand may have been misinterpreted by some. This is understandable considering the repartee and emotion involved.

I stated that I felt McPherson was not entirely fulfilling my educational needs. This statement needs some qualifications.

It is my observation that the factual content courses which we have now are adequate in most cases and excellent in some. I feel, however, that one's total education goes much deeper than the ability to recite content.

One of the purposes of an education is to build character. By this I do not mean forcing one's morals or any other trend of thought upon someone else. I believe that character is built by facing issues that are of great importance to the individual and to the society in which he lives.

Some of these issues are the awareness of life, death, good, evil, war, peace, and the obligations of every citizen within a society.

If one can educate himself in these areas, fine. This does not, however, purge the institution of the responsibility of bringing these issues to the student. Courses of this nature are in construction and apparently have been successful.

Manchester College, for example, offers a number of core courses of this type. In their humanities Core II (Freedom and Responsibility), a study of the issues of freedom and form, self-realization and restraint, and several other topics are discussed by using the whole spectrum of content found in the Humanities Division.

A course of this type which uses the content of a discipline to teach one to relate his education to current issues has merit.

I have not been confronted with issues of this nature in my educational experience at McPherson, except briefly in a religion course. The issues above and many more, I feel, are of great importance in the lives of all individuals.

If one faces these issues with the content of his discipline, it is my conviction that he will build character and become an educated individual. This responsibility lies not only within him but also in the institution which is striving to educate people.

May I state once again that content is necessary and essential in one's major field.

Mac: College or Cloister

by Alan Flory

What is it? A return to the good old days? Back to 1887? Well, decide for yourself. . .

The Tentative Statement of Aims and Objectives prepared by the Long Range Planning Committee was printed in the Feb. 5 issue of the Spectator.

The majority of the objectives set forth are commendable, but a few aims are a definite departure from the aims of most students at McPherson College.

It is stated that the college attempts to develop a program of liberal education "by being aware of the historic commitments of McPherson College as a church-related college."

The College must also be aware of the commitments it has to the future of the students, which it can better accomplish by realizing that secularization is needed to be effective in reaching people.

Indubitably there is a use for Christianity, and it can have a place in college life and learning, but care must be taken to prevent Christian faith from overrunning liberal education.

The statements given by the LRP Committee do not seem to suggest the correct relationship between Christian faith and liberal education. An overt attempt to spread the "Word of God" at McPherson College will not be conducive to improving the academic atmosphere.

The impropriety of the situation should be evident. . . if Mac is really interested in other aims suggested it should not focus on the inculcation of religion. Most students in college today are not there to study religion, and they will not stay in any college that persists in emphasizing such a course of study.

"To acknowledge that all truth is of God" is one of the stated objectives. The ludicrousness of such a statement to most students at the College is beyond question.

Any flagrant attempt to impregnate the minds of students with such drivel will be the death-blow to the College. I personally would not want any such execrable nonsense to have a part of this educational institution, and I would never support this college if it tried to instill this idiocy in the curriculum.

If McPherson College is going to meet the needs of today's student it must realize that a student does not want or need assistance in viewing his life as "an opportunity for service to God. . ."

"To provide higher education within Christian context" as suggested by the stated aims should not be a major objective of this college unless it expects to appeal to a completely different segment of students.

Any such move will definitely turn Mac into a cloister, and if this is the aim of the College, it may as well return to another aspect of its founding—a total of 60 students.

Initiation needs changes

by Karen Woody

A "popular" topic for discussion these days seems to be the inherent evils of freshman initiation. Believing initiation to be exceedingly valuable, I offer these statements for discussion:

1) Initiation activities and the wearing of beanies offer many opportunities to meet new people. Can't you think of at least one person you met during initiation?

2) Initiation activities, especially the tug-of-war, encourage class spirit and unity which in turn become enthusiasm toward the whole college.

The success of future initiations depends on several improvements of the existing program. I offer these suggestions:

1) Initiation activities should be held Wed. - Sat. during the second week of classes. The shorter period of activities will end the monotony and keep emotions high and enthusiastic.

2) Activities must be well planned and communicated to the freshmen.

3) The practice of throwing freshmen men in the lagoon at will is dangerous and becomes a detriment to possible friendships. Possibly disciplinary action is the remedy for this situation.

4) Initiation should not be mandatory. Those feeling that their personal rights are being violated may decline the invitation to participate in initiation without fear of punishment.

If handled correctly, initiation offers many opportunities for fun and friendships. We need not throw it out — just improve it and enjoy it!

Clarification is asked

In the Statement of the aims of McPherson College I found strong references to the church affiliation of this campus. Now, the Church of the Brethren has been a peace church during its history and it would only be consequent if this college would be peace oriented.

Yet I have seen signs indicating that a Navy recruiting officer is going to be on this campus next week. I do not think that this goes along with the tradition of the Church of the Brethren.

Do you have any explanation why this Christian college does not take a stand on the issue of militarism?

K. Eckhard Kuhn-Osius

However, to say that education stops with factual knowledge and an educational institutions' responsibilities stop here is verging on absurdity.

At times I find it difficult to believe that much thought is required by a test which asks one to regurgitate facts to the instructor.

I believe that courses which deal not with factual recitation but the use of actual content as a tool in stimulating reflective thought would have more merit than many of the courses now required.

To recite the thoughts of someone else is not thought on your part. The ability however, to take the thoughts of others and evaluate them according to your observations and thoughts is making one's education relevant.

It is the responsibility of an educational institution to confront the student with all types of issues and require him to "think" about them just as it requires the student to grasp the content within his discipline.

My primary concern is with the total education I am receiving at McPherson College. I believe that my list of priorities delegates a much greater expenditure of energy into the education we are receiving.

Employers will see seniors

About 30 potential employers will be seeing the seniors on campus today as part of Career Day.

Coeds win another, Dogs win two big games

by John Miller

The McPherson College women's basketball team defeated the Kansas State University coeds 40 to 37 Friday, Feb. 13 in a close game.

This was K-State's first loss to a Kansas team so far this season. High scorer was Mary Hutchison with 17 points and Kathy Rogers had 13.

Saturday, Feb. 14, McPherson suffered their first loss of the season to the University of Kansas coeds 67 to 61 at Lawrence.

McPherson coeds now have a seasonal record of 7-1. The loss ended a 15-game winning streak which started last season.

The three highest scorers were Mary Hutchison with 23 points, Kathy Rogers with 13, and Leanna Mease with 12.

Kansas hit 58 per cent of its shots from the field and McPherson, 52 per cent. At the free throw line, Kansas outshot McPherson 58 to 57.

The next game will be at the Roundhouse on Friday, Feb. 20, against the Tabor College coeds.

On Tuesday, Feb. 10, the McPherson College Bulldogs defeated the Kansas Wesleyan Coyotes by a score of 77-73. KW came into the game undefeated in conference play and as impressive 17-1 overall record.

Cosach Widrig and his Bulldogs were ready and anxious to meet KW since they lost to the Coyotes in their last meeting. The Bulldogs were superb on defense as they held the Coyotes to 73 points or 41 percent from the floor.

McPherson was not quite as sharp in offense as they were held to only 77 points, far below their 86 game average.

Coach Widrig thought they missed some easy shots, but more than made up for it as they made 27 of 32 free throws, or 84 percent.

In my estimation, the game was won under the boards, as the Bulldogs pulled down 47 rebounds to Kansas Wesleyan's 32. The Coyotes had an average of 2 inches in height on each man, but Harold Turner, Bill Chenowith, and Mike Parks teamed up to control the boards.

Outstanding scorers were Jim Mowry, Hal Wright, and Lowell Monke. Much of the credit must go to Dick Thompson, who came off the bench with minutes remaining and scored 7 points along with some outstanding defensive plays.

On Saturday, Feb. 14, the Bulldogs defeated the Swedes of Bethany College, 76-68. The Bulldogs put on a good team display at both ends of the court, and were especially outstanding as they held the Swedes to a very stingy 68 points, the second lowest amount of points allowed by the Bulldogs this season.

Coach Widrig's ballhawks, staying basically in a man to man defense, held Dale Gorsky, Brazil, Argentinian, Chile, Peru, and Mexico.

In each of these ports we had a wealth of experiences, some of them good and some bad. While WCA does provide a college education while on the ship, the greatest education occurs while in-port. It gives the opportunity to learn more about the world and its' people from a personal point of view.

For me, it was the experience of a lifetime.

Bulldogs success.

Dick Thompson filled the role of high scorer as he came off the bench once again to lead the team in scoring with 19 big and important points, 16 which came in the first half.

Lowell Monke, noted for his defensive talents, showed his skill on offense as he hit for 17 points. Jim Mowry and Hal Wright each played a fine ball game scoring 14 and 8 points respectively.

Bill Chenowith, Harold Turner, and Mike Parks, splitting the assignments at the post positions, has equally fine performances at both ends of the court. All three men made crucial plays in rebounding and scoring late in the game.

Another great contribution to the win was the crowd which attended this game. The attendance in this contest was something at which each and every member of this College can be proud of.

Golf, baseball get underway

For those interested in trying out for baseball, there will be a meeting, Friday, Feb. 20 at 4 p.m. in the gym classroom. Attendance at this meeting is important. The season opens with Baker at McPherson on March 21, and ends with Sterling on May 8.

Those who are interested in taking part in varsity golf this spring should contact Coach Sid Smith as soon as possible.

WCA finds excitement

Dr. Harley Stump, professor of English on sabbatical leave, enjoys a meal aboard the World Campus Afloat.

by Linda Keim

Editor's note: Linda Keim, soph., McPherson, spent last term studying on World Campus Afloat. Also aboard ship was Dr. Harley Stump, professor of English, and Mrs. Stump, who remained on ship this term for travel to the Orient. Dr. Stump, now on sabbatical leave, will return to McPherson this summer.

A semester seeing the world became a reality for 461 students Oct. 9, 1969, as the S. S. Ryndam set sail from New York. Aboard were students and faculty representing 49 states and 8 foreign countries, all new members of a unique floating community.

The S. S. Ryndam is a Dutch ocean liner which has been converted into a floating University by Chapman College in Orange, Calif.

The Ryndam (pronounced Rhinedam) itself includes many of the conveniences of a land campus. It is equipped with a swimming pool (salt water), deck tennis, volleyball court, sun decks, student union, classrooms, an 80,000 volume library, a bookstore, snack bars, and a small store.

Life on a ship created a definite adjustment problem right from the start. Students and faculty alike were effected by the new sensation of living on "unstable ground." It did seem to have a more disturbing effect on the older generation, but many found it quite pleasant to be rocked to sleep at night.

Other minor adjustments were doing all your wash by hand, learning to appreciate Dutch-style American cuisine, trying to learn enough Dutch to figure out what your stewardess was whispering about, and attempting to be one of the few who didn't have to wear a cast. This was the result of playing volleyball on a deck that met you half-way in mid air.

We soon discovered that the excitement of ship life was minor to what we would experience in-port.

We visited England, The Netherlands (Germany), Portugal, Turkey, Greece, Italy (Austria, Switzerland, Germany, Leichtenstein), Tunisia, Spain, Guinea, Brazil, Argentinian, Chile, Peru, and Mexico.

In each of these ports we had a wealth of experiences, some of them good and some bad.

While WCA does provide a college education while on the ship, the greatest education occurs while in-port. It gives the opportunity to learn more about the world and its' people from a personal point of view.

For me, it was the experience of a lifetime.

Summer courses to meet student interests, needs

For the summer students, an effort has been made to make this year's summer courses meet the interests and needs of the students. A number of visiting professors will add strength to the faculty, and tuition may be reduced on some courses.

A new element in this summer schedule is the addition of two courses (on a trial basis) for graduate students: Individualizing and Instruction Workshop and the Social Studies Workshop.

These courses are offered through the cooperation of Pittsburg State College with the ACCK, and are open to students

Former prof makes debut

Loren D. Reyher, director of theater at McPherson College 1964-67, will make his off-Broadway debut in March in a premier production in the new St. Mark's Playhouse in Greenwich Village.

The play is in rehearsal for an opening date at the end of March.

While at McPherson College, Reyher acted in two of his own plays, "Roses in the Square" and "Love in a Public Pool."

Memorial service was held on Feb. 17 at the weekly McPherson College Chapel for Gary Sedlack, soph., Wausau, Wis., who was killed in an accident the evening of Feb. 13.

Thanasarn Ampateme, soph. student from Thailand who is better known as "Tik", is listed in satisfactory condition at McPherson County Hospital. Gary B. Stauffer, soph., Rocky Ford, Colo., who was the driver of the car, was reported to be "resting comfortably" at the hospital.

Dhanadol "Ong" Rajanivat, a student from Thailand, gave a tribute to Gary Sedlack, at the service. The Male Quartet sang, and Prof. Dale Goldsmith and the Rev. James Tomlinson led the worship. Dr. J. Jack Melhorn presided.
