We're back

by Karen Winter

Returning to school each year means renewing old friendships, making new friends, and continuing to pursue our number one goal: to graduate.

As we encounter opportunities to participate in various activities on campus and around town, we put our studies by the wayside in pursuit of a more fun-filled way to spend our time.

Eventually, though, we do hit the books, attend classes, and do research for our papers, all the while counting the days until our next break.

Freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors alike feel the pressure to succeed in whatever they do, whether it is competing in sports, performing in theatre, getting good grades, making close friends, or just plain passing classes.

A new dawning

by Judy Holloway

The dawning of a new day arouses strong emotion. When you survey the world in the soft, coral flush of daybreak, as shadows edge out on the sun-splashed countryside, bright with wildflowers, and listen as the meadowlark sings its lilting song—the experience is one of pure exhilaration.

And, so it is, also, for those of us here to witness the dawning of a new century in the life of McPherson College. Although volume one was a time of great change, growth, and achievement, it is now but a distant memory. But for those of us who are involved in the opening chapters of this new volume, it is, indeed, a time of great excitement. A time of wonder.

As you look around the beautiful campus, the opening chapters begin to unfold... The text itself will be written, in part, by you and me. It will be the documentation of a unique and extraordinary time in the life of many. It will document our future.

'The dream ...'

Homecoming

by Anne Kletchka

Students, faculty, and alumni participated in many homecoming activities as they celebrated the beginning of the second century at McPherson College. The 1988 theme, "...the dream that is yet to be," was appropriate for the occasion.

Members of the Board of Trustees arrived on Thursday, Oct. 13. Committee meetings were held all day followed by a trustee banquet in the evening. Friday there was a full Trustee Board meeting where the 1988-89 budget was finalized and reports and recommendations were made.

Several groups were involved with the planning of the week's activities. The homecoming committee sponsored a student banquet, a pep rally, a dorm decoration contest, an extra-curricular fair, and the annual five and two mile run.

The Student Activities Board also provided campus events. Christian Stephens, a contemporary Christian rock group, performed in Brown Auditorium on Monday, Oct. 10. Over 100 people attended. On Tuesday, Oct. 11, students enjoyed an evening of bowling at Starlite Lanes.

Homecoming week stirs excitement

The second annual Miss Bulldog USA Contest took place on Wednesday, Oct. 12. Five football players participated in four categories: swimwear, talent, interview, and evening wear. Bobby Holland, Alan Leffew, James Dudley, C.J. Manning, and William Harris entertained an enthusiastic audience of 125. The evening was successful for Alan Leffew who was crowned Miss Bulldog 1988.

Thursday, Oct. 13, fans witnessed a 21-0 football victory. For the second year in a row, the Freshman/Sophomore team defeated the Junior/Senior team in powder puff football. The girls exhibited good sportsmanship as well as official powder puff t-shirts.

The second annual Mad Mac's Olympics took place Friday, Oct. 14. Five teams representing the freshmen, sophomores, juniors, seniors, and faculty competed in the games. Events included a balloon toss, an egg drop, a rootbeer float-eating contest, and an obstacle course. Awards were given to the winning freshmen team.

The theatre department presented the production "Hay Fever" directed by senior Lora Coffman. Performances were on Friday and Saturday nights.

Saturday, Oct. 15, was a warm, autumn day as a homecoming crowd gathered at the stadium to witness a 35-34 Bulldog victory over the Kansas Wesleyan Coyotes. Among the crowd were many members of the 1952 conference championship football team who were honored at halftime.

Also during halftime, Tracy Barrett and Darrin Boster were crowned Homecoming Queen and King. Their attendants were Lisa Mick, Barbie Sayler, Jamie Spexarth, and Paul Sweeney.

Homecoming

Dreams are fulfilled

The homecoming dream continued through the night as many attended the semi-formal dance in the Student Union. The afternoon's victory was a cause for celebration.

Under the direction of Katherine Baker, the choir presented their first concert of the year on Sunday, Oct. 16. The 1988 Homecoming celebration had come to a close.

Every person involved with the celebration had done so with their own special dream in mind. Whether that dream involved a football victory, being crowned Homecoming Queen, or even visiting with friends from the past, those dreams were fulfilled. Each life was touched with "...the dream that was yet to be".

'Hay Fever'

Comedy brings laughs

by Angie Wallick

"Hay Fever," directed by Lora Coffman, was presented Oct. 7, 8, 14, and 15.

"I felt that the play was a success. People seemed to really enjoy themselves," Lora said.

"Hay Fever" was written by Noel Coward and first produced in 1925 in London. "Hay Fever" is a hilarious situational comedy set in the Roaring '20s featuring the fictional Bliss family.

The family members were: Sorel Bliss played by Christine Woodard; Simon Bliss, Eric Johnson; Judith Bliss, Diana Hunn; and David, Rhett Schmalzreid.

Each member of the family invites a guest to their country home to spend the weekend. Mayhem soon results as housing arrangements are hastily prepared by Clara, played by Lisa Lauer and the ill Amy, portrayed by Michele Roesch. The guests, however, quickly become disenchanted with their hosts.

The guests were: Ron Engler as Sandy Tyrell; Shannan Kirchner as Myra Arundel; John Lauer as Richard Greatham and Dawn Culbertson as Jackie Coryton.

Lora was enthusiastic about her backstage crew as well. Assisting were: Marti Tedrick, stage manager and publicity; Steven Brunk, sound; and D. Scott Webber, set construction.

The set forepersons were: Lora Coffman, Eric Johnson, Alan Leffew, Rick Tyler, Steven Brunk, Shane Kirchner, and Paul Sweeney.

"The important thing is that people had a great time," stated Coffman.

Murder mystery

'Angel St.'

by Sheila Howell

"Angel Street," a play by Patrick Hamilton, was performed by the McPherson College Theatre Department in Jesse's Cellar, the little theatre in Brown Auditorium, on Dec. 2, 3, 9, and 10.

The production, originally titled "Gas Light," was the senior acting project of D. Scott Webber. Webber selected the piece because it is a "period piece," set in Victorian London, and it is a melodramatic murder mystery.

The production featured Mr. Manningham, a demonic husband, portrayed by Webber. He is manipulating his wife, played by Shannan Kirchner, toward insanity by staging a series of events from which she will believe herself to be insane.

Mrs. Manningham is on the verge of fulfilling her husband's secret desires when Inspector Rough, played by John Lauver, arrives at the house to talk with her. He reveals to her that her husband is under suspicion of having committed a murder 15 years earlier. The action of the play was suspended between the attempts to catch Mr. Manningham at his game and his efforts to drive his wife insane.

Other cast members were Nancy, played by Michelle Roesch; Elizabeth, Debbie McCurry; and the police officers, Brian Kruschwitz and Alan Lefew.

The production crew included stage manager, Shane Kirchner; house manager, Robert Palmer; production assistant, Dawn Culbertson; technical director, Eric Johnson; lighting designer, Lora Coffman; properties, Tracy Hughes and Christy Woodard; costumes, Maru Tedrick; makeup, Dawn Culbertson; sound and First Nighters, Paul Sweeney.

Bella Manningham, played by Shannan Kirchner, brushes her hair in a state of nervousness upon hearing from Elizabeth that a man had come to see her.

'night, Mother

"'night, Mother," the Pulitzer Prize winning play about suicide by Marsha Norman, was presented Feb. 24 and 25 and March 3 and 4 in Jesse's Cellar.

Director Lora Coffman, who chose this play for her senior project, cast registrar Karlene Tyler as the widowed 65-year-old mother who tries to talk her determined daughter, played by Coffman's sister, Mary Harlow, (Class of '86), out of committing suicide.

The entire play takes place in the mother's home. The set, masterfully-designed by Shane Kirchner, was remarkably realistic, including kitchen cabinets constructed by Eric Johnson.

These three women teamed with senior Michelle Roesch, stage manager, to bring an all-woman production to campus.

"I didn't attempt to make this a separatist production," Coffman said. "However, the play lends itself to using women in the whole rehearsal process because the play is based on two women and more importantly, a mother and daughter, which is a relationship that only a woman can understand."

Stress shows on the face of Karlene Tyler (registrar) as she tries to convince her daughter, played by Mary Harlow ('86), not to commit suicide. Photos by Jack Patiño and Linda Oellig.

Tartuffe is still a favorite

Moliere's Tartuffe brought the 1988-89 theatre season to a successful close. Presented April 28 and 29, May 5 and 6 on the mainstage in Brown Auditorium, this seventeenth century comedy proved why it has remained popular throughout the years.

"Tartuffe" is the story of a French family and their mishaps with their hypocritical house guest. Orgon (Paul Minnich) invites Tartuffe (Jerel Eller) to live with him and his wife Elmire (Michelle LaFay). The household, except Orgon and his mother Madame Pernelle (Lisa Lauver) distrusts Tartuffe and schemes to expose him to Orgon for the coniving shrew he is.

Others in the play included D. Scam Webber as Cleante, Marti Tedrick as Marianne, Darren Carter as Damis, Rebecca Hockman as Madame Loyal, Tracey Hughes as Dorine, Shane Kirchner as Valere, and Melissa James as Madame Pernelle's maid.

SAB sponsors fall dances

Traditional SAB-sponsored dances took place throughout the school year: the Back-to School, Valentine's, Regional Youth Conference, and Hawaiian Dances. In addition to this collection was the Winter Formal.

Taking place on Friday, Dec. 9, the Winter Formal was held at the Red Coach Inn. Wanting to provide a formal, off-campus activity, SAB members spent several months preparing for this event.

A professional disc jockey from Wichita was hired, and he proved to be a success with his selections of music. Red and green balloons and streamers were creatively placed around the room, and candles on the tables and Christmas trees along the walls added to the decor. A buffet table provided finger food and punch for students. Also, a photographer was available to "capture the moment." The event was a refresher as students began finals the following week.

Convocations offer variety

The 1988-89 Convocations Series brought a variety of speakers to campus again this year.

Two special lectures series, which are part of the convocations series as well, are the Mohler Lecture in the fall and the Heritage Lecture in the spring. Arkansas legislator Irma Hunter Brown encouraged students to become involved in the political processes during the Mohler Lecture in November. Dr. David Hassell of Loyola University inaugurated the Heritage Lectures in April by discussing faith and learning.

Faculty presentations included a slides and a talk on "Current Trends in Chinese Culture" by ACCK visiting scholar Li Jiao of the People's Republic of China, a trombone recital by Dr. Larry Kitzel, a multi-media show "Looking Through the Eyes of Art" by Prof. Susan Dodson, and sharing on life's journey by Prof. Rick Tyler.

Other topics included a sexual assault awareness film, organized by a new group, CASA (Citizens Against Sexual Assault), a lecture on homelessness in America by Scott Cheseboro of the Urban Life Center, and a lecture on steroids by trustee Dr. Robert Wilson of Wichita.

The Thanksgiving convocation was "A Celebration of Life" in memory of Phil Hofen, a 1988 graduate who courageously battled cancer before his death on June 28, 1988.

Other traditional convocations, including a Christmas celebration to end the fall term, the Music Honors Recital and Awards Assembly in the spring, and four lectures by President Hoffman, were held again this year.

Two whales give glimpse of brotherhood

by David Clayton

What should constitute a collection of important events which took place during the last twelve months? How does one select the truly remarkable occurrences that give each year distinction? Better yet, what makes these events significant? Should we remember the Armenians for their suffering after a devastating earthquake, the pictures of mangled bodies, lives fluttering out in sub-zero temperatures inside of tents? Or shall we remember the outpouring of sympathy and relief efforts from the world, and the lines of Americans outside the Soviet embassy offering donations to aid in the relief effort? Should we brood over political differences and super-power bureaucracy, or shall we take heart in the plight of two whales trapped under the ice-flow in Alaskan waters—two whales who brought the super-powers together for a few days in an event so small, so insignificant, so motivated by forces other than political as to give us all a brief, though fleeting, glance at brotherhood? Can we afford to lament the fact that our congressmen's incomes are less than those of most corporate executives, or can we see light in the fact that Americans realize minimum wage has not risen in eight years, and if the lower economic class must struggle, so must the powerful whom they help elect?

If this is not the average year-end wrap-up, it is probably because the past twelve months have been less than average. The Senate set new moral standards on presidential Cabinet nominees, standards it apparently felt John Tower could not meet in order to become secretary of defense. The demand for ethics in government continued with allegations against democratic leader Jim Wright, and after a deluge of press coverage, an "impartial" jury convicted Oliver North on three charges relating to the Iran-Contra affair.

The beauty in this is clear. The nation, and in some cases the world, called for morality on many fronts. With each atrocity came support, apologies, and relief, and no matter how grandiose on a federal level, one cannot forget the sight of those individuals lined up to help the Armenians. One cannot forget that an almost boycott-free Olympic Games took place in Seoul, South Korea, where less than four decades ago the U.S. was in the middle of its first Vietnam, and though several athletes were either stripped of medals or not allowed to compete for testing positive in banned-substances tests, a general mood of kinship prevailed.

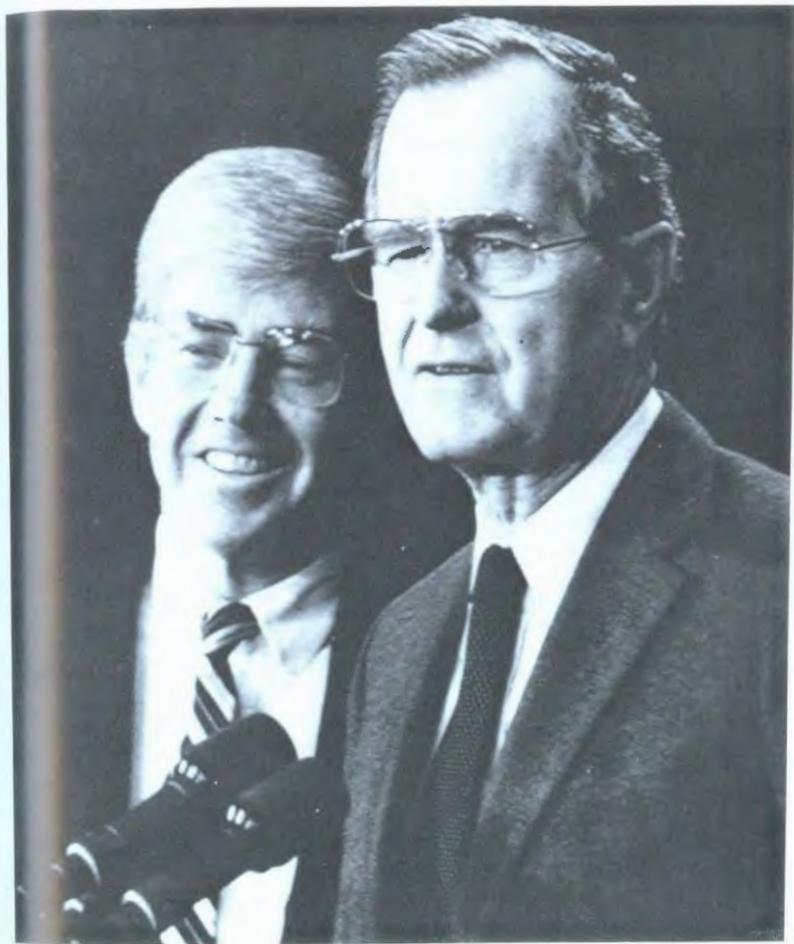

There are simply too many opportunities to find negatives during the past year; in fact, one is overwhelmed by them while reading even the smallest town-newspapers. What needs to be considered when recalling Salman Rushdie's "The Satanic Verses" is not that some fundamentalist Moslems called for Rushdie's assassination, but that people of Christian and Jewish faith finally had a chance to learn, through editorials and features, some of the true tenets of Islam. There was a democratic election in Chile, African nations banded together to save the African elephant, space shuttles again reached orbit, Perestroika gained momentum (in fact, my great-uncle was finally allowed to leave East Germany), a black man ran for the Democratic nomination for the highest office in the land, and one of the biggest movies around, "Rain Man," featured a developmentally disabled person.

Several earthquakes shook California, but the West Coast remained the West Coast. Other American ideals were shaken as well. A comatose woman underwent an abortion after a two week battle between anti-abortionists and the woman's family, while Roe vs. Wade sat on the verge of making the Supreme Court's calendar. Debate mounted over Americans' right to bear arms, with respect to fully and semi-automatic assault rifles. Overall, America wrestled most with her conscience. The 25th year passed since JFK's assassination, and moral debates of the '60's arose again, even as eyes cried once more for a fallen hero.

On the subject of presidents, a new one, George Bush, was sworn in, riding into office carrying not only new ideas, but the hopes of all Americans, regardless of their vote, that peace and human rights might continue to be approached in all nations, and that the U.S. might serve as a beacon.

Certainly, there were hardships, many humans died tragic deaths, and we cannot forget their sufferings less we fail to learn as a race. Yet there are two whales, swimming free somewhere, reminding us just how close the human race is to security when humanity dictates the actions of the U.S. and U.S.S.R.

In November George Bush defeated Massachusetts Governor Michael Dukakis to become the forty-first president of the United States. Rain doesn't damper spirits at 101st commencement

The 101st commencement ceremony at McPherson College on Sunday, May 21, was graduation day for eight-three seniors.

Dr. Stewart Hoover, McPherson College graduate of 1973 and professor at Temple University, told the graduates, "A liberal arts education is not designed to prepare you for the first job you get. It is to prepare you for your last job."

Melissa James, senior class president, delivered the senior statement, and the College Concert Choir sang "Cantique de Jean Racine" by Gabriel Faure and "I Can Tell the World" arranged by Jester Hairston.

The wet lawns forced the reception after the ceremony to be moved inside the Student Union, but no one complained as the morning downpour promised an end to the spring drought.

Dotzour ... activities abound

Dotzour Hall residents kept active this year. Along with the campus Halloween dance, they sponsored the second annual Pictionary Tournament, raised money for an additional microwave and designed and printed a Dotzour sweatshirt.

The dorm adopted a new mascot, Sebastian, the black cat who was well taken care of by the girls. However, due to the "no- uncaged-pets-allowed" rule, Sebastian was forced to find a new home during the spring semester.

This was Brenda and LaMonte Rothrock's fourth and final year as Dotzour resident directors. They and their boys will be missed.

Bitteringer... the quiet dorm

Bitteringer Hall, the honors dorm on the "far side" of campus, had a relatively quiet year. Their main activity was the Bitt movie night when video movies were shown in the lounge on Tuesday nights. This tradition ended when the downtown theater offered discount tickets to full-time students in the spring.

Jamie and Gary Foulke were the new resident directors for the year. They will not be returning next year, as they have both graduated.

Beginning next year, there will be a student Residence Hall Assistant who will be in charge of keeping order in the dorm.

Fahnestock... shows spirit

Fahnestock Hall residents have kept busy this year with several traditional campus activities. With the landscape changes, the Fanny guys had to move to Lakeside Park for their Ultimate frisbee games. The evening event of Frisbee Golf was renewed in the spring, with a new 12-pole course on campus.

Fanny Liberation Army (FLA) showed its spirit in several ways, the most apparent being the removal of maintenance stakes and twine to form modern artwork between Brown Auditorium and the Student Union.

Former Bitt resident, Doug Wine, took over as resident director this year. Fanny ended the year in traditional fashion with the toga dance and Fanny picnic.

Metzler ... sports a new look

Metzler men started the school year off with a new look and a new resident director. During the summer, renovations were made which gave the dorm a face lift. Rooms were carpeted, walls were painted, lounges received new furniture and new, moveable desks and beds were installed in the rooms.

Gerald Henderson moved from Fahnstock to Metzler to become the new resident director.

Winning season

Thiessen leads Bulldogs to 2nd place

by Kristi Clark

The McPherson College football team posted their first winning season since 1975 as they astonished their KCAC contenders with a 7-3 record and finished the conference race in second place behind Bethany College.

It seems as though third-year coach Dan Thiessen has been able to turn the football program around where others have failed to do so. He, his staff, and the 1988 football squad have lighted the spark for a potentially successful future.

The Bulldogs started the year on the right foot by defeating Bethel College in the season opener. School spirit was soaring high until the Bulldogs lost the following two games leaving fans wondering if it was going to be another losing season. But the team was not to be let down another year as they went on to win the next two games preceeding Homecoming.

The Bulldog was bursting with pride as the football team provided a spectacular show for the packed stands at Homecoming which included such critics as members of the winning 1958 football team. This particular game kept the fans on the edge of their seats as the team won by the slim margin of 35-34.

The Dogs tackled each of the remaining conference opponents with a fierce desire to win. They lost a crucial game to Southwestern, but this loss was revoked when it was discovered that the Moundbuilders had used an ineligible player. After the team won their sixth game, they lost a close season finale to Bethany.

Now that the Dogs have shown their ability as a young, talented, and winning team we are all anxiously awaiting the next season. Coach Thiessen has a solid foundation to build upon, but he has his hands full replacing key players from the senior class.

McPherson College's football team was appropriately honored for their great season as Dan Thiessen was named Coach of the Year; Mike Henson and Jeff Hulsey were named on the All Conference First Team; Jon Johns, Stan Felton, Leroy Fields, and Terry Bruton were named on the All Conference Second Team; and David Corns, Tom Norman, and Bobby Holland received Honorable Mention for their efforts.

Kingery leads volleyball team

by Julie Gillaspie

The Lady Red volleyball team ended their season with a record of 12-22 overall and 6-12 in the conference. The season was highlighted by the unanimous pick of Tonya Kingery (sr., Basin, WY) for the All-KCAC team for the second year in a row. Kingery led the team in kills with 272. Kingery served 89 percent, had 69 solo blocks and 38 assisted blocks. Christy Allen (so., Woodland Park, CO) was also recognized as she was chosen as an honorable mention defensive specialist. Allen served 96 percent and had 30 digs on the year.

According to head coach Dan Hoffman, the team encountered many ups and downs throughout the season. "We have had some strong performances but our matches have been up and down." The team missed the support of team leader Tracy Barrett (jr., Cheraw, CO) who left midway through the season after hernia surgery.

A highpoint of the season came when the team tied for first place in the McPherson tournament with Park and Dana Colleges. Each team ended the tournament with a 4-1 record. According to Susan Mestagh (so., McLouth, KS) the team played well during the tournament. "We played together as a team instead of as individuals." Mac lost the first game to Park College, in the tournament, but came back to beat Concordia College (15-13, 15-11), Dana College (16-14, 15-12), Southwestern (13-15, 15-7, 15-13), and Baker (16-14, 15-12).

Building Season

Lady Red gain valuable experience

The McPherson College Lady Red basketball team gained valuable experience while compiling a 6 and 20 season record.

"There were about four or five more games where I felt like we could have won," second year coach Glenn Gayer said.

"We made some improvements this year," Gayer said. "Every time we stepped on the court, I thought we were capable of winning."

Gayer's assistant coach this year was former player Carol Zink ('88).

Seniors Tonya Kingery, Lisa Mick, and Vicki Finkenstadt closed out their basketball careers.

Returners who should help the team to a better record next season include Vicki Briceño, Karne Clark, Joyce Brown, Tracy Parks, Christy Allen, April Sacha, Tracy Barrett, and Ann Nelson.

Basketball spirits fly high!

by Brent Zamora

The 1988-89 McPherson College Bulldogs enjoyed yet another season full of much success. The Bulldogs, under the guidance of head coach Roger Trimmell and with the leadership of three talented seniors, finished as KCAC Runner-up and qualified for the District 10 Playoffs for the second consecutive year. Their season campaign finished with a 17-9 record.

The Bulldogs jumped out to a quick 11-2 mark early in the season, including impressive victories over District 10 foe Marymount in the season opener and a thrilling 93-92 overtime victory over conference, and intra-county rival, Bethany. The Bulldogs, however, struggled through the month of January with a 4-5 record, which turned the idea of Playoffs into a rather bleak picture. With a refurbished team determination and much crowd spirit, the Dogs closed out the regular season by going 5-2 after January. These included must wins over Bethany, Ottawa, St. Mary's and Sterling. The Bulldogs won 5 of their last 7 games, losing only to Conference Champion Friends, and Kansas Wesleyan in the infamous "The Day the Clock Stood Still" game.

This strong finish earned the Dogs yet another chance with a District 10 Playoff berth against Emporia State, in Emporia. Despite a tremendous effort by each and every MAC player, and the outstanding fan support, the Bulldogs dropped a 90-88 heartbreaker with a shot at the buzzer. The end of the 88-89 season brought with it the completion of senior careers--Brian Hill, Clint Kinnamon, and Mike Rohn. Hill, a two-time all-KCAC performer was eligible only during the first semester of the 88-89 season, and his absence was greatly felt. Kinnamon, a super-sub last year proved he could be just as valuable in the starting line-up. Mike Rohn, the 88-89 Co-Player of the Year in the KCAC, was again an indispensable floor leader. The Bulldogs also received much help from newcomers Jeff Sink and David Broadfoot, along with steady veterans Mike Dunekack and Doug Clark. The depth of the team provided strong bench support from the likes of Dave Barrett, Barry Carr, Scott Pederson, and Jim Bonar.

The 1988-89 Basketball season was full of anxiety and determination and provides many hopes as we look into tomorrow and next year.

Player of the Year and McPherson College Co-Male Athlete of the Year Mike Rohn was a crowd pleaser with his all-out hustle.

Women earn 3-3 mark

by Cindy Anderson

The women's tennis team, coached by Doris Coppock, earned a 3-3 conference record and a 4-5 overall mark during their season.

Competing in singles action for the Lady Red were: #1--April Sacha, #2--Amy Yoder, #3--Melía Dell, #4--Deanna Elliott, #5--Sandy Willis, #6--Vicki Briceño. In doubles action, Sacha and Dell teamed up for the #1 position, Yoder and Elliott played the #2 spot, and Willis and Briceño filled the #3 position.

In Conference action Sacha finished with a 3-3 mark and 4-5 overall. Yoder earned a 5-1 and 6-3 record, Dell went 3-6 and 1-5, Elliott 2-7 and 1-5, Willis 5-4 and 4-2, and Briceño 3-6 and 2-4.

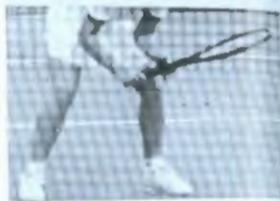

The Mac ladies finished fourth at the season final KCAC tournament. April Sacha, Sandy Willis, and the #1 doubles team finished fourth, and Amy Yoder and the #3 doubles team took third places in their respective divisions.

For her outstanding regular season and her tournament showing, senior Amy Yoder earned All-KCAC honors. "I was happy," Coach Coppock said. "Since she played #5 last year and moved up and played well at #2, I thought she deserved the honor."

Men take season in stride

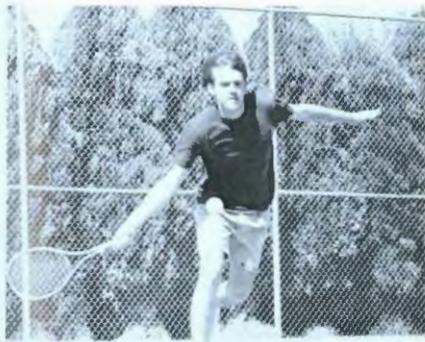

by Melissa James

The men's tennis team, coached by Dan Thiessen, took the season in stride as they ended the year with one win against Ottawa.

The players made up a young team, but showed much improvement throughout the season. Coach Thiessen commented, "The team began to play more consistently toward the end of the season; it's too bad they couldn't have gotten there a little sooner."

Competing for the top six singles positions were: #1--Darrin Boster, #2--Todd Frankenberry, #3--Troy Leinen, #4--Jay Dell, #5--Bill Wilkins, and #6--both Barry Carr, and Wade Sears. In doubles action, Boster and Frankenberry teamed up for the #1 position; #2 was Dell and Leinen; and the #3 team was Wilkins and Carr.

With the team as young as they are, and first year coach Thiessen, the men's tennis team shows much hope for future building and success.

Records fall for tracksters

by Paul Bishoff

The McPherson College Track team finished up another great season with Coach Dan Hoffman at the wheel. Coaches Roland Wray and Vicki Mester also played a large part in the success of the team.

One of the big standouts for the season was William Harris who received All-American honors early in the season at an indoor meet in Kansas City. Harris concentrated on the 110 meter hurdles. Along with receiving All-American honors, Harris also qualified for the NAIA National Meet for the second year in a row.

Senior Jack Patiño led the teams distance runners throughout the track season. At the KCAC meet at Tabor College, Patiño set both a personal and a school record in the 10,000 meter event with a time of 31:47:00, seven seconds better than his previous best. Patiño stated, "I feel that I left the season on a good note." Patiño was also selected as male Co-Athlete of the Year.

Senior Tonya Kingery earned both All-Conference and All-District honors as well as being voted the female Athlete of the Year. Tonya participated in the javelin, long jump, triple jump, and the 4x100 relay.

All Conference runner Sally Geisert set a new McPherson College 5000 meter record at the 1989 KCAC meet, placing 2nd. Photos by Jack Patiño.

Kedzuf is new coach

Runners enjoy good season

The McPherson College cross country team enjoyed a successful season under first-year coach John Kedzuf.

"Overall it was a really good season with both the women's and men's teams showing well in all of the meets.

Senior Jack Patino led the men to a third place over-all finish in the KCAC Conference meet Nov. 5 in Salina by placing seventh with a time of 27.47. He also earned All-District 10 honors, placing 13th in the District 10 meet in Winfield.

Other men running were Ray Minchew, Jeff Gussie, Karl Larsen, Dan Irwin, Eric Hadley, Matt Scoggins, James Bland, Kevin Davidson, and Jeff White.

The women were paced by sophomore Wendy Hartman. Hartman placed sixth at the KCAC meet to earn All-Conference honors and finished 20th in the District 10 meet with a time of 21.43. The women's team, which also included Sally Geisert, Katrina Hysong, Beverly Yokley, and Denise Kelly, finished fifth overall.

Coach Kedzuf, who ran while a student at McPherson College from 1968 to 1972, was happy with the team's progress. "All the runners have improved since the beginning of the season. I am really pleased with the season."

Eager golfers enjoy season

by Melissa James

Although the McPherson College golf team finished somewhat less successfully than they would have liked, Coach Doris Coppock said, "The guys were eager to play and very coachable which made the season much more enjoyable for everyone involved."

A sport which is not often recognized seems more difficult when it comes to establishing and obtaining goals.

Returning from last year's second place conference team were Brent Atwater, Bryan Hite, and David Williams. Adding new talent to the team were Jerry Rogers and Tim Cossaart.

Hite was MAC's top individual scorer throughout the year with scores ranging in the low 80's. Other members of the team shot in the mid 80's and 90's.

Coach Doris Coppock felt much better about her coaching abilities this year after attending a seminar session over the summer.

The Industrial Arts Club is open to IA majors and other interested persons. The group works to improve the department and stimulate interest in the various phases of Industrial Arts.

The Industrial Arts Club spent much of their time on the road with a trip to the Industrial Technology Education Association's National Convention in Dallas. They also visited Cherry Street Printing in McPherson and Lowen Signs in Hutchinson. Their big project was the printing and selling of spirit towels in the spring.

The trombones played in the cafeteria on May 9 and on Main Street for the parade activities on All Schools' Day.

The Brass Quintet activities included playing for a Red Cross appreciation banquet, a worship service at the Lenexa, KS, Church of the Brethren, and for commencement.

All ensembles participated in the March 5 concert in Brown Auditorium along with a new woodwind trio including Michelle Walker on the flute, Sally Geisert on the clarinet, and Denise Butler on the alto sax.

Quadrangle

Prof. Lowell Flory, Jeff White (jr), and Gayle Vacura ('88) enjoy Pizza Hut pizza following Business Club's election of officers.

Each fall a group of volunteers (who can receive journalism credit) organize to publish another edition of the Quadrangle, recording the important events, organizations, and people who have made this a special year at McPherson College. The staff includes seasoned journalists and photographers, but also novices gaining valuable experience. After many hours of hard work, they hope to create a book you'll enjoy now and in future years, too.

The Quadrangle staff received several awards for their efforts from the Kansas Associated College Press Contest this year. Those receiving awards include the following: Karen Winter, first place in feature photography; Lisa Mick and Karen Winter, third place in non-portrait design; Gail Gustafson, third place in portrait design; and Anne Kletchka, third place in copy. Since the book was not nearly finished at the time of the competition, submissions were limited. We hope the book gets a first place overall rating from its biggest critics, the students.

Prof. Susan Taylor completed her 10th year as adviser. Karen Winter was editor-in-chief and Anne Kletchka, business manager. Other staff members included Kristi Clark, Dee Ann German, Gail Gustafson, Michelle Hammond, Sheila Howell, Tokuko Kiriguchi, Brian Kruschwitz, Lisa Mick, Linda Oellig, Tammy Parker, and Teresa Smith.

Business Club

Organized to help students prepare to enter the business world and to promote good student/teacher relationships, the Business Club had several activities in their 1988-1989 year, including a cookout at the Flory's in September, a speaker in October, and a pizza party in May.

The highlight of this year's events, though, was the two-day trip to Kansas City on March 9 and 10. The group began its round of tours with Hunt Midwest Underground Storage, a company which makes use of natural caves for storage purposes. These caves are not only 55 degrees year 'round, but in the foreign trade zone.

Next on the agenda was a visit to the TWA overhaul base, where planes are repaired and tested. Thanks to trustee Dr. Paul Jewell, the group not only got a V.I.P. tour of the Federal Reserve Bank, but lunched in the executive dining room. They watched the trading of wheat shares at the Board of Trade and toured Hallmark's facilities as well.

Officers were Teresa Smith, president; Todd Wilson and Jamie Spexarth, vice-presidents; Dana Decker, secretary; Susan Barrows, treasurer; and Karen Winter, historian.

Phi Alpha Theta

Membership in the Epilon Eta Chapter of the National History Fraternity, Phi Alpha Theta (organized in 1954 and celebrating its 35th anniversary), is determined by high scholastic achievement and outstanding accomplishments in the field of history. Since it is an honorary organization, it is small, but belonging isn't easy. Congratulations go to Jennie Hall and Rebecca Hockman. The adviser is Dr. Leland Lengel.

Spectator

The Spectator staff has had another busy year compiling and printing the news that interests and affects McPherson College. After 13 issues, they have gained valuable experience in photography, writing, organization and design.

In the Kansas Associated Collegiate Press Contest (four-year private college division) the Spectator received a well-deserved first class rating with the following special awards: Paul Minnich, firsts in editorials and graphic design; Jack Patiño, seconds in reporting and sports photography; Anthony Phan, second in editorials, and Ray Minchew, third in sports features. Congratulations to a great staff.

Although being a member of the Spectator staff involves a lot of hard work, the staff did have a pizza party in the fall and a barbeque in the spring at the adviser's home.

Prospective teachers organized the Maurice A. Hess Chapter of the National Student Education Association in 1953 to increase their knowledge of the history, ethics and structure of the teaching profession. This year, its 36th, the group is still going strong.

S.N.E.A. took part in the Homecoming Fair, and sponsored two programs: the first discussed the Kansas National Education Association, and the second dealt with creative teaching methods.

The officers included Becky Widows, president, Lisa Patrick vice-president, and Amy Yoder, secretary/treasurer.

Their adviser was Prof. Joan Hoffman.

ISO

The International Student Organization provides an opportunity for foreign and American students to become acquainted and to learn about each others' cultural beliefs. It also serves to enhance their relationship with the community and with the other ACCK international clubs.

Favorite club activities included preparing and eating dinners of native cuisine. The club also shared food and information about their countries at special event held for the local Church of the Brethren.

Dr. Shingo Kajinami is the adviser.

Circle K

Circle K is an international organization stressing the need to share and care for others in the world.

Circle K was more active this year in an attempt to raise campus awareness about them. They began the year by helping at the book sale for the McPherson Public Library and assisting with the Sweet Adeline Concert. They planned and worked a booth at the International Bread Festival in McPherson to raise money for CROP.

The club sold survival kits both semesters and held monthly dorm raids in which candies were delivered to each room.

The two annual bloodmobile visits the club sponsors were successful, with the fall visit falling just short of their goal of 80 pints and the spring visit exceeding the goal by seven pints.

Circle K sponsored a beach-bowl fundraiser for Muscular Dystrophy in April. The final activity of the year was "Revert to Your Childhood Day," held on May 6. This was a day of fun and games including a pie throwing booth and trike races.

Psychology Club

The Psychology Club is an organization open to anyone who has an interest in the behavioral sciences and furthering consciousness of social issues. During fall term the Psychology Club sponsored a weekly movie night and a lecture series.

They were more active second term with a trip to St. Joseph, Mo., where they toured the St. Joseph State Mental Hospital. A visit to the Tri-County Community Mental Health Center, Kansas City, Mo., was included on the trip.

The club also traveled to Lincoln for the Great Plains Student Paper Presentation. They wrapped up the year with a BBQ-picnic.

Oasis

Oasis is an ecumenical spiritual support group which meets weekly and finds itself delving into the "tough" questions related to faith pilgrimages. Oasis held weekly meetings which included singing, prayer, Bible study and discussion.

The sponsor is Campus Pastor Kim Hill Smith.

Brethren Identity Group

The Brethren Identity Group exists for the purpose of providing Church of the Brethren students and other interested persons an opportunity to explore the heritage of the church, to discuss contemporary issues and the church's attitude toward them, and to sponsor activities that link church life to campus life.

Their activities included an ice cream social to begin the year, followed by a fall retreat and volunteer housebuilding for Habitat for Humanity during fall break. They sponsored a volleyball night in February and finished the year with a love feast and communion.

CASA

The Community Against Sexual Assault was established this year. They sponsored a sexual assault awareness workshop and planned a fall convocation on rape awareness which included a movie. In addition, they are establishing three sub-groups: support, advocacy, and education and information.

Peace Awareness Project

Tarra Clinefelter offers a friendly peace sign to a passing motorist during a peace march in September. Photo by Jack Patiño.

The stated purpose of the Peace Awareness Project is to provide a forum to bring peace and justice issues to students. Not only do they have weekly luncheons focused on global awareness, but they also have workshops, student and guest speakers, movies, videos and slide shows and take an active part in consciousness-raising activities. Their numerous activities included: participation in the Kansas Brethren World Peace Academy (Sept. 10-11), the Kansas March for Peace and Justice (Sept. 17 -- Smokey Hill; Oct. 1 -- State Capitol, Topeka) and many more.

Speakers and topics were interesting and varied: David Shire, "Habitat for Humanity"; Elsie Boulding, "Peacemaking as a Lifetime Calling"; Robert Epp, "One Man's Witness for Peace in Nicaragua"; Lucille Teicher, "The Urban Life Center" and other topics as insightful and stimulating.

Media presentations included "Beyond War," "Cry Freedom," and "Keeping the Dream Alive."

Peace, then, cannot be achieved by ignoring problems but through education, discussion and conscious action.

Campus Pastor Kim Hill Smith served as adviser for officers Mark Dooley, president; Rebecca Hockman, vice-president; and Shannan Kirchner, secretary/treasurer.

SAB

The Student Activities Board (SAB) was in full swing as the first week-end of the 1988-89 school year arrived. The freshmen orientation groups participated in a scavenger hunt. A list, consisting of items ranging from a MAC College handbook to a bale of hay, was given to each group. The groups were allowed one hour to find as many items as possible. The purpose of the event was to familiarize students with McPherson.

A new policy approved by Student Council went into effect in the fall. The Social Enrichment fund was designed to assist in the funding of campus-wide activities sponsored by clubs and organizations. The money is obtained through SAB. Dotzour Dorm took advantage of the fund when it sponsored the annual Halloween Dance. Alpha Psi Omega also used this fund to support the February Stage Dance in Brown Auditorium.

SAB provided an eventful year for students by sponsoring Homecoming activities, movie and sub nights, fun cycles, Putt Putt golf, bowling, and a Hawaiian week-end.

According to an SAB spokesperson, the goal of the organization is to "provide activities for students and faculty. The more there is to do on campus, the stronger school unity will be."

New faces, familiar faces-- college is a time for friends

College is a place for learning. It also provides a chance to form strong, sometimes life-long friendships. Some of the faces on the following pages will fade from our memories as the years pass, but others will never be forgotten.

Developing important friendships and finding people to share the good and the bad both help us grow as people and enrich our lives.

Living in close proximity to many types of individuals teaches us to cope with others' idiosyncracies and our own. It makes us appreciate the fact that no person is totally self-sufficient—we need other people.

We also learn that every action of ours will affect others in many ways. If we want a better world, or just to maintain the status quo, we can't do it alone. This realization creates caring, concerned people who could make a difference in their home, workplace, city, country, and perhaps, the world.

Non-traditional students

The title "non-traditional student" refers to those students who are older than 22. They may be single, married, or divorced, with children or not, but getting a college education is important to them all.

Most non-traditional students are included in their appropriate class section. If they already have a degree, they are pictured here. Either way, you'll see them taking notes in class and cramming for tests like everyone else.

Work ends, memories linger

by Gail Gustafson

You're a senior, now. You've spent four years of your life eating, sleeping and breathing McPherson College. You've survived the cafeteria food, numerous convocations and lectures, late-night study and rap sessions and long parties.

When you leave this place that has been your home, you will not only bring a diploma with you, but memories of good times and good friends. People who have shared the fun and pain of your evolution from a teenager to an adult are not easily forgotten.

They make it difficult to say goodbye, even though you may feel ready to move on.

While your schedule may have been hectic other years at McPherson College, this may have been your busiest and most memorable.

Senior projects are required in a number of departments; some projects are research oriented and some are performance or product oriented, but all hope to provide the student with valuable experience in their chosen field. Whether you were Scott Webber standing on stage practicing lines to an empty auditorium, Tanya Kingery working in the lab with sunflower seeds, Mike Maestas passing out questionnaires to a classroom of students, or Steve Janke tickling the computer keys, you know your efforts have added to your job experience.

Seniors planning to teach, have also been gaining job experience through student teaching at the elementary or secondary level.

For some, it must feel like they are off campus more often than on, yet in some ways this will make their transition from student to teacher smoother.

No matter what your field, McPherson College has tried to prepare you to succeed in it. Your experiences here will be fondly remembered, as will the many people who have helped you achieve your goals and develop as a unique individual.

Academics

Administration

McPherson College not only needs good students and professors to maintain its high standards, but an excellent administration and staff as well. From the leadership of the president to the lawncare of the maintenance person, each member of the staff makes an important contribution to the life of the college. We are fortunate to have the many fine people that keep this institution operating smoothly and personally-- you are not just a number here.

This year we welcome Ms. Sharon Knechel as our new Vice-President for Student Services and thank her for her continuing efforts on behalf of McPherson College students.

Including philosophy, religion, art, languages, English, drama and music, the Humanities Division has a lot to offer students.

This year two new professors, Kim Stanley and Tom Halliburton, both excellent professors who happen to be married, were added to the English Department. Dr. Stanley's fine background in the Classics spurred Mark Dooley to create an interdisciplinary major in this field.

Besides adding new faculty to our ranks, McPherson College has been pleased to host Chuanzhi Zhu, a visiting Chinese scholar, who has been sharing her experiences and knowledge with students.

Her visit may have encouraged some students to go to China as exchange students. The college also hosted the director of the BCA (Brethren Colleges Abroad) program. Dr. Herb Smith feels more nations have been represented on campus this year than in the past.

Exciting art exhibits, concerts, and plays continue to provide enrichment and entertainment for our students.

Natural Sciences

The Natural Science Division is always busy encouraging scholastic achievement and superior lab techniques in its students to prepare them for their chosen fields.

In its eight year, the senior research program had nine hard working participants: Vicki Finkenstadt, Jeff Gussie, Steve Janke, Tonya Kingery, Nicki Krshul, Anthony Phan, Michelle Roesch, Tom Vialpando and Bruce Wine.

With the departure of Toby Stucky, there has been a vacancy in the Computer Science Department, which will be filled next year by Sander Eller, after he completes his masters at California State University, Northridge. Professor Raymond Flagg has been teaching mathematics and computer and will be pleased to concentrate on mathematics.

In his twenty-sixth year of service, Dr. Leland Lengel continues to encourage scholarship in the Social Science Division and the History Department.

In March, business students enjoyed a two-day trip to Kansas City, touring the Hunt Midwest Underground Storage Company, TWA overhaul base, the Federal Reserve Bank, the Board of Trade and Hallmark, Inc.

Seniors in the Psychology Department read their senior project papers at Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln for the Annual Kansas Great Plains Students' Psychology Convention. Students from over 20 colleges and universities submitted papers and attended discussions, symposia, guest lectures, and a banquet. This is the first year the convention has been held outside Kansas.

The Applied Arts and Sciences Division not only includes many areas of education and athletics, but industrial arts and auto restoration. It combines academic excellence with practical experience to give its students the on-the-job experience needed to succeed in their chosen fields. You may find its students student teaching in a classroom, playing on a football field or tinkering under a car.

This year we say a fond farewell to Professor Gary Mahoney, who is returning with his family to his native state of Kentucky, where he'll be teaching at Beria College. We'll also miss Professor Rod Custer who will be working on his doctorate at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

In Closing...

Many hours have been spent putting together the vast array of ideas, pictures, graphics and copy in this year's Quadrangle. A special thank you goes to Teresa Smith and David Clayton for developing the theme, and to the fall Graphic Arts class for the cover idea and its completion. Those involved were: Anne Kletchka, Tom Vialpando, Steve Duft, Michelle Lafay, Paul Minnich, and Dimitri Tamalis. Pat Tracy drew some of the division page graphics, and the photographs used on them are by: Jack Patiño pages 8, 63, 82; Teresa Smith page 42; Karen Winter pages 43, 83; Kurt Murray for Central College page 62; and Linda Oellig page 108.

After school is out, most of the student body goes home, but the yearbook is never quite completed by this time, and the editor and sponsor are stuck putting most of it together. This year we had a lot of help from Gail Gustafson on layout and pasteup, and Diana Suiter on typing and formatting the index. Several others deserve special recognition, you know who you are. All of the hours of work and moral support given by these people is very much appreciated by Susan and me.

We did our own pasteups for the third year in a row, and using the laser printer saved much time and energy. Our body copy is Times Roman 10 point, our headlines Zaph Chancery and our captions Times italic. The organization section captions are Helvetica 9 point.

As "A New Dawning" comes to a close, we must again start looking at another new year, and do our best to fill it with college life memories just as we have done this and past years.

Karen Winter
